BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 1, 1902. NO. 11.

P. E. CASON,
County Judge for next four years.

D. E. CASTLEMAN,
County Attorney, who enters on his first term next Monday.

B. B. ALLPHIN,
The new Sheriff for four years, beginning next Monday.

JAMES ALLPHIN,
son of Sheriff B. B. Allphin. He is 16 years old, is a very bright boy, and will be his father's office deputy.

B. B. HUME,
a nephew of Sheriff Allphin, and who will be his court deputy. Mr. Allphin intends to do all the work himself, except during the sessions of Circuit Court.

W. E. VEST,
County Surveyor, who will enter upon his fifth term, next Monday. He has been dubbed. "Old Hard-to-Beat."

DATE your notes and other writings 1902.

THE first year of the new century is numbered among the past.

HERE is wishing one and all a happy new year and many returns.

THE capital of Grant county came to the front with its Christmas killing.

IF you are in the employe of the government you must not express any opinion you may entertain.

THE Indiana people want to get rid of their truant law, and petitions are being circulated with that in view.

HISTORIAN—Maclay ought to pay his beer bills before he begins to create so much trouble among people of note.

TO discredit Dewey, Miles and Schley all in a lump, the navy click will find the hardest proposition it ever tackled.

BERLIN has a cancer commission, and Dr. Paul Ehrlich has been provided with $10,000 a year to enable him to carry out his special study of the disease.

ANOTHER Ohio production is the Christmas tree burglar. He entered a residence at Findlay Christmas eve night and carried off a tree together with $50 worth of presents.

IT now developes that when Maclay wrote his book, he was trying to make money with which to liquidate a beer bill, the payment of which he had been doing for a long time.

GOV. SHAW, of Iowa, will become Secretary of the Treasury about the middle of this month. It is said that the large banking institutions in the east are not pleased with the appointment of Shaw, considering him of too small a caliber for the position for which he has been selected by the President.

THE Italian Government has been renewing its efforts of late with the authorities in Washington to have our Federal statutes so extended as to protect foreigners in cases arising within the jurisdiction of states, thus giving a Federal remedy for lynchings and like affrays directed against Italians such as have occurred in Louisiana, Colorado and Mississippi.

THE exactions on tourists arriving at the port of New York will, it is said, be made more stringent, and tourists arriving in this country will be called upon in future to pay full duty on all extra wearing apparel as well as on everything else not on the free list. In other words, according to a customs official, "tourists will not be favored at the expense of importers."

THE commission of Capt. William P. Crawford as Lieutenant in the regular army, was held up by the Secretary of War when he learned the circumstances of the breaking off of the Captain's engagement to Miss Rebecca Douglass, of Chester, S. C. The letter received by the young woman's mother on the morning of the day for the marriage is the basis of the Government's action in declaring the Captain guilty of "conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman."

SCORES of cattle are dying in Central Kentucky from a disease, the cause of which is a mystery. Most of the cattle affected have been fed upon corn fodder and the first theory was that they were poisoned by "corn smut," which is present upon the stalks in unusually large quantities this year. Another belief was that the animals died from eating too much dry feed without enough salt and water, but cattle have recently died that had access to both salt and water. The farmers are completely in the dark about the matter and the individual losses are beginning to be serious.

THE New York World is severe on the President because of his censure of Gen. Miles on account of his expressing an opinion in the Schley matter. It says:

"We cannot help thinking that if President Roosevelt had taken time to recall certain circumstances he would have hesitated before administering to General Miles the rebuke of a schoolmaster to an unruly pupil. For instance:

"When Theodore Roosevelt was 2 years 10 months and 15 days old Nelson A. Miles entered the army as a volunteer. He fought in the bloody battles of the Peninsula, before Richmond and at Antietam.

"On September 30, 1862, when Mr. Roosevelt was 3 years 11 months and 3 days old, he became Colonel of his regiment.

"On May 3, 1863, when little Theodore had reached the age of 4½ and was doubtless luxuriating in his first trousers, Colonel Miles was earning the Medal of Honor for distinguished gallantry in the battle of Chancellorsville while holding, with his command a line of abbattis and rifle pits against a strong force of the enemy until severely wounded.

"On May 12, 1864, Miles became Brigadier General of Volunteers for distinguished service during the battles of Old Wilderness and Spottsylvania Courthouse. At this time Mr. Roosevelt was 5½ years old, and the Hon. Elihu Root, now Secretary of War, was just graduating from college preparatory to studying law.

"On August 15, 1864, two months before young Roosevelt's sixth birthday, Brigadier General Miles was brevetted Major General for 'highly meritorious and distinguished conduct throughout the campaign, and particularly for gallantry and valuable service in the battle of Ream's Station."

"All these distinctions were conferred by Abraham Lincoln. In earning them General Miles was wounded three times.

"In view of these facts does it not seem to President Roosevelt as if he might gracefully leave any reprimand the veteran Commander may have earned to the ordinary course of military justice, instead of volunteering rebukes of his own?

"Especially when he remembers a certain round robin which the superiors of the officers who signed it found quite as inconsistent with discipline as any remarks attributed to General Miles?"

IN a fight at Williamstown last Wednesday Arthur Goughe was fatally shot and his father and brother slightly wounded. James Redenower and Tom Hackett are under arrest, charged with the shooting.

OWEN S. WATTS,
County Assessor for next four years.

THE Fiscal Court meets on Tuesday of next week. The new Judge will be on the bench but business will proceed without a jar. The appropriations for county affairs will be about the same as heretofore. It has been suggested that the county ought to supplement Commonwealth Attorney Gray's salary $50 or $100 a year, in as much as his commissions on fines imposed here in the last few years has been very small.

SENATOR Foraker, of Ohio, said the Schley verdict disgusted him. "I don't see," he said, "how the majority could have arrived at any such verdict. It is disgraceful, shameful. I read every word of the testimony, and there is nothing in it that justifies that censure of Schley. He may have erred in some ways because of his imperfect knowledge and his absolute lack of knowledge of certain facts at times, but he succeeded in the end, and Admiral Dewey's verdict is the one that I accept. It is exactly what I think. I don't know whether Congress will take up the matter or not. If it does I don't think it necessary to investigate Schley again. Some body else ought to be investigated. I don't know how the Naval Affairs Committee feels on the subject, and, of course, a great deal would depend upon that. If the administration is anxious to drop the controversy, as has been said, it could make a good beginning by dropping Maclay."

THE County Court of Owen county has granted a franchise to a number of Owen-county people for an electric or steam road in the county. While the franchise covers nearly all the principal turnpikes, the route most favorably mentioned by those interested is the one from Warnock's Stone, in Scott county, to Worthville, by way of Owenton, New Liberty and Wheatley.

YESTERDAY the first volume of the complete census report on population was issued. This is 18 months after the beginning of the census, and the work has been done in three years less time than was required for the eleventh census. In order to accomplish this result the work has been divided into day and night forces and each urged to the limit of human capacity. The Director estimates that it will require two years to go over the ground and prepare for the taking of the census of the Philippines and Porto Rico.

M. C. NORMAN, of Union, and John H. Watson, of Walton, are the new justices of the peace who take their seats as members of the Fiscal Court at its session next Tuesday. Mr Norman was, for many years, a leading member of the court of Claims under the old constitution. He was conservative in all matters pertaining to the county's business, but when it was necessary to make an appropriation for a meritorious measure, he always wanted it ample to have the work done in a proper manner. He will make a good member of the new court.

Mr. Watson has never been a justice of the peace, but has held the office of constable for several years, which has given him a pretty good idea of the fiscal affairs of the county, and he will go on the bench not an entire stranger to the duties of his office. He is a good man and level-headed.

THE admission of Mr. Hepburn that the democrats forced the McKinley administration to staud for the independence of Cuba was greeted by democratic applause. The prediction that they would regret the independence of Cuba was greeted by republican applause. The attitude of the two parties is plain. The democratic party has never regretted its stand for the principal of the Monroe doctrine, that this continent should be devoted to liberty and independence. We do not believe it will ever favor the system of forcibly absorbing weaker states. It still holds that policy to be "criminal aggression."—Indianapolis Sentinal.

LIMABURG.

J. W. Rouse and John D. Aylor killed hogs, Monday.

The holidays were enjoyed very much in this neighborhood.

A large number of his friends partook of E. J. Rouse's goo e dinner Monday.

William Garnett got his big toe badly mashed by a log rolling on it. It is getting along nicely. Dr. Rouse dressed the wound.

J. D. Pettit and Miss Hattie O. Utz, daughter of J. M. Utz were married on the 26th by Rev. Ed Stephens, of Erlanger. James Brown and Miss Dora Baker were the attendants and James M. Utz and Miss Eva Utz and Henry Clore and wife were the witnesses. They received a great many presents. We wish them much joy and a long and happy life.

UNION.

Had quite a number of Xmas dinners.

With best wishes for a happy and prosperous New Year.

Joe Huey, of Georgetown is spending Xmas at his home here.

There were several small theater parties from here last week.

Mrs. Ernest Clements is spending several weeks with Mrs. Dora Bannister.

The Xmas trees at Bristow and Rachals homes were very much enjoyed by the little ones.

Mrs. Sam Hicks and children spent Xmas with her parents Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Kennedy.

Miss Nannie Bristow and May L. Norman were delightfully entertained by Mrs. J. N. Gibson, last week.

Ollin Harter, of Manetta, Ohio, was visiting his old home a few days this week. Mr. Harter is well pleased with his new home, and business.

Mr. Tom Huey and Sallie Willis were married at the home of Rev. Jones on 4th Street, Thursday. Elza Garrison and Miss Sallie Belle Hicks were the attendants. Mr. and Mrs. Huey went to Chattanooga, Tenn., for a short visit.

Golden Grange had a very interesting all-day meeting, Saturday. A delightful dinner was served. Had an election of officers and the Grangers presented the Master, Overseer and Secretary with beautiful and useful presents.

BEAVER.

Born, to William Littrell and wife, Dec. 23rd, a pretty baby girl.

Sam Vest, who is teaming in Cincinnati, spent the holidays with his old chums at Beaver.

J. Kite Clore, of Covington, will move, this week, into the tenant house of Will Wilson.

Samuel Johnson, of Lewisport, Ky., is visiting his brother, W. C. Johnson and family at present.

A goodly number of our young people attended the entertainment at Walton Christmas night, and report a good time.

The dance given at the residence of Martin Bailey, last Friday night, was largely attended and everyone present pronounced it the happiest event of the holidays.

As the year 1902 has arrived our large tenantry are beginning to hustle about for good "lays," which each succeeding year finds more difficult to secure in this community.

Miss Doctor Mary Conner, of Cincinnati, O., spent Sunday with her cousin, J. L. Jones and family. She is a very talented lady, and one of the foremost in her profession in the city.

Mr. T. Jake Hughes, our telephone magnate, reports business in his line rapidly increasing, he having a dozen or more orders for 'phones at different points through the county.

Beaver enjoyed a regular old time puritanichal Christmas. Everything passed off orderly and quietly. Some few of course, had a little of the "woe be joyful," but conducted themselves as becometh good citizens.

The lodge of F. & A. M., at Big Bone gave a splendid oyster dinner at the hospitable residence of W. C. Johnson, at Midway. Quite a goodly number of the fraternity were present and enjoyed the day hugely.

"Uncle Bob" Conley, our only lucky one who participated in the Enquirer guessing contest, has been able ever since the distribution of the prizes to defeat any one who dares to face in at the checker board in Beaver.

J. H. Sleet's sons gave their many young friends an elegant oyster supper at their Minglewood home, last Saturday evening. A great many were present, and an enjoyable evening was spent discoursing sweet music and in social conversation.

The members of the Beaver Baptist church last Sunday gave the Sabbath school pupils a nice little treat. Before the treat was presented, quite a neat little entertainment under the management of Mrs. Jennie Osman, was given by the little ones, all of whom acquitted themselves in a very creditable manner.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.
A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere, of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—Joel Demont, Inwood, Ia. For sale by all Druggists.

Regular services at the Presbyterian church Sunday, Jan. 5, morning and evening. Mr. Sayre, of Erlanger, will meet with the Christian Endeavor in the afternoon at 2:30 p. m.

Graddy Wins Out.

Col. G. C. Graddy won his fight for the stamp deputyship at Petersburg, and some of the prominent Republicans, who, at first, were so strong for him and afterwards stronger against him, feel like thirty cents.

For the last half hour of the old year and first 30 minutes of the new year, the church bells and mill whistle held high carnival, and the town has a disorganized appearance this morning.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, and, although 73 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves the Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue; H. L. Eskew's, Walton.

Between The Old Year And the New

ALONE—alone at the midnight hour sitting, my soul and I, Harking sound of the wind's a complaint, listing the time go by.
Fronting each to the other's thought, with the moon's face, sweet and thin,
A-watch at the space of the window place,
waiting the year begin—
Waiting us usher the Old Year out and welcome the New Year in.

Heavy my soul with grief and pain—heavy,
and bowed with tears,
Worn with the weight of Sorrow's hand,
not with the weight of years;
And 'twixt us many a thing of woe, many a thought of sin,
While the moon outside, like a pure-eyed bride, was waiting the year begin—
Waiting us usher the Old Year out and
welcome the New Year in.

My soul it spoke in the stilly dark—spoke,
and I shrank and heard,
The chords of my being pulsed and leaped,
affrighted like captive bird;
I heard, and I knew that such words were true—while the new moon, sweet and thin,
With sad surprise in her tender eyes was waiting the year begin—
Waiting us usher the Old Year out and
welcome the New Year in.

And I plead with my soul: "Judge not—judge not!" and I prayed: "New Year, bring grace."
I fell on my knees in the hush and dark—I wept and hid my face;
For out of the finite bounds of Time, from the realms of "the might have been,"
To sepulcher of the infinite past bearing mistakes and sin,
The Old Year stole as the church bells chimed—and the New Year entered in.

ANNIE'S CURLS.

A NEW YEAR STORY.

BY ELLEN FRIZELL WYCKOFF.

"OH, if my darling could only have the wine! How hard it is to be so poor, so poor."

Annie heard her mother's words, although they were not intended for her to hear. She saw her brush away the tears from her eyes and then go back to Teddy's room.

"What did the doctor say, mother?" asked Teddy, in a weak voice; "did he say I will get well?"

Annie heard the reply: "He says that the fever is broken, and that all you have to do now is to get well."

Teddy's voice trembled as he replied: "Oh, mother, I was afraid he would say I might die, and I wondered who would take care of you and little Annie. I am glad God is going to let me live to do it. Now I must begin to get strong! Can't you give me lots to eat?"

Annie saw her mother's lips quiver as she turned her face from Teddy.

"Yes, my son, but not too much at once, you know," she said.

Teddy looked very thoughtful.

"But is there anything in the house, mother? I have been sick a good while, and my last wages must be nearly gone, and you haven't had time to color many photos lately, have you?"

The boy's mother answered, bravely: "Sick folks mustn't bother about these things, you know." Then she left the room, and Annie saw that she did so to hide the tears which were streaming down her worn face.

"I must do something; I wonder what it will be?" murmured Annie to herself, and, crushing her hat down over her curls, she slipped into the street.

Annie thought constantly of wine for poor Teddy, and wondered if she summoned courage to beg a bottle whether anyone would be kind enough to give it to her for poor sick boy, her only brother. She knew that sometimes grocers kept wine, especially around holiday time, and felt sure if they only knew how very, very much it was needed at home by her poor sick Teddy that some one of them would surely give her a bottle. Then there were other places where they sold nothing but wine and such stuff, for she had seen big windows full of the bottles, with pictures of great bunches of beautiful grapes standing behind them.

Annie wasn't a bold, forward child; she was timid, but brave and resolute; her love for her brother, at least, made her brave for the time; so she resolved in her heart to beg for the wine which the doctor said would bring back strength to Teddy. Christmas had come and gone, but Teddy was so ill with the fever that Annie thought nothing about the absence of the gifts usual to that happy day; but now Teddy was to grow better, and she did long to be able to make his New Year's and her mother's brighter than Christmas had been. As she wandered down the streets revolving these thoughts in her mind and wondering how she might get the necessary wine she passed many a gay scene.

Early evening had closed down on the city, and all the shops were aflame with light and brightness. Annie gazed wistfully at the pretty things in the great windows; she was but a little maid, and could not help wishing for pretty things for herself and for her mother and Teddy.

But the wine—she must not linger; she would only look in one more shop and then—then she would seek the great shop where wine was sold in bottles; surely the big, rosy-faced man whom she had often noticed standing in the doorway of his shop would listen to her story of poor Teddy and give her the wine.

So she stood before this last store—it was a jewelry store—and, oh, how beautiful the jewels looked—sapphires and rubies and diamonds—how they glittered. The sight was enough to fascinate older eyes than Annie's.

Presently something in one corner of the window caught her gaze—it wasn't a jewel, it was a switch of lovely hair; not one, but several, and below them in pretty, shallow, satin-lined boxes, were clusters of curls. A sudden thought came to Annie; she pressed her little hands together and held her breath, then paused a moment to gain courage, and passed resolutely into the great store. A kind-looking man came forward to meet her and said: "What can I do for you, little lady?"

"Do you buy hair?" she asked.

"Sometimes, little one; why do you ask?"

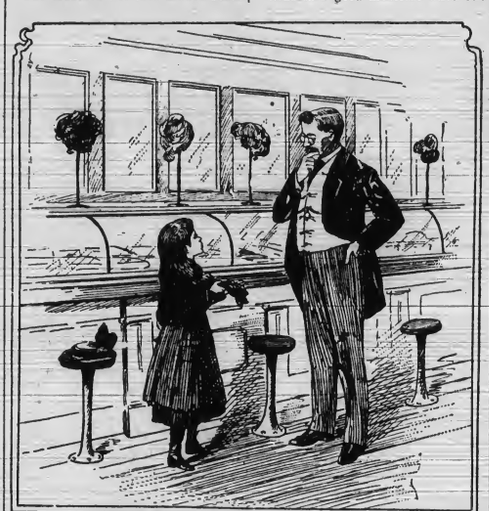
"Will you buy mine? See, I have plenty!" she answered, taking off her hat and shaking her curls down over her shoulders, and looking up with anxious eyes.

"But, my little girl, are your curls yours to sell?"

"Oh, yes, sir; if you only knew why I must sell them, I am sure you would buy them. Teddy is so ill that he needs things, and mother—" and here she choked up so she could say no more.

"And you want to sell your beautiful hair to buy things for your sick brother; is that it, little one?"

"Yes, sir."



"I wouldn't take it, but—"

"Please don't refuse me, sir; my hair will grow in again; it grows awful fast; see, it is below my waist!"

"It is beautiful, a very rare color, and so curly," said the man, stroking the rippling mass of shining hair.

"Mother's is just like mine, only it is a little fady here and there. You will take my hair, won't you? Please do; it will surely grow again, and my brother needs things so very, very much; the doctor says so!"

The man led her into a back room and himself cut the glossy locks, laying each curl carefully down. Then he called a man who wore a white apron and gave the little shorn head into his charge.

"I believe that you are prettier than before," the kind man said, when the hairdresser had finished. Then he laid a little roll of bills in the child's hand and bade her be careful not to lose it on her way home.

Annie hurried home. When she arrived mother was reading to Teddy, and Annie crept in like a little mouse. She removed her hat carefully, so as not to spoil the hairdresser's work, then dropped the bills in her mother's lap, with a "Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, mamma!"

"Oh!" screamed Teddy.

"Oh!" screamed mother, as they both saw and knew all.

"How came you to think of it, my poor baby?" asked the mother.

"It's for wine—wine is better than curls any day," answered Annie; then, turning to Teddy, she hugged him in joy and said, softly: "Get well, Teddy, and pay me back some day!"

Then she told how it all happened, and how she was going in a couple of days to see her curls in their pretty satin-lined case. After they had both kissed her and thanked her over and over again she crept away.

"I'm glad I did it; but how lonesome my pretty curls will be!" said the child.

But the curls were not at all lonesome. The kind man was looking at them when one of the boys showed a gentleman in. The visitor was a big man and he had gentle eyes, though his face was somewhat rough to look at.

"I'm quite out of heart, Alfred; I can get no clew; but what's that you have there? Pretty, aren't they?"

"Yes, beautiful!"

Then the kind man told all about the little girl who sold the curls to him, so she could have money to buy things for the sick brother.

"Alfred, this hair is just the color of Ellie's; could it be? Could it be Ellie's child's hair?"

"She's coming here day after to-morrow to see her curls in their satin-lined box; then if you will be here you can find out who she is," answered the jeweler.

Sure enough, Annie came to see her curls as they looked ready for sale; she wanted to see the box. While she was admiring it and telling about Teddy, and how the wine was doing him good, the stranger with the gentle eyes arrived. He talked to the little girl for awhile, then surprised the jeweler and little Annie by bursting into tears.

"They've told you about Uncle Luke, haven't they?" he asked.

"Oh, yes, often," replied Annie. "He is in Australia, where the bark falls off the trees and the leaves stay on, and where the birds have no wings, and everything is so queer!"

"But what if he came home?"

"Oh, he won't," she said; "mother has lost him completely."

"But he has come home. I am he."

Then there was what Annie called "a time."

That was how it happened that just as the doctor was praising Teddy's patience, and saying how the wine had helped him, there was a great flutter in the hall, and Annie bounced in, dragging a big man with kind eyes in a rough face by the hand.

"My curls found him. It is Uncle Luke, mother, and he has money enough to buy my curls back two or three times. I know, because he said so."

And then there was much more of "a time." And the doctor held Teddy's hand while Uncle Luke told about his long search for his sister, and mother explained about father's death and her removal to the city, and how she lost Uncle Luke's address and could not get a letter to reach him. Then they talked about Annie's curls, and the doctor blew his nose furiously and dug at his eyes, and Annie heard him say:

"Old idiot that I am! I guess I'll try to see about a way of getting wine when I prescribe it again for a boy whose mother has that frightened look in her eyes."

Annie tucked her little shorn head under the doctor's arm and whispered: "But you see how it was best, don't you? My curls found so much for us—they brought us an uncle. Just look at mother; don't she look happy? Isn't a good uncle the best New Year's present in all this world?"

Wine is a good medicine when one needs it and Teddy improved rapidly—so rapidly that he was almost ready to try the new sled that Uncle Luke brought home to him on New Year's eve. As for Teddy's mother, the rose began to tint her cheeks again, and Annie was sure she was the prettiest and best mother in all the world.—Ladies' World, New York.

A Good Resolution.

One of the best New Year's resolutions we have heard of anybody making is this: "Not to speak of mistakes which make no difference." How often the harmony of the home is destroyed by the persistent member of the household who will argue half an hour over the merest trifle. If one holds an erroneous opinion on a subject of any importance it should by all means be corrected. But what possible difference does it make whether Aunt Jane came to dinner on Tuesday or Wednesday? Yet we have listened to heated disputes that cast an ugly shadow over an entire meal, or spoiled an evening's enjoyment, upon subjects of no more moment than the time of a visit or the state of last week's weather. In dealing with children accuracy of statement should be carefully cultivated, lest a habit of exaggeration or untruthfulness be developed. But for adults the foregoing resolution is worthy of general adoption.—Helpful Thoughts.

THE "PHONE" WAS THE CAUSE OF IT

"Not for me!" I wouldn't swear off: "Good resolutions"—I have no desire; For it would be folly for any sane man As long as he uses the wire.

TAKING ON FLESH.

Rapid Growth of a Show Hog in the Words of the Spectators.

"How much does this hog weigh?" asked the pink-cheeked young woman, according to the Chicago Tribune.

"About 1,000 pounds," replied the young man who was leaning over the inclosure containing a huge Poland-China sorker at the live stock show.

He was not connected with the show and had not the remotest idea how much the hog weighed, but it seemed to him a pity to spoil anybody's expectations, and it was just as easy to say 1,000 as 600.

"How much did he say it weighed?" inquired a friend of the pink-cheeked girl.

"Over 1,000 pounds," she said.

"Pretty big animal, isn't he?" said another newcomer. "Any idea how much he weighs?"

"I heard somebody say just now he weighed considerably over 1,000," replied a bystander. "Probably in the neighborhood of 1even hundred."

"He weighs over 1,100," said the elderly person in furs to the youthful person who was trying to look over her shoulder.

"How much?" asked somebody further back in the crowd.

"Nearly 1,200," responded the man who was trying to make his way out.

"He weighs over 1,200," was the word passed to those still further back.

"He doesn't look it, but you can't tell about these hogs. They're so close to the ground."

"Yes," said another, "but you're all guessing this one too high. I heard a fellow who seemed to know say a little while ago that his weight was 1,005 pounds."

"How much?" asked several at once.

"Thousand and five."

"How much?"

"Thousand five hundred," said another voice.

The crush became terrific.

"What's all this excitement about?" asked a man in a wolfskin overcoat, happening along.

"Fifteen-hundred pound hog," they said.

"Fifteen-hundred pound nothing! That's a two-year-old from Table Grove, and he weighs just 825 pounds."

Then the crowd melted away.

FOR THE CUISINE.

Odd Bits of Information for the Instruction of the Young Cook.

An excellent stuffing for ducks is made by adding a half cupful of peanuts rolled fine to the ordinary bread dressing.

A little Manila vegetable hand brush will be found most convenient for cleansing celery. Scrub each stalk lengthwise, rinse thoroughly, then with a sharp knife scrape off all rusty lines and lay on the ice until ready to serve.

If the cooking of turnips, onions, etc., has left the least suggestion of their preparation in the dining-room pour a few drops of oil of lavender in a vase or bowl and half fill with hot water. This gives a delightful freshness to the room and is a valuable expedient to bear in mind in cases when the house is prone to get stuffy and doors and windows cannot be thrown open at the last moment, says the Washington Star.

If you want a novelty for your finger bowls try the Japanese water flowers, which can be procured at the Chinese and Japanese stores. Just as the bowls are placed at the covers drop one in each bowl, when they will at once expand and change into flowers and other designs.

A most delicious sauce to accompany game roasts or broiled birds or poultry is made by thoroughly mixing a heaping tablespoonful of dry mustard with a glass of currant jelly until neither can be perceived from the other. This was a favorite sauce with Miss Juliet Corson, who declared that canvasback especially should never be served without it.

Fillet of Pork.

Cut a round from a fine leg of fresh pork, remove the bone, and fill the space with a stuffing made as follows: To a sufficient quantity of grated breadcrumbs add a teaspoonful of tarragon leaves and a scant tablespoonful of pulverized sage; mix well and season with salt and pepper, then add the beaten yolks of two eggs. Score the fillet with circles, into which rub a little sage. Roast in a regular oven for three or four hours, according to the size of the fillet. Baste at first with pure sweet oil, afterwards with the gravy in the pan. Serve with apple sauce.—Ladies' World, New York.

Cereal Mush.

The mush should be thick enough to oblige the child to chew it; otherwise it will be swallowed without being mixed with the saliva and less readily digested. When fruits, like sliced ripe bananas, chopped dates or stewed prunes, are added to the cereal it may be made thinner, for the child will retain it in the mouth while chewing the fruit.—Washington Star.

Mushroom Sauces.

Canned mushrooms should cook 15 to 20 minutes for saucea or fricassees. Cooking the mushroom in butter first before adding to the fricassee makes it very rich and nice. Fresh mushrooms should cook from 30 to 40 minutes.—Ledger Monthly.

ONLY DELAYING REFORM.

The Growing Demand for Tariff Reduction Will Sooner or Later Prevail.

Those republicans that have been advocating tariff reform, either through revision or reciprocity, with a good deal of earnestness are not delighted with the situation in the tariff field as they find it. They are convinced, apparently, that free trade, or anything like it, is quite as obnoxious to those who shape republican policies as it ever was, and that there is going to be no abandonment of the protective policy yet awhile. It has become clear that any abatement of tariff taxation through revision or reciprocity can be had only by sacrificing the protected interests, and none of these interests is willing to be sacrificed. Each of the beneficiaries of the protective policy is entirely willing that any or all of the others should make a sacrificial offering of themselves, but he wants none of it on his plate, thank you, says the Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

This is, of course, generally speaking. There are a few individual cases of men who are prepared to forego the protection on their industries for the sake of the wider markets such sacrifice would bring them, but a large majority of the representatives of those industries refuse to see the matter in the same light. Mr. A. B. Farquhar, of Troy, Pa., a manufacturer of agricultural implements, long ago took advanced ground on the tariff question, and he is there yet, but his views have not won sufficiently wide acceptance to make them impressive.

There is, of course, no doubt that the tariff will be reformed sooner or later. The demand for reform is growing, and it will yet be too strong to be resisted. The movement toward freer trade is checked somewhat, especially in republicanism, by professed apprehension that tariff changes will disturb our present prosperity. This argument, falls readily from the lips of those who have always insisted, for political purposes, that the tariff law of 1893 brought on the panic. Republican prosperity is sensitive and timid, and it is easy to frighten it away. But the time is coming, and soon, at that, when this and other arguments against the abandonment of robber protection will not serve. The national democracy, united on this question, will be able to make it uncomfortably hot for the advocates of pickpocket tariffs.

OPPOSE THE SHIP SUBSIDY.

Popular Opinion is Strongly Against the Nefarious Republican Measure.

In the recent action of the Illinois State Grange, renewing that body's opposition to the passage of the ship-subsidy bill, there is found continued proof of the fact that public sentiment is unalterably against the measure in question and that strong pressure will again be brought to bear in Washington to defeat the new bill, says the St. Louis Republic.

The basis of this unchanging opposition to the ship-subsidy bill was correctly stated in that sentence of the resolution adopted by the Illinois State Grange which declared that the defeat of the bill was sought because the grange believed "it to be unwise and unjust and special legislation, designed to favor a few moneyed corporations at the expense of the general public."

All the special pleading possible to the republican group backing the ship-subsidy bill will not remove from the popular mind this just conviction that the measure is a syndicate measure, placing a tax of many millions upon the people in order that the shipping corporations which inspired the proposed legislation may be further enriched by subsidy. This truth was made so plain in the Fifty-sixth congress that the people are not likely to forget the teaching.

The present outlook, however, is that the ship-subsidy bill will be enacted into law. The republican party is virtually pledged to the passage of the bill. President Roosevelt has, with more or less directness, indorsed the measure in his message to congress. The spectacle likely to be presented in Washington at an early date is that of the passage of the ship-subsidy bill in the face of a popular opposition which, under proper conditions, should make defeat certain.

——At the merchants' banquet in Boston Senator Hanna said: "We are building a magnificent navy and shall continue until we are second to no nation. We should also build something for that navy to defend." Extending the reasoning, why should we not say: "We have a small but efficient army. Let us get up some ways to keep it employed actively," or "We have a fine pension office; let us find some pensioners for the office to pay." A system that must be sustained by such fallacious arguments will not commend itself to the American people.—Hartford Times.

——The ship subsidy bill is a steal pure and simple. It proposes to take the people's money and present it to industries already established and profitable. It is in the interest of a class. It is vicious in principle. Healthy industries are not developed in such manner. The bill rests upon falsehood and misrepresentation and it ought never to become a law.—Rochester Herald.

——As between Senators Hanna and Foraker in the Ohio fight, what reason has President Roosevelt to favor Hanna?—St. Louis Republic.

THE TRUSTS AND THE PEOPLE.

Corporate Interests Are of First Importance with Republican Legislators.

The defenders of our present tariff system, from the president down, need not think that they can satisfy the popular demand for tariff revision simply by shutting their eyes and ears to its existence. There is many a man who believes in reasonable protection who is entirely unable to see why the United States Steel corporation should have any discrimination in its favor and at the expense of the people of the United States. President Roosevelt is a student of our history, and he knows that the original theory of protection was that it should be given to infant industries, and continued only as long as those industries continued to be infants. It was admitted by all that protection should be withdrawn just as soon as the industries to which it had been given were able to get along without it. The people, too, understand this. Therefore, says the independent Indianapolis News, when it is said that there shall be no modification of the tariff, and that the reciprocity treaties should not be ratified, and when Mr. Roosevelt merely recommends that those treaties be "considered," the people are wondering on what theory it is that the steel trust, the sugar trust, the tinplate trust, and other tremendous aggregations of capital are to be allowed to continue to tax them exorbitantly for the sake of adding to profits that are already enormous.

The situation is indeed serious, and it may become critical for the republican party. The gentlemen of the ways and means committee may refuse to grant relief to the people, and the president and congress may sustain them, but theirs is not the last word. All over the country, and among republicans as well as democrats, the people are growing restive under existing conditions. There is not a western congressman who does not know this. We all know in this section that the tinplate and steel industries are not "infants." To suggest that they are, and to urge protection on that or any other ground, is only to arouse contemptuous indignation on the part of the people. The warning is as plain as can be. But there are no indications that it will be regarded. On the contrary, the republican leaders, instead of moving to modify or to repeal these needless, and so unjust taxes, are striving to secure the imposition of others for the benefit of the great shipping combine.

There is nothing that the democrats would like so well as to have the tariff laws left alone and the ship subsidy grab go through. So great is their eagerness to have the republicans fall into these blunders that there is reason to fear that they may not do their full duty as the opposition party in congress. Indeed, the question is getting far beyond one of mere taxation. It will soon be, if it is not now, one of whether this country is to be ruled by the people or by the trusts and corporations. We hear much of "influence" in the present congress. The subsidy bill is said to be supported by powerful influence, the isthmian canal is threatened by other influences, fair treatment of Cuba depends on the result of the fight between two great influences and the relation of our statesmen to them, and so on. One wonders where the people come in.

OPINIONS AND POINTERS.

——Trusts have no more right to have their own sweet will because they can summon a multitude of dollars, than feudal chiefs had a right to lord it over others because they had a large number of retainers at their backs.—Indianapolis News.

——President Roosevelt is said to be much offended at the delay of the senate in confirming the nomination of Attorney General Knox. The incident may serve to call the president's attention to the fact that there is such a body as the senate — of which he was incidentally informed by a deputation of senators, to whom he was laying down the law, some time ago.—Albany Argus.

——The statesmen who tried to shelve Roosevelt by making him vice president are not faring half bad after all. Here is the bossship of Platt recognized in New York, Quay still doing business at the old stand in dishing out national offices and Hanna as self-complacent as usual with the Ohio and national machines completely in his grip. No wonder the civil service reformers are down in the mouth.—St. Paul Globe.

——Reciprocity, the handmaiden of protection, as high-tariff republicans now delight to term that vague and evasive policy, will doubtless be found to have earned the title beyond all dispute before the Fifty-fifth congress shall have reached the day of final adjournment. What still remains to be seen, however, is whether the general public will be fooled into believing that such a handmaiden serves any but monopoly interests.—St. Louis Republic.

——Next year's campaign will be for congress. Chairman Dick, no doubt, wonders if the "producers" will still act in 1903, when he hopes to gain his reward in the governor's office. With President Roosevelt in charge of the civil service of the United States there is danger of the entire destruction of republican principles in Ohio.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The United States may produce a millionaire some day who will be philanthropic enough to sell his trust products at home for the same prices charged to the foreign consumer.—Detroit Free Press.

THE BATTLE OF LIFE

How the End of the Struggle May Be Brightened.

Lesson Which May Be Learned from Boasting of Benhadad, the King of Syria—Humanity Encouraged.

[Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

While this discourse of Dr. Talmage rebukes arrogance, it encourages humanity and shows how the evening of life may be brightened. The text is 1 Kings, 20:11: "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

Harness is the obsolete word for armor. It means harness for the man, not harness for the beast; harness for battle, not harness for the plow. The ancient armor consisted of helmet for the head, breastplate and shield for the heart, greaves for the feet. The text makes a comparison between a man enlisting for some war and a veteran returning, the one putting on the armor and the other putting it off.

Benhadad, the king of Syria, thought he could easily overcome the king of Israel. Indeed, the Syrian was so sure of the victory that he spread an antebellum banquet. With 32 kings he was celebrating what they were going to do. There were in all 33 kings at the carousal, and their condition is described in the Bible not as convivial or stimulated exaltation, but drunk. Their gilded and bannered pavilions were surrounded by high-mettled horses, neighing and champing, and hitched to chariots such as kings rode in. Benhadad sends officers to the king of Israel demanding the surrender of the city, saying: "Thou shalt deliver me thy silver and thy gold and thy wives and thy children," and afterward sends other officers, saying that the palace of the king will be searched and everything Benhadad wants he will take without asking. Then the king of Israel called a council of war and word is sent back to Benhadad that his unreasonable demand will be resisted. Then Benhadad sends another message to the king of Israel, a message full of arrogance and bravado, practically saying: "We will destroy you utterly. I will grind Samaria into the dust, but there will not be dust enough to make a handful for each one of my troops." Then the king of Israel replied to Benhadad, practically saying: "Let me see you do what you say. You royal braggart, you might better have postponed your banquet until after the battle instead of spreading it before the battle. You huzza too soon. 'Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off.'"

An avalanche of courage and righteousness, the Israelitish army came down on Benhadad and his host. It was a hand to hand fight, each Israelite hewing down a Syrian. Benhadad, on horseback, gets away with some of the cavalry, but is only saved for a worse defeat, in which 100,000 Syrian infantry were slaughtered in one day. Now we see the sarcasm and the epigrammatic power of the message of my text sent by the king of Israel to Benhadad: "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

All up and down history we see such too early boasting. Soult, the marshal of France, was so certain that he would conquer that he had a proclamation printed announcing himself king of Portugal and had a grand feast prepared for four o'clock that afternoon, but before that hour he fled in ignominious defeat, and Wellington of the conquering host sat down at four o'clock at the very banquet the marshal of France had ordered for himself. Charles V. invaded France and was so sure of conquest that he requested Paul Jovius, the historian, to gather together a large amount of paper on which to write the story of his many victories, but disease and famine seized upon his troopers and he retreated in dismay. So Benhadad's behavior has been copied in all ages of the world. It will be my object, among other lessons, to show that he who puts off the armor, having finished the battle, is more to be congratulated than he who begins.

First, I find encouragement in this subject for the aged who have got through the work and struggle of earthly life. My venerable friends, if you had at 25 years of age full appreciation of what you would have to go through in the thirties and the forties and the fifties of your lifetime you would have been appalled. Fortunately the bereavements, the temptations, the persecutions, the hardships, were curtained from your sight. With more or less fortitude you passed through the crisis of pain and sadness and disappointment and fatigue and still live to recount the Divine help that sustained you. At 20 or 30 years of your age at the tap of the drum you put on the harness. Now, at 60 or 70 or 80, you are peacefully putting it off. You would not want to try the battle of life over again. So many of just your temperament and with as good a starting and as fine a parentage and seemingly with as much equipoise of character as you had have made complete shipwreck that you would not want again to run the risks. Though you can look back and see many mistakes, the next time you might make worse mistakes. Instead of being depressed over the fact that you are being counted out or omitted in the great undertakings of the church and the world, rejoice that you have a right to hang up your helmet and sheathe your sword and free your hands from the gantlets and your feet from the boots of mail.

At the soldiers' home in the suburbs of this city I often admire the peaceful and contented looks of the venerable heroes as they sit under the trees or go in and out the fine abode that our government has appropriately provided for them. They are not longing for other Chapultepecs. They do not want to undertake another South Mountain. Their foot does not ache to get into the stirrup of the cavalryman. They are not longing for the hardtack of the soldiers' breakfast along the Chickahominy. They have no desire for another ride in the ambulance to the field hospital. When the Spanish war broke out they sometimes wondered if their rheumatic knee would allow them to keep step in a march, and if their sight was good enough to see an advancing foeman, and if their ear was alert enough to hear the command "Charge!" But for the most part they are glad that there is no more war for them. So let all of the aged in peace with God, through the blessed Christ, cultivate contentment and thank the Lord their Sedan has been fought and the war is over. "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

There are old farmers who cannot do one more day's work. Last harvests they raised in 1870! They knew the rotation of crops as well as they knew the rotations of the seasons. Under what blistering suns they swung the scythe and the cradle! Through what deep snows they drew the logs or cut out their way to the foddering of the cattle! What droughts, what freshets, what insectile invasion, they remember! To clothe and feed and educate the household they went through toils and self-sacrifices that the world knew but little about. Rest, aged man! Let the boys do the shoveling and thrashing and cutting and sweating. You have put the harness off, and do not try to put it on again.

Then there are aged physicians. What tragedies of pain and accident they have witnessed! How much suffering they have assuaged! How many brave battles they have fought with lancet and cataclysm! How many fevers they cooled! How many broken bones they set! How many paroxysms they quieted! How many anxious days they passed when they knew that human lives depended upon their skill and fidelity! They drove back death from many a cradle. Instead of becoming hardened at the sight of suffering their sympathies deepened, as with aged Dr. Valentine Mott when, standing before his students in clinical department and a child was about to be operated upon in surgery, he said: "Gentlemen, here are surgeons who will do this work as well as I can, and you will excuse me if I leave the room, for as I get older I cannot composedly witness pain as once I could, especially the suffering of little children." God comfort and bless the old doctors, allopathic, homeopathic, hydropathic and eclectic, and make them willing to be out of practice! Before long they will hear the benediction of Him who said: "I was sick, and ye visited Me."

Again, I learn from Benhadad's behavior the unwisdom of boasting of what one is going to do. Two messages had he sent to the king of Israel, both messages full of insolence and braggadocio. With brimming beaker in haud he is talking with the royal group about what he will do with the spoils of the victory he is going to achieve that afternoon. He takes it for granted that Samaria will surrender. He gives command for the capture of some of the inhabitants of Samaria who are approaching, saying: "Whether they be come out for peace take them alive, or whether they be come out for war, take them alive." But behold the fugitive king in frightened retreat before sundown! Better not tell boastingly what you are going to do. Wait until it is done. You do well to lay our your plans, but there are so many mistakes and disappointments in life that you may not be able to carry out your plans, and there is no need of invoking the world's derision and caricature. Napoleon was so sure of conquering England, Scotland and Ireland that he had a medal struck celebrating the conquest, which he never made. On that medal was represented his own crowned head.

Dr. Pendleton and Mr. Saunders were talking in the time of persecution under Queen Mary. Saunders was trembling and afraid, but Pendleton said: "What! Man, there is much more cause for me to fear than you. You are small, and I have a large bodily frame, but you will see the last piece of this flesh consumed to ashes before I ever forsake Jesus Christ and His truth, which I have professed." Not long after Saunders, the faint hearted, gave up his life for Christ's sake, while Pendleton, who had talked so big, played coward and gave up religion when the test came. Wilberforce did not tell what he was going to do with the slave trade, but how much he accomplished is suggested by Lord Brougham's remark concerning Wilberforce after his decease: "He went to Heaven with 800,000 broken fetters in his hand." Some one, trying to dissuade Napoleon from his invasion of Russia, said: "Man proposes, but God disposes." But you remember Moscow, and 95,000 corpses in the snowbanks. The only kind of boasting that prospers was that of Paul, who cried out: "I glory in the cross of Christ!" And that of John Newton, who declared: "I am not what I ought to be; I am not what I wish to be; I am not what I hope to be, but, by the grace of God, I am not what I was."

Do not boast of your moral strength. One of the most brilliant men of the nineteenth century, having temporarily reformed from inebriacy, stood on the platform of Broadway tabernacle, New York, and said: "Were this great globe one crystallite and I were offered the possession of it if I would drink one glass of brandy I would refuse with scorn, and I want no religion to help me." But that same man died at Poughkeepsie a drunken pauper. Better underrate than overrate ourselves.

Notice also my text takes it for granted that you must put on the harness, else how can you take it off? Life is a battle—a 30 years', a 40 years' or a 50 years' war. Helmet you must have, for the battleaxes of skepticism and agnosticism are aimed at your head. Every possible effort will be made to make you think wrong. The young man who gets his head filled with wrong notions about God, about Christ, about the soul, about the great beyond, is already captured. Put on the helmet, the latchet well adjusted under the chin. Think right and you will act right. Yes, breastplate for the heart. That is the most important part to be defended. That decides what you love and what you hate, what you hope for and what you despise. That decides earthly happiness and eternal destiny. Keep the heart pure and the life will be pure. Have the heart corrupt and your actions will be corrupt. Oh, that all of us might have a new heart covered with a divinely wrought breastplate! Yes, greaves for the feet. So many dangerous roads are we compelled to walk. So many people tread on sharp prongs of temptation and go lame and limping all the rest of their days. Iron mailed shoes for the feet.

Young man, see that you have on a complete armor. It looks bright now, and it seems as if you could march right on without opposition or attack, but be not deceived. There are hidden foes ready to halt you on your way. The same cup that Benhadad drank out of just before his defeat will be offered to effect your defeat. His intoxicated brain saw victory when there was nothing but rout and ruin. What work Benhadad's cup made for Benhadad's army! What shipwrecks on the sea, what disasters on the land, caused by inflaming liquids put upon the tongue to set seething the brain! How many kings of thought and influence, with crowns brighter than the one Benhadad wore, have by strong drink been put into flight as base as that in which Benhadad rode! "Give them to me," says the demon of inebriacy. "Give them to me; hand them down—the brightest legislators of the land. I will thicken their tongue; I will bloat their cheeks; I will stagger their steps; I will damn their soul." Hand them down to me—the physician out of his laboratory, the attorney from the courtroom, the minister of the Gospel from the altars of God. Hand them down to me, the queens of the drawing-room, and I will disgrace their names and blast their homes and throw them down farther than Jezebel fell to the dogs that crunched her carcass."

We hold our breath in horror as once in awhile we hear of some one, either by accident or suicide, going over Niagara falls, but the tides, the depths, the awful surges of intemperance are every hour of the day rushing scores of immortals down into the unfathomed abysm. Suicides by the hundreds of thousands! Suicides by the million! Beware of the cup out of which Benhadad drank personal and national demolition.

I congratulate all those who are now in the thickest of life's battle that the time is coming when the struggle will end and you will put the harness off, helmet and greaves and breastplate having fulfilled their mission. You cannot in one visit to London Tower see all. You must go again and again to that place which is associated with the story of Lady Jane Grey and Anne Boleyn and Walter Raleigh and Sir Thomas More. You will see the crowns of kings and queens, the robe worn by the Black Prince, and silver baptismal fonts from which royal infants were christened, and the block on which Lord Lovat was beheaded. But no part of London Tower will more interest you than the armory, in which is skillfully and impressively arranged a collection of all styles of armor worn between the thirteenth and eighteenth centuries, suggesting 500 years of conflict—cuirass and neck guard and chin piece and lance rest and gauntlet and girdle and mailed apron. You see just how from head to heel those old-time warriors were defended against sharp weapons that would cut or thrust or bruise and allowing them to come out of battle unhurt when otherwise they would have been slain.

O ye soldiers of Jesus Christ, when the war of life is over and the victors rest in the soldiers' home on the heavenly heights, perhaps there may be in the city of the sun a tower of spiritual armor such as incased the warriors for Christ in earthly conflict. Some day we may be in that armory and hear the heroes talk of how they fought the good fight of faith and see them with the scars of wounds forever healed and look at the weapons of offense and defense with which they became more than conquerors. In that tower of Heaven, as the weapons of the spiritual conflict are examined, St. Paul may point out to us the armor with which he advised the Ephesians to equip themselves and say: "That is the shield of faith. That is the helmet of salvation. That is the girdle of truth. That is the breastplate of righteousness. Those are the mailed shoes in which they were shod with the preparation of the Gospel." Then and then you may recount the contrast between the days when you enlisted in Christian conflict and the day when you closed it in earthly farewell and heavenly salutation, and the text, which has so much meaning for us now, will have more meaning for us then: "Let not him that girdeth on his harness boast himself as he that putteth it off."

Advice to Young Men.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Catarrh, Coughs, Colds and Catarrhal Diseases.

Catarrh is an old cold. Even the strongest and most robust are liable to colds during the winter months. A cold, if neglected, is almost certain to cause catarrh of the head, which rapidly spreads through the system, setting up catarrh of the throat, lungs, stomach or pelvic organs. What a host of winter ailments would be prevented by a preventive as well as a cure for colds.

Peruna is such a remedy. If taken at the first symptom of catching cold it heals the catarrhal condition before it becomes established and makes impossible a spread of the disease. Should the cold be neglected and result in catarrh, Peruna will cure, but it will take much longer and will result in much unnecessary suffering.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

Miss Lizzie Brady, No. 47 Hoyt st., Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:—"I desire to speak in the highest terms of PERUNA, the medicine which I believe is entitled to more praise than any other and to the confidence and good will of every woman in America. Last winter I caught a severe cold, which settled all over me, and as I at first paid but little attention to it I soon found that it had a strong grip on me which no medicine could cast off. I became weak and irritable. I felt nervous and mentally and physically exhausted. I relished nothing I ate, and medicine only nauseated me. In my trouble I read in the paper of PERUNA. I sent for a bottle, and it proved a godsend to me. I improved slowly but surely, and in less than two months perfect health was restored to me."

Miss Lou Cetchum, No. 1,135 Bass av., Memphis, Tenn., writes:—"PERUNA brought me relief and health, and I firmly believe in its efficacy. I had la grippe last winter and suffered for several weeks without obtaining relief until I took PERUNA. Three bottles not only cured me completely, but it left my system in a fine condition, and I feel better than I have for years. You have a host of friends in Memphis. —Miss Lou Cetchum."

Miss Beatrice Brown, No. 596 Walnut st., Memphis, Tenn., writes:—"This fall I became very much run down, being overtaxed with social and domestic duties. I caught a hard cold, and, my system being in a weakened condition, I found it impossible to shake off the cold. I was advised by a neighbor to try PERUNA and bought a bottle, and am only sorry now that I did not know of it before, as it would have saved me so much suffering. I shall not be without it again, as it effected a speedy cure."

His Mistake.

He had worked for many years in a dry goods store, but fate placed him behind the counter in a coal office, and that was the cause of his undoing. A lady entered the coal office one day, and said she needed two tons of coal at once.

Neighborhood News.

JACOB'S WELL, Dec. 29.—Misses Fannie and Bessie Houston spent last Sunday with Misses Caroline and Sophia Freedman, of Gunpowder.

Mrs. Lida Kinney spent Christmas with her parents of this neighborhood.

Misses Jane and Fannie Kinney spent Thursday night with Miss Emma Scott.

J. E. Weaver passed through here last week enroute to the city to visit his sister.

Miss Emma Welsh spent several days during the holidays with friends in Limaburg.

Lonnie Tanner and wife are spending Christmas with Mrs. Tanner's parents in Campbell county.

R. R. Houston and J. E. Weaver have rented the Hathaway store and will begin business by the first of March with a full line of dry goods and groceries. We wish them success in their new enterprise.

HATHAWAY.—Christmas passed off quietly.

Your writer spent a couple of days, last week, visiting relatives in Grant county.

Your cor. and wife were guests of C. E. White and family, of near Burlington, last week.

Big Bone Sunday school gave the scholars a big treat last Sunday. They enjoyed is very much.

Robert Franks, of Grant county, was visiting his brother, E. C. Franks, of this place, several days last week.

This neighborhood was shocked by the sad accident that happened M. W. Neal, at Cornith, where he located about six weeks ago. Mr. Neal was a member of Big Bone church 15 years and was a deacon about 10 years. He was 57 years old, and leaves a widow and a daughter to mourn his loss. The remains were brought to Big Bone, and the funeral services were conducted by his pastor at 2 p. m. in the presence of a concourse of sorrowing friends and neighbors. The remains were interred in the Big Bone cemetery.

CONSTANCE, Dec. 29.—Mr. Holden accidently amputated his thumb, the other day.

Benjamin Otten's children have been very ill of sore throats.

Our boys who have been work ing for the Big 4 are laid off.

The Christian Sunday school gave its annual treat, last Sunday.

Jno. Klassener, our blacksmith, has been a very busy man the past week.

Capt. Louie Kottmeyer and family spent this week with their parents at this place.

Rev. Reed, of Cincinnati, preached a most eloquent sermon at the Mission last Sunday.

Dr. Albert McGlasson and wife, of Madison, Indiana, are visiting Mrs. M.'s parents here this week.

Mrs. William Huff is very low of typhoid fever. Two of their children have just recovered from the disease.

The Constance Mission Sunday School entertainment was a success in every particular. Every pupil on the program is entitled to credit for the manner in which he or she performed their part. The want of space forbids an extended comment on the exercises, which were the most interesting in the history of our Sunday schools.

WENEEDA, Dec. 28.—Mumps are epidemic in this neighborhood. We have had no serious cases.

W. M. Baisley will soon move to his father's old home place.

Miss Bessie Cropper is spending the holidays in Bullittsville neighborhood.

H. L. Harrison, of Camel's Hill, Ky., was in this neighborhood last Tuesday.

Miss Mary Watts Riley will soon go to Dayton, O., to visit her sister, Mrs. Chas. R. Wayman.

Mrs. Loreun Cropper is on the sick list. We hope her indisposition is not due to attending the entertainment.

Several of the junior male members of Weneeda, went 'possum hunting last Thursday night, but for some mysterious reason they came home without any 'possum.

Weneeda was well represented at the Grange entertainment at Bullittsville, Xmas eve, and all enjoyed it very much, coming home feeling that they had "got their money's worth."

G. C. Riley, of Springfield, O., Mr. and Mrs. Chas. R. Wayman, of Dayton, O., Miss Blanche Howe of, Terrace Park, O., and E. L. Riley, of Bullittsville, spent Christmas with G. M. Riley and wife.

We are asked quite often how Weneeda is getting along. In reply we can say that the place is "looking up." A ferry boat will soon ride the Ohio river from Baisley's landing to North Bend, O., and a traction line is being surveyed from Petersburg to Covington, via Weneeda, and we are expecting cars to start before long. Now that's what we call prosperity.

PLATTSBURG, Dec. 29.—Benjamin Hensley gave a big dance Friday night.

Miss Julia Smith was visiting in the city, last week.

The young people had lots of fun on the ice, last week.

Miss Pearl Aylor was the guest of Mrs. Essie Voshell, Friday.

Doc Grant and family were guests of his brother Homer, Friday.

Someone shot a nice steer belonging to J. E. Botts, a few days ago.

Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Cloud entertained Albert Acra and wife Thursday.

Miss Lena Messmer is attending her sister, who is quite sick in the city.

Misses Lou and Mae Sebree came home from the city to spend the holidays.

A. C. Porter and son from near Burlington, spent Friday with Mrs. Mamie Sullivan.

A. W. Gaines and family, of Locust Grove, were visiting at J. W. Gaines' and William Botts' a few days last week.

Richard Kittle and Miss Artie Acra, daughter of Albert Acra, were married at the residence of Rev. J. A. Kirtley on the 24th. After the ceremony the happy couple returned to the residence of the bride's father, where a large number of friends had assembled to assist them to enjoy the bountiful feast prepared for the occasion. Following is a list of wedding presents: Mrs. W. S. Acra, fruit dish; Mrs. Essie Voshell, salt and pepper box; John Smith, pair blankets; John Berkshire, pair blankets; Artie Grant, ½ dozen glasses; Johnnie Grant, ½ dozen glasses; Mrs. Lenia Grant, set teaspoons; Doc Grant, set tablespoons; Miss Julia Smith, a large spoon and fork and pair of towels; Miss Lou Acra, lamp; Fannie Gaines, set of desert dishes; Mrs. Albert Acra, pair of towels; M. W. Kittle to Mrs. Artie Kittle, silk muffler.

GUNPOWDER, Dec. 30.—Messrs. Charles and Russel House, of Ohio, are visiting relatives in this neighborhood.

J. H. Tanner entertained with a dinner, Sunday.

B. C. Surface gave his annual dinner Christmas day.

W. N. Surface made a flying visit to Hamilton, Ohio, last Saturday.

Mrs. E. H. Surface and daughter are visiting friends at Hamilton, Ohio.

Uncle Joel Tanner is on the sick list He is 94 years old, and is very feeble.

Edger Graves, of Bullittsville, was the guest of W. N. Surface, last Sunday.

Mrs. Lizzie Bartell, of Floreuce, is visiting her many friends in this neighborhood this week.

Wishing the Recorder and its readers a happy and prosperous new year, I remain as ever, your cor.

The holidays passed very quietly. We would hardly have known it was Christmas, without a calendar.

Those who had turkeys on the holiday market, received satisfactory prices. Some sold as high as 15 cts per pound, retail.

We were glad to meet our friend, Ollie Harter, a few days ago. He is now located at Sadieville, Ohio, and if his appearance is any evidence, the northern air agrees with him pretty well.

William Phillips, a driver for Rouse Bros., hauled in the year 1900, 1,670 logs. The past year, 1901, he says he hasn't his books footed up but they will show about the same. A pretty good record, Billie.

The usual crowd gathered at the Gunpowder store Christmas eve, and celebrated with fire works as has been the custom for several years. Uncle Jno. H. Corbin, who took an active part in the celebration last year, for some unknown cause, did not attend.

The supper given at Florence by the ladies of Hopeful church, was a marked success. It was far beyond their anticipation, the net proceeds amounting to about $100. I wish to say to all the good people that attended, that the ladies are very thankful for their patronage and hope they got value received for their generosity, especially are they grateful for special favors from John Allison, the popular undertaker, of Covington; C. W. Myers, James Murray, Jno. Olsner and many others of the town of Florence.

RICHWOOD, Dec. 30.—Measles are getting closer to our burg.

Thomas Wilson, who has typhoid fever, is some better.

Mr. George Johnson, of Georgetown, is visiting friends here.

Meredith Conner and wife spent Friday with Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rice.

A dog supposed to be mad, passed through this neighborhood, last week.

Howard Byland is visiting here; he is a brakesman on some western road.

Miss Kathrene Bradley, of Georgetown, is visiting friends at this place.

Thomas Murray visited his friends in Cincinnati, Wednesday and Thursday.

Miss Susie Woodyard, of Covington, is visiting at Mr. and Mrs. John Tanners.

Mrs. M. Grubbs is confined to her room with a severe attack of rheumatism.

John R. Carpenter and wife were guests of Marion Grubbs and wife, Sunday.

Walter Grubbs and wife spent Monday with Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Rice at Florence.

Ira Aylor and wife, of Payne's Depot, Scott county, are visiting at O. F. Glacken's.

Geo. Rice and wife, of Florence, were visiting Thos. Rice and wife, of Crescent, Saturday.

No preaching at Ebenezer, last Sunday on account of bad roads and inclement weather.

Walter Grubbs and wife and M. L. Tanner and wife spent Xmas with M. Grubbs and wife.

Edward Stephens and family and William Glacken and wife spent Sunday at O. F. Glacken's.

Tobacco and fodder have been in fine "case," but from indications they will "freeze out" very soon.

Several young men got full during Christmas, but they are excusable as the moon was also full.

Theodore Carpenter and wife were guests of Louis Lampton and wife, of Independence, Saturday.

Benjamin Northcutt and wife, of Florence, were guests at Gaines Robinson's a few days last week.

Wm. Woodward and wife and son Robert, spent Christmas day with Mr. and Mrs. John R. Carpenter.

Cary Carpenter and wife, and John Carpenter and wife spent Christmas day with John Powers and wife.

Mrs. Mamie Surface and daughters, Misses Ottie and Beubia, are spending a few days with relatives at Hamilton, Ohio.

To-morrow will be the last chance at the quails for this season, but poor bunny will still obtain his daily allowance at the risk of his life.

The dirt roads are in a horrible condition. It is hoped that the new Co. Judge will make a good selection for a road overseer in our vicinity.

A night visitor was counting Major Conner's chickens, the other night, and when Major asked how many there were, he got mad and left without giving his name or number.

Excelsior Grange will meet next Saturday, January 4th. All members are requested to be present, as Rigler & Snyder promise to have the hall completed at that time.

There is a man canvassing here for a Chicago house, offering great inducements to our people in some lines of goods. It is well to investigate such firms, and ascertain if they are reliable.

Rev. Brodnax and family left Monday for Princeton, New Jersey, for the benefit of his health. He will remain four months, and as yet no one has been secured to fill his appointments while he is gone.

John Ransdear tells of a pretty fox chase near his house recently. The dogs had hold of the fox several times, but it managed to get away and Mr. Ransalear, thinking to help the dogs, ran out to head the fox, frightened the hounds and the fox escaped through a wire fence near by.

FLORENCE, Dec. 30.—Mort Blankenbecker is on the sick list.

Born on the 25th, to Mr. and Mrs. Ben Osborne, a son.

Andrew Price, of Cincinnati, spent Christmas with his mother at this place.

The three little daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Will Sutherland are sick with measles.

Miss Minnie Faulkner returned to her home after spending a few days last week with her parents in Covington.

Dr. C. F. Moffett and wife have returned to their home in Covington, after spending a few days with Dr. and Mrs. Dulaney.

BELLEVUE, Dec. 28.—The holidays are passing away with the usual festivities, no one behaving unseemly.

Mr. Michael Close has been confined to his bed for two weeks.

W. W. Botts has rented property in our town and will move soon.

Miss Carrie Adams, of Newport, is the guest of friends at this place.

The two-year old child of Bert Staley was buried in the cemetery, Sunday.

Dony Cook and family have moved into the house lately occupied by B. F. Drake.

James Rogers shipped, last week, 70 hogs, which were daisies and brought $6 20 per cwt. in the city.

Mrs. Nora Satchwell had a sale of some personal effects on the 28th and will move to Rising Sun soon.

Henry Clore, ex-merchant, has donned a farmer's attire and hied to the woods, cutting posts preparatory to fencing his landed estate.

John Crigler and Lou Crutcher, of Hebron, were here, one day the past week, in the interest of the Hebron Building and Loan Association.

Mrs. Capt. Smith received her annual Xmas box, valued at $20, and containing all the edibles that heart could wish. The box was from Cinti. friends.

T. J. Clore & Son purchased 25 hogs of J. H. Lawell, which they butchered. They were young hogs and weighed 230 pounds. Uncle Jimmy knows how to treat a hog for profit.

One day last week, the mail carrier at this place brought three sacks of mail containing at least 300 lbs. The most of the weight was public documents, dating back to 1891.

Ere this reaches the eyes of the readers of the Recorder the old year will have rolled away, and the new one ushered in. May it be a happy and prosperous year to all the readers of the Recorder, not excepting the editor and the devil.

It was with sadness that we learned of the unexpected death of Mack Neal, formerly of our county. He has many friends and one niece, Mrs. T. J. Clore, at this place, who join me in a word of condolence to the griefstricken widow and daughter.

A. Corbin & Son purchased for butchering, 40 hogs from A. G. McConnell, of East Bend. They tipped the beam at 320 lbs., average, and were the finest hogs for both meat and lard that have been butchered here for some time. They were the Red Jersey breed.

Dec. 30.—Miss Minnie Deck has returned to the city after a visit of several weeks with her parents here.

The Grange meeting here last Saturday was well attended.

Mrs. Lena Kite and Mrs. Lucien Clore attended church in Burlington, last Sunday.

Misses Annie Schwartz and Lizzie Rogers spent Christmas week at their homes here.

Archie Acra, of Middle creek, is able to be out again after a serious illness of several days.

Mrs. Belton Scott and son, of Indiana, are spending the holidays with relatives here.

George Rector was up to see his brother, William, near Petersburg, Friday, who is quite poorly.

Miss Lena Clore, of near Burlington, is spending the holidays with her sister, Mrs. Olly Weisickle.

Sammie McConnell, of East Bend, was in this neighborhood, last Saturday, looking for good work horses.

We experienced about the dullest Christmas here that we ever knew. Dinners and parties were not thought of.

Albert Snyder and sister, Virgie, Kirb Clore and sister, Lou, were visiting in the Burlington neighborhood last Saturday.

WALTON, Dec. 28.—Mr. Ezra McClure was in Walton a few days ago—looking around.

Born—To Bruce Roberts and wife, a 10 pound boy, on Tuesday last.

C. Y. Dyas has sold out his household and kitchen furniture and removed to the city.

Miss Irene Anderson, an interesting and attractive young lady, of Verona, was visiting Mrs. John Watson during the holidays.

Stephen Ingram and W. H. Dean had to pay a visit to their old home and were promptly on hand during the holidays.

The measles are having a big run here as well as in all other places heard from, and have caused the Graded School to suspend operations until the 6th of January, 1902.

The entertainments given by the Walton Brass Band at the Opera House on Christmas eve and Christmas night were well attended, but they were not markers to the one given at Dry Ridge by the same minstrel troupe, which is part of the band.

Born—To D. T. Haley and wife, on Christmas morning at 5:30 a. m., a girl. It is something remarkable that seven years ago half an hour later in the day a daughter was born to them. There are six children in the family and two born on Christmas.

Mrs. C. E. Morris, nee Miss Alice Wilson, of Memphis, Tenn., arrived on Monday last, and on Christmas day accompanied by her sister, Mrs. J. E. Botts, paid their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson, a visit at the old home near Bank Lick Station.

The country is full of Life Insurance and Agricultural Machinery agents. If one should listen to their bloviations for a leisure hour or two he would think that people were falling over each other to buy machinery, or running the risk of breaking their backs to take out policies on their lives.

Miss Edna Ransler is visiting her college chum, Miss Mabel Hartley, at Chrisman, Ill. After she returns home a string of admirers will be noticed lounging along our handsome streets, occasionally at whiles, meditating on getting her away from us, and, incidentally, changing her name.

Mr. and Mrs. Glasscock are enjoying the pleasure of a visit made them by her sister with her husband, Mr. Marion Tolle and family, of Orangeburg, Mason county, the youngsters, six in number. The racket they make seems to be soothing to Mrs. Glasscock who enjoys Christmas quite as heartily as the kids.

That staunch old Democrat, Hon. Ben Stephens, was flying around here on Friday. He has a scheme for heading off the trusts, and it is to prevent them from selling any of their goods in the State. It is thought that the State of Texas is working on similar lines. If Texas can head them off so can any other State.

Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Northcutt now of Sparta, "or thereabouts," dropped in at Squire Curley's on Tuesday morning and are receiving hearty congratulations from all their old friends and relatives. "Uhill," as his friends call him, cannot help showing that he has rather an inclination to be somewhat nearer to Walton than he is at present.

Dec. 29.—Coal is 13 cents a bushel at the yard and 14 cents delivered.

Dr. Jones is home again from the hospital, cured at last.

Charles Lermond is improving, but Dr. Begley has him housed yet.

Thomas Griffin is home from the Institute for the deaf and dumb at Danville, and is greatly improved.

Devlin S. Lermond and wife, of Paris, are receiving the greetings of old friends, and are enjoying the holidays here in the good old fashioned way.

Here and there thru the country have been sold a few small crops of tobacco, and from all accounts buyers are exercising their jaws in chewing the rag.

Misses Mary and Mattie Rouse are spending the holiday period in Cynthiana. If they don't enjoy themselves in the "Maiden City," they will be the first who have failed. It is really a delightful place for a visitor.

Col. Fred Shafer, is worried about his slow convalescence. He has been so accustomed to railroading that he thinks a man ought to get well with a hop, skip and a jump. Men who have lead very active lives are the most impatient of patients.

Local News.

It was a gloomy Christmas week.

Adler's new add is worth your attention.

Several persons say they heard it thunder Christmas day.

The boys will begin to hear from Collector Leiberth now pretty soon.

A big run of ice in the river last week. It came from the upper tributaries.

Baldon & Hewitt's saw mill will be located, in a few days, near Richard White's, out on the Bellevue pike.

Entries for the approaching Cincinnati poultry show will be at Music Hall this year. Entries close Jan. 7th.

Those who took turkeys to the city on Tuesday of last week struck a good market, owing to the scarcity of those fowls.

Everybody will add turkeys to their stock of poultry next year, on account of the high prices they have commanded this season.

The high water mark in the price of corn in this county was reached at the sale of Ben Stephens on the 18th ult.—83 cents a bushel.

Atty. Sidney Gaines bought of J. E. Hall, last Saturday, for Edward Stott, of Petersburg, 10 shoats that averaged 103 pounds, at $4.65.

Last Wednesday was a very quiet day in Burlington, one solitary white man only appearing to have a supply of tangle-foot on board.

Charlie Westbay had a nice turkey cooped for a holiday dinner and someone swiped it. He accuses some of his best friends of the deed.

The entertainment at Bullittsville on Tuesday night of last week, was a complete success, and the audience was as large as the hall could accommodate.

Fielding Vories has five ewes that have produced 12 lambs. Can any one in the county beat this? He also has a cat that always goes to roost with the chickens.—Carrollton Democrat.

Prepare your tobacco plant beds and have them ready to burn as soon as the ground is in condition. If you want to grow a good crop of the weed there is nothing like having a timely start.

W. L. Kirkpatrick killed the pair of Thiurind pigs he showed at the last Florence fair. They were 9 months and 5 days old, and one weighed 278½ pounds and the other 277½ pounds net.

It remains to be seen how much attention the fiscal court will pay to the recommendations of the last grand jury. If all is done the grand jury believed necessary, the condition of the public buildings will be very much improved.

A soda fountain is supplied with 12 different kinds of syrups, a customer asks the clerk for a glass of soda containing combinations of any four of the syrups. How many ways can the clerk comply with his request? Some one please answer.

David is handling considerable tobacco already, but finds the crop very inferior, a large percentage being cured up green. He has prized about fifty hogsheads of the new crop.—Warsaw Independent.

A Cure for Lumbago.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., says: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by all druggists.

Rev. J. F. Carney will preach at the Universalist church next Sunday, January 5th. Morning subject:—The Inspiration and Value of the Scriptures. Evening subject:—The Fate of Leon "Zolgoz," who Murdered President McKinley. The public cordially welcomed.

R. J. Childress, who, a few months since, moved from Grant county to Covington, with his wife and a family of six daughters ranging in age from 18 years down, was rendered childless in four weeks by the measles. The case of Mr. and Mrs. Childress is the most distressing known in the history of that city.

Burlington Masonic Lodge elected the following officers for this year: J. M. Lassing, Master; Owen S. Watts, Senior Warden; Wm. Houston, Junior Warden; Dudley Rouse, Treasurer; W. L. Riddell, Secretary; Otto S. Crisler, Tyler; Geo. E. McGlasson, Senior Deacon; O. W. Gaines, Junior Deacon.

Mrs. Hubble, of Verona neighborhood, died from the effects of measles, one night last week, and left six children down with the disease. A family by the name of Cornelius, of the Key West neighborhood, has lost four children by measles.—Young Lipscomb, who was shot several days since, had his arm amputated and is now getting along nicely.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by all Druggists.

A few days before Christmas James M. Barlow, of the Pleasant Valley neighborhood, was hauling fodder on a sled. He was standing on a load of fodder when the front end of the sled dropped into a rut and the horses stopped, causing Mr. Barlow to pitch forward between the horses, striking the sled tongue with his forehead and nose. The horses being perfectly gentle stood until Chas. Aylor, who was with him, pulled him out from between them. He struck the tongue so hard that it stunned him, and he was unconscious for some time. Had the horses been frightened and started to run Mr. Barlow would have been seriously hurt if not killed. As it was he was given two as black eyes as you ever saw, while his nose was badly mangled.

Personal Mentions.

Judge Cason visited the city last Saturday.

He will move to Hathaway where he and Joe Weaver will engage in the drygoods and grocery business.

H. C. White and his good wife celebrated the forty-fourth anniversary of their wedding last Monday. Through forty and four years of connubial felicity, they have lived happily together. They have reared an excellent family of children, whom they have seen grow to manhood and womanhood, and who will be a prop and blessing in their declining years. Both are well along in years and are still enjoying the blessings of good health. The Judge has been Judge of the Police Court of Williamstown for quite a number of years and was reelected at the last election by a unanimous vote. Here's hoping that this worthy couple will live to celebrate many more wedding anniversaries.—Williamstown Courier.

A Traction Line for Boone Co. Maybe.

The following, taken from last Saturday's Enquirer, is given for what it is worth, the RECORDER hoping it is worth a good deal:

"Local and New York capital is interested in a scheme to build a sort of a belt electric traction line to take in the principal cities and towns of Kenton and Boone Counties across the river.

"Just who is behind the movement is not known, but it was ascertained yesterday that civil engineers have been sent over the proposed route, not for the purpose of making any preliminary survey, but simply to look over the ground and decide upon the feasibility of the scheme.

"From a source that can be considered reliable it was learned that the new line, starting in Covington, will run through Ludlow, Bromley and Constance to Petersburg, Ky., along the pike which follows the river. From the last named place a 'spur,' will be built down the river to 'Split Rock,' the place known and made famous as 'The Knobs' in Prof. Loyd's latest novel, 'Warwick of the Knobs.' It is said that it is the intention of the company to make that spot a summer resort, and to erect a hotel or clubhouse there.

"From Petersburg the main line is to run through Hebron, Burlington, Erlanger and Alexandria, and from there back into Covington. This will make practically a belt line of the two counties. The territory embraced by this proposed line is largely given over to farming.

"At present there is neither a railroad nor traction line running down that side of the river, and it is said that the new company intends to haul freight, in order to fill the long-felt want of the people residing along the line of the proposed route."

The hayseed uchre club was handsomely entertained by Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Goodridge, last Saturday. At noon an excellent dinner was served, and it was late in the afternoon when the club adjourned, having had a most delightful day.

MALCOLM W. NEAL

Killed By a Train at Corinth, Grant County.

The killing of Malcolm W. Neal, by a train at Corinth, Grant county, early Christmas morning, was a great shock to his many friends in this county. About two years ago Mr. Neal moved from the Union neighborhood, where he was born and raised, to Erlanger, where he engaged in the coal and livery business, until about two months ago, when he moved to Corinth and engaged in the hotel, livery and coal business.

On the morning of his death he had just taken a bucket of coal into his office, when the north bound train which passes Corinth at a very high rate of speed, whistled. He at once left his office and started towards the depot, it is supposed, to see a railroad man he expected to be on the train, and with whom he had a business engagement.

The approaching train was the second section of the fast train which does not stop at Corinth, and of this Mr. Neal was not aware. Just before he reached the track, a lady who saw him and realized his danger, called to him, but he did not appear to hear her and a few more steps carried him to the center of the track, where he was struck by the engine and buried 100 feet, nearly every bone in his body being broken and death resulting instantly.

The remains were brought back to his old home, and the funeral service was conducted at Big Bone church last Friday afternoon by Rev. W. S. Taylor, in the presence of a large assemblage of his old friends and relatives, all of whom were bowed with grief unspeakable.

Malcolm W. Neal was 37 years old, and a son of the late William Neal. He was born and raised in the Big Bone church neighborhood, where he spent all his life except the last two years. About fifteen years ago he united with Big Bone Baptist church, and for ten years last past he served the congregation in the capacity of deacon. Mr. Neal's everyday life was an exemplification of the christianity he professed, and no person can truthfully say that he every intentionally did his fellowman a wrong. He was a good neighbor and citizen—a man whose life will ever be looked upon as worthy of emulation in every particular.

He leaves a widow, a grown daughter, one brother and two sisters who are almost prostrated with grief over his sudden taking off, and who have the sympathy of many friends. The beautiful tribute paid the departed by Rev. Taylor in the funeral discourse was never more deserved.

RIVER BOAT BURNED.

Four People Lost Their Lives in the Flames.

The Steamboat Was the Property of George W. Phillips and the Loss on Vessel and Cargo Will Reach $20,000.

Memphis, Tenn., Dec. 26.—The steamer Sun, employed in the Memphis and Fulton trade, burned to the water's edge at an early hour Wednesday morning and four lives were lost.

The fire was discovered at 4:10 a. m. and spread with such rapidity that the steamer was a mass of flames when the department responded to the alarm. When the Sun arrived in port Tuesday night from Fulton she had considerable freight on board and a full list of passengers. All of the latter left the steamer immediately with the exception of about a dozen, who decided to spend the night on the boat. These were Mr. and Mrs. Timbs and baby, Mrs. Timbs' sister, Miss Josie Hammers, and Mr. and Mrs. D. N. Rainey. It was nearly midnight when the boat tied up. [illegible] was sleeping with her sister and the baby in a state room and when she was awakened by the smoke she aroused her sister and started towards an exit.

Her sister, however, went back for the baby and before she could return the hurricane deck gave way and all escapes were cut off. Miss Hammers was able to escape without injury. Mr. Timbs was in another state room and until the collapse of the roof came, tried by every means to reach his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Rainey had a state room, and although it was thought that all the passengers on the boat had been aroused, nothing was ever heard from them until their charred remains were discovered. When the first body was taken out there was some doubt as to who it was, but Mr. Timbs identified it as his wife by a ring worn on her finger. The body was horribly burned. The body of the baby has not been found, and while some are of the opinion that it fell in the river, it is generally thought that it lies among the ruins in the hull. All the bodies were turned over to an undertaker and will be held until relatives can be heard from.

The steamer Sun was the property of George W. Phillips, who was its captain, and John Brenner, who acted as clerk. The loss to steamer and cargo will probably reach $20,000, partially insured.

SECRETARY LESLIE M. SHAW.

The Iowa Governor Will Succeed Secretary Lyman J. Gage.

Washington, Dec. 26.—It was announced Wednesday evening that Gov. Leslie M. Shaw, of Iowa, would be appointed secretary of the treasury to succeed Secretary Lyman J. Gage. There will be no change in the office of secretary of agriculture, Secretary Wilson also continuing to retain that portfolio. The date of transfer of the treasury department will depend on the mutual conveniences of the outgoing and incoming secretary, Mr. Gage having signified an entire willingness to remain at the head of his department until such time as it may be agreeable to his successor to take hold. It is supposed, however, that Gov. Shaw will be inducted into his new office some time in January. It has been known for two or three days that Gov. Shaw was slated for appointment to succeed Secretary Gage, but it was not until Wednesday that the Iowa executive accepted the tender made to him.

A MILLION DOLLAR FIRE.

A Conflagration Raging at Progreso, Mex.—Warehouses Burned.

Mexico City, Dec. 26.—Word reaches here from Merida, Yucatan, that a great fire has been raging at Progreso, starting in the warehouses of Esbanove Bros., and spreading to the warehouse of Gabriel Escalante and the consignment department of the Merida railway. Some ten thousand bales of henequin were exposed to the flames and it is believed much of it has been destroyed. The loss is estimated at a million dollars.

Cotton Oil Mill Burned.

Florence, S. C., Dec. 26.—The cotton oil mill plant owned by the Virginia-Carolina Chemical Co., with 600 tons of cotton seed and products and four freight cars of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, were burned Wednesday night. The value of the mill plant is estimated at $40,000 and the value of stock on hand at $40,000.

Shot and Killed Wife.

New York, Dec. 26.—John Bell, a carpenter, shot and killed his wife in the kitchen of their home in Brooklyn. He then hunted up a policeman and confessed his crime.

A RACE SKIRMISH.

Revolvers, Clubs and Other Missiles Used in a Harlem Riot.

New York, Dec. 26.—A race skirmish between whites and blacks in Harlem Wednesday developed serious proportions and kept the police busy for a time. The Negroes, 100 strong, were armed with revolvers and clubs, while equally as many whites used stones as weapons. The Negroes had the advantage but were driven back into their tenements by the police after they had charged on the whites with pistols and razors. Fifteen Negroes were arrested. Four whites, including a policeman, were badly shot or cut.

The rioting began when some white boys stoned two colored girls, whereupon a dozen Negroes seized the white boys and beat them. The boys, when released, told their story to white men in the vicinity and an organized attack was made on the Negroes, who were driven back to their tenements under a shower of stones. The confusion increased when the white men began to bombard the tenements with stones and other missiles, and the Negroes fired from their windows into the crowd. The whites, surprised by the shooting, and seeing men fall wounded, turned and ran, followed by the Negroes, who used knives and clubs freely.

At this point a squad of policemen arrived on the scene and, with drawn clubs, stopped the rioting, chasing the Negroes into their houses.

AMERICAN NAVAL OFFICERS.

Banquet Given to Those of the United States Fleet Now at Havana.

Havana, Dec. 26.—A banquet was given to the officers of the United States fleet Wednesday by the Cuban veterans. It was a grand demonstration of gratitude on the part of the Cubans toward the American navy. Gen. Carlos Garcia presided. Gov. Gen. Wood, in proposing a toast to the future republic, said that when the fleet came again it would find a stable government in Cuba. Rr. Adm. Higginson thanked the Cubans for their grand outpouring of hospitality, and said the presence of the fleet had no special significance and, certainly, no political one. It was a source of satisfaction to him, he declared, that the navy had been an important factor in bringing about peace in the island.

Capt. McCalla paid a high tribute to Gen. Garcia, who had co-operated with him at Santiago, and to the Cubans for their courage and fortitude during the war.

A FATAL BLAZE.

One Child Burned to Death and Parents and Two Children Injured.

Philadelphia, Dec. 26.—One child was burned to death, its parents were seriously injured and two other young children were slightly injured in a fire at the home of James H. Connelly, on Wyalusing avenue Wednesday night. After the flames had been extinguished the charred body of Mary Connelly, 4 years old, was found in a second-story room. It is not yet known whether the parents will recover from their injuries.

WERE CRUSHED TO DEATH.

Mother and Child Killed By a Train Near Ellicott City, Md.

Baltimore, Dec. 26.—Mrs. Lucy M. Brass and her 4-year-old daughter were killed Wednesday night by being run over by a Baltimore & Ohio train near Ellicott City. It appears that the child had wandered unobserved onto the railroad track just before the train came by. The mother rushed forward to snatch the little girl out of the way, but both were crushed to death.

QUARREL OVER A LAND SALE.

Three Negroes Shot and Killed in a Fight Near Wilmot, Ark.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 26.—Three Negroes were killed near Wilmot Tuesday as the result of a quarrel over a land sale. Martin Davis and Jeff Davis, cousins, engaged in a fatal duel. James Thompson, a friend of one of the dead men, was subsequently shot and killed by Arthur Davis, father of Martin Davis. Arthur Davis is in jail.

An Irish Land Bill.

London, Dec. 26.—The Daily News gives it as a rumor that the government is preparing an Irish land bill providing an equivalent to compulsory purchase. It is believed that the measure provides that the tenant may buy at 17 and the landlord sell at 20 years' purchase, the state providing the payment of the three years' difference.

Found Dead in the Lavatory.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—James A. Todd, manager of the Towle Manufacturing Co., silversmiths at 149-153 State street, was found dead in the lavatory of the store Tuesday. He had locked himself in the lavatory after having drawn a tube from a gas jet through the keyhole.

Succumbed to Pneumonia.

The Elks' Christmas Dinners.

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 26.—The Order of Elks, following a custom originated here, Wednesday gave a Christmas dinner at which 800 persons were fed and expended about $2,000 in Christmas charities.

THE WIRELESS SYSTEM

Navy Department Will Adopt It as a Means of Telegraphy.

The British Navy Has Already a Number of Its War Vessels Equipped With This Mode of Communication.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The navy department has taken the initial steps toward the adaption of wireless telegraphy as a means of signalling between warships at sea. To this end Adm. Bradford, of the bureau of equipment, has asked that the armored cruisers of the Pennsylvania class have their masts and rigging so arranged that the wireless system can be introduced. This will necessitate lengthening the masts of the ships and the insulation of the metal rigging by the use of hemp covering for halyards. It is intended to get test sets of instruments of the various wireless systems now being operated. These include the Marconi system. Thus far, however, the navy department has not adopted definitely any system, but the construction of the new ships is regarded as a preliminary to the adaption of a system whenever its practicability is established fully. The British navy has already a number of its ships equipped with the wireless system, but this is the first move on the part of the American navy of a wireless plan.

MOVEMENT OF WARSHIPS.

Several Changes Will Be Soon Made on the Asiatic Station.

Washington, Dec. 27.—It is said at the navy department that orders will be forwarded in a few days directing the cruiser Brooklyn, the flagship of Rr. Adm. Reamy, commanding the Asiatic station, which is now at Nagasaki, Japan, to proceed home to the United States. The Rainbow, now at New York, will leave shortly for Cavite, where she is to take the place of the Brooklyn as the flagship of the commander-in-chief of the Asiatic station. On her way to Cavite by way of the Suez the Rainbow will put ashore a detachment of seamen drafted for service on the European station. When Adm. Reamy leaves for home, the command of the Asiatic station will fall upon Rr. Adm. Frederick Rogers. Adm. Reamy's departure will be followed in a short interval by Rr. Adm. Kempf, junior squadron commander on the station.

REPULSED WITH HEAVY LOSS.

A Detachment of Company E, 9th Infantry, Attacked By Bolomen.

Manila, Dec. 27.—Capt. Schoeffel, with a detachment of 18 men of Company E, 9th infantry, at Dapdap, Island of Samar, was attacked by a large force of bolomen. A severe hand-to-hand fight ensued in which a sergeant, a corporal and five privates were killed. Capt. Schoeffel was wounded, but not dangerously. Five privates were dangerously and one slightly wounded. No property was lost. The enemy was finally repulsed with heavy loss.

HIS MIND AFFECTED.

The Mental Condition of Rr. Adm. Sampson Is Beyond Recovery.

Urbana, Ill., Dec. 27.—Jno. B. Weeks, of Champaign, a personal friend of Rr. Adm. Sampson, has received a letter from Mrs. Sampson in which she says that the mental condition of the admiral is beyond recovery. The letter was written in reply to a note expressing sympathy with the rear admiral in the personal annoyances he has suffered in the controversy with Rr. Adm. Schley.

Hand-to-Hand Conflict.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The war department is advised by Gen. Chaffee, at Manila, that Company F, 21st infantry, had a desperate hand-to-hand encounter in a gorge six miles south of San Jose, Batangas, December 23. Twenty-two of the enemy were killed. Patrick A. Connelly received an ugly bolo wound in the left cheek. Private Carney received six bolo cuts in the neck and shoulders.

Killed His Brother-in-Law.

Little Rock, Ark., Dec. 27.—John Pipkin, a planter and merchant, shot and killed his brother-in-law, John Manus, near Forest City. It is claimed that the day before the trouble occurred between the two men Manus shot into Pipkin's store, wounding Pipkin and his two sons slightly. When Manus reappeared at the store Pipkin shot and killed him.

Warships Gathering.

Laguayra, Venezuela, via Haytien Cable, Dec. 27.—The United States battleship Indiana has arrived at Willemstad, Island of Curacoa. The British cruiser Tribune and the Dutch cruiser Utrecht have arrived here. Other war vessels are expected.

Stowaway in a Box.

Island of Ascension, Dec. 27.—When the British steamer Goth, from South African ports, arrived here Thursday a Boer prisoner, who had been smuggled on board the vessel in a box at St. Helena, was handed over to the British naval authorities here.

New York, Dec. 27.—An evening paper reported Thursday that Andrew Carnegie has offered Columbia university a very large sum of money. Acting President Butler would not talk.

SOLDIERS RIOTED.

Fierce Fight Between Troops and Police Outside the Presidio Gates.

San Francisco, Dec. 27.—In a fierce riot just outside the gates of the Presidio Wednesday night six police officers were injured and 16 soldiers were arrested. The battle between the police and soldiers was desperate, and had it not been for the timely arrival of a patrol of regulars from the Presidio garrison the police would have been overpowered.

The riot was the result of the stabbing of an infantryman by a cavalryman in a saloon. Members of both branches took up the quarrel, and soon a fierce battle was raging, stones, clubs and revolvers being used. A squad of police answered a riot call, but the force was inadequate, as fully 800 soldiers were engaged in the battle. The police were almost overwhelmed, when a cavalry force charged the rioters and restored peace. The injured officers were then taken to hospitals.

During the fight Tarpey, the saloonkeeper in whose place the stabbing occurred, narrowly escaped death at the hands of the soldiers, some of whom wanted to hang him.

Weds[illegible] at the Presidio had a sequel Thursday night. The saloon of Dave Tarpey, just outside the Presidio, where Wednesday night's trouble occurred, was completely wrecked Thursday night. Nearly 200 soldiers surrounded Tarpey's saloon, began shooting and firing rocks into the building. The windows and doors were broken and bar fixtures demolished. A riot call was answered by a platoon of mounted artillery, who quickly suppressed the riot. Several arrests were made.

William Ross, a soldier who has been on extra duty at Tarpey's saloon, ejected two soldiers from the place on Tuesday night because they were unruly, and for this he incurred the enmity of the mob element among the soldiers.

DEATH OF GOV. JNO. R. RODGERS.

He Succumbed to Pneumonia After a Few Days Illness.

Olympia, Ore., Dec. 27.—Gov. John R. Rodgers was taken sick Friday evening with a cold which developed into pneumonia. On Sunday his condition was such as to alarm his friends, but on Monday afternoon the governor was much better and it was thought the danger had been passed.

Tuesday it was announced that the governor was suffering from lobar-pneumonia. The disease was then located in the middle lobe of the right lung. It was impossible to say until Wednesday was passed whether the disease would spread. Favorable symptoms continued but early Thursday the governor was suddenly taken worse and he succumbed at 8 o'clock Thursday night.

IN THE CHURCH STEEPLE.

The Decomposed Body of a Man Was Found Near Birmingham, Ala.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 27.—The decomposed body of a man was found in the steeple of Mount Zion A. M. E. church, on the Gate City car line, about three miles from this city, by two hunters Thursday afternoon. Owing to the condition of the body the coroner can not say whether it is that of a white man or a Negro. The dead man was well dressed and by his side was a large knife. The body lay on three blankets and it is a mystery how it got into the steeple, as the only entrance is an 18-inch hole in the belfry. The hunters had gone in the church to get out of the rain, and detected the body by the odor arising therefrom.

LIEUT. GEN. MILES.

He Resumes His Duties in Command of the United States Army.

Washington, Dec. 27.—Lieut. Gen. Miles resumed his duties in command of the army at his office in the war department Thursday. It is said that he has decided to accept the situation with the best possible grace and will say or do nothing to continue the controversy. So far as known the reprimand will cause no decided change in his prearranged plans, official and social, for the future.

Lieut. Reeder Commits Suicide.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The war department is in receipt of a cablegram from Gen. Chaffee, Manila, P. I., reporting that Odus Reeder, second lieutenant Philippine scouts, committed suicide on the morning of December 23 by shooting himself with a carbine on board the Lawton. He was suffering from temporary insanity due to illness. Lieut. Reeder was a native of Beverly, W. Va.

Rome, Dec. 27.—It has been decided to send a pontifical mission to the coronation of King Edward. This mission will be organized on lines similar to the one which attended the Victorian jubilee. The head of the mission has not yet been chosen.

Safe Blown and Robbed.

St. Louis, Dec. 27.—Four men blew open the safe in the office of the flouring mill of H. A. Franze & Son, at New Douglas, Ill., Christmas night and secured $1,500, with which they escaped. The two watchmen were beaten by the robbers and tied to posts.

Death of Moses Weller.

Pittsburg, Pa., Dec. 27.—Moses Weller, a former well-known hide and leather dealer of Cleveland, O., died here Thursday, aged 78 years. The remains will be taken to Cleveland Friday for interment.

LARGER SCHOOL BUILDINGS REQUIRED.

Owing to the recent large influx of population into Western Canada it has become absolutely necessary in many parts of Manitoba, Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta to increase the school accommodation. In many places buildings have been erected that are only half-occupied. This is perhaps as good evidence as will be found not only of their satisfaction with their present school system and their confidence that it will remain as it is, but also of their firm belief in the future expansion of the country, in increased immigration, and it further indicates that they have little fear that the well established rate of births in civilized communities will not be maintained there.

The free homestead laws and the cheap railway lands offer great inducements, which are opening up the new settlements. Agents of the Government of Canada are actively at work in different portions of the States for the purpose of giving information to possible settlers, and advertisements are now appearing in a large number of papers, giving the names and locations of these Agents.

A BRITISH DEFEAT.

Three Companies of Yoemanry Surprised By Boers.

The Disaster, Especially the Loss of Two Guns, Causes a Disturbing Impression in London—DeWet Building Blockhouses.

London, Dec. 27.—The following dispatch has been received from Lord Kitchener, dated Johannesburg: Gen. Rundle reports that on the night of December 24 Col. Firman's camp, at Zeefontein, consisting of three companies of yeomanry and two guns, was successfully rushed by a strong commando under DeWet. It is feared the casualties were heavy. Two regiments of light horse are pursuing the Boers.

Boer persistance has always been very strong in that part of the Orange River colony which was the scene of Gen. DeWet's Christmas coup. A great quadrangle of blockhouses is being built there, the four points of which are Vereeniging, Valkarust, Harrismith and Kroonstadt. At the southeast corner of this quadrangle is a long open space from Bethlehem to Lindley, where the square of blockhouses is still incomplete, and here DeWet made his attack. Col. Firman's force probably amounted to 400 men, and the disaster, especially the loss of the guns, the possession of which may enable DeWet successfully to attack the blockhouses, creates a disturbing impression.

INTERNAL REVENUE.

Monthly Statement of Collections For the Month of November.

Washington, Dec. 27.—The monthly statement of the collections of internal revenue show that the total collections for November, 1901, were $23,178,951, a decrease as compared with November, 1900, of $2,165,330. The collections from the several sources of revenue are given as follows:

Spirits, $12,080,812; increase, $1,330,492. Tobacco, $4,264,700; decrease, $640,366. Fermented liquors, $4,973,188; decrease, $474,598.

Oleomargarine, $212,814; decrease, $25,813. Special taxes not elsewhere enumerated, $58,666; increase, $24,916. Miscellaneous, $1,588,768; decrease, $2,379,965.

For the five months of the present fiscal year the total receipts were $120,654,395, a decrease as compared with the corresponding period in 1900 of $10,625,392. This decrease is wholly due to the decrease in the rate of taxation under the revenue reduction bill passed at the last session of congress.

NELLIE CROPSEY'S FATE.

Her Body Found in the River—Was Missing For Five Weeks.

Elizabeth City, N. C., Dec. 28.—Five weeks of mystery and speculation as to the fate of Miss Nellie Cropsey terminated when the body of the missing girl was found floating in the river opposite her father's home. When found the body was floating face downward. All the wearing apparel was intact with the exception of the rubbers which Nellie wore on the night of her disappearance, and these were missing.

The coroner's jury decided that she came to her death by a blow on the left temple and by being drowned in the Pasquotank river. A young man named Wilcox was arrested suspected of her murder.

DELIBERATE KILLING.

West Reach Shot By His Brother-in-Law, Tom Stewart.

Birmingham, Ala., Dec. 28.—West Reach, a prominent citizen of Blocton, was shot and instantly killed by Tom Stewart, his brother-in-law. The deed was premeditated on the part of Stewart, and when he surrendered to an officer he said he loaded his gun and left home with the intention of killing Reach. Stewart claims that Reach, who married Stewart's sister, continually mistreated her and she was forced to separate from him a few days ago. He says Reach then threatened to kill him and his brother.

Gen. Alger's Condition.

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 27.—Dr. Howard W. Longyear, one of the attending surgeons on Gen. R. A. Alger, said Thursday night that the critical period in the general's illness has passed, and that his recovery was practically certain so far as he could determine at present. "He has been taking some nourishment in the form of broth and has passed a very comfortable day," said Dr. Longyear.

Havana, Dec. 27.—Gen. Bartolome Maso, candidate of the democratic party for the presidency of Cuba, left here Thursday morning for his home at Manzanillo. He has given up the campaign.

WAR THREATENED.

German Warships Are Gathering In Vicinity of Venezuela.

Washington, Dec. 28.—The gathering of German warships in the vicinity of Venezuela and the presence in the same locality of many American, British, French and other foreign warships, is directing attention to the immense naval demonstration Germany is about to make against Venezuela. It is said to be probable that the first move by Germany will be the establishment of a blockade of Venezuelan ports so as to prevent the introduction of food products into Venezuela, and thus starve the besieged into submission. Venezuela, it is said, is entirely dependent upon the outside world for its supply of corn, which is a staple among the Venezuelans. The Germans are expected to occupy one or more of the main ports of Venezuela, probably La Guaira or Maracaribo.

On the part of Venezuela it is semi-officially understood that President Castro has made known that he is prepared for any eventuality. There is complete alience, however, as to the defensive measures Venezuela is adopting.

The reliance of Venezuela appears to be on the practical difficulties Germany will encounter. With reference to German occupation of one or more ports, it is thought to be likely that Venezuela will rely on harrassing the invaders. The fresh water supply of La Guaira and Maracaibo is drawn from the interior streams and lakes and these are expected to be cut off. The interior of Venezuela is regarded as safe, as it is said that it would take at least 200,000 German soldiers to make headway through the wild and uneven country against guerrilla tactics.

There appears also to be much reliance on the part of Venezuela in the sentiment and sympathy which can be aroused within the United States when an European invader is actually operating on American soil and Venezuela issues a declaration of war. A German blockade, Venezuelans declare, will prove quite as onerous to American, British and other foreign shipping as it will to the internal interests of Venezuela and these shipping interests are expected to appeal to their several governments.

There are a few hopeful signs on both sides that at the last moment a clash may be averted. The German minister to Venezuela is still at his post and there is some hope that he may bring about a settlement. The outlook for a cash settlement, however, is rather meager, since Venezuela's treasury is empty, and all of the Venezuelan officials are on half pay.

POWDER MILL WRECKED.

The Force of the Explosion Was Felt For Fourteen Miles Around.

Scranton, Pa., Dec. 28.—An explosion in the barrel mill of the Moosic Powder Co. at the Jermyn works blew the mill and some adjoining buildings to pieces and broke windows for miles around. The shock was plainly felt in this city, a distance of 14 miles. Jacob Hiller, who was in the engine room in an adjoining building, was fatally burned. John Gibbs, George Gebhardt and George Harkel were caught by flying debris and badly injured. Glass blown from a window in Albert Carey's house struck his daughter and cut a deep gash in her neck. It is feared she is fatally injured. A Delaware & Hudson passenger train, which passed about a quarter mile from the scene of the explosion at the time was swayed by the force of the explosion, and the passengers screamed with terror, as the train gave a sudden lurch.

A FURNACE EXPLOSION.

Three Workmen at the Top Were Killed; One Injured.

Sharpsville, Pa., Dec. 28.—An explosion at the old Sharpsville furnace wrecked the furnace plant and killed three men. Another workman was probably fatally injured. The men were working at the top of the furnace when the explosion occurred, and Martin Clary, Howard Dickson and James Bartlett were burned to death. Their bodies were recovered. James Donnelly was injured by jumping. The cause of the explosion is not known. No estimate has been made as yet of the loss.

Beat the World's Record.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 28.—The world's record for a seven-days' milk and butter production has been broken by a Ramsey county cow. The yield for the seven days was 589 pounds of milk, which, according to test, contained 29.47 pounds of butter fat, beating the former world's record by more than a pound.

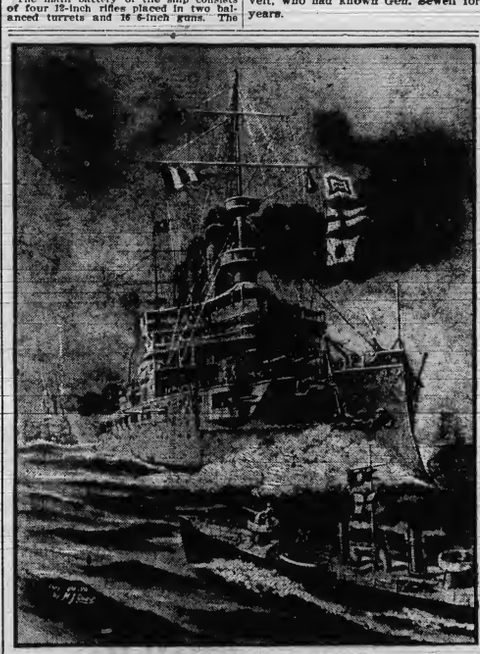
BATTLESHIP MISSOURI

The New Vessel Launched at Newport News, Va.



The Hull, Which Is Built of Steel and Unsheathed, Is 388 Feet Long on the Load Water Line—12,230 Tons Displacement.

Newport News, Va., Dec. 28.—The new battleship Missouri was launched at 11 o'clock Saturday morning at the plant of the Newport News Shipbuilding and Dry Dock Co. Miss Marion Cockrell christened the big ship in the presence of a multitude of people. A great cheer went up as the vessel slid on the ways to the water.

The Missouri is a sister ship of the Ohio and the Maine. Her contract price was $2,835,000. Her keel was laid February 7, 1900, and on the latest construction report she is set down as 31 per cent. completed. The Missouri's contract speed is 18 knots an hour, so that she will rank next to the battleships of the Georgia class in regard to speed. Her complement will be 40 officers and 511 men. The hull is built of steel and is unsheathed. It is 388 feet long on the load water [illegible] inches extreme breadth, and, at a mean draught of 23 feet 6 inches, displaces 12,230 tons. The hull is protected abreast of the boilers and engines by a side armor belt of from 7½ to 11 inches thickness, and by the casement armor, 6 inches thick. In the casement are placed 10 of the 6 inch guns the vessel carries. Above this on the upper deck four 6-inch guns are placed, in the vicinity of which six inch armor is worked far enough forward and aft to afford protection to the crews of these guns.

Protection is afforded the vitals of the ship, below the water line, by a protective deck with armor from 2½ to 4 inches thick.

The main battery of the ship consists of four 12-inch rifles placed in two balanced turrets and 16 6-inch guns. The turrets are turned by electricity and can revolve through 360 degrees in one minute.

Ten of the 6-inch guns are within the casement as before stated; two others are on the berth forward in 6-inch armored sponsons and four are on the upper deck. Those in the sponsons forward and two on the upper deck can fire directly ahead and the other two on the upper deck directly astern, in addition to having a broad side fire.

The secondary battery consists of six 3-inch guns, eight 6-pounders, six 1-pounders, two Colts and two 3-inch field guns.

A new feature introduced into the offense power of this ship is two submerged topedo tubes. While German warships have been equipped with these tubes for a number of years, the Missouri and her class are the first battleships of our navy to be supplied with them.

There are two military masts fitted with usual signal yards to pass and top masts, one mast as usual being over the forward conning tower.

The Missouri carries 14 boats, of which one is a 50-foot steam launch, and another an 36-foot steam cutter, of the usual type. The boats are handled by four cranes, supported by steam, and each can lift the heaviest boat that it has to handle at the rate of 40 feet per minute.

Bilge keels to reduce rolling are fitted to the vessel, experiments in recent years in our own and foreign navies having demonstrated the great efficiency of these keels to prevent excessive rolling.

Hydraulic gear is used in steering the vessel and can put the rudder from hard aport to hard astarboard in 20 seconds when the vessel is moving at full speed.

Electricity is used for lighting the vessel and operating the turrets and hoists and for coaling parts of the ship and other minor purposes. Four powerful searchlights will give warning of the approach of hostile vessels. For night signaling the ship carries two sets of electric signaling apparatus.

The normal coal supply is 1,000 tons and the capacity of the bunkers is 2,000 tons. The arrangement of the bunkers is such as to afford considerable incidental protection to the machinery. The Missouri and her class are the first battleships of the United States navy in which water tube boilers are provided. Steam for the propelling machinery is supplied by water tube boilers of the Thornycroft type, placed in four water-tight compartments. There are three smoke pipes. The two propelling engines are of the vertical cylinder, direct acting, triple expansion type, having four cylinders. The collective indicated horse-power is about 16,000 when the vessel is making 18 knots.

DEATH OF SENATOR SEWELL.

Ailment Was Diabetes, Complicated With Stomach and Heart Trouble.

Camden, N. J., Dec. 28.—Senator William J. Sewell died Friday morning. He suffered from diabetes, complicated with stomach and heart trouble. Senator Sewell's illness had extended over a period of two years, but his condition was not considered serious until a year ago. His constant attention to the duties devolving upon him in his official capacity, resulted in 1899 in a collapse.

A trip to Europe was beneficial, and he soon recovered sufficiently to resume his duties. Toward the end of the last session of congress he developed a complication of diseases, and acting on the advice of his physicians, again visited various health resorts in Europe. Upon his return his condition showing no improvement, Senator Sewell went to Asheville, N. C., where he remained two months. He returned to his home about four weeks ago and for a few days a slight improvement in his condition was noted. Within the past two weeks a succession of sinking spells greatly weakened him and compelled his physicians to abandon the hope of prolonging his life. Then death came; the senator's family were gathered at his bedside.

The funeral of Senator Sewell will take place on Tuesday next. The place of interment will be in Colestown cemetery, seven miles from here. The senator will have a military funeral. Messages of condolence to the bereaved family came from all parts of the country. Among them was a telegram from President Roosevelt, who had known Gen. Sewell for years.

SENATOR DEPEW WEDS.

The First Ceremony Was Performed at American Consulate in Nice.

Nice, France, Dec. 28.—United States Senator Ohauncey M. Depew and Miss May Palmer were married here Friday. The ceremony was performed in the American consulate by United States Consul Harold S. Vaa Buren, under a special dispensation cabled by Secretary of State John Hay. The religious ceremonies were held Saturday, the first in the church of Notre Dame at 11 o'clock, and the second and concluding one in the American church at noon. The church wedding is the legal one in France and not the one at the American consulate.

KIDNAPER SENTENCED.

First Conviction Under the New Law Passed By Nebraska Legislature.

Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 28.—The first conviction under the kidnaping and intimidation law, passed last winter by the state legislature, was secured when C. N. Hunt was given a sentence of one year in the penitentiary. Hunt threatened a neighbor family and demanded that $200 be buried in a vacant lot. A can of nails was buried instead and officers set to watch. Hunt's arrest and conviction followed.

Michigan Peach Crop Ruined.

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 28.—The peach crop of Southwestern Michigan (except in the St. Joseph, Lake Shore and Fair Plain districts) has been ruined by the cold wave. This affects 15,000 acres, with a yield of 300,000 bushels.

Memorial to William McKinley.

For Embezzling $11,000.

St. Louis, Dec. 28.—Theodore Dudleston, jr., formerly assistant bookkeeper for the Stock Yards bank, of East St. Louis, Ill., was arrested Friday charged with embezzling $11,864.38.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

A SERIOUS CHARGE.

Three Men Donned Female Skirts and Assaulted a Woman, It is Alleged.

London, Ky., Dec. 27.—Thursday morning Liccie Owens came here from Pittsburg and secured a warrant for the arrest of William Southerland, Armp Bryant, jr., and Charles Bryant, charging them with entering her home, destroying her property and assaulting her and her 12-year-old son.

Her story is that the Bryants and Southerland came in her home Christmas night dressed in woman's clothing. Thinking some of the neighbors had called, she admitted them and told her son to light a lamp. One of the men told the boy he would be killed if he touched the lamp. Mrs. Owens thought she recognized as feminine friend, and, supposing that the threat was made in fun, she struck a light.

Immediately her son was seized, beaten and thrown against the wall with great force. The men then carried her to the yard and beat and kicked her until she became unconscious, leaving her lying on the ground with all her clothing torn from her body. The cries of her son attracted the attention of neighbors, who carried her into the house and restored her to consciousness. There is no lack of witnesses to testify to the condition of the woman when found, and her appearance Thursday indicated that she had been brutally treated. She says she is positive of the identity of her assailants. The men accused bear good reputations.

FOR CO-EDUCATION.

One-Fifth of Berea's Students Are Colored, Says Prof. Dodge.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 28.—The movement for co-education for whites and Negroes in this state seems to be making better progress than its friends had anticipated.

Prof. L. V. Lodge, of the faculty of Berea college, was in this city Friday to address a convention of colored school teachers. In conversation with a correspondent Prof. Dodge said:

"Berea college has now an enrollment of 700 students, four-fifths being white and one-fifth colored. This is the greatest student list in its history. Twenty states are represented and the available endowment of the college approximates $500,000. Special training is given in farming and along industrial lines. Its greatest patronage is from northern states."

LABOR DIVIDEND.

St. Bernard Mining Co. Divides $3,000 Among Its Employes.

Earlington, Ky., Dec. 27.—The St. Bernard Mining Co. is paying another labor dividend to its employes. This is the fourth dividend that has been distributed in the past two years to the men who work for this company. The amount paid out in the present dividend is $3,000, and the aggregate amount of the four dividends paid employes in the two years is $20,000.

The employes of this company have stood with the management almost solidly during more than 12 months of strenuous and often violent attempts of representatives of the United Mine Workers' union to unionize these mines.

DUEL WITH PISTOLS.

Shots Fired at a Car Were Returned By the Motorman.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 26.—A pistol duel took place shortly after dark Wednesday night between a motorman in the employ of the street car company and a gang of rowdies. The latter were celebrating Christmas by shooting through the windows of the cars as they passed by. Several shots were fired at Car No. 11, in charge of Motorman Clark, when the latter drew a pistol and sent three shots back into the crowd, causing them to disperse. No one was injured.

Killed By a Train.

Corinth, Ky., Dec. 26.—M. W. Neale, the proprietor of the Lancaster hotel, was run over and instantly killed Wednesday morning at this place. He was attempting to hurriedly cross the track near the depot when he was killed by passenger train No. 4. Neale but recently moved to Corinth, having come from Erlanger, Ky. He leaves a wife and daughter.

To Remove the County Seat.

Covington, Ky., Dec. 27.—It is probable that a bill will be introduced during the approaching legislative session to remove the county seat of Kenton county from Independence to Covington. Seven-tenths of the total population of Kenton county find access to Covington more convenient than to Independence.

New County Proposed.

Olive Hill, Ky., Dec. 27.—Citizens of the territory surrounding Olive Hill, at a mass meeting Thursday, took steps to organize a new county from surrounding territory, and will present a bill to the coming session of the legislature.

Slain By a Farmer.

Elkton, Ky., Dec. 26.—Sherman Stokes, a farmer residing near this city, shot and killed Bob Smith, white. It is claimed that Smith was assaulting a younger brother of Stokes and Sherman went to his defense.

TRIED TO KISS HIS PATIENT.

Dentist Was Compelled to Flee the County to Escape "Hey Rubes."

South Lebanon, Ky., Dec. 28.—Because he tried to kiss Miss Marion L. Pearce, wife of an L. & N. engineer, who was his patient in the dental chair, the "Hey Rubes," organized to rid the country of tramps, are on the trail of Dr. G. M. Crayton, the alleged offender. The dentist was flogged by the husband of Mrs. Pearce, who also compelled him to apologize to his wife. The "Hey Rubes" heard of the affair, and at once concluded to widen their sphere of usefulness and proposed a coat of tar and feathers for the dentist.

Crayton has suddenly left for parts unknown.

THE RESULT OF A FIGHT.

One Man Fatally Wounded and Two Others Seriously Hurt.

Williamstown, Ky., Dec. 26.—As the result of a fight in this city Wednesday afternoon Arthur Goughe is fatally wounded, his father, Vet. Goughe, is suffering from a gunshot wound in the back; Carl Geughe, a brother, is wounded in the face; James Redenower and Tom Hacket are under arrest charged with the shooting. The fight was the outcome of a quarrel in a saloon, and nine shots were exchanged. The Geughes and Hacket and Redenower have been enemies for over a year. The prisoners are being guarded by the sheriff and his deputies.

CELEBRATED CHRISTMAS.

Fired Guns Promiscuously, and of Three Men Hit One Will Die.

Shelbyville, Ky., Dec. 26.—During a fireworks on the principal streets Tuesday night some malicious persons began the indiscriminate firing of pistols. Timothy McGann, a well-known contractor, lies at death's door as a result, having been shot in the abdomen. Mr. McGann is a brother of D. L. McGann, the National league ball player.

Clay Heatt, white, and an unknown Negro were shot in the leg and shoulder respectively.

CAUSED BY OVERWORK.

A Demented Lexington Insurance Man Captured at Last.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 28.—S. L. Myers, the prominent insurance agent who wandered away from home ten days ago, and was caught twice and twice escaped, going to Ohio on foot and then returning to Visalia Station, Campbell county, was captured there and returned home Friday. Recollection of all incidents since he left is a complete blank. Still in partially demented condition. Overwork caused it.

AN EXCITED PREACHER.

Muscular Religious Frenzy Resulted in Several Broken Bones.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Dec. 27.—While Rev. C. T. Vaughan, a colored Baptist minister, was preaching a funeral service at Mt. Hermon Thursday, Rev. Sam Gordon, another colored minister, got so happy he shouted, and, it is alleged, seized Vaughan, kicking him so hard on the leg in his religious frenzy that he broke several bones and inflicted other serious injuries. When quieted down he claimed to remember nothing he had done.

Colored Teachers' Association.

Lexington, Ky., Dec. 28.—The Colored Teachers' Association of Kentucky, which closed a two days session here Friday night, adopted a resolution asking Andrew Carnegie to give $50,000 to the Eckstein Norton university, situated near Louisville. The money is wanted to promote industrial work.

Ohio Man Eloped.

Shelbyville, Ky., Dec. 26.—Ben F. Leland, jr., of Washington C. H., O., and Miss Grace Sherwood, of this place, eloped to Louisville Wednesday and were married at the Louisville hotel. Mr. Leland is employed by the Western Union Telegraph Co. at Washington C. H.

Accidentally Shot Himself.

Harrodsburg, Ky., Dec. 26.—Theodore Young accidentally killed himself near Dugansville, this county, Wednesday morning. He was leaning on a shotgun, when it discharged a load through his stomach.

Prophecy Fulfilled.

Whitesburg, Ky., Dec. 27.—John M. Parsons, aged 39, a Floyd's Fork sawmill man, was killed by the explosion of a boiler. Parsons predicted his death six months ago.

Perhaps Fatally Injured.

Paris, Ky., Dec. 28.—James Barry, George Porter and Clayton Lockhart, colored, employes on the Main street sewer, were perhaps fatally injured Friday afternoon while drilling out an old blast which had failed to explode.

The Prosecution Is Ready.

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 28.—Commonwealth's Attorney Franklin says the prosecution will answer "Ready" when the Jim Howard case is called for trial on January 7, and will insist on a trial at the January term.

Doc. Mannin accidently cut one of his fingers badly the other week with his little hatchet. Mrs. Mannin dressed the wound at once. Since that time he has had nothing done with it. He says the weather is so changeable that he fears taking cold in it. Mrs. Mannin says she knows it has healed, and the reason he refuses to unbandage it is he will have to do the milking again, which work he escapes while a cripple.

Miss Edith Rouse, the estimable and only daughter of Mrs. Alice Rouse, died Christmas day, of pneumoula. Her remains were followed to Hopeful cemetery by a large number of sorrowing relatives and friends, where she was tenderly laid away. Miss Edith had just passed her 18th year, just blooming into womanhood, when the fell destroyer came. She was an affectionate and loving daughter and sister, and a favorite among her associates, who will long deplore their loss.

Dangerously Hurt.

Charles, the 13-year old son of W. R. Rouse, of Limaburg, was kicked on the head by a horse yesterday, about 4:30 p. m., and dangerously hurt. He had gone to the barn to feed the horses, and hearing an unusual noise at the barn, Mrs. Rouse found her son lying unconscious with an ugly wound in his head, from which the brain was oozing. A doctor was summoned when it was decided that the services of a surgeon was necessay, and one was called from the city. The above is all the information we could get up to 7 o'clock this morning.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 8, 1902. NO. 12

THE Democratic Ghost Dance is in progress at Frankfort.

PETERSBURG has been the storm center for sensational news for the past few months.

IT will take the Legislature several days to get organized and in good working order.

THE Cox-Foraker combination against Senator Hanna was a very weak effort, when it came to the show down.

SENATOR Harrel says he will go into the Democratic caucuses at Frankfort. How very kind that is of the Senator.

STEADY, boys! You have things all your way in both houses this session, but that will not justify Democrats in going to extremes in legislation.

WHILE the Republicans are having trouble parceling out the federal pie in Kentucky, the Democrats are not dwelling together in as perfect harmony, as they should.

LAST Saturday's Courier-Journal contained an editorial that the Democratic members of the General Assembly should preserve for frequent reference during the session.

FROM the result of the last election it looks very much like the State will have to be jerrymandered some to prevent the next General Assembly from being unanimously Democratic.

SENATOR FORAKER will learn after awhile he can neither ditch nor side-track Senator Hanna in Ohio. He has wasted a good deal of time and labor along that line in the last few years.

KENTUCKY has the legislature on her hands again. If it makes all the appropriations that will be asked of it, it will prove itself to be the most liberal body of lawmakers ever assembled at Frankfort.

THAT Roosevelt is President of these United States, is pretty generally known now. There will be no complaint of the want of back bone on the part of the occupant of the White House while he is there.

THE affairs of the Hopkinsville Asylum may be a matter of legislative investigation this winter. Editor Meacham, of the Hopkinsville New Era says all the corruption has not been uncovered at that institution yet.

WHEN Hanna opened his barrel over in Ohio, Foraker's influence with the legislature was not worth thirty cents by a long shot. Everything was going Foraker's way until Senator Hanna called a halt, and Foraker and his supporters went back and sat down.

WHEN the old time Republicans look over the long list of the faithful who have been sent away back to take seats in the last few months, they ask themselves, "what is there in store for us who have ever been found in the hottest of the battles against the Democrats?"

THE session of the Legislature that began yesterday will be one of very great importance to Kentucky, and as partisan politics are not running as high as they have been for the past five or six years, the members will have a good opportunity to take care of the State's interest in a proper manner.

METHODISTS are congratulating themselves on ending this calendar year with a round $15,000,000 of their $20,000,000 thank offering fund. Mass meetings designed to insure the raising of the remaining $5,000,000 are to begin this month and are to be held in New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Cincinnati and Chicago. In Pittsburg and other large cities no meetings are to be held for the reason that in them the task has already been accomplished, and the cities selected are intended to be national. Speakers at all of them are to be Governors and United State Senators. All the millions thus far raised will be used for strengthening existing enterprises.

THE greatest political victory in this county's history was that won by G. Carter Graddy, when last week, Collector Leiberth appointed him Stamp Deputy at Petersburg. He began his fight single handed, but soon many of the leading Republicans in the county rallied to his support, but just as he was congratulating himself that he was strongly fortified with endorsements of Republicans good and true, a change came over the dreams of nearly every one of them, and they took up the cudgel against him. This revolution of sentiment, however, did not dismay him in the least, but increased his determination to land the appointment, and with nearly the entire Republican party in this county opposing him, many of the individual members of which were, only a few days before his professed friends, he renewed his fight, and his appointment shows with what success, and corroborates the RECORDER's opinion heretofore expressed, to-wit: That Graddy is the smoothest Republican in this county, and one to whom the old liners must, henceforth, tip their hats.

Graddy's appointment is a fitting recognition of the work he has done for the Republican party in this county, proselyting Democrats, as to his influence can be traced the change of heart of every Boone county Democrat who has donned the garb of a Republican in the last five or six years.

What was intended to be a strong argument against Graddy's appointment was the fact that he is but a recent acquisition to the Republican party; but it could carry no weight with it from the fact that Boone county Republicans believe in bringing that element to the front, and in accordance with that principle, several ex-Democrats are members of the Republican county committee.

JUDGE CASON inaugurated a new departure in the manner of holding county court, last Monday. He had the circuit court room warmed and ready for business, and when the hour for opening court arrived, he had the jailer ring the bell, and he ascended the bench and proceeded to business like an old timer. The Judge will continue to hold court in the large court room, up stairs, a proceedure that will soon be appreciated by the public, especially in cold, bad weather. The Judge's position is that the large court room is for the transaction of the public business, and the business transacted by the county court being in that class, it should be conducted in that room. When holding court he wants to be in quarters where any and all who desire to be present can make themselves comfortable without disturbing the court.

THE report of the Central Asylum for the Insane, for the year ending September 30, 1901, shows that Superintendent Furnish has inaugurated several reforms in the management of that institution that are saving the State a considerable amount of money, annually. While the Superintendent believes in economy in every department of the institution, he guards, carefully, the comfort of the patients, and is not at all backward in requesting appropriations for any improvements that he believes will redound to the benefit of the institution. Dr. Furnish is a conscientious official, and is making a good record as Superintendent of the Lakeland Asylum.

The Kentucky Legislature will be asked to appropriate $200,000 for the State's representation in the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, to be held in St. Louis in 1903. Kentucky's close relations with Missouri, geographically, historically, and otherwise, make it important the State should be suitably represented. Not only do reasons of sentiment operate, but material considerations enter very largely. Early in the session of the coming Legislature a committee from the Exposition, will be at Frankfort to urge the appropriation. Hon. David Francis, former Governor of Missouri, President of the Louisana Purchase Exposition, and a Kentuckian, will likely accompany the committee on its mission to the Kentucky Legislature.—Ex.

THE Louisville Republicans are not pleased with the appointments which Collector Craft has made, thus far. It is claimed that all but one of his appointees are former Democrats. Dr. L. W. German, of Louisville, is said to be the only straight-out Republican who has received an office. Mr. D. B. Edmiston, Mr. Craft's chief deputy, is a former Democrat; Capt. John D. Wickliffe, of Bardstown, also was formerly a Democrat, and so was former State Senator George Nell. Mr. Craft will shortly announce the appointment of Capt. Robert Tyler, of Louisville, to a deputyship. Capt. Tyler was formerly a Democratic State Senator.

The Legislature elected the following officers yesterday:

In the Senate:—N. W. Utley, of Lyon, president; Wm. Cromwell, chief clerk; W. O. Jones, assistant clerk; J. P. Swango, sergeant-at-arms; John H. McWalters, doorkeeper; John L. Norris, janitor; Thomas Watson, cloak-room keeper; F. O. Payne, G. W. Tolin, Coleman Mallory, pages.

In the House:—Gerald Finn, Simpson County, speaker; Jas. E. Stone, chief clerk; Geo. H. Peters, assistant clerk; C. W. Longmire, sergeant-at-rms; Miss Amy Lyons, enrolling clerk; W. A. Plunket, doorkeeper.

The Governor's message was read in both Houses, and the Senatorial contest is the only theme at Frankfort now.

The business men of the city of Frankfort will not make a fight for a Capital appropriation on local grounds. Gov. H. Taylor will introduce providing for the erection of new buildings. The need for a new State Capital will be put before the Legislature as a State necessity and not upon local grounds, and Senator Taylor is very much encouraged over the bright prospects for passage of the measure.—State Journal.

In looking backward to the year just past, the farmers of the South have reason to be thankful and in looking forward to take courage and thank God.

While in certain sections the drouth was felt severely and crops were cut short, the South suffered far less than the West, and while the cotton production was cut short, this fact, now well established, prevented the price from going back to 5 or 6 cents a pound. Now that cotton is bringing 8 cents and more, the amount of money received will be far more than if the crop was a million or more bales larger.

Then, diversified farming has obtained a stronger foothold, and the wisdom of raising more cattle and hogs, while depending on cotton as the main money crop, is recognized by more Southern farmers than ever before, and the lesson has been learned by experience the best and safest teacher.

Certainly, when the fortunate people of the great territory extending from Virginia and Kentucky through the central South to Texas, Oklahoma and the Indian Territory look to the future, they have many reasons to take courage.

Blessed with a climate and soil which unite in making labor easy and its reward abundant, with a great staple like cotton, which always and everywhere is in demand, with the conditions which make tobacco, rice and sugar produce some fifty and some a hundred fold, and at the same time with vast territories which produce wheat and corn equal in quality and quantity with the most favored parts of the West, the Southern farmer has at his command everything needed to both feed and clothe the people of all nations.

Now that the government lands of the West are so largely taken up, the handicap of competing with cheap lands is lessening, and as the number of people to be clothed and fed is continually and rapidly increasing, while the area from which this food and clothing must come is fixed, a gradual increase in the prices obtained for farm products is certain to ensue.

So the future is bright with promise to Southern farmers, and those who are able and willing to work, not only hard but intelligently, can expect to receive a constantly increasing return from such work, and the most fortunate man is not he who must work, finding his reward not only in money, but in the consciousness of work well done.—Home and Farm.

While little has appeared in the public press recently in regard to the bubonic plague which created such frightful havoc in India two years ago, reports recently made to our Marine Hospital Service from all parts of the world show a continued spread of the scourge in most sections. In British East India during the week ended August 2 last there were 2,622 new plague cases and 1,930 deaths recorded in the Bombay Presidency, an increase of more than 200 deaths over the previous week. In Egypt the total number of bubonic plague cases from April 7 to September 2 was 132, with 60 deaths. In Queensland, Australia, the official report shows 32 plague cases, including 10 deaths, from Febuary 28 to July 6. Since Queensland is an English speaking country and the climatic, sanitary and other conditions closely resemble our own the growth of the plague there has a special significance for us. While there is little probability that we shall ever suffer seriously from an invasion of the bubonic pestilence too much care and vigilance cannot be exercised in guarding against its introduction to our shores. Our chief security lies in the general healthfulness of our climate and our excellent sanitary regulations and quarantine laws. The latter need only to be strictly observed and enforced to practically insure our immunity from this most dreaded and deadly of human ills.

There is one woman in most every town that ought to have her tongue cut out and labeled "Mrs. But." She can't say a blessed thing about anybody unless she attaches a derogatory 'but' to it. Her neighbor is a pretty fine woman BUT she was a little gray when she was a girl. Her neighbor's girl she likes BUT she hangs out after the boys nights. One woman wears a fine cloak BUT she has doubts of just how she earned it. Her girl's teacher is a good one BUT she has a beau out of school hours. One woman she knows works hard BUT she is dirty in her housekeeping. And so it goes. Her tongue can never say all good of anybody, man, woman or child. I hate to see such women around. They are vile slanderers and traducers and injurers of reputation by their insinuative 'buts' and I just wish Mrs. But could be totaly suppressed. Petersburg Sand-Bagging.

Petersburg is considerably worked up over repeated efforts to assassinate one of her citizens, Berthel Pease, last week. Mr. Pease is but a little over 21 years of age, and has no idea what has prompted the repeated attacks upon him.

The assaults on young Pease were begun, on Tuesday night of last week, when he was sandbagged as he was entering the yard gate at home. This assault rendered him unconscious, and it is supposed his assailant left him for dead on that occasion. By Wednesday night he had recovered sufficiently to call on his lady love, and as he was passing along the street alone, he was struck on his head from behind with a heavy club that was wrapped in a cloth which had been soaked in vitriol. This assault did not knock young Pease out, but he was burnt considerably about the face. He shot at his assailant but unfortunately missed him. Last Thursday night young Pease and his father had gone to his father's residence which had not been occupied for several weeks. When they approached the house they noticed the front door was open, and his father told his son to go to the back door and he would enter by the way of the front door. A man ran out at the back door, and struck the young man in the stomach with a bolder. Pease shot at the fleeing form and thinks he struck the man as he fell to his knees. Young Pease looks considerably the worse for his experience, and is now going heavily armed, and should he get a fair shot at the would-be assassin he will shoot to kill. The good people of the town are at a loss as to what course to pursue to bring to justice the person who is seeking to take the life of the young man. Young Pease thinks he knows who his assailant is, but can not be induced to give the name.

About the boldest robbery that has taken place in this county, was that at W. A. Gaines', about four miles out on the Petersburg pike last Saturday evening. Between 6 and 7 o'clock some of the family went into a bed room to start a fire, and found a light burning, and things in the room turned topsey turvey. Upon an investigation it was found that the thief, who had entered the room through a window had stolen $155 in money belonging to Mrs. Gaines and one of her sons. It was a bold trick, and there is no clue to the thief. No strangers had been seen in the neighborhood that day. Mr. Gaines offers a reward of $50 for the apprehension and conviction of the thief.

As Jack Stuckey, of Petersburg neighborhood, was going to a dance Monday night, two highwaymen accosted him, with "throw up your hands." "I'll do that," said Jack, dropping his fiddle to the ground. "Then take it and go to h—l," said the highwaymen, "we don't want to fool with a 35 cent man." Instead of doing as commanded, Jack grabbed up his fiddle and hastened on to the dance, where he related his experience in trembling tones.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere, of Goodwin, S. THE OLD YEAR GONE.

Dr. Talmage Speaks of the Arrival of the New.

Words of Encouragement to All the Timid and Doubting—January in History—A Time of Sadness.

(Copyright, 1901, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this, Dr. Talmage's first discourse for the new year, he speaks words of encouragement to all the timid and doubting. The text is Exodus 12:2: "This month shall be unto you the beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year to you."

The last month of the old year has passed out of sight, and the first month of the new year has arrived. The midnight gate last Wednesday opened, and January entered. She deserves a better name, for she is called after Janus, the heathen deity, who, they supposed, presided over doors, and so might be expected to preside at the opening of the year. This month was of old called the wolf month because, through the severity of its weather, the hungry wolves came down seeking food and devouring human life. In the missals of the middle ages January was represented as attired in white, suggestive of the snow, and blowing the fingers, as though suffering from the cold, and having a bundle of wood under the arm, suggestive of the warmth that must be kindled.

Yes, January is the open door of the year, and through that door will come what long processions, some of them bearing palm leaves and some myrtle, others with garlands of wheat and others with cypress and mistletoe. They are coming, and nothing can keep them back—the events of a twelvemonth. It will, I think, be one of the greatest years of all time. It will abound with blessing and disaster. National and international controversies of momentous import will be settled. Year of coronation and dethronement, year that will settle Cuban and Porto Rican and Philippine and South African and Chinese destinies. The tamest year for many a decade past has dug its millions of graves and reared its millions of marriage altars.

We can expect greater events in this year than ever before, for the world's population has so vastly increased there are so many more than in any other year to laugh and weep and triumph and perish. The mightier wheels of mechanism have such wider sweep. The fires are kindled in furnaces not seven times but 70 times heated. The velocities whirling through the air and sailing the seas and tunneling the mountains will make unprecedented demonstration. Would to God that before the now opening year has closed the earth might cease to tremble with the last cannonade and the heavens cease to be lighted up with any more conflagration of homesteads and the foundries that make swords be turned into blacksmith shops for making plowshares.

The front door of a stupendous year has opened. Before many of you there will be 12 months of opportunity for making the world better or worse, happier or more miserable. Let us pray that it may be a year that will indicate the speedy redemption of the hemisphere. Would to God that this might be the year in which the three great instruments now chiefly used for secular purposes might be put to their mightiest use in the world's evangelization—the telegraph, the telephone, the phonograph! Electricity has such potent tongue, such strong arm, such swift wing, such lightning foot, that it occurs to me that it may be the angel that St. John saw and heard in apocalyptic vision when he started back and cried out: "I saw another angel flying in the midst of Heaven having the everlasting Gospel to preach unto them that dwell on the earth and to every nation and kindred and tongue and people." They were tongues of fire that sat on the heads of the disciples at the Pentecost, and why not the world called to God by tongue of electric fire? Prepare your batteries and make ready to put upon the wires the world wide message of "whosoever will."

Furthermore, this month of January has the greatest height and depth of cold. The rivers are bounded in crystal chains. The fountains that made highest leap in the summer parks now toss not one jet, for every drop would be a frozen tear. The sleds craunch through the hard snow. Warmest attire the wardrobe can afford is put on that we may defend ourselves against the fury of the elements. Hardest of all the months for the poor, let it be the season of greatest generosity on the part of the prosperous. How much a scuttle of coal or a pair of shoes or a coat or a shawl may do in assuagement of suffering between the first of January and the first of February God only knows. Seated by our warm registers or wrapped in furs which make us independent of the cutting January blast, let us not forget the fireless January blast, let us not forget the fireless hearth and the thin garments and the hacking cough and the rheumatic twinge of those who through destitution find life in winter an agony.

Oh, the might of the cold! The arctic and antarctic invading the temperate zone! The victories of the frost—as when the Thames in 1205 became firm as any bridge and the inhabitants crossed and recrossed on the ice and booths and places of temporary amusement were built on the hardened surface; as when many years ago New York harbor was paved with ice so that the people passed on foot to the adjoining islands. But the full story of the cold will never be known. The lips which would have told it were frozen and the fingers that would have written it were benumbed. Only here and there a fact appears. In 1691 the cold was so terrific that the wolves entered Vienna. In 1468 it was so cold that wine was cut with hatchets and distributed among the soldiers. In 1234 a whole forest was killed by the cold at Ravenna. In 763 the Black sea was frozen over. As we go further back the frosts are mightier, but as we come further down the frosts lessen. The worst severities have been hatched, and the snows have lost their depths, and the thermometers announce less terrific falls of temperature, and the time will come when the year will be one long summer of foliage and bloom. While the world's moral condition will be reformed, the worst climates will be corrected. You could not have a millenium with a January blast possible.

Behold, as it is possible in no other month of the year, the wondrous anatomy of the trees in January, the leaves of the last year all gone and not so much as a bud of a new botanical wardrobe appearing, the trees standing with arms stretched toward heaven, one of the greatest evidences of the wisdom and the power of the Creator. The leaves appear only once and then die, but these great arms are stretched up toward heaven in silent prayer for scores of years, now mailed with ice, now robed in snow or bowing to the God of the tempests as He passes in the midnight hurricane. In July the trees stand glorifying the earth; in January they stand defying the winter. Under the same tree the child plays with his toy and, growing up to manhood, sits under it in sentimental or philosophical mood and, having passed on to old age, rests himself under its shade. In these January days the trees seem to say: "The leaves that rustled their music in the last summer are dead and gone, but the leaves that will adorn this uncovered brow and these bare arms shall have as much beauty and glory as their predecessors. Only wait. There are beautiful and lovely things to come in my tree life, as there are beautiful and lovely things to come in your life, O human spectator." Oh, the tree! Only the Almighty and the Infinite could have made one. Gothic architecture was suggested by it. But for the arch of its bough and the pointing of its branches the St. Chapelle of Paris and other specimens of Gothic arch would never have been lifted. No wonder the world has taken from it many styles of suggestiveness—the laurel for the victor, the willow for the sorrowing, the aspen for the trembling, the cypress for the burial. But, unlike ourselves, they cannot change their place and so stand watching all that passes. Some of them are solemn monuments of the centuries. Thank God for trees, their beauty, their shelter, their interlacing branches—not only for the trees in June time coronation, but in January privation of everything but graceful structure! Let the iconoclastic ax not be lifted against them. "Woodman, spare that tree."

Behold also in this January month the increasing daylight. Last month the sun went down at 4:30, but in this month the days are getting longer. The sunrise and the sunset are farther apart. Sunlight instead of artificial light, and there is for our dear old battered earth growing light. "The dayspring from on high hath visited us." We shall have more light for the home, more light for the church, more light for the nation, more light for the world—light of intelligence, light of comfort, light of rescue, light of evangelization, light from the face of God, light from the throne. But, you say, the light increases so slowly, each day of this January only one minute longer than its predecessor, the sun setting the first day of January at four o'clock and 43 minutes, the sun setting the second day of January at four o'clock and 44 minutes, the third day of this month the sun setting at four o'clock and 45 minutes, the fourth day of January the sun setting at four o'clock and 46 minutes. This evening it will set at four o'clock and 47 minutes. The day enlarges very little, and the reign of sunlight is not much increased, but do not despise the minute of increasing light each day of this January, and do not despise the fact that more light is coming for the church and the world, though it come slowly. As we are now in this season gradually going toward the longest day of next summer, so our world is moving forward toward the long day of emancipation and Christly dominion. It may now in the state and the church and the world be January cold, but we are on the way to July harvests and September orchards.

Do not read your almanac backward. Do not go out and ask the trees hung with icicles by January storm whether they will ever again blossom in May and leaf in June. We are moving toward the world's redemption. The frozen tears will melt, the river of gladness will resume its flow, the crocus will come up at the edge of the snowbank, the morning star will open the door for the day, and the armies of the world will "ground arms" all around the world. The January of frost will be abolished, and the balm and radiance of a divine atmosphere will fill the nations. If you do not see it and hear it for yourself, I think at the utmost your grandchildren will see and hear it. The heavens will take part in the conflict between righteousness and sin, and that will settle it, and settle it aright, and settle it forever.

But January, like all the other months of the year, has had its sadnesses and its disasters. During the month died Linnaeus, the botanist of Sweden and the world, who called the roll of the flowers and shrubs and trees, putting them into companies and calling them by their names, his beautiful statue standing in a park at Stockholm a rose in bronze held in his right hand. During this month expired Francis Bacon, and Garrick, and Galileï, and Louis VI., and William Pitt, and Francis Jeffrey of the immortal pen, and Disraeli the first, and Edward Everett, and Bruce, and Catiline. In this month died Peter the Great, the man of whom it was written: "He gave a polish to his people and was himself a savage. He taught them the art of warfare, of which he himself was ignorant. From the sight of a small boat on the river Moskwa he erected a powerful fleet, making himself an expert and active shipwright, sailor, pilot and commander. He changed the manners, customs and laws of the Russians and lives in their memory as the father of his country."

But I cannot read the epitaphs of one out of a hundred illustrious graves in this first month of the year. Many of those well known gained half their renown and did half their work through the help of those of whom we know little or nothing. Lord Herschel is known all the world over and will be known through all time, but little is said of her who was born this first month of the year and without whose help he never could have been what he was—his sister, Caroline Lucretia Augusta. She helped him hunt the worlds. She repaired and adjusted his telescopes. She ciphered out his astronomical problems. She was his amanuensis. She planned for him his work. She discovered seven comets and made "A Catalogue of Nebulae and Star Clusters." The month of January introduced her to the observatories, but she has never been properly introduced to the world.

According to my text, "This month shall be unto you the beginning of months; it shall be the first month of the year to you." Through it make preparation for the other 11 months. What you are in January you will probably be in all the other months of the year. Prepare for them neither by the apprehension nor too sanguine anticipation. Apprehension of misfortune will only deplete your body and gloom your soul and unfit you for any trouble that may come. On the other hand, if you expect too much, disappointment will be yours. Cultivate faith in God and the feeling that He will do for you that which is best, and you will be ready for either sunshine or shadow. The other 11 months of the year 1902 will not all be made up of gladness or of grief. The cup that is all made up of sweetness is insipid.

Between these just opened gates of the year and the closing of those gates there will be many times when you will want God. You will have questions to decide which will need supernatural impulse. There may be illnesses of the body or perplexities of mind or spiritual exhaustions to be healed and comforted and strengthened. During the remaining 26 days of this month lay in a supply of faith and hope and courage for all the days of the 11 months. Start right and you will be apt to keep right. Before the ship captain gets out of the New York Narrows he will make up his mind what sea route he will take. While you are in the Narrows of this month make up your mind which way you will sail and unroll your chart and set your compass and have the lifeboats well placed on the davits and be ready for smooth voyage all the way across or the swoop of a Caribbean whirlwind.

Rev. Solomon Spaulding was for some time in poor health and to while away the time he wrote a preposterous religious romance. One Joseph Smith somehow got hold of that book before it was printed and published it as a revelation of Heaven, calling it the "Book of Mormon," and from that publication came Mormonism, the monster abomination of the earth. Rev. Solomon Spaulding might have been better engaged than writing that book of falsehoods. However much time we have, we have never time to do wrong. Harness January for usefulness, and it will take the following months in its train. Oh, how much you may do for God between now and the 31st of next December! The beautiful "weeping willow" tree was introduced by Alexander Pope into England from a twig which the poet found in a Turkish basket of figs. He planted that twig, and from it came all the weeping willows of England and America; and your smallest planting of good may under God become an influence continental and international.

Now that the train of months has started, let it pass, January followed by February, with longer days, and March, with its fierce winds; and April, with its sudden showers; and May, with its blossoming orchards; and June, with its carnival of flowers; and July, with its harvests; and August, with its sweltering heats; and September, with its drifting leaves; and October, with its frosts; and November, with its Thanksgiving scenes; and December, with its Christian hilarities. March on, O battalion of the months, in the regiments of the years and the brigades of the centuries! March on and join the months and years and centuries already passed until all the rivers of time have emptied into the ocean of eternity, but none of all the host ought to render higher thanks to God or take larger comfort or make more magnificent resolve than this, the first month of the new year.

But what fleet foot hath the months and years! People lightly talk about how they kill time. Alas, it dies soon enough without killing. And the longer we live the swifter it goes. William C. Bryant said an old friend of his declared that the going of time is like the drumming of the partridge or muffled grouse in the woods, falling slow and distinct at first and then following each other more and more rapidly till they end at last in a whirring sound. But Dr. Young, speaking of the value of time, startlingly exclaimed: "Ask deathbeds!"

OUR MARINE COMMERCE.

Complete Development of Ocean Trade Hampered by Inimical Legislation.

It is a matter of regret that President Roosevelt did not in his message enter more fully into the question of "ship subsidies," and at least have given some suggestion as to the best method of building up our "merchant marine." More of the message could have been most profitably employed had President Roosevelt entered into a historical detail, which, while it would, perhaps, trenched on the pet theory of the policy of the republican party, would have solved the reason why the commercial marine of the United States is now in a dwarfed condition. It was not always so. Within 45 years the commercial marine of the United States was not only the pride of this country, but was the envy of all peoples who, in 1856, sent their hardy sailors to all lands in a commercial marine. President Roosevelt in that decade had not made his infant arrival, and consequently it was not possible for him to have personal experience, as had other, but not better, statesmen, who had been born in the earlier decades of the nineteenth century.

However, President Roosevelt has, no doubt, thoroughly investigated the causes which gave to our country its remarkable success in the construction of a commercial marine during the fourth and fifth decades of the century which closed a year ago. He is familiar with the fact that between the years 1846 and 1861 the barks, brigantines, clipper ships, stout three masters, with spars crowded with canvas, visited all waters, and bore the flag of our country to the view of the peoples of all lands. These fleets were not subsidized. They were not built in foreign shipyards. They possessed no advantages over the fleets of other countries, except the skill of our shipbuilders and the exceeding cheapness of the material used in the construction of our then commercial navy. Every important city on our coast lines had well appointed shipyards. The din of the industry filled the air with the "sound of hammers closing rivets up."

To a very large degree this active and profitable industry is among "the things that were." Would it not be an exhibition of wisdom if President Roosevelt were to make diligent inquiry into the causes which have brought this sad change about? It is believed that the president is a wise and courageous man—that no fetich spirit inhabits his mental and physical make-up—that he is able and is competent to sound the depths in which the merchant marine lies buried, and that he has the courage to set forth the causes and the means used in the destruction of the ships which visited all seas, and carried the benign influence to all the people of the earth that there existed a land known as the United States, where all people enjoyed liberty, and were untrammeled by restriction laws, says the Cincinnati Enquirer.

Probably no man knows more fully than does President Roosevelt the reason which caused the decay of American shipping. Let him courageously set forth his opinions. Let him explain to the people the character and effect of the operation of the "navigation laws." Let him seize every opportunity which has never, in the history of our country, been given to its chief ruler. Let him meet this opportunity fully and courageously.

The trade of this country, notwithstanding the inimical influence which legislation has conceived to hamper a complete development of it, is larger more prosperous and more profitable than ever in its history. Why should not the president aid to enlarge it? Why should he not recommend that all barriers shall be removed? Why should not the president lessen the burdens of indirect taxation, which goes to the benefit of a few men, and which is really paid to them by the people who furnish every ounce of freight which is sent from our ports, and nine-tenths of which is carried in foreign bottoms. Is not the national treasury overflowing with money raised from indirect taxation?

Are the people not paying millions of dollars by the nonuse of their natural materials? Is the commercial freight undesired by American ship owners? Can President Roosevelt reinaugurate the shipbuilding industry without bribing the shipowners, and impose a fresh robbery on the people?

——The administration will have a busy time if it undertakes to put the gag law upon all who side with Dewey against Long or to suppress any further discussion of the naval infamy. A gallant hero, a victorious commander, has been cruelly and shamefully wronged and the whole country resents the injury and will not rest quiet until the wrong has been in some way righted. Mr. Roosevelt has not been long enough in office to subordinate his instincts as a brave and honest gentleman to the supposed requirements of political expediency, and he will find that expediency will not condone a crime against the patriotic sense of the American people.—Philadelphia Times.

——America is the only civilized country in the world whose citizens cannot buy ships where they please. Until we allow this privilege those who claim to be the special champions of the American merchant marine have no right to ask the people to tax themselves in its behalf.—Indianapolis News (Ind.)

——Foraker seems disposed to be the Hanna of the Roosevelt administration. Unless all signs fail, however, Roosevelt is rather more than likely to be his own Hanna, and president, too.—Richmond Dispatch.

THE INTEREST OF HANNA.

Foxy Move of the Decadent Boss to Gain the Good Will of the People.

Senator Hanna has assumed a new role in the interview which he gave out prior to his departure for the conference of the American Civic federation. The chairman of the republican national committee as a social reformer, pure and simple, is a character to which the public has not accustomed itself, says the St. Louis Republic.

For Chairman Hanna has never been known as a philanthropist. In his interesting statement regarding his part in former strikes and their settlement one fact stands out clear and distinct. His appearance in labor troubles has always been coincident with a pending political campaign where his friends were arrayed against the labor organizations.

In the present instance there are reasons why he cannot lose money or prestige among the trusts by advocating a "mutual disarmament in the industrial world."

Yet that such a conference as the recent one in New York should be made the tool of a political manager is to be regretted by all true friends of the American Civic federation. If Hanna is using the conference as a stepping stone to the republican nomination for the presidency in 1904, or if he expects to beat Foraker in Ohio by proclaiming himself as a social Moses, he is a trickster in either case.

If Senator Hanna intended his interview strictly for Ohio consumption, he has missed his mark. His agility in stepping to the breach in labor troubles only when his own ends may be served is too well known. A little more disinterestedness on the part of the aspiring republican politician might alter many years change the public estimate of his character, but a few days is a time too short.

THE SUBSIDY OUTLOOK.

Probability of the Promoters Log-Rolling Their Scheme Through Congress.

It is reported from Washington that, in spite of the fact that the new subsidy bill has been framed with the view of attracting support that failed to rally to the original bill, the project has won little or no additional favor and can count on very few strong advocates. Those who were the most earnest and vigorous in opposition to the former bill are nearly or quite all as strongly opposed to the new bill, and those who were simply cold toward the scheme at the last session occupy the same attitude to-day, convinced, they are said to be, that not a single promise of the subsidy promoters is to be relied on. Comparatively few republican members care to talk about the bill, and from such knowledge of the situation as can be obtained, it is regarded as unlikely that it will pass on its merits or popularity, says the Binghamton (N. Y.) Leader.

It was, however, intimated some time ago that the subsidy promoters might succeed in logrolling their scheme through congress, or insure its success by making the security of other legislative interests depend upon the fate of the subsidy bill. Such tactics as this would, of course, be a suggestive indication of the concern of the subsidy people for the public welfare, which they pretend would be subserved by the success of their scheme. Nobody will, however, be surprised at anything the advocates of this measure may do to secure its passage, for nobody can be in doubt that the sole purpose of those who are behind it is to tap the treasury. Overwhelming defeat is the fate the bill deserves, but it may not get its deserts.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——Cartoonists give Mark Hanna mighty little hair as it is, but Foraker seems determined to get a scalp lock of what's left.—St. Louis Republic.

——As it was with Arthur so it will be with Roosevelt. The influence of President McKinley has departed from the republican councils—witness the swift smothering of reciprocity. That influence will soon cease to have even reminders in the administration.—N. Y. World.

——The president is positive in the opinion that there should be no general revision of the tariff. He adopts the fallacy that business panics are created by tariff revisions, and has that to say as regards the tariff being framed in the interests of labor which is more appropriate in partisan appeals than in a presidential document.—Boston Herald (Ind.).

——But for the magnitude and importance of seemingly neglected interests the almost hysterical zeal of congressmen to enact all manner of legislation against anarchists and anarchism would be treated as a jest. It is hard to escape the conviction, however, that a great many members would be far less zealous in making laws to exterminate anarchy if they did not find in this legislation means of diverting public attention, in a way, from reciprocity, trusts, subsidies and the war taxes.—Detroit Free Press.

——Unquestionably the president was justified in hesitating about accepting the Carnegie gift of $10,000,000 of steel trust bonds for the university extension scheme on the ground that it would place the government in the position of being a party to an unlawful combine. But why doesn't the president instruct the attorney general to inquire into the steel trust's methods as to evidence of good faith? If the trust is so wicked that the government cannot countenance it as an associate why not, in the interest of the people, make it live up to the laws?—Saginaw News.

A STRANGE CASE.

Chicago Man Loses His Memory and at Last Finds Himself in Dental College at Atlanta, Ga.

After wandering for six weeks with no recollection of his own identity, Will T. White, of 66 Rush street, Chicago, recovered his memory and found himself in Atlanta, Ga., a student in a dental college.

He had regained his recollection of everything up to the time of his disappearance, but the intervening period of nearly two months at the same time became a blank to him, and Mr. White does not know how he went to Atlanta or how he obtained the money to pay his expenses at the dental college there.

White was employed in Chicago in the office of Dennison & Co., manufacturing chemists. He left the office on Saturday morning with 87 cents in his pocket and wearing no overcoat. His week's salary was due that evening, but he did not draw it.

His wife instituted a search for him, but in vain, and then she decided to wait, confident of his return. For, a few years ago, Mr. White had a similar experience. He disappeared, and was found in New York trying to get work by which he could pay his expenses in a dental college.

Mrs. White went to live with Louisville relatives several weeks ago, and the reuniting of the family took place there.

ENGLAND TAKING UP SKAT.

This Game of the German Students Is Likely to Become Very Popular.

Every two or three years the smart set of London goes mad over some new amusement. Five or six years ago it was skating on real ice, which, for the matter of that, is still very popular. Then came the war. The young men went to the front and the women followed them, at a safe distance. The talk was all about hospital ships, lint and bandages and the delights of nursing pale, interesting soldiers.

A reaction set in and society began to learn bridge and play it feverishly. No more talk of the war. Last season the craze reached its height. Luncheon parties were made up, after which bridge for high stakes went on, with a pause for dinner, into the small hours.

Now a new game, new at least to England—namely, skat, the great game of the German corps student—is being introduced into England. It looks as if it would be taken to kindly in society circles. As pique is considered the best game for two, whist for four and poker for five, so skat is the most interesting game for three.

Lose by Acting in London.

Nat Goodwin addressed the Playgoers' club at London the other night on the subject of "The American Invasion." He said that there was reciprocity between the American and British dramatic worlds, but English actors generally came home laden with dollars. He instanced the case of Macready and others, and said that almost all of the American actors in England shared the fate of Forrest, who went home with only a dead emblem of leaves suggesting his name. Several Americans had lost heavily on the London season, some $10,000 and others $125,000. On that point he could speak with authority, though he was not anxious to claim credit for his experiences; indeed, he wished he were less well informed.

RAVAGES OF RABBITS.

In Some Sections of the Country the Loss Caused by the Little Rooters Is Quite Serious.

In many of the less closely settled regions of our country, when snows are deep and food scarce, rabbits develop into a serious pest by gnawing the bark of fruit trees. Some items about this trouble from a recent bulletin by H. Garman, of the Kentucky station, may, therefore, not come amiss.

When the nursery is small it is possible to inclose it with a close slat fence that will "turn" rabbits and serve all the purposes of the ordinary fences required to keep out stock. In timbered countries, where rabbits are most troublesome, fences of this character may be cheaply built. Two types of fence suitable for the purpose are to be seen in the state. The most common is made of rough slats, four to six feet long and about three inches in width. The slats are securely fastened together from one to two inches apart with No. 11 wire, stout posts being set at intervals of 10 to 16 feet to insure stability and keep the panels upright. Since the slats can be adjusted to any unevenness of the ground, it is possible to exclude anything that a fence can reasonably be expected to turn.

The second type is made of shorter slats, three or four inches long, and these may be supplemented above by one or more wires stretched from post to post. J. Q. A. Rahm has built such a fence about his nursery. He uses slats three feet long, none less than half an inch thick, and sets his posts in spring, waiting until hot weather in August and September before putting up the slats in order to have the wire fully expanded at the start. The wires are simply crossed between the slats and are kept taut, while building, by a barrow loaded with about 1,000 pounds of stone and placed 100 to 400 yards ahead of the workmen. Near the barrow the wires are secured to a single tree made of a piece of stout timber, a log chain being passed around this and secured to a weighted barrow.

Rabbits are very easily caught, notwithstanding the well known cunning. One of the simplest and best traps used for the purpose is made of rough fence boards six inches wide and about two feet long. These pieces are nailed together so as to make an oblong box, one end of which is closed with a short piece of board, while the other is provided with a board consisting of another piece of board which slides down from above in grooves cut in the projecting sides or between slats nailed to the end, as shown in the cut.

The bottom piece may also be allowed to project so as to make the door more secure when closed. A small hole is bored through the top at about the middle of the box, and midway between this and the door a stick is secured in an upright position. Across the top of this latter a second stick is secured by a nail in a notch made in the upright one so that it will seesaw up and down. A third stick of small size is notched near one end and secured at the opposite end by means of a piece of twin to the end of the larger movable piece. This movable piece is now connected by twine at its forward end to the top of the door, when the trap is ready to set.

The door is elevated, the little stick passed through the hole in the top and secured by the notch to the front edge of the hole. When the rabbit enters, it pushes the projecting end of the stick before it, setting it free, allowing the suspended door to descend and thus cutting off its own escape. The traps may be baited with a piece of apple or cabbage placed in the end farthest from the door.—Cincinnati Commercial Tribune.

Vegetables in the Cellar.

All vegetables keep better at a low temperature and, excepting in the severest weather, the cellar window may be kept open during the day, at least, if it is on the south side. It also helps to keep the cellar sweet and fresh. We know there is no need of an ill-smelling cellar. Vegetables properly buried and an open window in all suitable weather will prevent unsavory odors. Have a regular time for closing the window, as you do for any other "chore," and all will be well.

ROADS IN PHILIPPINES.

How Government Red Tape Has Hampered the Usefulness of a Stone-Crushing Machine.

What has been accomplished by Americans in the Philippine islands is, to a certain extent, attested at Binangonan, on the Laguna de Bay.

On a rocky headland jutting out from the Morong shore stands an imposing structure which demonstrates what some of our officials are capable of doing.

In the olden days, when the haughty Spaniard or untaught Filipino desired to repair that portion of the street which lay immediately in front of some grandee's door, if any broken stone was used, the material was obtained in the usual way. After erecting a mat to screen himself from the sun, the Filipino squatted beside a little rock pile and possibly pounded out a cubic meter of broken stone in a day. But this slow and laborious process of obtaining road material did not entirely commend itself to the American authorities. They resolved to erect a large rock crushing machine, and there was no reason why the projected rock crusher could not be operated very successfully. After discussing the merits of various localities a point near Binangonan, on the Laguna de Bay, was the site selected. After studying the situation, a competent engineer carefully drew up the plans for the proposed rock crushing plant and sent in all the estimates required. These plans were pigeonholed in Manila, and, certain purchases having been made, it was ordered by "he who must be obeyed" that the rock crushing plant should be erected. The plans of the engineer, the estimates and requisitions of a practical man who knew exactly what was wanted were ignored. But a joblot of machinery was assembled and over it was erected a flimsy superstructure which may or may not fall to pieces at any time.

The engine which operates the crushing machinery originally came from England. In design it is certainly unique. And its actions are eccentric. Attached to this masterpiece are two boilers, which at the outset were said to be ridiculously inadequate. If carefully nursed these boilers will safely carry 80 pounds of steam and supply power enough to run at slow speed one of the two rock crushing machines.

Although not of the latest modern or of the most approved form of construction, the two rock crushers are of American make and capable of doing good work.

The genius who constructed the crushing plant hit upon the happy plan of having the stone run down hill to a platform considerably below the hopper of the rock crusher and from there shoveled up again. The placing of the rock crushers also evokes attention. If the ingenious builder aimed at securing a maximum of inconvenience and a minimum of economy he is to be congratulated upon having accomplished his purpose. Both machines are placed askew, almost at right angles with their proper positions, and matters are further complicated by having several things turned upside down in the arrangements for transmitting the power. Neither can the pullies nor belting escape observation. Wooden pullies are used—lopsided affairs that writhe and squirm—and is stretching and destroying belts they are found to be quite effective. So great is the loss of power that, although in the theory the two boilers should furnish ample steam to run the two machines, one of the rock crushers from necessity is always idle.

The miniature railroad track, over which are wheeled the tiny cars of crushed rock, is not laid as it should be, and the arrangement for loading crushed stone into cascoes involves double the amount of work that would be required were things arranged aright.

Launches may tie up under the shadow of the crushing plant, and to obtain water from the lake should be no trouble at all. But for want of a suitable piece of pipe with which to make connections, whereby water might be pumped by the engines into the boilers from the lake, four hombres were formerly employed at one peso each per day to carry water for the engine. The present foreman of the plant arranged to dispense with the services of three water carriers, but the government is still expending a peso a day because of somebody's disinclination to buy for the plant an inexpensive piece of pipe.

Once upon a time the foreman of the crushing plant made requisition through the usual channels for a draw shave, a medium sized cold chisel and an ordinary barrel. (It was set forth in the requisition that any old barrel capable of holding water would serve.)

But instead of the things asked for the foreman eventually received a communication from Capt. Dodge stating that samples of all articles requisitioned for must be forwarded to the purchasing agent before any purchases could be made. As the foreman had neither a draw shave, a chisel nor a barrel to send to Capt. Dodge he is still unsupplied with these articles.

And so it goes at Binangonan. Owing to defective construction and ineffective machinery, the output of crushed rock is less than half what it ought to be under proper conditions.—Manila (P. I.) American.

Estimates of the Florida orange crop this year vary from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 boxes.

New Seasickness Remedy.

Prof. Heinz, of the University of Erlangen, claims to have discovered an infallible and very simple antidote against seasickness. "Draw a long and vigorous breath at frequent intervals," he says, "and you will never suffer from this malady." The reason, he explains, is because the initial cause of seasickness is to be found in a lobe of the brain, the sensitiveness of which reacts on the stomach, and that when fresh air is breathed at frequent intervals the blood becomes charged with oxygen and thus the offending lobe loses its sensitiveness. He adds that he has made several experiments on himself for the purpose of proving the efficacy of this novel remedy, and has also completely cured several persons who used to be seasick whenever they went on the water. Finally, he points out that the antidote costs nothing and can be tested by anyone.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Have You Rheumatism? Do You Have Bladder or Uric Acid Trouble?

Pain or dull ache in the back is unmistakable evidence of kidney trouble. It is Nature's timely warning to show you that the track of health is not clear.

If these danger signals are unheeded, more serious results are sure to follow; Bright's disease which is the worst form of kidney trouble may steal upon you.

The mild and the extraordinary effect of the world-famous kidney and bladder remedy, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince anyone—and you may have a sample bottle free, by mail.

Backache and Urinary Trouble.

Among the many famous investigated cures of Swamp-Root the one we publish this week for the benefit of our readers, speaks in the highest terms of the wonderful curative properties of this great kidney remedy.

DR. KILMER & CO., Binghamton, N. Y.

GENTLEMEN:—When I wrote you last March for a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, my wife was a great sufferer from backache, rheumatism and urinary trouble. After trying the sample bottle, she bought a large bottle here at the drug store. That did her so much good she bought more. The effect of Swamp-Root was wonderful and almost immediate. She has felt no return of the old trouble since Oct., 1901. F. THOMAS,
427 Best St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Lame back is only one symptom of kidney trouble—one of many. Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are, obliged to pass water often during the day and to get up many times at night, inability to hold your urine, smarting or irritation in passing, brickdust or sediment in the urine, catarrh of the bladder, uric acid, constant headache, dizziness, sleeplessness, nervousness, irregular heart-beating, rheumatism, bloating, irritability, wornout feeling, lack of ambition, loss of flesh, sallow complexion.

If your water when allowed to remain undisturbed in a glass or bottle for twenty-four hours, forms a sediment or settling, or has a cloudy appearance, it is evidence that your kidneys and bladder need immediate attention.

In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

Swamp-Root is the great discovery of Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist. Hospitals use it with wonderful success in both slight and severe cases. Doctors recommend it to their patients and use it in their own families, because they recognize in Swamp-Root the greatest and most successful remedy.

To Prove What SWAMP-ROOT, the Great Kidney, Liver and Bladder Remedy, Will do for YOU, Every Reader of our paper May Have a Sample Bottle Absolutely Free by Mail.

Opportunities Wasted.

She was entertaining the assembled company with an account of their first quarrel and how, after making it up with one another, her husband had planted a tree in remembrance of it.

"If we had only done that," whispered the minister's wife to her husband, "what a splendid avenue we might have had!"—Stray Stories.

Real Pleasure.

Her Father—Aha! I caught you kissing my daughter, sir! What do you mean by that sort of business?

He—I don't consider it business at all, sir, but pleasure, merely pleasure.—Philadelphia Press.

Most Important, to Us.

Teacher—Tell me some of the most important things existing to-day which did not exist 100 years ago.

Tommy—Us.—Stray Stories.

The most bitter arguments are those in which neither person has any definite information in regard to the subject.—Puck.

Appropriate.

A Sunday school teacher in Carthage, Ill., has a class of little girls, and it is his custom to tell them each Sunday of one little incident that has happened in the week, and request the children to quote a verse of Scripture to illustrate the story. In this way she hopes to impress the usefulness of Biblical knowledge upon the little ones.

One Sunday she told her class of a cruel boy who would catch cats and cut off their tails. "Now, can any little girl tell me of an appropriate verse?" she asked.

There was a pause for a few moments, when one of the little girls arose and in a solemn voice said: "Whatsoever God has joined together let no man put asunder."—Detroit Free Press.

An Explanation.

He—Your friend, Miss Dashaway, has quite a military air about her.

She—No wonder. She has participated in no fewer than 17 engagements.—Chicago Daily News.

Each succeeding year finds the uneducated million less surprised to hear that diamonds and coal are the same substance.—Puck.

Why Syrup of Figs is the best family laxative

It is pure.

Ike Suow caught a bottle floating in the river, one day last week, in the bottle was a note dated Dec. 16, 1901, saying, "Cors. wanted—address Miss Edna Stuard, Miss Dorthy Gibson, Miss Lida Elkins, Miss Hattie Gibson, Springville, Ky." Esquire Solon Early, Senator Robt. Blackburn, the writer and M. F. Wingate have signified their willingness to correspond with them.

The social event of the new year was the Watch Meeting at Mrs. Maria Terrill's New Year's eve night. Songs and games were indulged in till 10:30 when all were invited to the dining room, where everything good to eat was prepared. Vocal and instrumental solos were the features of the evening. Besides a number of local ladies and gents Miss Lelia Gardner, of Catlettsburg, Miss Rice, of Bellevue, and Miss Sue McWethy, of Lawreuceburg, were present. At the dawn of the second year of the new century, all repaired to their homes wishing Mrs. Terrill many more happy New Years.

A number of persons gathered at the home of Miss Julia Smith's New Years day, and enjoyed the hospitality of this charming hostess. The best dinner it has been our pleasure to sit down to in many a day was spread for those present. Besides the home people, Misses Lillian and Alice Wulfeck, of Cincinnati, were there. Miss Julia has a pleasant and convenient home out on the romantic stream of Ashby Fork on the site of her grandfather's residence in pioneer times. Her home is called Camp Foster, in honor of her venerable uncle, Seth Foster, of Cincinnati.

The J. F. C. Watch Meeting at Gordon's Hall, New Year's eve night was attended by nearly 100 persons, many coming from Cincinnati, Lawrenceburg and Aurora, Ind. Peter's string band of Aurora, made the music, which was first class, and dancing and cards were indulged in till almost break of day of the new year, and many a heart was breaklug after the ball. At twelve lunch was served in the wings of the Opera House, and hot coffee, buns and what-note were served by pretty girls and gallant gents. Messrs. Hugh Arnold and Culbert Weindel were managers, and it was their endeavor to make every one present happy.

The Bullittsville Theatrical Aggregation struck our town Saturday, for a single night's performance. With some thing over 100 people to face the rising of the curtain, introduciug the entire company in a beautiful and well rendered solo. The ladies in the different casts, always beautiful, looked more so that evening. The singing of Prof. Perkies Grubbs was a feature of the entertainment—he was encored at every appearance on the stage. Dr. L. H. Crisler deserves special mention for his almost perfect impersonation of the darky character in the Ethiopian Sketch, "Hemmed In." Elbert Riley and wife and Miss Berulce Duncan in the Granger Family were well received, as was the acting of Dr. Hays, in his different makeups. A violin solo by Miss Maria Riley, and one by Master Duncan Riley, showed long musical training. Miss Mary Gaines and Mrs. Picklehimer added much to the evening's entertainment, which was as good as any that has faced the footlights in Gordon's Hall for a long time. Not being able to secure a program we cannot give the chief characters justice.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., says: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by all druggists.

A disastrous freight wreck at Kenton Heights, last Saturday morning, interrupted traffic on the C. & C. for several hours. The train, a very heavy double-header, could not be checked in time to be switched to the side track, on account of defective air-brakes. The crew, seeing the disaster was inevitable, jumped and one man got his arm broken, The loss to the railroad will be considerable in the matter of rolling stock alone, The Q. & C. has been having a great run of ill luck for the last several months.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West Indla Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by all Druggists.

Dugan came back to his boat and when Wrightman and Graves came over they proposed landing their skiff at Dugan's boat, which he forbade their doing and prevented at the point of a shot gun. Wrightman and Graves went away, but returned in a short time and bombarded Dugau's boat with pistols. Dugan resisting the attack with a shot gun. Having stuck a few bullets in the door and side of the boat, Wrightman and Graves departed, nobody having been hurt. The next day Dugan came to Burlington for the arrest of Wrightman and Graves, and put it in the hands of the sheriff, who arrested Wrightman, but Graves has made himself scarce in this county ever since the trouble. Last Thursday Wrightman had his examining trial before County Judge Roberts and was held over to the grand jury in the sum of $200, and in default of bond he was committed to jail.

Real estate agent, W. E. Vest, made several sales of land, last week, the last being the 126 acre farm of Robert Houston, near Pleasant Ridge school house, on the Union and Florence pike, J. M. Lassing purchaser. Consideration, $3,000 and house and lot in Erlanger.

George W Anderson, of the Point Pleasant neighborhood, died Sunday night of blood poisou and pneumonia. On Monday, of last week, he assisted his neighbor, Esq. James H. Walton, butcher a beef, and in taking the beef down he cut one of his wrists in some manner, and blood poison set up in a short time, accompanied by pneumonia. Mr. Anderson was a widower. his wife having died only a few years since. He was a prominent citizen, and a man whose word was as good as his bond. Mr. Anderson leaves no children. He was a brother of Montcomery and Southgate Anderson, of Constance, this county, and Esq. James H. Anderson, of Kenton county. The interment took place at Hebron, yesterday.

Charley Rouse, who was kicked or pawed by a mule, on Tuesday evening of last week, survived about twenty-six hours. It is the opinion of the doctors who saw the wound, which was at or about the top of the head, that the young man either fell or was knocked down in the stall, after which his skull was crushed by a stroke from the mule's fore foot, as he was found lying in the front part of the stall, and the wound appearing to have been made by a calk of the shoe, a tuft of hair having been driven into the cavity. Three or four pieces of skull, as large as a twenty-five cent piece were removed from the wound. The unfortunate boy was conscious from the time he was found by his mother until he died, but never told how the accident happened. Dr. Rauschoff, an emiuent surgeon, of Cincinnati, was called in on Wednesday, and an operation was performed, but it did no good. Charles was the only child of Mr. and Mrs. W R. Rouse, and his untimely death is a terrible blow to his parents. The funeral took place, last Friday, at Hebron, in the presence of a very large assemblage of relatives and friends, who mingled tears of sympathy with the tears of the almost heart-broken parents. All who knew Charley Rouse admired him for his lovely disposition and manly traits of character, and his death was a shock to all.

Dr. D. Selker, the scientific optician that has relieved numbers of people of afflicted eyesight and paiuful headaches, with the aid of correctly ground glasses, will be here in your town, Burlington, at the Boone Hotel, beginning Monday, January 13th, and will remain to and include January 18th.

Dr. Selker has been visiting the surrounding neigbboring towns for a number of months, and through his scientific and skillful work in fitting glasses in which he obtained good results, he has gained for himself a wide known reputation. He has successfully fitted numbers of people with glasses where numbers of specialists have failed to do the work.

He will be glad to show you thousands of testimonials which will confirm his statements. The people of Burlington begin to realize the necessity of a skillful and expert optician to whom they can entrust their eyes without risk or danger, therefore Dr. Selker's arrival will be appreciated by a good many people of our town, who have been waiting for such a good opportunity. He can not give the names of all that he has done work for, for that would require a newspaper by itself, therefore, he will give only a few names of prominence from Rising Sun and Patriot, Indiana. The following are from Rising Sun:—Judge S. H. Stewart, Mr. W. North, banker; Mr. S. Espy, postmaster; Mr. S H. Stevens; Mr. McGuire, ex-postmaster; Mr. Gibson, hardware store; Mr. Dehart, City Recorder; Mrs. Scranton, Scranton Hotel; Mr. Redd, Mrs. Paul Davis Mrs. Shaw, Mrs. Cooper. People of Patriot:—Capt. How, banker; Mr. S. H. Schroder, general merchandise store; Mr. T. Luke, Mrs. E. M. Dibble, Mrs. C. Davis, Mrs. W. C. Robinson, Mrs. A. Hickman, Mrs. Hmnprey.

Headaches cured with glasses a specialty. Dr. Selker will make his regular visits to your town hereafter, and will announce same through your local newspaper. Special engagements made by mail with people unable to call at the hotel. Main office, 156, Ontario street, Cleveland, Ohio. 1t

EVERETT-MOORE CO.

Their Affairs in the Hands of a Committee of Bankers.

Committee Express the Belief That the Consolidation Is Entirely Soivent and the Trouble Is Only Temporary.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 3.—The financial affairs of the Everett-Moore syndicate, owning or controlling a number of urban and interurban electric railways, and a large system of local and long-distance telephone lines in Ohio and Michigan, passed into the control of a committee composed of seven prominent bankers of this city Thursday. This action was taken, it is stated, as the result of temporary financial embarrassment on the part of the syndicate, which has for some time past been affected by the stringency in the money market.

The committee chosen has been at work investigating the affairs of the syndicate and express the firm belief that the consolidation is entirely solvent and that its embarrassment will only be temporary.

The Everett-Moore syndicate is accredited with controlling more than 1,200 miles of urban and interurban electric lines in Ohio and Michigan, with many new extensions still in course of construction.

Among the telephone properties owned outright or controlled by the syndicate are the Cuyahoga Telephone Co., of this city, with upward of 10,000 subscribers; the United States Telephone Co. (long-distance); the Federal Telephone Co., the Stark County (O.) Telephone Co., the Columbiana County (O.) Telephone Co., the People's Telephone Co., of Detroit; the Wood County (O.) Telephone Co., and a number of others in which the Federal Telephone Co. is the controlling factor.

Among the more important electric street railway properties in which the syndicate is largest interested are the Cleveland Electric Railway Co., the Detroit United Railway Co., the Toledo Railway and Light Co., the Northern Ohio Traction Co., the Cleveland, Painesville & Eastern Railway Co., the Detroit & Toledo Shore Line Railroad Co. and the Lake Shore Electric Railroad Co. All of these lines are declared by the committee to be with scarcely an exception in good physical condition, perfectly solvent and in no wise embarrassed.

The aggregate capitalization of all the various properties owned or controlled by the syndicate is said to be about $130,000,000.

Expert accountants have been employed by the committee in charge to examine and report upon the condition of all the constituent companies.

The committee of bankers organized by electing H. R. Newcomb as chairman and E. C. Tillotson secretary.

SCARED DEPOSITORS.

A Run Made on the Dime Savings and Banking Co., Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 3.—As a result of the announcement of the financial embarrassment of the Everett-Moore syndicate, a run was started on the Dime Savings and Banking Co., of which Messrs. Everett and Moore are directors, late Thursday afternoon. All demands were promptly met and President Watterson said the bank had ample funds on hand to pay all depositors who desired their money.

The institution is one of the city depositories. When its last report was issued in October the bank's total resources were placed at $5,762,007, including a surplus fund of $335,000.

DEPORTING CHINAMEN.

Twenty-One at Ogdenburg, N. Y., Ordered to Be Sent Out.

Ogdensburg, N. Y., Jan. 3.—Commissioner Gray ordered the deportation of 21 Chinamen, they having unlawfully entered the country Thursday. Appeals are being filed in each case. Forty-five Chinamen are now at the county jail, awaiting the action of the higher court. Of 89 Chinamen examined during the quarter, the dismissal of 23 has been ordered, and the deportation of 66 has been sustained.

Reception to Postmaster General

Branch Y. M. C. A. in Mexico City.

Mexico City, Jan. 3.—Plans for establishing in this city a branch of the Y. M. C. A. are maturing. The project has the co-operation of Miss Helen Gould and Hon. John Barrett, member of the Pan-American conference. The object is to provide many foreign young men with a resort.

Mother and Two Children Cremated.

Searchlight, Nev., Jan. 3.—In a fire which destroyed the Searchlight hotel, Mrs. Bullock, the lessee of the property, and her two children, a boy and girl, were burned to death. Essie Wheatley, 12 years old, was fatally burned.

Oldest Odd Fellow Dead.

Santa Barbara, Cal., Jan. 3.—James Davidson, the oldest odd fellow in the United States, is dead here. He was born in West Virginia 89 years ago, and became a member of Franklin lodge at Wheeling on June 17, 1838.

SECRETARY SHAW.

The New Head of the Treasury at the National Capital.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Gov. Leslie M. Shaw, of Iowa, who is to succeed Hon. Lyman J. Gage as secretary of the treasury, arrived in Washington Friday night. He is staying at the Arlington hotel, and had been there but a short time when, in response to a message from the white house, he walked to the president's home and remained with him until after 9 o'clock. Later he called on Speaker Henderson. He had a more extended conference with the president Saturday. Gov. Shaw accorded a hearty greeting to the group of newspaper men who were waiting him in the hotel lobby after his return from the white house. He was non-communicative, however, when asked leading questions about matters of financial policy.

Saturday he conferred with Secretary Gage as to the latter's wishes in surrendering the secretaryship of the treasury. The governor said he would be ready to assume the office by the 22d or 23d of January, but he would suit the date largely to Mr. Gage's wishes in the matter.

"My experience has been that when a man has decided to quit an office," said the governor, "he is anxious for the hours he has to stay. I can come any time, but will leave the date to the present secretary. President Roosevelt has left the arrangements for the change practically to Mr. Gage."

The governor will remain here for several days.

THE PRESIDENT'S DAUGHTER.

Miss Alice Roosevelt Formally Presented to Washington Society.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Miss Alice Roosevelt, the eldest daughter of President and Mrs. Roosevelt, was formally presented to Washington society at a hall given in her honor at the white house. About 500 guests in all were present, many of whom either were cousins of the Roosevelts or well-known society people living outside of Washington. Miss Roosevelt is the first white house debutante since 1873, when Miss Nellie Grant, the daughter of President Grant, was presented to society at a ball which was the gayest social event of the decade. This entertainment was given a personal rather than an official character by Mrs. Roosevelt, whose wish was that Miss Roosevelt should make her debut much as though it had taken place in her own private home rather than in the white house. There was no cotillion and consequently no favors.

When the ball was opened the interior of the white house was most attractive; never before have the floral decorations been more beautiful.

Miss Roosevelt was the recipient of many floral pieces of beautiful design, sent to her in honor of her "coming out" day.

The president enjoyed the occasion heartily, and mingled freely among the young folks.

DOUBLE RAILWAY WRECK.

Three Trains Piled Up in Wreckage Near Johnstown, Pa.

Johnstown, Pa., Jan. 4.—Three trains were piled up in a wreck just west of "S. Q." tower on the Pennsylvania railroad, about seven miles west of this city. One man was killed and four badly injured, several others sustaining slight injuries. The killed and injured were railroaders.

There were two wrecks. The first was caused by train No. 14, an eastbound mail and express train that carries through passengers from Pittsburg to New York, running into a side track on which was standing an eastbound freight train. The wreckage was piled up high over the tracks and before flagmen could be sent out, Train 1, one of the fastest westbound freights on the Pittsburg division, ran into the wreckage and much of the debris was tumbled down into the Conemaugh river.

It was at first arranged to bring the injured men to the Cambria hospital in this city Saturday morning, but they were taken to a Pittsburg institution.

TURKISH TROOPS MUTINY.

The Commandant of the Garrison and Governor of the Province Flogged.

London, Jan. 4.—The correspondent of the Daily Mail at Cairo says in a dispatch that several hundred half starved Turkish troops mutinied at Bayrout, Syria, last Sunday, and demanded their arrears of pay. They attacked the governor of the province and the commandant of the garrison and flogged them. The mutineers also repulsed the cavalry sent to rescue the officials.

Distribution of Fish and Fish Eggs.

Washington, Jan. 4.—An increase of over 9,000,000 in the fish and fish eggs distributed by the government throughout the country, and a marked decline in lobster fishing are shown in the annual report of United States Commissioner of Fisheries Bowers for the last fiscal year.

Denied Any Attempt at Suicide.

New York, Jan. 4.—John Pinovar, of Middletown, N. Y., arrested on the charge of having attempted suicide in jumping from the Brooklyn bridge recently, was discharged from custody. He denied any attempt at suicide, but left his motive unexplained.

Boy Murderer Sentenced.

Winfield, Kan., Jan. 4.—Clyde Moore, the 17-year-old boy convicted of murder in the second degree for killing C. L. Wiltbergar, a farmer, near here last April, for his money, was sentenced to 20 years in the penitentiary.

THE WAR TO CONTINUE

Gen. Botha Requests the Boers to Keep on Fighting.

Lord Kitchener Accepts the Offer of Five Canadian Nurses and Asks For Scouts to Be Sent with the Contingent.

Johannesburg, Jan. 4.—Gen. Botha has sent a note to all Boer commandoes requesting them to keep on fighting, for the British parliament is to be asked for another war vote, which will induce the British nation to demand that the war in South Africa be stopped.

Pretoria, Jan. 4.—Gen. Dewet has ordered the Boer commandants to retard the work of extending the British block houses at any cost. Further fighting may consequently he expected.

Gen. Bruce Hamilton has captured another Boer laager, and 22 prisoners on the Swaziland border.

Ottawa, Ont., Jan. 4.—Lord Kitchener cabled the governor general of Canada accepting the offer of five Canadian nurses for South Africa. Lord Kitchener asked also that some scouts be sent along with the contingent which is now being organized.

London, Jan. 4.—Lord Roberts has issued an official contradiction of the stories circulated on the continent of the violation of Boer women by the British troops in South Africa, and the employment of Boer female refugees for immoral purposes.

Paris, Jan. 4.—The Courier du Soir publishes another report Friday evening to the effect that the United States is preparing the way for intervention by the powers in South Africa.

WORLD'S SHIP-BUILDING.

Total Number Built During 1900 Was 319 Sailing and 966 Steam Vessels.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The state department has received from Consul Monoghan, at Chemnitz, under date of November 27, a report on the world's ship-building for 1900. The total number of vessels of 100 registered tons and over built during that year, according to German returns, was 319 sailing and 966 steam vessels, with a total tonnage of 2,268,938. England and her colonies head the list of ship-building countries at the close of 1900, with 698 ships, and the United States ranks next with 197, and then follow Germany with 90, France with 65, and Italy with 37.

FRIGHTFUL SUICIDE.

A Bohemian Man Blew Himself to Pieces With Dynamite.

Morris, Ill., Jan. 4.—There was a frightful suicide at Coal City, ten miles southeast of this city. Joseph H. Bovine, a leader among the Bohemians in the coal fields, had trouble with his wife in the morning. He brooded over the matter till afternoon when he went to the village and secured a stick of dynamite. On his return he went back of his barn and, lying on his back, placed the dynamite beneath his vest. With his hands he struck the cap and exploded the dynamite. The explosion tore a great hole in the earth and blew the man's body into countless pieces.

DIED A REAR ADMIRAL.

Capt. Richard P. Leary Appointed a Day Before His Death.

Boston, Jan. 4.—Information from Washington shows that Capt. Richard P. Leary, U. S. N., who died at Chelsea recently, died a rear admiral, without being conscious of the fact. It was a promotion which he had looked for, and it is said to have been the one thing which troubled him in his last moments. The appointment was made the day before he died, but it was only when his brother-in-law, Dr. Fairfax Irwin, returned from his funeral at Annapolis to Chelsea, that the appointment was found.

NEW BATTLESHIP MAINE.

She Will Likely Be Placed In Commission By February 15, 1903.

Washington, Jan. 4.—The new battleship Maine is 78 per cent. completed, according to the report received at the navy department. This is such a rapid advance on the new ship that naval officials are satisfied she can be placed in commission by February 15, 1903, which is the fifth anniversary of the sinking of the former battleship Maine in Havana harbor.

To Invite Roosevelt to Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 4.—President Roosevelt will be invited to visit this city as the guest of the three leading republican clubs of Chicago. This was agreed upon when representatives of the Marquette, Hamilton and Lincoln clubs gathered in the banquet room of the latter and took concerted action.

Elevated Railway for Philadelphia.

New York, Jan. 4.—Plans for a proposed elevated railway for Philadelphia have been practically completed. It is reported that J. Pierpont Morgan will finance the Philadelphia company. Electricity will be the motive power of the road.

Sampson and Long Not Related.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Secretary Long has answered a question asked him by J. W. Flickinger, of Clyde, O., by denying a report that he and Sampson are brothers-in-law. Their nearest ancestors, he adds, are Adam and Eve.

UNITED STATES SENATOR THURSTON,

The Brilliant Statesman from Nebraska, Makes an Important Public Utterance.

INTERIOR OF UNITED STATES SENATE CHAMBER.

Ex-Senator John M. Thurston of Omaha, Nebraska, is one of the most prominent political men in the country. He made the speech nominating President McKinley at the St. Louis convention, and was made permanent Chairman of this convention. He was also made Chairman of the convention that re-nominated President McKinley at Philadelphia. He was recently appointed by President McKinley Chairman of the St. Louis Exposition Commission.

This prominent gentleman recently wrote the following letter to The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio:

Washington, D. C., April 6, 1901.

"I have used Peruna at various times during the past year or two with most satisfactory results.

"It entirely relieved me from an irritating cough—the result of excessive effort in the presidential campaign, and I am a firm believer in its efficacy for any such trouble."—Jno. M. Thurston.

Catarrh has already become a national curse. Its ravages extend from ocean to ocean.

More than one-half of the people are affected by it. It has become such a serious matter that it has passed the boundaries of the medical profession and become a national question. Senators are talking about it; Congressmen are discussing it.

They are not only considering the extent and chronic nature of the disease, but the possibility of finding a national remedy to meet this national calamity.

The catarrh remedy, Peruna, seems to be the main expectation in this direction.

Dr. Hartman, President of the Hartman Sanitarium, devised the remedy, Peruna, over forty years ago, and the remedy as a catarrh cure has been growing in favor steadily all these years.

It stands to-day before the nation as a thoroughly tested, accurately scientific internal remedy for catarrh. There are practically no medicinal rivals in the field.

Peruna is not a local application or temporary relief; it is a permanent cure. Peruna is a systemic remedy. It eradicates catarrh from the system. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures are radical and lasting.

Therefore, Peruna is receiving the indorsement of the leading statesmen and history-makers of the day.

Address the Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for a book of testimonials, containing letters from prominent men and women concerning Peruna.

THE PEOPLE OF MARS.

How Convert to Theory That Planet Is Inhabited—Says Communication Is Impossible.

Prof. Samuel A. Harker, occupying the chair of mathematics and astronomy in the University of Indianapolis, lately gave out a statement that he is a convert to the theories advanced by Sir Robert Ball, Garrett Serviss and others, that the planet Mars is inhabited, and that its people are exceedingly intelligent and enterprising, but it is impossible to communicate with them.

Prof. Harker further says, according to the Cincinnati Enquirer, that "the Martians are a people of stupendous power and wonderful engineering skill. Were it possible to signal them, there is little doubt that they would understand and reply, as they are a race of enormous brain development."

Prof. Harker further adds that in all of the thousands of years of the earth's history its people have not succeeded in changing the face of the planet to any such extent as the people of Mars have changed theirs, but he sees no way of signaling to them. He does not take kindly to the theory advanced by Teala, of electric signals conveyed through the ether, as Prof. Harker believes it an impossibility to develop the requisite energy to transmit the waves so far.

The Home of Kisses.

As many kisses as shots are exchanged on a big field-day with the Russian army. The emperor kisses his officers, the officers kiss each other, men embrace lovingly; old generals kiss; in fact, everybody is kissing and being kissed when the czar reviews his troops. On a public holiday the mistress of the house salutes all her servants, both male and female, with a morning kiss, while her lord and master scarcely enters or leaves the room that day without first bestowing a kiss on the forehead, cheek or hand of his spouse.

The Force of Habit.

An amusing instance of force of habit is reported in England. A lady walking in the country with a brother lately returned from the front was greatly alarmed, not at the sound of blasting from a neighboring quarry, but at her brother's falling flat to the ground at the instant. She, of course, assumed that he had been injured; but it turned out that he had been in the habit, for months, by order, of prostrating himself on the veldt at the sound of a gun. Mechanical obedience of this kind has been effectively utilized in the case of suspected deserters. An abrupt shout of "Halt" brings any man who was lately in the ranks to a sudden standstill.

Cheap Railroad Fare.

India is the land of cheap railway traveling. The returns of the East India railway show that in 12 months 18,500,000 passengers used the line and that of these 17,000,000 traveled third or lowest class. The cost of carrying was one-eighteenth of a penny per mile, and the charge to the passengers was a little more than one farthing. Great as is the difference between the cost of transit by this line and parliamentary or even workmen's rates, the comparison between incomes of the lowest class of passengers in India and Great Britain is still greater. The average monthly income of the former in shillings corresponds with the number of pounds earned by the latter in a like period.

Too Few Women.

One hears so much about "surplus women" that it is rather refreshing to learn of places where there are so few that they are actually clamored for. It is said that in the province of Manitoba there is so small a proportion that the colonists complain that homes are impossible for lack of wives.

Steamer Walla Walla Sank and Many Lives Lost.

The Number of Lost on the Unfortunate Steamship is Placed at 42—One Life Raft is Still Unaccounted For.

San Francisco, Jan. 4.—The collision at sea early Thursday morning between the steamship Walla Walla and an unknown sailing vessel resulted in the sinking of the steamer and the probable loss of at least 20 lives. The Walla Walla, owned by the Pacific Coast Steamship Co., sailed from San Francisco January 1 for Puget Sound ports. She carried 36 first-class passengers, 28 second-class and a crew of 80 men. When off Cape Mendonico on the California coast at 4:20 Thursday morning an iron bark, believed to be French, loomed up in the haze and crashed into the Walla Walla's bow. Then the sailing vessel slid off into the darkness and was seen no more. All the passengers and crew of the Walla Walla, except the few on watch were asleep, but were aroused by the collision. Steerage quarters were in the bow and it is believed that some steerage passengers and crew were crushed to death. A big hole was made in the steamer's bow. She sank in 35 minutes. The officers and crew maintained strict discipline and boats and life rafts were lowered. All who were not killed in the collision got off except Capt. Hall, who went down with his ship. He was picked up later by one of the boats, uninjured, with the exception of a few bruises.

There was a choppy sea running and the small boats could not make a landing on the shore, a few miles distant. They drifted about all day and finally 65 people were picked up by the steamer Dispatch, which took them to Eureka. Another boat under command of Engineer Brown and containing 13 persons attempted to land at Trinidad and was swamped. John Wilkinson, quartermaster; William Martel, fireman; L. Drube, passenger, and three unknown men were drowned. Those in the boat who were saved were Engineer Brown, Fireman John McClellan, Coal Passer Wm. Shinn, Sailor O'Lear, Chief Cook Marshall and passengers Wm. B. Smith and William Moorehouse.

When the Dispatch reached Eureka Friday morning with the survivors tugs were immediately sent out for missing boats. The tug Ranger picked up one containing 11 passengers and three of the crew.

The Walla Walla was valued at about $250,000. She was formerly used as a collier, and about ten years ago was converted into a passenger vessel at a cost of $175,000. The vessel was insured for about $200,000.

San Francisco, Jan. 6.—The French bark Max, which collided with the steamship Walla Walla early Thursday morning, was towed to this city in a badly disabled condition. The Max's bowsprit was carried away and her bow was stove in both above and below the water line. Her water-tight compartments alone were keeping her afloat. Ninety-two survivors of the Walla Walla arrived here Sunday from Eureka on the steamer Pomona. There is still some discrepancy in the list of dead and missing. The number ranges from 37 to 47. This discrepancy is due to the fact that several passengers boarded the vessel just as she was leaving port. Others who were traveling second-class gave assumed names in order to hide their identity. By striking out what reports duplicate the number of lost stands at 42, classed as follows: Known dead, 9; missing, passengers, 13; crew, 20. One life raft is unaccounted for and it is feared all the missing are lost.

Rev. Henry Frickson lost his wife and three children.

VENEZUELAN REVOLUTION.

A Bomb Exploded at the Residence of the Minister of Finance.

Willemstad, Curacao, Jan. 6.—(Via Haytien Cable.)—A report has reached here that Saturday evening a bomb was exploded at the residence at Caracas, of the Venezuelan minister of finance, Tello Mendoza. The explosion wrecked a considerable portion of the house, but no one was injured. The attempt has caused considerable excitement in Caracas.

Gen. Juan Pietri (who has been active in the present revolution against President Castro), and who was arrested Friday at Antimano, was Saturday paraded as a prisoner on the plaza de Bolivar at Caracas. Gen. Pietri is still hostile to Gen. Castro and he is also opposed to Gen. Matos.

Almost all the Venezuelan revolutionists who have lately been here have left this island to join insurgent bodies in Venezuela. Gen. Riera (who left here last Thursday to join insurgent forces on the Venezuelan coast near Vela de Coro and who unexpectedly returned two days later) is still here.

The Chicago Crew Won.

Villefranche, Jan. 4.—The rowing match between the giga of the United States cruiser Chicago, and the United States gunboat Nashville, for a prize of £1,600, distance three miles, was won by the Chicago crew by three lengths.

Cholera in Java.

Tacoma, Wash., Jan. 4.—Col. E. F. Hand, a New York mining engineer, who returned from Java, says that cholera is sweeping away thousands. There were 7,000 deaths in the city of Sourabaya alone during November.

A PRO-BOER MEETING.

Four Thousand People Assembled in the Gray's Armory, Cleveland.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 6.—Four thousand people attended a pro-Boer meeting in the Gray's armory Sunday afternoon. There was enthusiastic receptions and encouragement for the struggling Boers. When the committee in charge of the meeting learned that Hon. Wm. J. Bryan was in the city an invitation was sent to him and the mayor to attend and address the gathering. Both gentlemen accepted and when, towards the close of their speeches, Mr. Bryan and Mr. Johnson entered the hall the whole audience rose en masse and repeatedly shouted the names of "Bryan" and "Johnson" and greeted them with hurrahs and hand-clapping.

The tri-color of the Boer republics was a prominent feature of the armory's decorations and little streamers were tied in the buttonholes of many of the men. Upon the stage were seven native Boers who had been in some of the early conflicts of their countrymen against the english forces. They were driven from the country and are now residing in this city.

The meeting continued for four hours, the principal address being by Hon. John J. Lentz. Rev. August Franz, a local Reformed Lutheran clergyman, also spoke.

A resolution of great length was passed and will be sent to the president of the United States. The resolution calls the attention of the president to the continuance of the war for the past two years and states that it has been characterized, on the part of the British, as a conflict of savagery by the confiscation or destruction of property of inhabitants and non-combatants lying within the zone of war.

HIGH PRICE OF FEEDSTUFFS.

Horses and Milch Cows Killed to Prevent Death By Starvation.

San Antonio, Tex., Jan. 6.—On account of the almost total failure of grass and the high price of feedstuffs in this section, over 100 head of horses and milch cows have been killed in San Antonio during the past 60 days to prevent them from dying from starvation, their owners, who are of the poorer classes, being unable to buy feed for the animals. There has been a drought in this section for 12 months or more and there is no present prospect for an improvement.

THE BRITISH COLONIES.

The United States is Rapidly Increasing Her Trade With Them.

London, Jan. 6.—Statistics just issued, showing that of the total trade with her colonies, Great Britain only possesses 42 per cent. whilst the United States has 12 per cent., and that the latter is rapidly increasing her trade, not only with Canada, but with Australia, causes some disquietude. The Standard, in an editorial, expresses its disappointment in this regard and insists upon the necessity of the country bestirring itself.

HEAD-ON COLLISION.

Three Trainmen Killed and a Number of Freight Cars Destroyed.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 6.—As the result of a head-on collision between two freight trains of the Southern railway early Sunday morning near Rex, Ga., 14 miles from this place, three trainmen were killed and a number of freight cars destroyed by fire. The two trains met on a sharp curve, the derailed cars catching fire. The collision, it is said, was caused by a disregarding of signals by the crew of one of the two trains.

PALO ALTA STOCK FARM.

All the Horses There Will Be Put on the Market.

Palo Alto, Cal., Jan. 6.—Orders have been issued to sell all the horses on the Palo Alto stock farm. Only ten of the most famous brood mares will be retained, Mary Osborn, Beautiful Bells, Monetti Maxena, Wild Flower, Manganata, Rendan, Esther, Lady Ellen and Elaine. The stock farm, which was established in 1877, holds the world's trotting record in 1892, and has produced many of the world's most famous race horses. Two hundred and fifty head will be put on the market.

Dead at the Age of 83 Years.

Frederick, Md., Jan. 6.—Outerbridge Horsey, at one time prominent in democratic politics in this state, died at his home near Petersville, aged 83 years. He was formerly a member of the democratic national committee from Maryland, being succeeded by former Senator A. P. Gorman.

A New Light.

New York, Jan. 6.—It is announced, according to the Herald, that Peter Cooper Hewitt, the grandson of the philanthropist and millionaire, has invented a new light which in some ways revolutionizes illuminating methods.

Will Get His Shield.

New York, Jan. 6.—After service with the rough riders in Cuba and later as first lieutenant of the army in the Philippines, Philip K. Sweet, a detective of the New York police department, has returned to join the force.

The Monitor Terror.

Philadelphia, Jan. 6.—The United States monitor Terror left the League Island navy yard Sunday in tow of the government tug Samoset, for Annapolis. The old monitor will be used there as a training vessel.

AN ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Gen. Bell Now Conducting a Vigorous Warfare in Batangas.

Conditions in the Island of Samar Are Still Unsettled Owing to the Difficulty of Finding the Insurgents.

Manila, Jan. 6.—Gen. J. Franklin Bell is conducting a vigorous campaign in Batangas province. Every available soldier is in the field. The columns under the command of Cols. Wint and Dougherty are doing excellent work and driving the Filipinos in all directions. A number of the latter are fleeing to Tayabas province, where the native constabulary are rendering valuable assistance in capturing men and rifles.

The advocates of peace at Manila deprecate the stern measures employed by Gen. Bell in reply Gen. Bell says the peace advocates have had numerous opportunities to use their influence, as they have been given passes through the American lines almost for the asking, and that it has been afterwards proved that they often only went through the lines for the purpose of assisting the insurrection. Gen. Bell says that the best peace method now is a rigorous warfare until the insurrection is completely subdued.

The arrest of members of the wealthy Lopez family and the confiscation of their steamers and rice, as well as the arrest of three members of the religious corporations, who were known to be instigators of the insurrection, has had an excellent effect upon the natives.

Conditions in the Island of Samar are unsettled owing to the difficulty of finding the insurgents. Capt. Schoeffel, of the 9th infantry, who was wounded in a severe hand-to-hand fight last month at Dandap, Samar island, between 18 men of Company E, of his regiment, and a large force of Solomen, has practically recovered from the effects of his wound. In an official report of the encounter in which Capt. Schoeffel was hurt, it is said that Schoeffel killed three men before he received his wound, and that the remainder of the detachment of the 18 men were saved by his personal courage and daring.

FOUGHT UNDER BRITISH FLAG.

Two Americans Arrive at Halifax, N. S., From South Africa.

Halifax, N. S., Jan. 6.—The British troopship Manhattan arrived Sunday afternoon from Cape Town December 8, via St. Vincent, December 24. On board of the trooper were two Americans who fought under the British flag in South Africa. T. Ryan served two years with the Duke of Edinburgh's Colonian corps. He took part in eight engagements, the most important of which was the relief of Kimberley. His home is in Arizona and he is going to New Orleans. Harry Walsh hails from Cincinnati, O. He served 15 months in Brabant's horse. He is going to New York. The Manhattan will take part of the Canadian mounted rifles to South Africa.

INTENDED FOR HER HUSBAND.

Mrs. Mary L. Wallace Shot and Wounded By Farmer Carl Fisher.

Kansas City, Mo., Jan. 6.—Near Shawnee, Kan., a village ten miles west of here, Carl Fisher, a farmer, shot and probably fatally wounded Mrs. Mary L. Wallace in the presence of her husband, J. H. Wallace, and their two small children. The Wallaces were traveling overland in a covered wagon from Rich Hill to Custer county, Nebraska. They had camped near Fisher's farm and he accused them of stealing corn from his cribs. The shot that struck Mrs. Wallace was intended for her husband. Fisher escaped but was arrested.

Mormons Proselyting in Germany.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—The German Mormon conference has assembled here under the leadership of Hugh J. Cannon, son of the late George Q. Cannon. One hundred and twenty-five Mormon missionaries are now working in Germany and have secured 2,000 followers.

Swedish Captain Drowns.

Antwerp, Jan. 6.—A Swedish captain named Rosaander has been missing since New Year's eve when he left a dinner party in a cab to return to his ship. The retreating tide has now revealed the cab in the river with the horse dead and the drowned body of Capt. Rosaander inside the vehicle.

Veteran Actor Dead.

Baltimore, Jan. 6.—Jos. B. Polk, a veteran actor, died here from a stroke of apoplexy. Mr. Polk made his debut 34 years ago under the management of the late John T. Ford, of this city. His first hit was made with Augustin Daly at Wallack's theater, in New York. He retired from the stage four years ago.

"Young" Corbett Challenged.

Denver, Col., Jan. 6.—"Young" Corbett, the feather-weight champion, who is now in Denver, has received a challenge from Eddie Cook, at one time manager of Jim Jeffries, for a match with George Welty, the Australian bantam.

Scots Grays Ambushed.

Pretoria, Jan. 6.—The Boers ambushed a party of the Scots Grays last Saturday near Bronkorstspruit (about 40 miles east of Pretoria on the railroad.) The British casualties were six men killed and ten wounded.

M'KINLEY MEMORIAL ARCH.

A Bill to Be Introduced in Congress Providing For Its Erection.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The William McKinley Memorial Arch association has drafted the following bill, which will be introduced in congress and supported by a petition signed by the members of the association and also the members of the McKinley National Memorial association, formed to erect a monument in Canton, which the arch association yielded the field of popular subscription:

"Be it enacted, etc.: That the chairman of the joint committee on the library, the secretary of state and the secretary of war be, and are hereby created a commission to select a site and secure plans and designs for a memorial arch in honor of William McKinley, late president of the United States.

"Section 2. That said committee is authorized to select any unoccupied land belonging to the United States, in the District of Columbia, except the grounds of the capitol and the library of congress, on which to erect the said memorial arch.

"Sec. 3. That said commission is authorized and requested to obtain, by any form of competition which may seem advisable, plans, specifications and models for said memorial provided for in section one, and may pay for the same to competing artists not exceeding $25,000, which sum is hereby appropriated out of any money in the treasury not otherwise appropriated. The said commission may select any of the plans, specifications or models that it may prefer or any part of them.

"Sec. 4. That as soon as practicable after the selections authorized by sections 2 and 3 are made, said commission shall report its action to the congress of the United States."

THE BOILER EXPLODED.

Dwelling House in Washington Badly Wrecked—Butler Scalded.

Washington, Jan. 6.—The explosion of a boiler connected with the heating apparatus in the basement of the handsome five-story residence of Mr. Beale R. Howard, at 1410 16th street, Sunday morning seriously damaged the house and may result in loss of life. The shock of the explosion was felt throughout the immediate neighborhood and the house was so badly wrecked as to be unfit for occupancy. William Foggus, the colored butler, who was attending the firea under the boiler at the time of the explosion, was frightfully scalded and badly cut about the hands and face. His condition is critical. A rough estimate of the damage placea it at $10,000 or more.

LOST HER MIND.

Princess Louise, Eccentric Daughter of King Leopold, Hopelessly Insane.

Berlin, Jan. 6.—Princess Louise, the eccentric daughter of King Leopold of Belgium, who was divorced from her husband, Prince Philip, of Saxe-Coburg-Gotha, and who has been held practically a prisoner in retreat near Dresden for the last two years, has been pronounced hopelessly insane. Her daughter, Princess Dorothea, was married to Ernest Genthler, duke of Schleswig-Holstein, brother of the present empress of Germany, and her sister, Princess Stephanie, was the wife of the Archduke Rudolph, of Austris, who committed suicide.

THE BOLL WEEVIL.

Thousands of Bales of Cotton in Texas Destroyed By the Insects.

Galveston, Tex., Jan. 6.—Taking the census figures of production as a basis, it is estimated by the Galveston News from reports of 411 correspondents that the boll weevil destroyed cotton in Texas during the past season as follows: Southwest Texas, 100,000 bales; East Texas, 7,500; Central Texas, 45,000; North Texas, none; coast district, 90,000; total, 242,500 bales. In 1899 and 1900 Texas produced 2,653,555 bales, according to the United States census, of which 1,558,500, or over half, were grown in the counties now infested with weevil.

British Losses in South Africa.

London, Jan. 6.—The total reduction of Great Britain's military forces in South Africa from the beginning of the war to December, including deaths from diseases, men reported missing, etc., amounts to 24,299 men. Of this number 13,430 were actually killed or died. A total of 64,330 men were invalided home, the majority of whom recovered and rejoined their commands.

Lincoln Memorial Day.

New York, Jan. 6.—The American Missionary Association has issued an appeal to the Congregational churches of the country to observe Sunday, February 9, as a memorial of Abraham Lincoln, whose birthday is February 12. The churches, especially their Sabbath schools and endeavor societies, are urged to emphasize Christian patriotism.

One Man Killed and Two Injured.

Bradford, Pa., Jan. 6.—The Pennsylvania Gas Co.'s plant at Ludlow was wrecked Sunday night by an explosion. A. B. Lesher, machinist, was caught in the wreck and burned to death. Engineer Lacy and Frank Goff were seriously burned.

A Call for Rev. J. Ross Stevenson.

New York, Jan. 6.—A meeting of the congregation of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church will be held on the eve of January 15 for the purpose of extending a call to Rev. J. Ross Stevenson, of Chicago.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

OIL WELLS IN KNOX COUNTY.

Twenty-Four Were Drilled During the Past Year, All Good Ones.

Monticello, Ky., Jan. 2.—Twenty-four oil wells have been drilled in Knox county during the past year, and all are good wells. Oil was first found here about 30 years ago. One well was drilled here in 1892, in which a small quantity of oil was found; another was drilled on Stinking creek about three years ago. Twenty-one wells have been drilled since then, and oil has been found in all of them.

On Cumberland river, two miles south of Barbourville, the Tye Bend Oil Co. has two wells. Black oil was struck at 380 feet and green oil at 465 feet. Mr. Young, the Tye Bend driller, says these wells may make from 20 to 100 barrels a day.

The Bluegrass Oil Co., of South Dakota, has drilled four wells on Stinking creek, and has not struck a dry hole yet.

DANGEROUSLY WOUNDED.

A Little Girl Shot By the Young Son of a College President.

Nicholasville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Late Friday afternoon Clarence Hughes, son of J. W. Hughes, president of the Asbury College at Wilmore, dangerously shot Miss Millie Grimes. The girl's mother had done some washing for one of the students, and the daughter was sent to collect the money due. On her way home the girl stopped at an ash heap to collect unburned coal. Hughes was near, and ordered the girl to leave, but not going as rapidly as he thought she should, fired at her twice, the second shot taking effect.

Great Sire May Be Secured There to Take the Place of Esher.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 3.—J. N Camden, Jr., of the Hartford Stud in Woodford county, left Thursday for Europe, where he has gone for the sole purpose of buying a stallion to take the place of imp. Esher, the wonderful successful stallion, recently deceased. Before leaving he stated that he had made a vain search in this country for one that would suit him. Considering the fact that he has unlimited capital at his command a great sire from across the pond may be looked for at any moment.

HAD A PREMONITION.

Prepared Her Burial Garments, Then Peacefully Passed Away.

Whitesburg, Ky., Jan. 4.—After buying and fitting her own burial garments, according to her own fancy, Mrs. Ellen R. Bentley, the wife of a farmer residing south of here, died Thursday night from natural causes, and was buried Friday afternoon.

The woman professed to have a premonition of her death and prepared for it accordingly, though she was in perfect health when she purchased the goods for her burial robe, a few days ago.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—Gov. Beckham issued an order Thursday through Adjt. Gen. Murray to the colonels of the state guard regiments authorizing them to grant discharges to private soldiers except where there is a judgment for dishonorable discharge. This was done to relieve the governor of the large amount of work necessary to pass on the discharges.

Gen. Gentry's Hounds.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 2.—A crowd of 1,500 faced the cold here Wednesday at the trotting track to witness the rabbit races of Gen. W. H. Gentry. The first rabbit turned loose was a large fellow, and ten hounds were put on the chase. He was caught by The Kentucky Colonel, one of Gentry's dogs. Miss Forrester, another member of the Gentry kennel, caught the next.

A Deaf Mute Wedding.

Hodgenville, Ky., Jan. 2.—Mr. Jackson Morrison, of this county, and Miss M. Hovey, of Columbia, Adair county, both deaf mutes, were married at the home of the bride's parents, at the latter place. The attendants were also deaf mutes, and the ceremony was conducted by finger signs. The bridegroom was formerly a newspaper man of Vine Grove, Hardin county.

Kentucky Giant Weds.

Lagrange, Ky., Jan. 4.—A. A. Powell, who is 7 feet 7 inches in height, and known throughout the state as the Kentucky giant, was married Friday to Miss Mattie Kerlin, of this county. She is the daughter of a citizen of Starlight, this county, and her height is 4 feet and 5 inches. Powell is a traveling salesman.

Played With Pistols.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—While Caldwell Curtin, George Read and another boy were playing with a pistol, the weapon was discharged and the ball hit Read in the neck, causing death. Young Curtin was arrested, but will probably be released Saturday.

Obscene Matter Through Mails.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Rose Mary Deppen, daughter of John L. Deppen, a merchant tailor, was arraigned before United States Commissioner Henry Cassan on the charge of sending obscene matter through the mails.

ASSAULTED THREE TIMES.

A Young Man of Petersburg, Ky., Attacked By An Unknown Man.

Petersburg, Ky., Jan. 3.—Burthel A. Pease, a young resident, was assaulted in the vestibule of his parents' home Thursday morning or Wednesday night by an unknown. Thursday evening Pease recovered enough to call upon his affianced, Miss Blanche Green, who lives on upper Pike street, and as he was passing a lonely spot a man stepped out and struck at him with a sand bag. Pease dodged and the weapon struck him across the breast. He pulled a pistol and fired several shots at the fleeing form of the would-be assassin, but missed.

Petersburg, Ky., Jan. 4.—Friday night at 7 o'clock the third and boldest attempt was made on the life of Burthel A. Pease. This time the culprit seeking the life of Pease was found in Pease's home, but made his escape.

SUED FOR TAXES.

Rich Woman Says There Can Be No Taxation Without Representation.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 4.—Mrs. Mary Shreve Ransom, the wealthiest woman in Kentucky, is preparing to resist paying taxes and to sue for all taxes paid in the past ten years. Mrs. Ransom owns property in Chicago, St. Louis, Louisville, Lexington, Covington and Jeffersonville, and pays out about $40,000 a year in taxes. She was divorced from Col. Cuthbert Bullett about ten years ago, and since then has paid her taxes under protest. She says she will sue under the constitutional provision which says there shall be no taxation without representation.

She says Ambassador Joseph Choate, who is a friend of hers, has assured her that a suit based on the grounds she names would certainly be successful.

THE HAWKINS MURDER.

Negro Confesses He Planned It and Axline Committed the Crime.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 2.—Will Mosby, colored, confessed to murdering J. N. Hawkins. The pistol left at Hawkins' side belongs to Mosby, who is a Versailles Negro. He implicates Bert Axline and Jim Ratcliffe, both in jail.

Mosby confessed that he gave Bettie Axline, a young white man, formerly of Nicholasville, the pistol with which Mr. Hawkins was shot, while he and James Ratcliff, a white man from Paris, Ky., were with him. Axline, who was arrested several days ago and was in the Lexington jail, entirely broke down and sobbed as soon as he was taken before the Negro, but denied knowing him.

SUBJECT TO DEPORTATION.

A Lexington Chinese Tea Merchant in Trouble in San Francisco.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 4.—City and government officials here have sent telegrams to the inspector of the Chinese bureau at San Francisco vouching for Ah Ang Woo, a Chinese tea merchant, of this city, held as possibly a subject to deportation under the Gary exclusion act. Woo returned from a visit to his native country about a month ago and has been held as coming under the class of laundrymen. From the nature of telegrams exchanged it is expected that Woo will be allowed to return to this city.

A UNIQUE GIFT.

A Watch Guard Made From the Tanned Skin of a Groundhog.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 3.—Secretary of State C. Brck Hill was made the recipient of a most unique gift Thursday by the democratic committee of Pike county. Representative Lawson brought the gift, and it is a "groundhog" watch guard or chain, being made from the tanned skin of the ordinary ground hog that does so much weather predicting on February 2, and Mr. Hill is proudly wearing its chain, and is in fine humor over the message that came with it.

Has No Capital.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 2.—The Louisville Institute of Christian Science filed articles of incorporation in the office of the secretary of state Wednesday morning. It has no capital stock, and Ione Revenaugh, Dorothy Osgood and N. Ayers Osgood are the incorporators.

Blown to Antoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and Sick Headache. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsners, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue.

Two men were looking over some steel engravings in an uptown shop the other day with a view to purchase. A portrait of Lincoln [illegible] of them this story of Honest Abe, which the narrator says he had from his father:

Lincoln and his Cabinet were in session, but as he had anticipated no discussionsof importance the President left word that he would receive cards. As he supposed, the meeting was wholly social.

While they were gathered about the table a servant brought in two cards, and Lincoln commanded that the callers be admitted. When they appeared he found one to be a tall, spare man, the other one much undersized. After a moment's chat they retired.

"There is a remarkable instance of the providence of the Creator," remarked Lincoln, impressively, as he turned again to his Ministers. "There are two men. God has given one man extraordinarily long legs and the other extraordinarily short legs, yet He has made the legs of each of those men so that they just exactly reach the ground!"

Maybe some men don't tell lies because they know nobody would believe them under any circumstances.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1902. NO. 13.

THIS is fine winter weather.

MAYOR W. H. O'BRIAN, of Lawrenceburg, was elected chairman of the Indiana Democratic State Central Committee, at the committee's meeting in Indianapolis, last Wednesday.

THE opposition to Senator Deboe disappeared before the caucus met, and the Republicans gave him a unanimous endorsement as their candidate for re-election to the United States Senate.

THE opposition to McCreary at Frankfort faded as rapidly as did the Foraker opposition to Hanna in Ohio. The opposition to McCreary, though, was not vindictive like the opposition to Senator Hanna.

SENATOR TOLIN is a member of the following Senate Committees, being chairman of the first named: Railroads and Commerce, Codes of Practice, Criminal Law, Courts of Justice, Education, Judiciary, Reapportioning Legislative Districts.

THE total emigration of Swedes to America during the last fifty years has exceeded 850,000, while about 150,000 Swedes have gone to other countries. Of the emigrants to the United States only five per cent. have returned to their native country.

THAT Senatorial dead-lock did not develop at Frankfort. The caucus that nominated McCreary for United States Senator was more in the nature of a Democratic love-feast than otherwise, and demonstrates how the Democrats of the State "are getting together once more."

SENATOR TOLIN has introduced an act to regulate the operation of telephone companies. The principal point in the bill is that it requires rival companies to provide for connection with the lines of each other, so that the customers of each can secure service over both lines.

THE people down on Woolper, in the Plattsburg neighborhood, are very much dissatisfied with the way in which the iron bridge that use to span the creek at that point, is being neglected. They claim that it ought to be placed across Ashby Fork, near the mouth of that stream.

ONE day last week Gov. Beckham appointed one of this county's ex-County Judges, E. H. Baker, a Justice of the Peace in the First Magisterial District in Kenton county. Judge Baker has had considerable experience both as a Justice of the Peace and as County Judge, and will make his constituents a good official.

A JURY to try Jim Howard on the indictment charging complicity in the Goebel murder was formed Friday and the opening statement for the Commonwealth made. The introduction of the the testimony was begun Saturday. The prosecution expects to rest its case in a week. The jury is composed of nine Democrats, two Republicans and one Populist.

PRESIDENT HAVEMEYER, of the American Refining Company, declares that the Dingley duty of nearly two cents a pound on raw sugar is a "hunger tax" for which no reason now exists. He says that its removal would result in saving $85,000,000 a year to the masses of consumers, and that the farmers who grow beets get no higher price for them now than before the Dingley tax on raw sugar was imposed. There would seem to be a concurrence of good reasons, not counting our big surplus of revenue, for giving Cuba a chance to live.

THE Senatorial contest which the Democratic members of the Legislature disposed of last week aroused no bad party blood. It seems that those who opposed McCreary rather regarded him as entitled to the office, and put up only a half-hearted opposition. It was the easiest won Senatorial nomination that has been placed in Kentucky in many years, which carries with it the greater honor. Mr. McCreary is no stranger in Kentucky politics, and has always been regarded as a clean, conscientious man in both public and private life.

THERE having been repeated complaints to the Fiscal Court charging that in some instances the money collected for road purposes has not been properly expended, that court, at its session last week, evolved a plan by which it is hoped to overcome the trouble. The plan makes the justice of the peace in each magisterial district an inspector of the work done by the overseers of the roads in his district. The full text of the order inaugurating this new departure in road working will be found in this issue in the proceedings of the Fiscal Court.

THE Detroit Free Press says: Democratic boomers should be chopped off short in their efforts to boom men like Schley and Miles for a Presidential candidacy in 1904. Dewey suffered at the hands of this same class of mistaken enthusiasts, and the lesson taught in his case should be heeded by the principals in this latest movement. Regardless of whether Schley has suffered an injustice or Miles has been rebuked with a bitterness beyond his deserts by their misguided friends is a most foolish one. The Presidency of the United States is not a consolation prize. The position is not maintained for the purpose of vindicating a popular favorite or in any other way usurping the functions of the judicary. The interests of the nation cannot be sacrificed for the carrying on of a quarrel, many features of which are so petty as to excite contempt. It would be a base disposition of the high office and a treacherous menace to the permanency of our institutions.

THE Courier Journal's Frankfort correspondent in that paper of the 10th inst., says:

"Mr. McCreary himself to-night after returning to the hotel, gave emphasis to the already well-known fact that Judge John M. Lassing, of Boone county, is in no small measure responsible for Mr. McCreary's success. Judge Lassing was his confidential adviser and right-hand man. Not only in general matters was he Mr. McCreary's principal confident, but he also helped to bring up his congressional district, the Sixth, with a solid McCreary delegation, both in Senate and House."

Every person who was familiar with the superb manner in which the McCreary campaign was conducted, give Judge Lassing credit for the magnificent generalship that culminated in the easy victory for the ex-Governor.

DURING the campaign over in Kenton county, last fall, it was charged that some of the Republican candidates had promised to some of the most prominent bolting Democrats, deputyships they would have at their disposal in case they succeeded. Some of the boys on the firing line objected to that plan of battle, but they were reconciled by being told by those believed to be "on the inside," that the report was a fake—that it was only for electioneering purposes, and no Democrats would be allowed to hold a subordinate position under a Republican official. The election came and some of the candidates who were suspicioned of making the objectionable promises, were elected and sure enough the Democrats were appointed to deputyships, and what are those protesting Republicans now doing but kicking them selves all over the county for permitting the leaders to bamboozle them in such a manner.

THE United States Supreme Court has sustained the judgment of the Kentucky courts in the "long and short haul" cases originating in the Marion Circuit Court, in which the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company was fined for charging more for a short haul on coal to Lebanon than for a longer haul to Louisville. About one hundred similar cases are pending in Marion county against the railroad company. The same court also handed down another decision in which it reversed the decree of the United States District Court of Kentucky restraining the Kentucky Railroad Commission from acting under the McChord railroad law to prevent extortionate rates, and the cases were remanded with instructions to dismiss the bills. The Supreme Court holds that the law is constitutional and that the commission may act under it, but adds that whether the commission's rates, when fixed, can be restrained is a question not arising for discussion on this record.

A dispath from Washington, under date of January 11th, says: "Representative Gooch of Kentucky, narrowly escaped serious injury in a carriage accident this morning. Mr. Gooch drives a pair of high spirited Kentucky thoroughbreds, which he brought with him from his home. He was in his carriage this morning in front of the Bliss Building, which stands on a steep hill leading to the Capitol, when a delivery wagon from the Government Printing Office dashed down the hill. Just as it was about to plunge into the carriage Mr. Gooch's coachman swung his team slightly and pulled the horses back as far as he could, with the result that although the tongue of the carriage was shivered to fragments the horses escaped injury. The driver of the wagon, J. W. Brown was arrested by a policeman. Although trembling from the shock Mr. Gooch's horses made no effort to run away."

The Dairy.

The good dairy cow is not always the fat and sleek one.

Sudden changes in feed will cause the cows to shrink in milk.

Proper feed shows the breed in dairy cows at milking time.

Ice cold water is certain aid in diminishing the flow of milk from a cow.

A tin vessel containing milk is much preferable to crocks or stoneware vessels.

Don't feed the skim milk to the calf sour. Heat milk to about 90 degrees before feeding.

The separator on the farm removes the possibility of rearing a stunted calf on skim milk.

The food for the cows should be of such a nature that no bad taste will be imparted to the milk.

One good dairy cow is superior to three poor cows in the dairy. The difference is in the cost of feed.

Get the milk from the barn into a cool, well-ventilated place as soon as possible after it has been drawn.

Get rid of that idea you have to starve the calf if it makes a good dairy cow. It's a delusion and a snare.

The biennial report of Miss Pauline Helm Hardin, the State Librarian, like that of most other State officials, sets forth the need of new quarters. She says: "We have now on hand such a valuable accumulation of authorities that our library ranks second to none in the South, and this but emphasizes the crying need for more spacious quarters that the books may be properly protected as well as displayed. Year by year the constant growth of the library has necessitated our appropriation space not set aside for that purpose, and in the basement of the Executive Building will be found the acts, journals, documents, etc. that should have a place in the library proper, while all available space in the halls of the legislative building is likewise utilized. Notwithstanding the inconvenience necessarily entailed by cramped quarters, the library is in a better condition than it has been in the history of the State. When complaint was made to the officers they did all they could to remedy the matter, but the loss to the State is more than a pecuniary one." Miss Hardin also urges the imperative need of a reading room for the comfort and convenience of the lawyers.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, and, although 73 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves the Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue; H. L. Eskew's, Walton.

FISCAL COURT.

The fiscal court was in session three days last week, and besides allowing several small claims the following other business was disposed of.

C. C. Roberts allowed $400, his 1901 salary as county judge.

The sheriff was allowed the following delinquents: Poles, 792; dogs 194; bitches, 17.

County Attorney D. E. Castleman reported a collection of, and paid to the sheriff $144 taxes due the county on personal property not assessed.

ROAD ORDER.

"It shall be the duty of each magistrate to superintend the roads of the two precincts he represents, and between the 1st day of December, 1902, and the 10th day of December, the same year, he shall inspect all the roads of his two precincts, and within ten days thereafter he shall report in writing to the county judge a true statement of the condition of the roads in said precincts, and whether or not the overseers therein have performed their duty, and if anyone has failed to perform his duty, who it is and in what respect he has so failed. Before the county judge shall permit any overseer charged with a failure to perform his duty to make a final settlement, he shall hear said magistrate's charges, and the overseer's response thereto, and if found remiss in his duty, shall be charged to the extent thereof. Each magistrate shall receive $3 per day for said services, but shall not charge for more than two days' services. All grading shall be completed by the first day of July, 1902, and all stone shall be placed on the roads not later than the 1st day of December, 1902, and as far as practicable all money coming into the hands of the overseers shall be used for the purpose of placing metal on the roads, and the stone shall be broken and spread by the overseer who hauls it. Grades shall be made smooth and of an even surface, and if scrapers are used the dumps shall be carefully leveled down. The sheriff shall pay to each overseer one-half of the amount due his district not earlier than May 1st, and the remainder not later than July 1st.

COUNTY INFIRMARY CONTRACT.

"Theodore Crigler having been appointed to superintend the county infirmary for the year 1902, accepts said appointment, and his salary is fixed at $250, payable quarterly, on the order of the county judge, which sum shall be the entire amount received by him. All revenues accruing in anywise from the house, farm, orchard, stock or otherwise shall be accounted for strictly by the superintendent and be reported as charges against him at his next quarterly settlement. The superintendent shall look after and keep up the ordinary repairs of the buildings, fences, &c., the county to furnish the expense thereof, except for labor; and the superintendent shall require all inmates, who are able, to assist him in any work about the premises. He shall control all persons admitted to the infirmary, and his wife shall see that the premises is kept orderly and cleanly, and that the inmates properly behave and conduct themselves and he will, also, see that the garden is properly cultivated, the orchard cared for, and the fruit and vegetables preserved, if possible, for winter use. The county shall furnish all seeds and whatever is necessary to maintain and operate the place. He will be required to care for the poultry, hogs and cows (no turkeys to be raised) and these shall be for the exclusive benefit of the infirmary. The superintendent is assigned four rooms on the first floor, and north side of the building, which he will furnish at his own expense and be for his exclusive use. He shall receive no person as an inmate, except on the written order of the county judge; in his absence, the county attorney, and he shall, at all times, in the management of the infirmary, be under the immediate control and supervision of the county judge, whose duty it shall be, to see that these rules and this contract are strictly enforced. The purchase of all supplies shall be under the direction and with the consent of the county judge, and no bill shall be allowed him as a credit without it be accompanied by a proper voucher. At each quarterly session of the fiscal court he shall, in writing, submit his financial report, and also in a book to be furnished him by the county, a record of the name of each inmate, how old, when admitted, when he or she leaves and why, how many days present during the quarter, followed by a statement of the average occupancy for the entire quarter. As far as practicable supplies shall be purchased at a wholesale house. Two horses, owned or to be furnished by the superintendent may be kept on the premises at the expense of the county, and with a vehicle to be furnished by the superintendent, he shall do all the hauling of supplies. He shall do the plowing and furnish the necessary farm implements. The toll on hauling supplies shall be paid by the county. It shall be his duty to bury the inmates, who die while under his charge.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere, of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—Joel Demont, Inwood, Ia. For sale by all Druggists.

Try keeping account with your hogs—just once. Charge them with everything they eat and give them credit for everything they bring in and you will be surprised to see how much better they will pay than any other animal on the farm.

Don't waste corn by feeding it to hogs in the mud. Your hogs will be worth the extra cost of a feeding floor if you will put one in, and you will be the corn ahead that would have gone to waste when you fed on the ground.

NEW TELEPHONE SYSTEM.

Possible to Call Up and Talk From a Car Going at Full Speed.

Muskegon, Mich., Jan. 10.—C. F. Bidwell, of Toledo, O., gave the first practical demonstration here Thursday of a telephone system, the invention of Mr. Bidwell's father, whereby it is possible to call up and talk from an electric car going at full speed with any one who is located in another car on the same line running in any direction and at any distance. The system is applicable to either steam or electric roads. The overhead trolley is used for one side of the circuit and for the other a second wire is strung parallel with the stationary trolley. The metal trolley pole of the car is attached to a second pole which operates on the additional wire by means of a flanged wheel. A closed circuit is thus obtained. Telephone wires are attached to each of the two trolley poles which lead to the telephone in the car. The heavy voltage required to operate the electric cars is reduced to that used for telephone service by a special invention. Ordinary telephones were used in Thursday's tests.

COALITION AGAINST COLOMBIA.

Four Presidents of Central America to Attend a Conference.

Colon, Colombia, Jan. 10.—Gen. THE DIPLOMATIC CORPS.

The Members Dined By the President and Mrs. Roosevelt.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The dinner to the diplomatic corps was given by President and Mrs. Roosevelt Thursday night. The table was set in the east room, used for the first time for a purpose of this kind, and covers were laid for 85 persons—the largest number ever entertained at dinner at one time in the white house. The immense double T-shaped table was set off with immense plaques of pink begonias in maiden-hair fern and towering bunches of white roses in crystal vases. Silver candle-sticks with pink shades adorned the table. The president sat at the center of the table with Lady Pauncefote on his right and Senora De Azpiroz on his left. Directly opposite the president sat Mrs. Roosevelt with the British ambassador on her right and the German ambassador on her left.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY DAY

Evidence That It Will Be Observed All Over the Union.

Suggested That the Birthday of the Late Martyred President Be Made a Legal Holiday Throughout the Country.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 11.—There is every evidence that McKinley day, January 29, will be remembered in every state and territory of the union. Information received at the national headquarters of the McKinley Memorial association is that the several governors are earnestly in sympathy with the proposal made by Gov. Nash and Judge Day to set apart by proclamation McKinley's birthday as a day of offering to the memorial fund.

In Youngstown the employes of the Ohio branch of the United States steel corporation are responding to the request from the national committee in charge of the subscription, and before all of the subscriptions are in the fund raised in the works will be considerably over $1,000 and may be $1,500.

New York, Jan. 11.—A meeting of the advisory committee of the McKinley Memorial association was held Friday. All the various trades committees reported satisfactory progress. Ex-Secretary Cornelius N. Bliss, chairman of the state executive committee, expressed the commitee's thanks for the interest taken in the work by the various committees.

A resolution recommending that President McKinley's birthday be made a legal holiday throughout the United States has been adopted at a meeting of the patriot republicans of this city.

STATEHOOD BILLS.

The House Committee Fixed January 23 For Hearings.

Washington, Jan. 11.—The house committee on territories Friday fixed the 23d instant for hearings on the Oklahoma statehood bill; the 31st for the Arizona statehood bill, and February 7 for the New Mexico statehood bill.

The bill to create the territory of Jefferson out of the Indian territory was referred to a sub-committee headed by Mr. Knox, of Massachusetts, and including Mr. Flynn, the delegate from Oklahoma.

THE ORDER MODIFIED.

The Transfer Tax on the Cornelius Vanderbilt Estate Reduced.

New York, Jan. 11.—The appellate division of the supreme court has handed down a decision modifying the order of the surrogate fixing the amount of the transfer tax on the estate of Cornelius Vanderbilt. Under the decision the bequests to charitable institutions, made in the will, must be taxed and the legacy tax, under the law of 1898, must be deducted from the total assessed value of the estate. The estate transfer tax amounts to more than $300,000.

BOILER EXPLOSION.

Three Persons Killed and a Number More or Less Injured.

Huntington, W. Va., Jan. 11.—A boiler exploded at the lumber mills of Lewis Midkiff, in the southern part of this county. Three persons were killed and a number injured. The dead are: Lewis Midkiff, of Pomeroy, O.; Burt Trippett and Benjamin Messenger, of Saltrock, W. Va. Among the more seriously injured are: Hiram Harvey, of Lincoln county, and William Albert and Frank Bills, brothers, of Cabell county.

EX-PRESIDENT CLEVELAND.

He Is Convalescing and Has Arranged For a Hunting Trip.

New York, Jan. 11.—Former President Grover Cleveland is so far recovered from the effects of his recent attack of pneumonia as to have arranged for a hunting trip in the south. He will leave his home at Princeton, N. J., January 22 for an island off the coast of South Carolina where, with a party of friends, he will remain several days.

New York, Jan. 11.—Robert Fitzsimmons, pugilist, is indignant because a Brooklyn woman has had her name changed to avoid her children being mistaken through a similarity in names for the progeny of a prize ring star.

Wealthiest Man in Germany.

Berlin, Jan. 11.—The richest man in Germany is Herr Krupp. According to the income tax returns he has an income of between 20,000,000 and 21,000,000 marks a year. No one approaches him in wealth.

ADM. SCHLEY IN SAVANNAH.

As He Alighted From the Train the Cheering Was Deafening.

Savannah, Ga., Jan. 11.—Rr. Adm. W. S. Schley, accompanied by Mrs. Schley, arrived in this city Friday afternoon.

The railroad station was thronged with people who waited patiently to greet the admiral, and as he alighted the cheering was deafening. Mayor Meyers and a delegation of aldermen extended the admiral a cordial official welcome and asked his consent for a formal reception Saturday afternoon at the city hall. The admiral agreed. Carriages were then taken for the residence of Gen. W. W. Gordon where Adm. and Mrs. Schley will visit for ten days. Gen. Gordon was a member of the Porto Rican commission of which Adm. Schley was a member.

In the evening Adm. and Mrs. Schley occupied a box at the theater where Mme. Lillian Nordica sang. As the audience recognized the distinguished visitor there was enthusiastic cheering of such volume and persistence as to temporarily delay the performance. After an encore Mme. Nordica crossed to the box and shook hands with Adm. Schley, while the audience stood and cheered. Upon the conclusion of the evening's bill, apparently the whole audience waited at the door and cheered the admiral as he entered his carriage and drove away.

SPECIAL DELIVERY LETTERS.

Post Office Department's New Scheme For Quicker Dispatch.

Washington, Jan. 11.—In connection with efforts the post office department is making to expedite the delivery of mails in cities a new scheme for quicker dispatch of special delivery letters is under consideration by Assistant Postmaster General Shellenberger. This contemplates attaching a supplemental letter box to the regular letter boxes on the streets with a view to depositing therein only the special delivery letters. This will be of much benefit to sections of cities remote from the post office as special delivery messengers would make rapid rounds of these special delivery boxes at frequent intervals, transferring the letters erroneously deposited to the regular boxes and carrying the special deliveries to the post office for postmarking and then delivering immediately to the addressees.

WIRE AND WIRE NAILS.

The Principal Manufacturers Will Meet in Pittsburg Tuesday.

Marion, Ind., Jan. 11.—Gas belt iron and steel men were notified that arrangements have been made for a meeting of the principal companies manufacturing wire and wire nails, at Pittsburg next Tuesday, at which it is probable that an arbitrary price association will be formed for the purpose of controlling the prices of wire and wire nails. The association, if formed, will be very similar to the steel rail and steel plate pools. It will include about a dozen concerns, the largest of which, it is said, will be the American Steel and Wire Co. of the United States steel corporation.

FAMILY PERISHED.

Henry Pearlstein, Wife and Five Children Lost Their Lives in a Burning Building.

ALL MEANS OF ESCAPE CUT OFF

The Landlord and His Brother-in-Law Arrested on Suspicion of Firing the Structure.

He Carried An Insurance of $9,000 on the Building and Contents—Another Family Had a Very Narrow Escape.

Buffalo, Jan. 13.—Henry P. Pearlstein, his wife and five children, ranging in age from 1½ to 12 years, were burned to death early Sunday in a fire that destroyed a two-story frame building. Joseph Supowski, who owned the building, and Karl Bracki, his brother-in-law, have been arrested pending an investigation. Supowski carried an insurance of $9,000 on the building and its contents.

The Pearlsteins and another family lived in rooms above a shoe store, and were asleep when the fire started. Supowski told the police Sunday that he accidentally dropped a lamp. A few minutes after the fire began there was a loud explosion that blew out the front of the store and hurled some of the contents of the windows into the middle of the street. Plate glass windows on the opposite side of Broadway were shattered and the report of the explosion was heard two blocks away. The flames enveloped the building in a short time. The family living in the rear flat barely escaped with their lives. The Pearlsteins were awakened, but before they could reach the only stairway leading from their rooms the fire had undermined the floor in the hallway and it collapsed, carrying them down into a mass of flames. Their charred bodies were found at 8 o'clock, four hours after the firemen had extinguished the flames. The body of the mother and babe were found together, the little one tightly clasped in its mother's arms. Pearlstein's body was found close to that of his wife. He also held one of the children in his arms. The bodies of the other three children were found huddled together close to the father's body.

A PRO-BOER MEETING.

President Roosevelt Petitioned to Observe the Neutrality Law.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—The Chicago branch of the American Transvaal league held a meeting here Sunday night and adopted a petition calling upon President Roosevelt to enforce the neutrality laws. A large number of signatures of prominent men, judges, lawyers and others, was obtained. The petition is in the form of an argument and sets forth that the United States is conceded to be a neutral nation in the war between Great Britain and the South African republic. It is contended that if the augmentation of Great Britain's military supplies from the port of New Orleans was stopped, the South African war would come to a speedy end. It is urged that horses and mules destined for use in military operations are within the meaning of the term "military supplies," as used in the treaty of Washington. The president is, therefore, called upon to strictly enforce Article VI. of that treaty.

WILL VISIT THE CZAR.

President Loubet Will Start For St. Petersburg in the Spring.

Paris, Jan. 13.—According to La Presse, the battleship Massena is outfitting at Brest to take President Loubet to St. Petersburg to return the visit of the Russian czar to France. La Presse says the Massena will sail at the end of March or the beginning of April, escorted by three cruisers, and that she will remain at St. Petersburg three days, returning before general elections.

THE EIGHT HOUR LAW.

The Supreme Court of Kansas Sustains It In a Decision.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 13.—The state supreme court has handed down a decision sustaining the eight hour law. The decision was by Justice Smith and was in the case of W. W. Atkin, of Kansas City, Kan., who, in filling a street paving contract for the city, had worked his men more than eight hours a day. He was convicted in the district court of violating the law and appealed.

monthly periods for it meant a couple of days in bed in awful agony. I finally made up my mind that the good doctors were guessing; and hearing from different friends such good reports of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I tried that. I bless the day I did, for it was the dawning of a new life for me. I used five bottles before I was cured, but when they were taken I was a well woman once more. Your Compound is certainly wonderful. Several of my friends have used it since, and nothing but the best do I ever hear from its use."—Yours, MABELLE L. WAS A SUCCESS.

The Military Expedition to Loboo, Province of Batangas, Has Accomplished Much.

BARRACKS AND TOWNS WRECKED

A Large Amount of Rations Destroyed and Many Insurgents Were Captured or Surrendered.

The Native Constabulary in the Province of Misamis, Northern Mindanao, Fully Able to Control the Situation.

Manila, Jan. 13.—The news received from Batangas province is cheerful. The expedition to Loboo, in Batangas, has been a complete success. The columns under Cols. Wint and Wells have destroyed a large number of barracks and hamlets and enough rations to keep 20,000 Filipinos for six months. There was not a single American casualty during the entire expedition. The enemy fled before the Americans, many of them were killed and several surrendered.

Maj. Henry Allen, formerly governor of Island of Leyte, and now chief of the insular constabulary, who has been making a tour of inspection through the islands of Leyte and Mindanao, has returned to Manila, and reports that the native constabulary is fully able to control the situation in the province of Misamis, in Northern Mindanao, where he thinks the situation has been much exaggerated.

Previous reports concerning this province caused Gens. Davis and Wade to request that it be returned from civil to military control.

With the exception of the church, the entire town of Quinque, in Bultican province, Luzon, has burned to the ground, thousands of Filipinos losing their homes.

Medical authorities here assert that a considerable portion of the breaking down among American residents of the Philippine islands is due to homesickness. The newspapers of Manila are urging the United States Philippine commission to make an appropriation for a daily cable news service from the United States, thus bringing Americans here into closer touch with their home life.

A majority of the local papers, several army officers, civil officials, and others have promised subscriptions to help meet the cable tolls for a three months news service of a hundred words a day. It is hoped that the news service can be inaugurated January 15. It will be devoted to American news exclusively. The government has offered to send news bulletins free to all points on the military wires.

THE TUNNEL ACCIDENT.

The List of Dead Swelled to Seventeen on Sunday.

New York, Jan. 13.—The death list caused by the New York Central tunnel accident was Sunday swelled to 17. Winfield Slutze, who had submitted to the amputation of one of his legs died Sunday at Flower hospital. He lived at New Rochelle.

Richard Molineux, another New Rochelle man, who is at the same hospital, is reported to be in a precarious condition.

The other patients are progressing favorably.

THE BELL COMBINATION.

Michigan Telephone Co. and Other Concerns Passes Into Its Control.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 13.—The Michigan Telephone Co., with the other telephone concerns controlled by the Erie, has formally passed into the control of the big Bell combination, known as the American Telegraph and Telephone Co. It is announced that the scheme or reorganization of the Erie has been carried through by means of which the $9,000,000 of indebtedness which has been carried along for a year will be wiped out.

Yokohama, Jan. 13.—A fire in a wooden house here resulted in the death of 12 persons and the severe burning of 20 more.

THE SYNDICATE CREDITORS.

Large Majority of Them Were In Session All Day Sunday.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 13.—A large majority in amount of the creditors of the Federal Telephone Co., owned and controlled by the Everett-Moore syndicate were in session all day here Sunday. A large part of the conference was taken up in discussing various proposals for the purchase of the entire properties.

Creditors have expressed a desire to stand by the syndicate and, if possible, assist them in keeping the property under their control. They favor the depositing of all stocks and bonds of the constituent companies owned by the Federal Telephone Co. in some big trust company to be used as collateral securities for a new issue of bonds, the bonds to be accepted as payment for the claims held by the creditors, and thus enable the syndicate to go on with the operation of the company and keep it under its control. If the plan goes through it will furnish ready money to finish uncompleted plants, principally at Detroit and Dayton. The bankers' committee has had one bona fide offer for the sale of the entire federal system, but no offer coming from the Bell Telephone Co., it is said, whose representatives are said to be watching the outcome of the matter. It is said that the committee will not consider this offer. Tentative offers have been made by Judge Thomas, of New York, representing C. W. Morse, also of New York. An offer from John R. McLean, of Cincinnati, has also been received. None of these deals can go through until the plans of the bankers' committee become operative. In addition, it is positively stated that there is now no chance for the sale of the properties at an upset price.

M'KINLEY MEMORIAL FUND.

Ten Thousand Dollars Contributed By the Workingmen of Homestead.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 13.—Ten thousand dollars was contributed to the national fund for a McKinley memorial by the workingmen of Homestead. It was one of the largest amounts for this purpose that has been raised in Western Pennsylvania and the amount, together with the names of those who donated to the cause, will be forwarded to the headquarters of the McKinley memorial commission in Washington early this week.

The majority of the workimen gave a half day's pay, from the lowest laborer to the heads of departments. There were a few, however, who gave nothing.

WOMAN'S MYSTERIOUS DEATH.

Mrs. Lena Christel, Aged 70, Roasted to Death in Her Room.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 13.—Mrs. Lena Christel, aged 70, was literally roasted to death. Her charred and lifeless body was found in her room by a policeman who had seen smoke coming from the place. The woman's death is mysterious, and Martin Christel, her son, is in jail to await an investigation. Her body was found some distance from the bed where she had been lying sick and there were evidences of a terrible struggle.

A Remedy For Surra.

Manila, Jan. 12.—Veterinary authorities believe they have found a remedy for surra (an East Indian malarial disease of horses), which is increasing here and of which many animals die daily. The injection of a solution of arsenic into the veins of the affected animals has proven beneficial, as it kills the parasites of the disease.

CRUSHED TO DEATH

Collision Between Passenger and Freight Trains Near Rome, Ga., on the Southern.

ONE ENGINEER INSTANTLY KILLED

Mme. Lillian Nordica, Her Accompanist and Three Railroad Employes Were Slightly Injured.

Both the Locomotives Were Badly Wrecked, the Train Took Fire and a Dozen Cars Were Destroyed.

Rome, Ga., Jan. 13.—As a result of a collision between a passenger and a freight on the Southern railway at an early hour Sunday morning near Reeves Station, 20 miles north of Rome, Mme. Lillian Nordica, the singer, was injured, her accompanist, E. Romaine Simmons, sustained a bruise on hand, an engineer was killed and three other employes of the road were injured.

The train to which Mme. Nordica's private car, the Brunhilde, was attached was a mixed passenger and freight, and left Atlanta at 11:30 Saturday night for Chattanooga. It arrived at Reeves Station at 3:30 Sunday morning, where it had orders to meet freight No. 55. A freight train, which proved to be an extra, was on the siding at Reeves when the passenger arrived and the engineer of the passenger evidently assuming that it was No. 55, did not stop, but continued his run towards Chattanooga.

A mile north of Reeves, while going at a rapid rate, the passenger met the freight on a sharp curve. The two engines crashed into each other and Engineer Tracey in attempting to jump, was caught between the two locomotives and crushed to death.

Mme. Nordica's car was attached to the rear of the passenger train. She was on her way to Nashville, where she is booked to fill an engagement Monday night. When the collision occurred Mme. Nordica was asleep. The sudden jar threw the diva from her bed to the floor. It is understood that she sustained a badly bruised shoulder and the muscles of her neck are said to have been strained. Dr. Garlington, the Southern railway's surgeon, stated Sunday night that Mme. Nordica was not badly hurt, and that he thought she would be able to fill her engagement Monday night. Mr. Simmons, her accompanist, sustained injuries to his right hand.

Both engines were badly wrecked and 12 cars, it is said, were burned. The engineer and fireman of the freight escaped by jumping, but both were badly bruised.

MASON AND DIXON LINE.

The Surveyors Are at Work to Correct the Original Boundary.

Hanover, Pa., Jan. 13.—The surveyors employed jointly by the states of Pennsylvania and Maryland to correct the boundary line as first established by Mason and Dixon, have proceeded with their work as far as Germany township, Adams county, Pennsylvania. They report that many of the stones are displaced. The surveyors found one used as a door sill in a dwelling, another in a church, others lying down and some at a considerable distance from the original places. All these stones will be secured and re-set in their proper places.

REAR END COLLISION.

Two Trainmen Seriously, and Perhaps Fatally, Injured.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—A fast Pennsylvania passenger train from New York crashed into the rear of another express from Cincinnati on the same system Sunday night at the Baltimore & Ohio crossing, near 49th street and Wentworth avenue. Two men, both train attaches, were seriously and perhaps fatally injured, and although the passengers on both trains were severely shaken up, no serious injuries were suffered.

Died After An Operation.

Injuries Proved Fatal.

Folkstone, Jan. 13.—Hon. Richard Reid Dobell, Canadian minister without portfolio, was thrown from his horse near here Saturday and is dead.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 7.—Senate—The senate met Monday after a recess of more than two weeks, but no business was transacted owing to the recent death of Senator William J. Sewell (N. J.). In his invocation at the opening of the session, the chaplain, Rev. William Milburn, made touching reference to the death of Senator Sewell. He referred also to the disability of Senator Berry (Ark.) and prayed that he might be able to soon attend to his duty in the senate. Mr. Keane (N. J.) formally announced the death of Mr. Sewell and offered the customary resolutions expressive of the sorrow of the senate, and providing for an immediate adjournment out of respect.

House—The house transacted no business Monday. Immediately after it met Mr. Loudenslager (N. J.) announced the death of Senator Sewell, and after the adoption of the customary resolutions, the house, as a further mark of respect, adjourned until Tuesday. A bill to re-establish the army canteen was introduced by Representative Kern (Ill.).

Washington, Jan. 8.—Senate—The first notes of the contest between the Nicaragua and Panama routes for the Isthmian canal were heard Tuesday. Mr. Morgan offered and secured the adoption of a resolution which indicated his purpose to have the committee on inter-oceanic canals inquire into the relations alleged to exist between the trans-continental railroad companies of the United States and Canada and the Panama Canal Co. Among the bills introduced were: Providing for erection of a post office building in New York, and appropriating $2,500,000 towards this purpose; requiring that contractors carrying the mails of the United States shall be able to read the English language; increasing pension ratings received while in the line of duty; authorizing the carrying of sealed packages through the mails at the rate of one cent an ounce; appropriating $3,000,000 for the erection of a building to be located on Jackson place in the city of Washington and to be used jointly by the state department and the department of justice; for a memorial arch in honor of the late President McKinley.

House—The debate on the Nicaraguan bill in the house was opened in lively fashion Tuesday by Mr. Hepburn, chairman of the inter-state and foreign commerce commission, which reported the bill. Bills introduced. Repealing all of the inheritance taxes under the war revenue act; to amend the war revenue act by striking out the stamp tax on bills of lading, manifests, etc.; permitting crude petroleum and other oils to be transported from one port to another of the United States in vessels other than those belonging to the United States.

Washington, Jan. 9.—During consideration of private pension legislation some important statements were made by Mr. Gallinger, chairman of the committee to govern it in consideration of private pension bills. He announced that none but absolutely meritorious cases would be presented to the senate for its consideration and that the closest scrutiny would be given by the committee to every bill introduced. He said that no pension exceeding $50 a month would be recommended by the committee for the widow of a general officer, and that pensions for the widows of other officers would be scaled down proportionately.

House.—The debate on the Nicaraguan canal bill developed sentiment in favor of giving consideration to the recent offer of the Panama Co. to sell its franchises and property for $40,000,000. The following bills were introduced: For the payment of pensions monthly instead of quarterly, as at present; for an international board of engineers from Mexico and the United States to adopt plans for irrigating the Rio Grande valley; creating a fifth assistant postmaster general. It gives the new assistant charge of the free delivery system, rural and city, and fixed his salary at $4,000 annually; appropriating $17,000 for the officers and men of the army who suffered loss in the Galveston cyclone in September, 1900.

Washington, Jan. 10.—Senate.—The open session of the senate Thursday was devoted to routine business. After an executive session the senate at 1:50 adjourned until Monday.

House—The Hepburn Nicaraguan canal bill passed the house late Thursday afternoon by practically a unanimous vote. Only two members out of 310 voted against it. Messrs. Fletcher (rep., Minn.) and Lassiter (dem., W. Va.), were the two voting in the negative. The opposition to committing the government to the Nicaraguan route attempted to secure amendments to lodge with the president the discretionary power to purchase and complete the Panama canal, if it could be purchased for $40,000,000. The test came on the first vote when the advocates of an alternative route polled the vote against 170 votes.

Washington, Jan. 11.—House—The house spent Friday considering the Hopkins bill to create a permanent census bureau. Bills introduced: Continuing in force all laws prohibiting the coming of Chinese; providing a salary for ex-presidents of the United States at the rate of $25,000 annually, from the date of retirement from the presidency. The bill is to apply to any ex-president living at the time the law is enacted. A bill was passed unanimously to give Mrs. McKinley the free mailing privileges during the remainder of her life. The house then adjourned until Monday.

The Schley Resolutions.

Washington, Jan. 11.—Congressman Watson, of the subcommittee of naval affairs, declared that the committee will take no action whatever on any of the Schley resolutions pending.

International Chess Match.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 10.—President C. T. Rice, of the Harvard chess club, mailed a challenge on behalf of the chess clubs of Yale, Harvard, Columbia and Princeton, for the fourth international chess match to the presidents of Oxford and Cambride chess clubs of England.

Confirmed By the Senate.

Washington, Jan. 10.—The nominations of Gov. Shaw as secretary of the treasury and Mr. Payne as postmaster general were confirmed by the senate Thursday.

STATE NEWS ITEMS.

THE LEGISLATURE.

Gerald T. Finn Speaker of House and N. W. Utley President of Senate.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 8.—The general assembly of Kentucky convened in regular biennial session at noon Tuesday. Both the state senate and house of representatives are democratic by large majorities and were organized with democratic officials. Nothing unusual marked the opening of either house. Gerald T. Finn, of Simpson county, was installed as speaker of the house, and N. W. Utley as president of the senate and acting lieutenant governor of state. Immediately following the organization and swearing in of the officials, committees from both branches waited on Gov. Beckham and notified him that they were ready to receive his biennial message. The governor transmitted it through Private Secretary Leigh, and, after a recess at noon, it was read by the clerks.

Both houses adjourned until noon Wednesday.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9.—Senator Hickman introduced a bill in the senate Wednesday which will stir up the school book lobby. It is modeled after the Chinn school book measure, which was defeated four years ago, and provides for a school book commission which shall make contracts for text books. Senator Carroll introduced a bill creating a state board of charities, to be composed of three members, whose salaries shall be $3,500 per annum. This bill is the one recommended by Gov. Beckham in his message.

The following bills were introduced: The custodian of public buildings shall be elected by the board of sinking fund commissioners; creating and establishing a board of commissioners known as the Kentucky state board of charity, and defining the duties; providing that in an emergency a country judge may have surveyed and built a temporary road or passway, where the old one has been washed out; establishing a free library commission, which shall assist in establishing free libraries in any community so desiring.

The house transacted no business.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 10.—The senate met at 11 o'clock Thursday. On a call for the introduction of new bills the following were offered: Providing for the appointment of a boiler and engine inspector by the governor; appropriation of $100,000 for the creditable exhibit of Kentucky at the Louisiana purchase Exposition; to enact Section 1599 of the Kentucky statutes, increasing the compensation of elisors in counties where the office of sheriff is vacant; providing appointment by the county court in counties approaching 75,000 population of an official indexer to receive $300 a year; providing that in cities of the second class real property be assessed only once in four years and personal property annually; for the better enforcement of the act providing for the taking of a vote on the sale of liquor, amending Section 4 of local option law so as to crush out "blind tigers."

In the house a joint resolution was offered that the general assembly give all due credit to Adm. W. S. Schley for the victory of Santiago, and extend to him an invitation when he visits Louisville to come here and address the general assembly. Another joint resolution was offered requesting congress to remove all taxes from tobacco.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 11.—The state senate met at 10:30 o'clock Friday. Senator Nat Howard introduced a bill to take the place of the present Kentucky law as to negotiable instruments. It is a copy of the law now in force in 16 states, and is to carry out the idea of lawyers everywhere that a uniform law on this subject should be established. The senate at 12:30 o'clock adjourned until noon Monday.

Senator Taylor, of Franklin, offered a bill providing that distillers may have ten days from the 1st of January, May and September to report withdrawals of whisky to the state auditor and may omit the serial numbers of barrels. A resolution similar to that adopted by the lower house inviting the white ministers of the capital to open the sessions with prayer was adopted by the senate. Senator McNutt, of Louisville, presented a bill to change the present law giving the general council of that city the power of electing a city attorney and fixing his salary to appointment by the mayor at an annual salary of $5,000 and two assistants at $2,500 each. Senator Tolin, of Boone, offered a bill requiring all telephone lines to plug together at least one place in each town and city in the state.

The house session was brief. Representative Rogers, of Christian, offered a resolution that the house drop politics and get down to business. It was withdrawn after some discussion, and the house adjourned until noon Monday.

Their Cases Went Over.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 10.—Bert Axline, Jim Ratcliffe and Will Mosby, charged with the murder of Jesse N. Hawkins, were brought before Judge F. A. Bullock for preliminary examination, but their cases went over until Tuesday next.

Judge Toney May Not Resign.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 10.—Judge Sterling B. Toney, of the law and equity division of the circuit court, returned from Denver Thursday and said he had not yet decided to resign and go to Denver to practice law.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Abstract of the State Paper Sent By Gov. Beckham to the Legislature.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 7.—Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

You are to be congratulated that the conditions under which you have assembled are so propitious and that all indications give promise of a most successful session of your honorable body. The dark cloud of internal dissensions that hung over us two years ago in the unhappy differences then existing has disappeared and given way to the sunshine of a better and more rational feeling. The unfortunate bitterness of that period, caused by the extraordinary political conditions, is fast disappearing, and our people now fully realize the superior advantages of diverting their time and attention to the industrial progress of the state rather than to the activities of heated political controversies and contests. Notwithstanding the many misrepresentations and slanders uttered by writers concerning the conditions of the state and the frequent publication of false and injurious articles in sensational journals, whose regard for truth is subordinate for their desire for notoriety, it is nevertheless a fact that the supremacy of the law is as fully found in any state in the Union. We have suffered much by these false and exaggerated reports, but it is now handily within our power to give absolute assurance to all that a condition of peace and a respect for law exists from one end of the state to the other.

Referring to the finances of the state, the governor advises remedial legislation to secure a retrenchment in expenses and a more economical disposition of the revenues of the state so as to avoid the necessity of increasing the taxation for the purpose of state government. The present rate for this purpose is 47 1-2 cents on $100. During the past two years, he says, the present administration has been running a 5 cents per $100 reduction in revenues, amounting to a difference of $346,347.22 in 1900 and $356,-983.90 in 1901. These reductions have been made necessary by the act of the special session of the general assembly in 1897 in borrowing $500,000 and raising the rate of taxation and a subsequent return to the present rate.

Kentucky, he says, is not embarrassed by a large debt. The amount of bonded indebtness January 1, 1902, was $500,000 in 4 per cent bonds maturing in 1906, and $500,000 in 4 per cent coupon bonds maturing in 1907. Old bonds of the state outstanding amount to $6,250. But they are supposed to be lost and will never be presented for redemption. The total educational bonds amount to $2,467,586.85.

There was a cash balance in the treasury January 1, 1902, of $1,643,903.

The governor refers to the vast sum, $728,638.37, which was expended last year for charitable purposes, and he advises a thorough investigation, "to see whether or not all this money is necessarily expended." He continues that it is his belief that by wise and discreet actions a large amount of this money can be saved by the state without any injustice to the worthy object of the state's charity.

The asylum for the insane at Lexington, Lakeland and Hopkinsville are in condition that needs the attention of the legislature to provide for their need. He also recommends a complete change in the present system of management in these institutions, which he declares to be skewed, unsatisfactory and expensive. He advises the creation of a board of control to take charge of these institutions.

He further advises that the educational institutions in Kentucky be fostered and encouraged to the utmost ability of the legislature to do so.

As to the public buildings at the capital city, he said they are unsightly and are incongruous and are unworthy of the state of Kentucky, as well as inadequate for the transaction of public business, and he recommends a new capitol building and other facilities which will place valuable records of the state in more safe custody.

He also recommends that foreign corporations doing business in the state should be required to pay tax, first, as a matter of equity to home corporations, and secondly as a matter of fairness and justice.

In conclusion the governor refers to the Louisiana Purchase exposition, which is to be held in St. Louis in 1903, and advises appropriate legislation that the state may be fitly represented.

THE HOWARD CASE.

Judge Cantrill Overruled a Motion For a Continuance.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9.—Judge Cantrill Wednesday afternoon overruled the motion for a continuance in the case of Jim Howard, charged with complicity in the Goebel murder.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 10.—Upon the call for motions in the Franklin circuit court Thursday morning Commonwealth Attorney Franklin asked for a subpena for the circuit clerk of Scott county and also that he bring with him all the maps, charts, etc., relating to the Goebel killing, used in the Caleb Powers trial. Judge Gordon, for the defense, in the Howard case, which is now being tried, asked for a subpena for the secretary of the Goebel reward commission and that he furnish a statement as to the amount of the reward expended and to whom paid.

The venire of jurymen was then called. The first four men examined were accepted as jurors. J. C. McDaniel, the fifth man called, had formed an opinion and was dismissed.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 11.—The jury in the Howard trial was completed Friday afternoon and Judge Ben Williams, for the prosecution, made the opening statement to the jury, in which he said it would be proved that Howard admitted after he returned to Clay county, that he shot Goebel. He said Howard wanted a pardon. Taylor wanted Goebel killed, and when the two met Goebel's death resulted. Attorney Gordon objected to Williams' statements, and Judge Cantrill sustained the objection in part, but overruled Gordon's motion to discharge the jury because of Williams' statements.

The jury is composed of nine democrats, two republicans and one populist.

The Church Lost the Case.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 9.—The court of appeals Wednesday, in the case of the Broadway church vs. the commonwealth, from Lexington, decided that a church that rents a parsonage to others than the minister must pay taxes on the parsonage property, as it is used for gain.

One Day Was Enough.

Lebanon, Ky., Jan. 9.—After serving only one day of his term Ivo Brussell, who was sworn in as coroner of this county, having been elected last November, has resigned his office.

While the measles are raging all around us there are none in this immediate neighborhood.

A number of the boys met and sawed wood for Doc Tauuer, last Monday, he being unable to work.

Cornelius Belton, of Acton, George House and Mrs Millie Means, of Loudon, Ind., were visiting relatives in this neighborhood, last week.

There has been no ice harvested here, while it is of sufficient thickness it is of very poor quality—the water was in a muddy condition when it froze.

No doubt the many friends of A. J. Utz will be sorry to learn that his condition has not improved any, but to the contrary, is gradually growing worse.

There will be Communion Services at Hopeful church the 4th Sunday of this month; preparatory services the same day preceeding the Communion Services. Service to begin at 10:30 a.m.

Another cold wave struck us, last Friday night, which has caused a great inconvenience with a great many about stock water, as that article is very scarce and is now frozen in the streams.

The funeral service of Uncle Joel Tanner, last Friday, was attended by a large number of his friends and relatives. Uncle Joel was, I suppose, the oldest man in Boone county, having reached the advanced age of 94 years 2 months and 5 days. He united with Hopeful church at the age of 17, and was a faithful member until death. He was present at the Communion Services last October, which was the last time he attended church; he was a great student of the bible, and while his eyes had failed to such an extent that he could not see to read for several years, he retained his memory and could quote many passages of scripture as accurately as he could in his younger days; his entire life was one of great activity and even in his declining years when able to be out of the house he did some kind of work every day, and when confined to the house he was employed making some useful article, of which nearly every family in this vicinity has one, which are now held very precious as memeutos. He was a prosperous man, his occupation being farming and blacksmithing; he accumulated considerable property which he divided among his children years sluce, giving each of them a nice little home. He was the father of a large family of children, several of whom as well a shis companion, preceded him to the grave. The funeral services were conducted by the pastor, Rev. Slater. The hymns used were some of his favorites which he learned and sung when a young man. The remains were interred in Hopeful cemetery.

WALTON, Jan. 12.—The greatest social event of the season was the party given at Esq. J. C. Bylaud's in honor of his son, Robt. Bylaud, on the occasion of his 18th birthday. The number of those present exceeded the century mark and all will cherish the remembrauce of Rob's great birthday party.

They are putting in a turn-table on the Q. & C. at this place and another at Williamstown.

Many people are complaining that the heavy dynamite blastlug is ruiu ing cisterns aud plasterlug in various parts of the town.

The young ladies have a secret society and have given two or three parties siuce New Year's day. As the society is designated by three initial letters all kinds of guessing is being done by the boys as to the name adopted by the girls for their society.

Noah Tauuer was here on Friday last and announced that a Grange will be organized at the the Opera House here on the 24th inst. All who are in favor of this association are requested to be present aud come in as a charter member. The Master of the State and the Rev. Lafe Johuson have been requested, to address the people on the importance of this movement. The meeting will be held at at 1 p. m.

Very little tobacco has been brought in as yet and sorry looking stuff it is. One buyer was heard to say that, "a man could buy tobacco in Louisville and make good money bringing it up here and selling at Boone county farmers valuation." Another said, "the growers seem anxious to sell, but wont strip it out." It is not probable that there will be much done in tobacco before March or April.

RICHWOOD, Jan. 11.—Henry B. Schuler will make a trip here every two weeks.

Wood Carpenter is some better.

Mr. Andy Collins, sr., is able to be out after his late illness.

A hogshead of very fine tobacco belonging to J. C. Hughes, disappeared from his warehouse at this place, last week. It was valued at $100.

A petition is in circulation asking for the establishing of a free mail delivery route from Richwood to Beaver, then to Union, then to Florence, total distance, 21 miles.

Lon Aydelotte gave a pleasant party in honor of his daughters, Misses Wattie and May, one night last week. The guests "tripped the light fantastic" until the "wee sma' hours."

Neva Simmons, bred and raised here by the late John T. Northcutt, will be sold next week in New York. She has a mark near 2:07, and as $10,000 has been refused for her, she will command a good round sum or no sale.

Wm. Woodward and Cary Carpenter are hauling hay from James Poor's place, near Independence. Will lost his valuable setter, one trip. He left him on the load of hay, and he fell off, and the wagon wheels passed over him killing him instantly.

It is claimed by some that Mr. Glascock, who bought tobacco for a Louisville company, last year, will not buy this season, as the Cincinnati dealers have made it worth his while; but he has been around with Booth, of Walton some, on business or pleasure, we can not say which.

Theo. Carpenter has a coming three year old stallion, by Timothy Boy, out of Richwood Belle. He is royally bred being a great-grandson of Electioneer and Onward. He carried the blue ribbon over ten good ones at Floreuce fair last year, and is now as handsome a horse as auy hereabouts.

Prices paid by buyers for tobacco have been very unsatisfactory here, and according to reports of last season's crops, at home and abroad, should be better. The buyers claim that inferior crops have a tendency to influence the prices of the better grades. That may be so, but be it as it may, 5, 4 and 2 cents are uniform prices received here.

PETERSBURG, Jan. 11.—Lawrenceburg has 300 cases of measles.

Harry Acra and family, and Dick and Sadie Marshall, of Middle creek, were guests of your reporter and wife, Sunday.

Miss Myrtle Love, daughter of Joe Love, of Rising Sun, is spending this week as the guest of her aunt, Mrs. Mary Rue.

After a couple of weeks' visit with her relatives and friends, Miss June Clore has returned to her home at Uncle Will Smith's near Burlington.

James G. Smith, son of Samuel and Florence Smith, of Gunpowder, and Miss Clara Maurer, daughter of Joseph Maurer, of this place, were married, on the 8th inst., at the residence of the bride's parents, Rev. Taylor, of Erlanger, officiating. Miss Clara's friends are very sorry to see her leave our village, as she was a favorite of all. May the richest blessings accompany her in this life, is the wish of all her associates and friends.

Thousands Sent Into Exile.

Every year a large number of poor sufferers whose lungs are sore and racked with coughs are urged to go to another climate. But this is costly and not always sure. Don't be an exile when Dr. Klug's New Discovery for Consumption will cure you at home. It's the most infallible medicine for Coughs, Colds, and all Throat and Lung diseases on earth. The first dose brings relief. Astounding cures result from persistent use. Trial bottles free at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Geisner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue. Price 50c and $1. Every bottle guaranteed.

In Memory of Charlie.

We miss thee from our school, dear Charlie;
We miss thee from thy place;
A shadow o'er our school is cast;
We miss the sunshine of thy face;
We miss thy kind and willing hand,
Thy fond and earnest care;
Our school is dark without thee—
We miss thee everywhere.

Chas. W. Rouse, son of W. R. Rouse, was born Sept. 7th, 1888, and died Jan. 1st, 1902; aged 13 years 3 months and 24 days. He was one of the scholars of Limaburg school, by which he will be very sadly missed. He was admired both by schoolmates and teacher for his truthfulness and manliness, and although it seems hard that one so young should be taken from us, we feel that the Master had need of him and we hope and trust that he is with the Angels in Heaven.

Dearest loved one, we have laid thee
In the peaceful grave,
But thy memory will be cherished,
Till we see thy heavenly face.

Do you owe any taxes? If so, I insist on your paying them before February 1st, 1902, as my term as Sheriff has expired and I am compelled to settle all claims. If your tax is not paid by the above time your property will positively be advertised to satisfy same. This applies to all delinquents.

ELMER BEALL, Ex-S. B. C.

The changes in the weather this winter come by jerks.

The young people enjoyed a delightful party given by Frank Rouse, last Saturday night.

Chas. Westbay was on the horse market, Thursday, and disposed of his large gray horse.

Money to loan in amounts from $500 to $5,000 at 5 per cent. Apply to W. E. Vest, Burlington, Ky.

It is reported that Henry Clore, ex-Merchant, Bellevue, will move to his hill farm and embark in agriculture.

Dr. Selker, optician, is now at the Boone House. He comes well recommended, and will be glad to have you call at his office.

No preaching at the Baptist church, last Sunday night, the pastor, Rev. Sproles, going to Petersburg to begin a protracted meeting that evening.

Col. Graddy came up from Petersburg, last Saturday evening, to spend the Sabbath with the boys. The Colonel is much pleased with the office of Stamp Deputy.

Jno. Cloud was the first farmer in this section to evince a-get-ready-for-spring work desire—he brought his turning plow in to the blacksmith, Friday, to have it put in order for turning over the sod.

E. L. Riley's sale on February 11th will be one of the largest sales in this part of the county in many days. He advertises a long list of personal property, embracing nearly everything needed on a farm.

Superintendent Snyder is having trouble with his mail, many persons not knowing that the name of his post-office is Grant and not Bellevue. Now remember that his address is, "D. M. Snyder, Grant, Boone County, Ky."

REWARD—I will pay $50 reward for the apprehension and conviction of the person or persons who burglarized W. A. Gaines' house, last Saturday night, and took therefrom $155 in money.
Jan. 6, '02. A. G. WINSTON.

A Cure for Lumbago.

W. C. Williamson, of Amherst, Va., says: "For more than a year I suffered from lumbago. I finally tried Chamberlain's Pain Balm and it gave me entire relief, which all other remedies had failed to do." Sold by all druggists.

A fellow who claimed to be a detective was in town, last Friday. He said he was in close pursuit of some horse-thieves whom he had followed from many miles back in Indiana, but from his actions and talk, few took any stock in the story he told.

T. J. Hughes, of Beaver, and the Boone County Telephone Company have under consideration the advisability of running a commercial line straight through from Burlington to Beaver. Such a line would be of great convenience to the through business.

The principal society event in Burlington, this year, was the Charade Party given at the home of Clutterbuck Bros., last Friday night. Nearly everybody in town was in attendance and a most delightful evening was the result. At eleven o'clock an elegant lunch was served.

There was quite a stir created in town, last Saturday, when the report gained circulation that Robert Wilson, jr., and Miss Lula Lucas had eloped, but it seems that a well planned elopement was frustrated at the last moment by the sudden appearance on the scene of the mother of the bride to be. The wedding appears to have been posponed indefinitely.

Vest House, of Rising Sun, Indiana, was moving a lot of saw logs which he had collected on the Burlington and Florence pike, at J. J. Tanner's, last Saturday, when he got one leg and foot caught under a large log, which pinned him to the earth until a team was hitched to the log and rolled it off of his foot. The man's leg and foot was badly mashed, but he got into a buggy and started for Rising Sun. It was not known how badly he was injured when he left.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Graves Willis requests the honour of your presence at the marriage of their daughter
Francis Gaines, to
Mr. Edgar DeWitt Jones,
on Thursday afternoon,
January the twenty-third,
nineteen hundred and two,
at half after 2 o'clock,
Christian Church,
Bullittsville, Kentucky.

Mrs. Benjamin Perry Rice, of Verona, died of pneumonia, age 48 years, last Sunday morning. Mrs. Rice had the measles, followed by pneumonia. The funeral was preached yesterday by Rev. Sam Adams, at Big Bone Baptist church, after which the interment took place in the church cemetery. Mrs. Rice was a daughter of the late Granville V. Rouse. She was a most estimable lady, beloved by all who knew her. The husband and only child, a son of 12 or 13 years, have the sympathy of a large circle of friends.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by all Druggists.

Personal Mentions.

Ed Hawes, of Lakeland, spent Sunday with his mother at this place.

Michael O'Harn, one of Boone's thriving farmers, was in town, one day last week.

Atty. Sidney Gaines was laid up a portion of last week with a very sore throat.

Mrs. Homer Clutterbuck and Master Willie Ryle are on the sick list with a throat trouble.

W. J. Utz, of Limaburg, was in town last Thursday. He was just recovering from an attack of la grippe.

Mr. B. N. Tanner, of Missouri, sent the RECORDER several Missouri papers of recent date. They are sprightly sheets.

Joseph L. Rich, of Big Bone, was in town, last Friday. He had nothing sensational to relate from his end of the county.

Mrs. H. W. Ryle, and son, Floyd, of Erlanger, spent several days in Burlington last week, with Mrs. Ryle's mother and sister.

E. L. Riley, of Bullittsville, was in Friday, and ordered bills printed for a big sale on February 11th. He will move to Dayton, Ohio, to engage in business.

Burglars at Gainesville.

Last Saturday night between 7 and 8 o'clock burglars entered the residence of W. A. Gaines near Gainesville or Idlewild, and carried away $155 in money. His wife and youngest son had that amount of money, which she had with other valuables, put into a small sack and hidden away in what she thought was a safe place in a press in one of the back bed rooms.

A little before 8 o'clock one of the sons and his aunt left the family room and went to that room to start the fire in the grate. When they reached the room they found a lamp burning, the contents of the press and some articles of drawers strewn in confusion over the floor—the little sack with the rest, and the window open. The burglars had entered through that window. In their hurry they had overlooked the other valuables in the sack—they left the pocket-book which contained some of the money. The shutters of one of the front windows of the family room were open; so that the burglars had full view of both the family room and dining room. They knew perfectly where the family was at the time they entered the house.

One hundred dollars reward has been offered for the capture and conviction of the burglar or burglars. Here is a chance for some good detective work to make some money and to serve the community.

The money taken was in large bills—nearly all of them $10 and $20 bills. These scoundrels will spend this money—they never have much money at one time, and never as much as $20. It will be well for those who operate the ferries at Lawrenceburg and Aurora—and the merchants in those two towns and at Petersburg, Idlewild and Bullittsville to have an eye to what money these people are spending and the character of it. If the people are a little vigilant their minds will soon settle on the guilty parties.

A few winters ago burglaries were committed in that neighborhood, and the whole community was stirred up and excited for a good while on account of them. Soon a fellow was wanted in Kenton county for burglary committed by him up there. He was sent to the penitentiary and since then the people about Gainesville have had a rest. Now there is another outbreak, and the people around there are not going to have a rest until these people either leave there or are locked up. The haul they have made is too satisfactory for them to stop. They got more than they expected. Other people there will be speedy victims. The people in that vicinity will do well to load their shot guns with buckshot and give the contents to such persons as may be found at night prowling around their premises—not in their legs but in their heads. That will soon stop it, and they may as well prepare to do it, for the occasion will come, and will come soon. X

VERONA.—School at the League Institute began Tuesday.

Miss Jennie Smith is visiting at Hebron.

Misses Fannie and Della Roberts are visiting in Georgetown.

Miss Linda Pursifull, who has a position in Covington, is at home for a few days.

L. J. Hume and wife, of Crittenden, were guests of J. M. Powers and wife, last Sunday.

The young people enjoyed an old time play party at Henry Cotton's last Wednesday night.

Mrs. C. Renaker, of Dry Ridge, Grant county, spent one day last week with her parents here.

Walter Craven and wife, of Georgetown, are spending a few days with Mrs Craven at this place.

Joseph Florence and wife gave a play party, last Tuesday night, in honor of Miss Ethel Myers. It was well attended.

Jeff Powers killed a hawk at a distance of 167 yards with a pistol, last Friday. Your correspondent measured the distance.

Old uncle Charlie Lewis died of old age and infirmity, last Friday. He was a carpenter by trade, and was well known over the county. He was buried at New Bethel.

The many friends will be grieved to learn of the sudden death of Mrs. Perry Rice, who passed away last Saturday night of pneumonia. Her remains were taken to Big Bone, where the funeral and burial took place. She was a faithful member of New Bethel Baptist church, by the members of which she will be greatly missed.

BEAVERLICK, Jan. 13.—Born, Jan. 6th, to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Sleet, a fine baby boy. Charlesis entertaining the new arrival with great pleasure.

Robert Jump moved into the house vacated by Thomas Hood, on the farm Omer Cleek, last Monday.

W. R. Miller's daughters, of Covington, were visiting C. B. Miller and left for home last week to attend school.

Miss Mattie Gregory, one of Beaver's prettiest young ladies, left last Thursday for a brief visit in Patroit, Ind., and Warsaw, Ky.

"Aunt Nancy" Story, aged 82, in company with Mrs. Em McIntyre, on horse back, paid a visit to Mrs. Betsy Clore, one day last week.

Joe Cleek built a nice, small stable at the Hughes Academy near Beaver, in which to keep his horse and buggy while his daughter attends school.

T. J. Hughes surveyed 11 acres of land, Thursday, bought by Reub Riley of Wallace Garrison at $35 per acre, lying on the waters of Gumb Branch near Big Bone church.

There is a great deal of sickness among the little folks in Beaver. Almost every family has a case or two of fever, measles or deep colds. None are of a very serious type this far.

Willis Moore, one of Beaver's hustling young farmers, visited Add Riddell's, near Hebron, Saturday and Sunday. Many of our young people suspect there is a girl in the affair, as he visits that locality too often for a mere matter of friendship.

A large number of the belles and the beaux of the Beaver and Berkshire neighborhoods gathered at the hospitable residence of Edwin Moore and wife, Saturday evening, where they proceeded to engage in amusing recreation, such as playing interesting games, discussing sweet music and social conversation. At midnight a nice repast was served, after which all wended their way home, feeling it was good to be there.

Died, Jan 11th, 1902, of old age and general debility in the 81st year of his age, Uncle Albert Howard. Al Howard was an exemplary man, possessing all those characteristics that belong to a good husband, a kind father and substantial citizen. Always at the post of duty, never shirking a responsibility he kept the even tenor of his way. He filled his mission as an industrious, honest, frugal citizen. He leaves two sons and several grandchildren to imitate his worthy example.

LIMABURG—Water is getting a little scarce again.

Wheat looks bad.

Harve Tanner has recovered from his recent injuries.

James Pettit and wife are now citizens of Limaburg.

Miss Emily Harding, of Hebron, will teach the spring school here.

Legrand Utz and wife were visiting at Henry Clore's, near Florence, last Sunday.

Miss Blanch Hicks, of Covington, is making her home at W. H. Rouse's, this winter.

Jas. W. Utz had a bad cold and not the measles. There are no measles in this neighborhood.

Jacob W. Rouse and Wallace Tanner went fox hunting, Saturday, but did not bag any game.

Mrs. Muggie Heim, of Newport, has a child sick of measles at her sister's, Mrs. Frankie Clutterbuck, of Kidwille.

A BEAUTIFUL GRACE.

Courtesy Extolled in This Sermon by Dr. Talmage.

Thoughtfulness for Others Is Urged —How a Benignant Spirit May Be Fostered — What the World Needs.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage urges thoughtfulness for others and shows how such a benignant spirit may be fostered; text, 1 Peter 2:3: "Be courteous."

In an age when bluntness has been canonized as a virtue it may be useful to extol one of the most beautiful of all the royal family of graces—courtesy. It is graciousness, deference to the wishes of others, good manners, affability, willingness to deny ourselves somewhat for the advantage of others, urbanity. But what is the use of my defining the grace of courtesy when we all know so well what it is? The botanist might say some very interesting things about a rose and the chemist might discourse about water or light, but without ever seeing a botanist or a chemist we know what a rose is and what water and light are. Do not take our time in telling us what courtesy is. Only show us how we may get more of it and avoid what are its counterfeits. Mark you, it cannot be put on or dramatized successfully for a long while. We may be full of bows and genuflections, and smiles and complimentary phrase, and have nothing of genuine courtesy either in our makeup or in our demeanor. A backwoodsman who never saw a drawing-room or a dancing master or a caterer or a fold of drapery may with his big soul and hard hand and awkward salutation exercise the grace, while one born under richest upholstery and educated in foreign schools, and bothered to know which of ten garments he will take from a royal wardrobe, may be as barren of the spirit of courtesy as the great Sahara desert is of green meadows and tossing fountains.

Christian courtesy is born in the heart by the power of the Holy Ghost, who has transformed and illumined and glorified one's nature. Mark you, I am speaking of the highest kind of courtesy, which is Christian courtesy. Something like it—ordinary politeness—may grow up with us under the direction of intelligent and watchful parentage, but I am not speaking of that which is merely agreeableness of conversation and behavior. All that may be a matter of tutelage and fine surrounding and show itself in lifting the hat to passersby and in a graceful way of asking about your health and sending the right kind of acceptance when you can go and the right kind of regrets when you cannot go and understanding all the laws of preference at table and parlor door, all of which is well. I am speaking of a principle of courtesy so implanted in one's nature that his suavity of conversation and manner shall be the outburst of what he feels for the happiness and welfare of others, a principle that will work in the next world as well as in this and will be as appropriate in the mansions of Heaven as in earthly dwelling places.

Now, you know as well as I do that some of the most undesirable people have been seeming incarnations of courtesy. In our early American history there arose a man of wonderful talent, an impersonation of all that can charm drawing-rooms and cultivated circles. Aged men who knew him in their youth have told me that he was the most irresistible man they ever met, his voice silvery, his smile bewitching, his glove immaculate, his eye piercing, his high forehead wreathed in curls, his attire a fascination. He became vice president of the United States and within one vote of being president. Men threw away their fortunes to help him in his political aspirations and to forward him in a conspiracy to overthrow the government of the United States, he trying to do in America what Napoleon at that very time was trying to do in Europe—establish a throne for himself. But he was immoral and corrupt. He was the serpent that wound its way into many a domestic paradise. He shot to death one of the greatest of Americans—Alexander Hamilton. The world found out long before he left it that the offender I speak of was an embodiment of dissoluteness and base ambition. He was the best illustration that I know of of the fact that a man may have the appearance of courtesy while within he is all wrong.

Absalom, a Bible character, was a specimen of a man of polish outside and of rottenness inside. Beautiful, brilliant and with such wealth of hair that when it was cut in each December as a matter of pride he had it weighed, and it weighed 200 shekels. He captured all who came near him. But, oh, what a heart he had—full of treachery and unfilial spirit and baseness!

In the famous Athenian Alcibiades history discourses of the same splendor of manner covering utter depravity. Noble pedigree, transcendent abilities, radiant personality, eloquent tongue, triumphant warrior, victor at Olympic games, but a debauchee and an impersonation of all the vices. Alas, that all up and down history and clear on into our day there are so many of what Christ called "wolves in sheep's clothing"—"whitewashed sepulchers, full of dead men's bones and all uncleanness!" Gilded abominations, walking lazarettos, attired in vermilion and gold. Perdition hanging out the banners of Heaven.

I like what John Wesley said to a man when their carriages met on the road. The ruffian, knowing Mr. Wesley and disliking him, did not turn out, but kept the middle of the road. Mr. Wesley cheerfully gave the man all the road, himself riding into the ditch. As they passed each other the ruffian said: "I never turn out for fools," and Mr. Wesley said: "I always do." I like the reproof which a Chinaman in San Francisco gave an American. The American pushed him off the sidewalk until he fell into the mud. The Chinaman on rising began to brush off the mud and said to the American: "You Christian; me heathen. Goodby." A stranger entered a church in one of the cities and was allowed to stand a long while, although there was plenty of room. No one offered a seat. The stranger after awhile said to one of the brethren: "What church is this?" The answer was: "Christ's church, sir." "Is He in?" said the stranger. The officer of the church understood what was meant and gave him a seat. We want more courtesy in the churches, more courtesy in places of business, more courtesy in our homes.

What a curse of cynics and pessimists afflicts our time, afflicts all time! There are those who praise no one until he is dead. Now that he is clear underground and a heavy stone is on top of him there is no possibility of his ever coming up again as a rival. Some of the epitaphs on tombstones are so fulsome that on resurrection day a man rising may, if he reads the epitaph, for the moment think he got into the wrong grave. Speak well one of another, and if you find yourself in circles disposed to slander and abuse be for the time as dumb as the sphinx, which, though only a few yards away from the oversbadowing pyramid of Egypt, has not with its lips of stone spoken one word in thousands of years.

There are two sides to every man's character — a good side and an evil side. The good see only the good and the evil only the evil, and the probability is that only a medium opinion is the right opinion. Most of the people whom I know are doing about as well as they can under the circumstances. When I see people who are worse than I am, I conclude that if I had the same bad influences around me all my life that they have had I would probably have been worse than they now are. The work of reform is the most important work, but many of the reformers, dwelling on one evil, see nothing but evil, and they get so used to anathema they forget the usefulness once in awhile of a benediction. They get so accustomed to excoriating public men that they do not realize that never since John Hancock in boldest chirography signed the declaration of independence, never since Columbus picked up the floating land flowers that showed him he was coming near some new country, have there been so many noble and splendid and Christian men in high places in this country as now. You could go into the president's cabinet or the United States senate or the house of representatives in this city and find plenty of men capable of holding an old-fashioned Methodist prayer meeting, plenty of senators and representatives and cabinet officers to start the tune and kneel with the penitents at the altar. In all these places there are men who could without looking at the Book, recite the sublime words, as did Gladstone during vacation at Hawarden, "I believe in God, the Father Almighty, Maker of Heaven and earth, and in Jesus Christ," and from the senate and house of representatives and the presidential cabinet and from the surrounding offices and committee rooms, if they could hear, would come many voices responding "Amen and amen!"

Christian courtesy I especially commend to those who have subordinates. Almost every person has some one under him. How do you treat that clerk, that servant, that assistant, that employe? Do you accost him in brusque terms and roughly command him to do that which you might kindly ask him to do? The last words that the duke of Wellington uttered were: "If you please." That conqueror in what was in some respects the greatest battle ever fought in his last hours, asked by his servant if he would take some tea replied: "If you please," his last words an expression of courtesy. Beautiful characteristic in any class. The day laborers in Sweden, passing each other, take off their hats in reverence. There is no excuse for boorishness in any circle. As complete a gentleman as ever lived was the man who was authorsed on the road to Damascus and beheaded on the road to Ostia—Paul, the apostle. I know that he might be so characterized by the way he apologized to Ananias, the high priest. I know it from the way he complimeated Felix as a judge and from the way he greets the king: "I thank myself, King Agrippa, because I shall answer for myself this day before thee touching all the things whereof I am accused of the Jews, especially because I know thee to be expert in all customs and questions which are among the Jews." I know that Paul was a gentleman from the way he opened his sermon on Mars hill, not insulting his audience, as King James' translation implies, but saying: "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are very devout." I know he was a gentleman from the fact that when he, with others of a shipwreck, on the island of Melita visited the governor of the island, he was most impressed with the courtesy shown them and reported that visit in these words: "In the same quarters were possessions of the chief man of the island, whose name was Publius, who received us and lodged us three days courteously." And then see those words of advice which he gives: "Bear ye one another's burdens;" "In honor preferring one another;" "Honor all men."

What a mighty means of usefulness is courtesy! The lack of it brings to many a dead failure, while before those who possess it in large quantity all the doors of opportunity are open. You can tell what urbanity does not come from study of books of etiquette, although such books have their use, but from a mind full of thoughtfulness for others and a heart in sympathy with the conditions of others. If those conditions be prosperous, a gladness for the sneeess, or if the conditions be depressing, a sorrow for the unfavorable circumstances. Ah, this world needs lighting up! To those of us who are prosperous it is no credit that we live in a state of good cheer, but in the lives of 99 out of 100 there is a pathetic side, a taking off, a deficit, an anxiety, a trouble. By a genial look, by a kind word, by a helpful action, we may lift a little of the burden and partly clear the way for the stumbling foot. Oh, what a glorious art it is to say the right word in the right way at the right time!

How reprehensible the behavior of those who pride themselves on the opposite quality and have a genius for disagreeable things, using sarcasm and retort not for lawful purposes, but to sting and humiliate and hurt! "Didn't I take him down?" "Didn't I make him wince?" "Didn't I give it to him?" That is the spirit of the devil, while the opposite is the spirit of Christ.

The time must come when the world will acknowledge international courtesy. Now courtesy between nations is chiefly made of rhetorical greeting, but as soon as there is a difference of interest their ministers plenipotentiary are called home, and the guns of the forts are put in position, and the army and navy get ready. Why not a courtesy between nations that will defer to each other and surrender a little rather than have prolonged acrimony, ending in great slaughter? Room for all nations of the earth and all styles of government. What the world wants is less armament and more courtesy, less of the spirit of destruction and more of the spirit of amity. This century has opened with too many armies in the field and too many men-of-war on the ocean. Before the century closes may the last cavalry horse be hitched to the plow and the last warship become a merchantman.

There is nothing worthy in the thought that the earth will get too crowded with population if vast multitudes are not destroyed by war. When our old world is full of inhabitants, it will have fulfilled its mission, and it will be put aside like an old ship turned into a navy yard and dismantled and the world's inhabitants transferred to some other constellation. The angels in the song celebrated this coming international courtesy when in the Bethlehem starlight they chanted: "Good will to men."

If others lack courtesy that is no reason why you should lack it. Respond to rudeness by utmost affability. Because some one else is a boor is no reason why you should be a boor. But how few show urbanity when badly treated! Human nature says: "An eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, retort for retort, slander for slander, maltreatment for maltreatment." But there have been those you and I have known who amid assault and caricature and injustice have maintained the loveliness of blossom week in springtime. Nothing but Divine grace in the heart can keep such equilibrium. That is not human nature until it is transformed by supernal influences. To put it on the lowest ground you cannot afford to be revengeful and malignant. Hatred and high indignation are stages of unhealth. They enlarge the spleen; they weaken the nerves; they attack the brain. Rage in a man is one form of apoplexy. Every time you get mad you damage your body and mind and soul, and you have not such a surplus of vigor and energy that you can afford to sacrifice them.

So I applaud Christian courtesy. I would put it upon the throne of every heart in all the world. The beauty of it is that you may extend it to others and have just as much of it yes, more of it—left in your own heart and life. It is like the miracle of the loaves and fishes, which, by being divided, were multiplied until 12 baskets were filled with the remnants. It is like a torch, with which 50 lamps may be lighted and yet the torch remain as bright as before it lighted the first lamp.

But this grace will not come to its coronal until it reaches the heavenly sphere. What a world that must be where selfishness and jealousy and pride and acerbities of temper have never entered and never will enter! No struggle for precedence. No rivalry between cherubim and seraphim. No ambition as to who shall have the front seats in the temple of God and the Lamb. No controversy about the place the guest may take at the banquet. No rivalry of robe or coronet. No racing of chariots. No throne looking askance upon other thrones, but all the inhabitants perfectly happy and rejoicing in the perfect happiness of others. If I never get to any other delightful place, I want to get to that place. What a realm to live in forever! All worshiping the same God, all saved by the same Christ, all experiencing the same emotions, all ascending the same heights of love and exultation, all celebrating the victories. Courtesy there easy, because there will be no faults to overlook, no apologies to make, no mistakes to correct, no disagreeableness to overcome, no wrongs to right. In all the ages to come not a detraction or a subterfuge. A perfect soul in a perfect Heaven. In that realm, world without end, it will never be necessary to repeat the words of my text, words that now need oft repetition: "Be courteous."

TARIFF FOR PHILIPPINES.

Probability of a Protracted Struggle Over the Measure When It Comes Before the House.

In jamming through the Paillppine tarif bill just before adjourning over the holidays, the leaders of the majority gave distinct notice, not only that the senate would not be permitted to change in any particular the rates of duty imposed on Philippine products entering the United States, but that in no way can the sacred Dingley tariff be meddled with in favor of any product of any country. Mr. Dalzell, who closed the debate on behalf of the majority, declared that there would be no legislation, so long as the republicans controlled the house, by which the existing tariff law would be amended directly, nor would they permit any change to be made in customs duties by unfair reciprocity treaties or in any other way, says the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

But the senate has some rights in the case, and there are reports that it may impress that fact upon the house. The Philippine commission's report, made public in Washington on the same day that Mr. Dalzell issued the ukase of the majority of the house, recommended a reduction of 50 per cent. from Dingley tariff duties on sugar, tobacco and hemp from the Philippines. Perhaps this recommendation was unknown to the committee on ways and means when the Philippine tariff bill was prepared and reported, or to Mr. Dalzell of that committee when he delivered the decree of the majority, but the senate cannot avoid taking cognizance of it.

There is a report from republican sources in Washington that some of the majority senators think the house acted hastily and unwisely in "jamming through" the tariff bill without ascertaining what the Taft commission advised. At all events, they hold that the senate has full authority to correct the mistakes of the house and should do so. The secretary of war having shown in his report that commerce between the United States and the Philippines has not "followed the flag" as expected under the Dingley tariff, but that exports to the United States from the Philippines have materially decreased, while imports into the Philippines from other countries have increased much faster than imports from the United States, and the Taft commission having promised that commerce between the United States and the islands would "increase by leaps and bounds" if the suggested reductions in the Dingley tariff rates be made, these republican senators feel inclined to try the experiment of a reduction. If a majority of the senators should be of that way of thinking, which is not improbable, what will Mr. Dalzell's truculent notification amount to?

The constitutional power of the senate to amend a house bill for raising revenue is undisputed. The senate has before now asserted and sustained its right to "amend" by cutting out everything but the enacting clause and substituting what is practically an entirely new bill. The house may reject an "amended" Philippine tariff bill and the fight may be a protracted one. Meantime the recent supreme court decision will be the only law in the case, and all Philippine products will enter the United States as free from tariff tax as the products of those other insular "appurtenances," Hawaii and Porto Rico. And why not?

THE SHIPPING BILL SCHEME.

Revised Measure No Improvement on the First One Which Favored Private Interests.

Opposition to Senator Frye's new ship-subsidy bill, which is shortly to demand the attention of the senate, with powerful influences urging favorable action, is justified on precisely the same grounds which made impossible the passage of the original measure during the preceding session of congress, says the St. Louis Republic.

Notwithstanding the crafty arguments to the contrary advanced by the present supporters of the bill, there has been no abandonment of the evil features contained in the subsidy proposition as first introduced in the senate. The ingenuity of the framers has been severely taxed to formulate a new measure which shall furnish an excuse for demanding a support originally denied while making no concessions justifying such support, and the success achieved in this direction has not been such as to encourage the subsidy bill's friends. Certainly the measure now awaiting action should not win to its support any senator who was unwilling to support its predecessor.

Mr. John De Witt Warner, of the New York Reform club, most forcefully represents the established public sentiment of this country in summing up anew the reasons why the present shipsubsidy bill should be defeated. The new bill is, like the old, a revival of the earlier mail-subsidy grab. There is no promise of a faster mail service in its operation. The measure proposes, to the contrary, increased pay for a slower service. The very ships which would get most of the subsidy, Mr. Warner points out, are large employers of Chinese and other foreign labor. The interests to be most heavily and directly subsidized by the bill's operations are the Standard Oil company, the International Navigation company, the New York and Cuba Mail company, the Pacific Mail company and the American Mail company, the very same corporations which were behind the old mensure. The new bill, Mr. Warner correctly charges, is simply a resurrection, "in more impudent shape than before," of the worst portions of the Hanna-Frye bills of the last two congresses.

There is little hope, however, that the interests of the American people will be protected by the vote on the ship-subsidy bill when that measure comes to a test in the present congress. The republican party lash will be rigorously wielded in behalf of the new subsidy grab. The full strength of the Hanna syndicate behind the bill is being put forth to compel passage. The present congress is amenable to such influence. Nevertheless, the people should continue to protest against the proposed grab. They will be the sufferers by the operation of the ship-subsidy bill, and they will suffer to the extent of many millions of dollars. The issue should be made so plain that the passage of the bill will appear clearly as a distinct defiance of the American people by the representatives of a party which has surrendered utterly to monopoly dictation.

MANY MOODS OF ROOSEVELT.

Contradictory and Vacillating Conduct of the President in Various Matters.

President Roosevelt is far from being effeminate, but he exhibits a womanish fondness for changing his mind. He gives us elaborate essays on civil service reform, and then he appoints Henry C. Payne to the first cabinet vacancy. He warns officeholders to keep out of politics, and puts a practical politician and spoilsmonger in the inner family circle of his administration, says the Albany Argus.

He nominntes Mr. Dunham, of Ohio, Mark Hanna's man—withdraws the nomination at Foraker's request, and then, on Hanna's insistence, agrees to send it back again. He acts, the senators say, like a child with a new toy, in his dealings with the federal patronage, and they stand by and watch him, with the feelings parents might have if the toy were a bit of costly bric-a-brac. In one state he exalts a senator, and puts down a national committeman; in another, he exalts the national committeeman and puts down the senator; in New York state he plays into the hand of the governor, at the expense of both the senior senator and the national committeeman.

In the Schley case, he causes the resignation of Maclay to be demanded, but, at the same time, he suffers a verdict to be officially approved which is pro-Maclay and anti-Schley. He pledges himself to maintain the policy of President McKinley; but if the late president could come back, could he piece together the fragments of his policy and make it whole again?

They are saying in Washington, as it used to be said in Albany, that Mr. Roosevelt has moods as many as the hours of the day; that he is of as many minds upon any given question as there are sides to that question, and that it all depends upon who gets his ear last how he will decide.

—President Roosevelt rebukes Gen. Miles for expressing opinions and criticising bureaus. This is the very thing Roosevelt was guilty of as an officer in the Cuban campaign. Roosevelt is a stickler for civil service. Now he removes Maclay, who says he is protected by civil service rules. The president appears to be a bundle of contradictions.—Quincy Herald.

—Perhaps Senator Hanna has not entirely given up the idea of running for president in 1904. He appears to be setting a trap to catch the labor vote.—Topeka State Journal.

NEW MONEY FOR OLD.

A Prominent London Banker's Collection of Historical and Curious Banknotes.

On Aladdin's principle of giving new lamps for old, Mr. Moberly Phillips, an associate of the Institute of Bankers, is preparing at any time to give new notes, or their equivalent in gold, for old notes which have some interesting history attached to them, says the London Chronicle. Mr. Phillips is the only collector of bank notes in the country, and probably out of it, and his collection amounts to 800, more or less. Some of the more valuable of his specimens he exhibited the other evening at a meeting of the Institute of Bankers in the London institution. One of the most interesting was a note issued by Maj. Gen. Baden-Powell during the siege of Mafeking. It is numbered 766, dated March, 1900, and printed in green ink on an obviously primitive machine. Another, with, if possible, a still more fascinating history, was a currency note, with Arabic lettering, printed by Gen. Gordon when he was besieged in Khartoum. Of Bank of England notes, Mr. Phillips has specimens of the face value of one pound not unlike in appearance the Scotch 20-shilling notes of the present day.

In times of emergency, when coin was scarce, paper money of as low a value as five shillings was issued by traders. But there has been a lower depth even than this, cards and paper tickets having been resorted to in some places for as small a sum as one shilling. Another interesting special issue, shown by Mr. Phillips, was that of the Birmingham workhouse. These notes were circulated by the overseers for various small amounts, "for the convenience of paying the poor," and payment was made when eight two-shilling sixpence or four five-shilling notes were brought together. In one corner piece of these notes is a picture of Charity nursing young children. As showing the leagth of time during which notes may remnin in currency, Mr. Phillips mentioned that he had a Scotch note for £12, dated 1731, and the bank which issued it offered to change it for him. Being a collector, Mr. Phillips preferred to keep his ancient bit of paper.

In the matter of diminutive bank notes a correspondent sends an account of a curious note which he has in his possession. It is a card measuring two by two and one-half inches, on one side of which is twice printed the word "twopence," while on the other side the sum is printed in words and figures around the border. In the middle is the following: "I promise to pay the bearer, on demand, twopence. By order of the Corporation of the City of New York, Feb. 26, 1790.—D. Phoenix, City Treasurer."

Peat as Locomotive Fuel.

Pressed and dried peat for locomotive fuel is being experimented with on the Visiands-Bolmen railway of Sweden. In a late test, though the engine was built for using coal only, an experiment train of 15 freight and one passenger car made the 22-mile trip ahead of the regular time schedule, arriving at the terminal station 15 minutes in advance of the schedule. A time table for lower speed than the regular train had been arranged.—Detroit Free Press.

MANAGEMENT OF DUCKS.

The Man Who Expects to Make Pekins Pay Must Take Excellent Care of Them.

It is not absolutely necessary to have so warm a house for Pekin ducks as for fowls, but it pays best to have a good comfortable house for them, as will be shown presently. When properly cared for, ducks begin to lay during the winter months; those that are hatched quite early in the spring may lay in December. We should prefer ducks in their second year for breeders, or at least very early-hatched ones, so they might be almost or quite one year old before eggs from them are used for hatching. Ducklings do better that are hatched from eggs that are laid by mature ducks. Ducks can be plucked during warm weather, just prior to beginning to moult; then all the blood has gone from the quill of the feather, and but little pain is given by plucking them at that time.

Ducks sit about on the ground; they do not roost like fowls. It is their habit to lay their eggs very early in the morning, often before daylight; for this reason they are driven into the house at night, and kept shut in till several hours after sunrise, to prevent them from running about and dropping their eggs on the ground wherever they may be. Pekin ducks are a kind of a machine; they seldom lay an egg in a nest, and will lay the most of them in the water if allowed their freedom and are not shut up at night. We doubt if one out of five of them would go into the house to lay if they are allowed to run as they please.

For these reasons they should have a comfortable house that has a good, dry earth floor. This should be covered over with straw or dry meadow grass for them to rest on at night. During cold weather the house should be closed up like the hen house. When spring and warmer weather come, give all the air and ventilation possible while they are shut in. You will find it necessary to drive them in at night, or to give the evening meal within the house, and shut them in while they eat. The litter should be turned over at least twice a week; it should be put out in the sun once a week to air and dry, and at this time the floor should be cleaned and the litter put back. We know that some who keep ducks do not clean the houses all winter. With such care the ducks and their eggs are always covered with dirt.

For old or laying ducks, mix by measure one-half corn meal, one-fourth wheat bran, the rest green food, cooked vegetables and meat scraps. Mix into this some coarse sand, and mix all into a dry mash food with water. The green food should be cut up into short pieces; green rye, oats or clover is good for this. When the ducks are not laying, feed light; when laying, feed strong two or three times a day; if they grow fat, feed less corn meal and meat, and more bran. Always feed the ducks in troughs or boxes. They should have plenty of grit and oyster shell. The sand that is mixed in their food is good for digestion or grinding, but they must have in addition to this food grit or shell. Green cut bone or meat of any kind is good for them. All animal food is better if cooked for ducks.

Pekin ducks will do very well with simply enough water to drink, and thousands of them are raised that never had a chance to swim in water at all. At the same time, ducks that are kept for breeders do better when they have the chance to swim and wash in the water.—Country Gentleman.

AMONG THE POULTRY.

If the hen is a machine for converting feed into eggs, it is a plain business principle that the machine should be kept running at full capacity and at the lowest cost.

Don't keep a single fowl over winter that you can't make pay its board. Cull them out and sell for what they will bring. The feed and care thus saved may be given to the more worthy ones.

Although eggs are a good price now they will go higher later on. And the hens will be sure to suspend business unless they have comfortable quarters and are well cared for.

Increasing the profits depends largely on the observance of three important points: Increasing the quantity, improving the quality and obtaining a better price for the product sold.

To frequently change from one breed to another is nearly always attended by more or less expense; in other words loss. And to experiment in cross breeding is still worse. Try to find some one pure breed that most nearly meets the demand of your fancy and your market, then stick to it and make it pay.

THE HORSE BUSINESS.

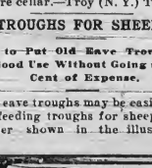
Changes Which Have Occurred During the Past Decade Have Entirely Revolutionized It.

Why did farmers quit raising horses when prices were low, instead of breeding to prepare for the inevitable high prices, as some of our readers did who took our advice and kept up their breeding? They have the horse laugh now, and get good prices since the tide has changed, and all get to breeding again. Why do some farmers object to gray horses, when the city buyers pay a premium on the grays, sure to have more quality? These color craze people prefer color to quality, and will breed to any stallion, no matter how unsound and inferior, just so he is not a gray, and because one farmer does, others do, without knowing any good reason why. This compelled the importers to select the American dark colors in France and leave many of the best stallions, simply because they were grays. We are glad to see the importers bringing so many good grays this year, giving more attention to good quality than to color, and there are now some localities where the gray Percheron is coming again into its own. Where the farmers read, think and act and breed the "old gray mare" to the good gray stallion, they will have the horse buyers eagerly hunting for the good gray geldings of quality to top the market. Then the grays will laugh.

American farmers are eager to get into market with big draught horses, and the largest stallions seem to be the first consideration. The matter of color is solving itself, and the grays are again coming to the front, as the larger selection enables importers to secure more good grays than any other color of the breed, and the horse buyers for market pay more money for the handsome grays.

The eager demand for black stallions has, however, induced the importers to bring more big black Percherons than ever before, although prices ar higher than ever before known in the history of American importations. The Shires, Clydes and Belgians are also coming in increased numbers, and with larger size and bigger bone than ever before, for the American trade has so impressed the draught horse breeders of Europe that they have bred to suit the American trade, and when we get back into our markets again with matured goldings we will be able to give more attention to quality with less attention to size and color. We have also learned to look to breeding and pedigree; indeed, the American farmer has learned much about draught horse breeding, and the more he learns of breeds and breeding the greater value and appreciation is given to the draught horse for the farm as well as for market.—Live Stock Journal.

CELLARS UNDER BARNS.



Once They Were Quite Popular, But Now They Are Condemned by the Best Sentiment.

Middle-aged people remember when almost every farmer would try to locate his barn on a hillside in order to have a cellar under it. Opinions have changed, and now many of the best farmers prefer to have a barn on nearly level ground and without a cellar. There are two sides. Barn cellars are convenient receptacles of the manurial accumulations of winter. They afford warm shelter for swine and for other young live stock. They are handy places in which to keep farm wagons and carts, plows, harrows and other implements. If made tight and warm a portion may be partitioned off in which to keep roots for live stock feeding. The cemented bottom of a dry cellar is a good place on which to mix home-made fertilizers. There is undoubtedly economy in securing additional storage room without an additional roof. This last consideration covers what is perhaps the strongest argument in favor of cellars under barns. On the other hand, it is forcibly urged that a manure vault ought not to be directly beneath where horses and cattle, hay and grain are kept. It is said that the more or less perceptible gases and odors escaping from the cellars rise through the flooring and penetrate the air of the building above, to a greater or less extent contaminating everything it contains. Some farmers who have tested the matter thoroughly say that the pure air and strict cleanliness so indispensable to successful dairying cannot be secured in a barn that stands over a manure cellar.—Troy (N. Y.) Times.

TROUGHS FOR SHEEP.

How to Put Old Eave Troughs to Good Use Without Going to a Cent of Expense.

Old eave troughs may be easily made into feeding troughs for sheep in the manner shown in the illustration.

SIMPLE FEED TROUGHS.

There is scarcely a farmer who has not several troughs rotting away behind some of his buildings, each of which might be put to good use with only ten minutes' work.—Harry Knowles, in Orange Judd Farmer.

Black teeth in pigs do not indicate disease. Just what causes them has never been satisfactorily explained.

NEEDLEWORK OF THE NUNS.

The Art of Embroidery Has Reached Perfection in Some of the Convents.

The most beautiful needlework in the world comes from the convents. The fact is unquestionably due to the training the young apprentice receives on less than a quarter of a yard of cloth all the fundamental rules of sewing. Industriously she plies her needle on this bit of cloth, mastering inch by inch all the finer arts of the delicate needlework; one of the greatest object lessons to mothers with growing daughters. Who are permitted to destroy valuable silks and linen, ruining both temper and goods over something that is pure Greek to the crude beginner. How often materials so eagerly and hopefully purchased become useless in the hands of the person whose brain has no knowledge whatever of the vastness of the undertaking before her.

The nuns, who [illegible] is a deadly sin, teach every stitch most carefully, nor is this practice made tedious and difficult by giving the student long hems, heavy coarse garments and yards of tucking. A tiny piece of goods of moderate weight, a thimble fitting perfectly, not too heavy, a needle in size to carry 70 or 80 thread, are the implements of practice. The young women who learn the sewing are the consecrated women, so called because they have consecrated their lives and daily labor to God.

FOUND AMERICANS BUYING LAND AT SASKATCHEWAN, WESTERN CANADA.

A Michigan Farmer Visits Saskatoon and Is Well Pleased.

Mr. S. K. Lent was a delegate sent from the farmers of Allegan County, Michigan, to Western Canada, to report on the prospects for successful settlement. His report is as follows: I went from Winnipeg to Edmonton, thence east one hundred miles by wagon. I found the country in that vicinity a rich, black loam, varying from 12 inches to 3 feet deep; the crops are simply something enormous; wheat and oats by actual measurement often standing 5 feet in height. I have been a farmer for 40 years, and consider myself a fair judge of the yield of grain, and I saw wheat that would yield 50 bushels per acre, and oats that would yield 100 bushels per acre; not one alone but a good many. As for root crops and garden truck, in no country have I ever seen their equal for all kinds except corn and tomatoes; the nights being too cool for these to ripen well. As a stock country it has no equal. East of Edmonton, on the head waters of the Vermillion River, I saw hay meadows containing from 10 to 100 acres, the grass standing 4 feet high, and would often cut 3 to 4 tons to the acre. From Edmonton I passed through some fine locations, namely, Wetaskiwin, Lacombe and other points.

From Macleod I went to Regina, thence to Prince Albert, 247 miles north of the main line. For the first 50 miles is fine farming country, but the next hundred miles is more of a stock country. Then at Saskatoon, Rosthern and Duck Lake I found some very fine farming country, so good that I found a party of Americans from Minnesota buying land for themselves, one party buying 12 sections, and the other 20 sections of land for themselves, which they proposed to improve at once.

I have traveled over 23 different States and Territories in our Union, and never in my life time have I ever seen such magnificent crops and especially as fine a stock country.

INDORSED BY GREAT MEN

The World's Famous Catarrh Remedy---PE-RU-NA.

Amos J. Cummings, Congressman from Tenth Congressional District, New York.

Congressman Cummings, of New York, in a letter written from New York city regarding the merits of Pe-ru-na, says the following:—

"Pe-ru-na is good for catarrh. I have tried it and know it. It relieved me immensely on my trip to Cuba, and always have a bottle in reserve. Since my return I have not suffered from catarrh, but if I do I shall use Pe-ru-na again."

AMOS CUMMINGS.

Judge A. T. Goodwyn.

Hon. A. T. Goodwyn Congressman from Alabama, in a recent letter to Dr. Hartman, says:—

"I have now used one bottle of Pe-ru-na and am a well man to-day. I could feel the good effects of your medicine before I had used it a week, after suffering with catarrh for over a year."

W. L. CHAMBERS.

Story of Dr. Hailes.

Dr. William Hailes, of the Albany Medical college, is very fond of a joke, and can give as well as take one. Among the students in anatomy is one who answers to the somewhat unusual cognomen of Crow. When he answers at all—for this student was, as the doctor facetiously observed a week after the opening of college, when for the first time he answered roll call, a rare bird. After an unusually prolonged period of absenceism, the student presented himself the other day, and one of his classmates tried to explain that he must have been detained by a game of crowkuet! The racket which succeeded this remark made no impression on the doctor.—Without heeding the diversion, he proceeded to express his great pleasure at the wanderer's return, and then convulsed the class by quickly remarking: "Why I am delighted to see you, Mr. Crow, what is bothering me is whether there is any necessary connection between the absence of your caws and the 'caws' of your absence."—Golden Days.

Hard on the Chickens.

In an Ohio town last fall the African Methodist Episcopal church of that district held a conference, and for a week the town was filled with colored pulpit orators. A few days after the conference closed its sessions one of the leading colored women of the town drove out to Pea Ridge to purchase chickens of an old mammy who had supplied the family for years. Aunt Hanna, coming to the gate, said: "I'm sorry, Miss Allie, I ain't got a chicken left. Dey all done enter de ministry."—San Francisco Argonaut.

How About Those?

"If you want to improve your mind," said the sage, "associate only with persons who know more than you do."

"But if they follow the same rule," said one of those who were learning wisdom at his feet, "what are we to do?"—Chicago Tribune.

A Plausible Theory.

She—I wonder why a man's hair turns gray before his beard.

He—Oh, that is easily explained. There is usually about 20 years' difference in their respective ages.—Chicago Daily News.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is an infallible medicine for coughs and colds.—N. W. Samuel, Ocean Grove, N. J., Feb. 17, 1900.

A blessing in disguise gets many a rebuff.—Chicago Daily News.

PUTNAM FADELESS DYES are as easy to use as soap. No muss or failures.

Pertly—"Is your wife entertaining this winter?" Smartly—"Not very."—Judge.

Representative Sheppard, of Texas.

Congressman John L. Sheppard, of Texas, writes the following commendation of Pe-ru-na from Washington, D. C. Congressman Sheppard uses Pe-ru-na in his family and says:—

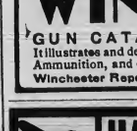
"I have used Pe-ru-na in my family and found it to be a most excellent remedy for all catarrhal complaints."

Chief Justice William Lee Chambers.

In a recent letter to The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Chief Justice William Lee Chambers says the following of Pe-ru-na:—

"I have tried one bottle of Pe-ru-na, and I can truthfully say it is one of the best tonics I ever used, and I take pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers who are in need of a good medicine. I can recommend it as one of the very best remedies for catarrh."

W. L. CHAMBERS.



Men of prominence all over the United States are recommending Peruna. Over forty members of Congress have written their indorsement of it. Scores of other government officials speak in high praise of it. Thousands of people in the humbler walks of life rely upon it as a family medicine. Send for free book of testimonials.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

MOUNDFIELD FARM, Jauy. 13—Irving Keene, from Mount Au Guru, was visiting his cousin, Add Batterson, last Saturday and Sunday.

Ed Ernsts is convalescing from a serious attack of the grippe.

Frank Whitcomb, of Walton, is sojourning with friends here this week.

J. W. Rouse and wife, of Limaburg, were guests of Thomas Hafer and wife, Saturday.

Frank Markland, of the city, was out and ate turkey with his sister, Mrs. Batterson, last week.

Mrs. Emma Clore, of Ludlow, was visiting her sister, Mrs. Robert McGlasson, several days last week.

John Kelsa, Spencer Aylor, Herbert Clayton and Mike Clore, jr., have all secured work in the city.

Mrs. Maggie Maunin had the misfortune to cut one of her fingers badly on a broken glass pitcher a few days since.

James Beall was so unfortunate as to lose the last horse he had the other day. It makes three that he had to die within a year.

Will Clore has moved from Mrs. Alice Rouse's place to the cottage recently occupied by Ed. Aylor, belonging to Harrison Clore.

The Y. P. C. E. Society gave a social at the home of James Beall, Saturday evening. It was well attended and a fine time was reported.

The funeral service of the late Geo. W. Anderson was held at the Hebron church on the 7th inst., Rev. Jones officiating, after which his remains were buried beside his wife at that place.

Misses Neva Hafer, Annie Hafer and Hattie Harper were handsomely entertained by Miss Lizzie Clore, Thursday night. Miss Lizzie is a beautiful girl of 16 summers, and is a charming hostess.

At the annual election of offices for Hebron church, J. W. Rouse was elected Elder; Robert McGlasson and W. L. B. Rouse, Deacons; J. D. Cloud, Trustee; Walter Crigler, Chorister, Alice Crigler, Assistant; W. O Hafer, Superintendent Sunday School, Dr L. H. Hafer, Assistant; Miss Grace Bullock, Secretary; Miss Hattie Hafer, Treasurer.

We were down and helped our friend Elzie Harper, on the 10th, on a retaining wall he is building for another anticipated lake. When lunch time came we were surprised to see him bring a watermelon out of his cellar, where it had been keeping nicely since August. The only difference we experienced in eating the melon then and in the summer was we did not go out in the shade to do the eating. About the time the melon was finished, he drew a bottle of wine on me that his wife had made several years ago. This was immense. I regretted that my neck was so short that I could not get the taste longer.

Jacob Crigler relates the following incident relative to the life of Uncle Joel Tanner, recently deceased: When Jacob was a boy, 5 years old, his father and mother died. His grandmother took him home with here, where he remained a while. She was poor and having others to care for, little Jake had to seek another home. His Uncle Joel wanted him, but he was loth to leave his grandmother. Uncle Joel finally pursuaded him to go home with him to gather goose eggs. This captivated him, and for 15 years he gathered goose eggs for his Uncle Joel. When he reached his 21st year, his uncle went to the city and purchased two men's suits of broad cloth, giving one to Jacob as his freedom suit, and he requested to be buried in the other, enjoined upon Jacob the duty of seeing that his request was carried out. Thirty-seven years elapsed, and true to the promise he made his uncle, Jacob assisted to clothe him in that identical suit of broad-cloth, for his burial, last week. During all these years Mr. Tanner wore the suit only a few times. When the weather was extremely fair he went to communion services, but on no other occasion.

Mrs. J. W. Davis, Mrs. Alice and Bessie Goodridge and your humble servant were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Graham at Francisville, one day last week. The gathering was in honor of Mrs. Nellie Markland and son, who will move to the city in the near future. One of the side splitting, enjoyable features of the occasion was the hayride that Mr. Graham treated us to, to and from our homes. This was enjoyed beyond conception. Another feature which we all enjoyed was the sumptuous dinner that Mrs. Graham had prepared for us to partake of, and here is where I shall fail to give all the rich viands that were on that table—we only wonder that it stood up under the great weight—there were roast turkey, baked pig, scalloped and stewed oysters, fried ham, vegetables and all kinds of fruits from the tropics—and then there was the pastrys, pies, cakes, puddings and the lord only knows what that good woman didn't have to eat. It would be useless to attempt to say how well all of us enjoyed being there, and those who participated will always refer with pleasure to the turkey dinner at Mr. Graham's.

FROGTOWN.—Miss Hattie Clark, of Covington, spent last week with her cousin, Miss Bessie Richards.

Mack and Perry Marshall, of Erlanger, were in our town Friday night.

Lewis Richards and Will Norman have their tobacco stripped, ready to sell.

Garney Richards and Will Norman are the champion crokinole players at this place.

L. N. Richards purchased a cow at Ben Stephens' sale for $32, and sold his 12 year old cow at the Covington stock yards for $22.50.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 22, 1902. NO. 14.

THE President gave Senator Deboe several jolts last week. It began to look like the "Senator could not get nothing no how."

GOV. BECKHAM'S message to the General Assembly was satisfactory to all. He handled State affairs as one with the best interests of Kentucky at heart.

IF Signor Marconi's claims in regard to wireless telegraphy prove to be correct, the old time telegraph companys may as well arrange to take up their wires.

SENATOR FAIRBANKS has put senator Beveridge out of the fight for control of the political machine in Indiana, but the latter is young and may yet have his inning.

THERE has been a great depreciation in the value of real property in Cincinnati, in the last decade, if a large number of the leading real estate men are not mistaken.

THERE are one physician in the present senate and four physicians in the present house of representatives. There is one clergyman in the present house of representatives.

WILLIAM DEMPSEY, brother of J. .T Dempsey, of Mud Lick, sends the Recorder an interesting letter from Manila. He went to the Philippines as a sight seer, and, no doubt he saw a few.

TWO of the Kentucky Republicans who want federal jobs are named Happy and Jolly. Only the future, however, will show whether either gentleman is going to live up to his last name.—Paducah News.

THE Democratic members of the General Assembly had no trouble in making nominations for the offices which they had to fill. In each instance the race had about decided itself before it reached the caucus.

Last year Missouri produced more manufactured tobacco than any other State in the union, over 78,000,000 pounds passed through its factories. And in proportion to population, Missouri in 1900 paid more internal revenue tax than any other State except one.

SENATOR TOLIN has introduced a bill to increase the fees for catching logs afloat in the river. Representative Kennedy introduced a bill to prevent the use of paris green on growing crops; also an act to prevent the restrictions on sale of farm products in town in this commonwealth.

THE flood of pension bills continues to pour into Congress, where they are railroaded through virtually without examination. Most of these private bills could not pass in the usual way. Such wastefulness is not creditable to the nation; it encourages begging when there is no need and no warrant for it.

THE Boone County Deposit Bank people are greatly pleased with the rating giving that institution by the "Honor Roll," a financial journal published in New York. From the daily statement of the bank's business and condition, the "Honor Roll" places the value of the stock at $226 per share of $100.

THE bill providing for the erection of new State buildings at Frankfort appears to have a good chance for a favorable consideration by the General Assembly. About the only thing that will militate against it is the fact that numerous other appropriations are asked for, and the defeat of some of them may create an opposition to the measure.

THE theory that the tariff is the result of mature study by experts in congress or out of it for the purpose of distributing benefits equally, and that the complete system is so perfect that it cannot be disturbed without serious harm to all its parts, is sheer nonsense or sheer trickery. It has no basis in fact. Tariffs are the results of trade and dicker in votes and, since votes are needed to pass tariffs there is absolutely no other process available. There is no more principle in the whole business than there is in a mock auction or a policy drawing.—N. Y. Times.

COL. BERRY has announced that he will be a candidate for Congress again. It is understood that Congressman Gooch will stand for a renomination, and as there will be other candidates another lively contest for the Democratic Congressional nomination in this district is just ahead of the party.

FOR the first time in the history of the State there is an organized lobby of newspaper men at the State Capitol. They are there to see that Kentucky gets a representation at the St. Louis Exposition next year. If there is anpthing in hustling you can set it down as pretty sure that these lobbyists are going to get what they are after.

BESIDE an iron-bound box, which contained nearly $10,000 in money, bonds and other valuable documents, with a will which showed that she had still other thousands hidden about her house the body of Mrs. Pike-Dickey, an aged recluse of Iowa, was found with her nose, ear, lips and fingers gnawed almost off by rats. She had evidently been dead for nearly a week, and heart disease overtaking her while she was counting her money is supposed to have caused her death.

COMMENTING on the President's action in appointing special convoys to represent the United States Government at the coronation exercises of Edward VII, Congressman Gooch says, "when the question of appropriating money to pay for sending a special ambassador and the representatives of the army and navy to attend King Edward's coronation ceremonies come up in the House he will, if opportunity permits, offer an amendment to recognize the independence of the Boers."

GEN. FITZHUGH LEE is living quietly at Charlottesville, Va., since his retirement from the army. He goes to Washington quite often, and is frequently called in consultation by high Government officials in regard to Cuban affairs, concerning which his knowledge is comprehensive and accurate. Though he failed in his ambition to reach the United States Senate a few years ago, he had the satisfaction of knowing that his following embraced a large percentage of the best people of the Old Dominion.

DR. SELKER'S experience here with the law in regard to peddler's, last week, brought about a general discussion of that particular law; and its inconsistencies, a reference to one of which is all that is necessary to show how badly the law needs revision. For instance, a person can travel through the country this week and take orders for goods of any kind and next week comes along and delivers them, and he is not regarded as a peddler, consquently does not have to take out a license; but the man who carries his pack and delivers the articles as he sells them is classed as a peddler. This appears to be a distinction without a difference. Again a man living in the city may canvass the county this week, taking orders for merchandise, and next week load his wagon and deliver his goods, while one of the county merchants, who operates a wagon in connection with his store, is required to take out a license. In this case the stranger has largely the advantage of the home man and is enabled to undersell him because he pays neither taxes nor a license, a very unjust discrimination against the home merchant who pays his taxes regularly, and one from which he should be relieved by being put on the same footing with peddlers from the city. This is a matter worthy the attention of the legislature, and as Representative Kennedy is a merchant and a good taxpayer, he knows of the inequalities of the law in regard to peddlers in Kentucky.

THE Aurora Bulletin has absorbed the Oracle, and is now claiming that it has the largest circulation of any paper ever published in that county.

A delegation of Kentucky's colored voters will call on Teddy to ascertain what recignation they may expect. That's easy,

EDITOR WESTOVER writes his paper, the Williamstown Courier, from Frankfort:

"One of the most remarkable men in either House of the present Legislature is David Coulson of Belle county, or rather from the city of Middlesboro. In his short life, of less than forty years, has been crowded more of history and romance than ordinarially falls to the lot of one individual. Twice he has served his party as a member in Congress from the Eleventh District. He resigned to accept the Colonelcy of a regiment in the Spanish American war, being Colonel of the Fourth Kentucky. Out of his command of that regiment came the bitter feud between him and Elbert B. Scott that resulted in the memorable shooting in the lobby of the Capitol Hotel in which he shot and fatally wounded three men, one his opponent and the others innocent bystanders. He was dangerously wounded himself and for a long time lay in prison and later in a hospital. He was tried for murder and acquitted. Now he comes back again as a member of the lower House. He is a fine looking fellow and is able and especially agreeable, and we have little doubt that in the days to come he will yet win his way to greater honors."

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.

A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere, of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—Joel Demont, Inwood, Ia. LOCAL NEWS.

Dirt roads were never in finer condition at this season of the year.

Onnie Rouse is getting his saw and grist mill under roof. It looks like it will be a permanent fixture here.

County Attorney Castleman has had his office remodeled, and made quite convenient and much more comfortable.

The first ice was put up here in town, last Friday. The thickness and quality appeared to be up to the standard.

Measles made their appearance in Limaburg neighborhood, last week. A large number of grown persons out there are subject to the disease.

Esq. J. C. Byland, the leading life insurance man in this part of the State, was in town last Friday. He has done a large business in the several counties in which he works, and has his arguements down fine and convincing.

In copying the order in regard to the county infirmary, last week, we made it read:

"The purchase of all supplies shall be under the direction and with the consent of the county Judge," &c. It should have read, "under the direction and with the consent of the County Attorney."

The RECORDER would like to print the stationery for all the Boone county merchants this year. It is well supplied with new type for that line of work, and the resident merchants ought to take the same pride in having their work done in the county that the RECORDER would take in doing it for them. Let us stand together.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, and, although 73 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves the Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue; H. L. MANILA LETTER.

Hotel Quatro Naciones Intramures,
Manla, P. I., U. S. A.,
November 29, 1951.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

I am a Kentuckian and as such I venture to address you the following epistle for the benefit of my friends and your readers.

You see by my address that though I am in far off Manila I am still in the good old United States, though I had to go through many strange lands and peoples to reach it.

I left Metcalf, Ills., on the first of October, my destination at that time being San Francisco. I stopped off at St. Louis for a day, then at Wichita, Kan., to see the Street Fair. After that I sailed through to San Francisco on the Santa Fe Ry, accompanied by Nathan Linebarger of Metcalf, Ills.

On the trip to San Francisco Nate talked me into making a trip over here, so that after a stay of nine days in San Francisco, on October 15th I boarded the good ship Coptic of the Occidental and Oriental Steam Ship Co, accompanied by Nate Linebarger bound for Hong Kong.

On our way to Hong Kong we made our first stop at Honolulu, the capital of the Hawaiian Islands. It is, indeed, a beautful place, the natives, Kanakkas they are called by the white population, are somewhat similar in colour to our home niggers, but have better features. The town is situated on a beautiful bay surrounded on three sides by high hills. Here can be found tropical fruits and vegetables of all kinds. At the base of the hills mentioned there are several beautiful drives along the sea shore. It is, indeed, a beautiful place to live.

We remained in Honolulu 24 hours, our next stop being in Japan at the town of Yokohoma. It is a very important city, being the great manufacturing center of Japan. Here the natives put off in great crowds in little boats called Sand-Pans, to take us ashore for the sum of ten cents in our money.

Seemingly the only mode of conveyance in Japan is a little cart called a Jin-Rieksha. To this a man harnesses himself and pulls you all through the city at the cost of ten cents our money per hour. I visited several of their large churches, bazaars and other buildings, having a most enjoyable time. Most of the men go barefooted and without hats. The women all wear little wooden shoes, are very neat in their appearance and look just like the pictures we see of them in the United States.

We remained in Yokohoma two days, stopping at Klobe, the center of the cotton industry for thirty six hours, at Nagasaki 24 hours. Here we took coal. There are no wharves so that the coal has to be brought out on barges. It is, indeed, wonderful the expeditious manner in which they load this coal. They build from the side of a vessel a platform having three or four steps. On those steps the natives stand. Two scoopsfull fill the little straw baskets they use. There is a line of natives from where the basket is filled to the ships side. One native tosses the basket to his neighbor, and so on, until it reaches the ships bunkers. The basket seems to fly through the air, and so on until the thousand tons we took aboard was all loaded, men women and children working. Our next stop was in China, at Shang-Hai. We anchored in the Yangtse-Ki-ang river, 20 miles from the city at about 9 p. m. Next morning we took the tug boat for the city and ran up in about an hour and a half. The Chinese portion of the city is indeed filthy—the European and American portion on the contrary being elegantly kept. Here they also use Jin-Rickshas as the principal mode of conveyance. They also use an affair something like our wheel-barrow, with the exception that the wheel is in the center and is large. On both sides of this wheel they have seats for passengers who sit up and are hauled all round for a nominal sum. This is also their principal mode of freighting.

Our next stop was at Hong Kong. Here we saw for the first time that great Battle Ship the good old Kentucky, she outshone the finest of them, this finished our trip on the good ship Coptic on which we had a splendid trip and good weather.

We laid in Hong Kong the better portion of three days, waiting for a boat for Manila. I like Hong Kong. It is a British port and things are kept clean. The Sikhs, an Indian regiment, do police duty. The British seem to keep an awful lot of soldiers here. The principal inhabitants are, of course, Chinese. Here they also use the Jin-Rickshas as principal mode of conveyance. We climbed the hill overlooking the city. It is 13,500 feet high, a cable road going up the better portion of the way—the balance we went in Sedan chairs carried by Chinese Coolies. There is a magnificent view from the summit where ships can be sighted 50 miles out on a clear day.

At last we got our passage on the good ship Diamante, bound for Manila via Amoy. We stopped at Amoy a day. The less said about that dirty hole the better. The streets by actual measurement never reached four feet in width. We had to have a guide or we would have been lost. Across the bay, however, the Europocan settlement is well kept. Amoy has a history extending over 2000 years, and is recognised as one of if not the oldest city in the world; if it is not the oldest it is certainly the dirtiest.

After one or two days of real rough weather, off the island of Formosa, we arrived in Manila.

We saw where Dewey came in and what he did. It is history now. I was somewhat disappointed in Manila. The town is a large one of about 300,000 inhabitants. All houses, except two, I noticed were two stories high. Those two were three stories. The walls are of immense thickness, I presume to withstand earthquakes.

The city may be said to be divided into two cities—the official or walled city and the business city. There are no large stores. The natives are dark colored, sleepy looking individuals. There are a great deal more of them in the employ of the government as police, clerks and messengers than there are white men, and it is an actual fact that 90 per cent of them contribute out of their wages, each month, to the insurrectionary fund. The United States is paying them and they are contributing money to the Insurrectos to fight the United States. This fact alone occasions a good deal of comment among the Americans here.

It looks like the military party dont want to stop the war.

They are sure of good jobs while it lasts. Outside the cities an American is not safe, and, yet, you hear the continual rot that they are pacified. It is only yesterday, within a stone's throw of the city, two wagon loads of fresh beef were captured, also two soldiers, and two more badly wounded.

I should have mentioned that General Breckinridge was a passenger on the Diamante with us. We had some good old talks about Kentucky.

I expect to sail for San Francisco on the 2nd of Dec., go home the same route I came out on the Pacific Mail Steamer, Peking, from Hong Kong. Any body wishing to write me will find me at 103 sixth Street, San Francisco. Thanking you Mr. Editor, I am respectfully yours.

"THE IRON DID SWIM"

Sermon of Dr. Talmage from a Little-Used Text.

Lesson Drawn from Story of the Student and His Lost Ax Head and Its Recovery—Wonders of Divine Power.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage makes practical use of an occurrence in the orient which has seldom attracted particular attention. Text, 2 Kings 6:6: "The iron did swim."

A theological seminary in the valley of palms, near the river Jordan, had become so popular in the time of Elisha, the prophet, that more accommodations were needed for the students. The classrooms and the dormitories must be enlarged or an entirely new building constructed. What will they do? Will they send up to Jerusalem and solicit contributions for this undertaking? Will they send out agents to raise the money for a new theological seminary? Having raised the money, will the send for cedars of Lebanon and marble from the quarries where Ahab got the stone for the pillars and walls of his palace? Now the students propose to build it themselves. They were rugged boys who had been brought up in the country and who had never been weakened by the luxuries of city life. All they ask is that Elisha, their professor and prophet, go along with them to the woods and boss the job. They start for the work, Elisha and his students. Plenty of lumber in those regions along the Jordan. The sycamore is a stout, strong tree and good for timber. Mr. Gladstone asked me if I had seen in Palestine any sycamore tree more beautiful than the one we stood under at Hawarden. I told him I had not.

The sycamores near the Jordan are now attacked by Elisha's students, for they must have lumber for the new theological seminary. I suppose some of the students made an awkward stroke, and they were extemporized axmen. Stand from under! Crash goes one of the trees, and another and another. But something now happens so wonderful that the occurrence will tax the credulity of the ages, so wonderful that many still think it never happened at all. One of the students, not able to own an ax, had borrowed one. You must remember that while the ax of olden time was much like our modern ax, it differed in the fact that instead of the helve or handle being thrust into a socket in the iron head the head of the ax was fastened on the handle by a leathern thong, and so it might slip the helve. A student of the seminary was swinging his ax against one of those trees, and whether it was at the moment he made his first stroke and the chips flew or was after he had cut the tree from all sides so deep that it was ready to fall we are not told, but the ax head and the handle parted. Being near the river side, the ax head dropped into the river and sank to the muddy bottom. Great was the student's dismay. If it had been his own ax it would have been bad enough, but the ax did not belong to him. He had no means to buy another for the kind man who had loaned it to him, but God helps the helpless, and He generally helps through some good and sympathetic soul, and in this case it was Elisha, who was in the woods and on the river bank at the time. He did not see the ax head fly off, and so he asked the student where it dropped. He was shown the place where it went down into the river. Then Elisha broke off a brnnch of a tree and threw it into the water, and the ax head rose and floated to the bank, so that the student had just to stoop down and take up the restored property. Now you see the meaning of my text: "The iron did swim."

Suppose a hundred years ago some one had told people that the time would come when hundreds of thousands of tons of iron would float on the Atlantic and Pacific—iron ships from New York to Southnmpton, from London to Calcutta, from San Francisco to Canton. The man making such a prophecy would have been sent to an asylum or carefully watched as incompetent to go alone. We have all in our day seen iron swim. Now, if man can make hundreds of tons of metnl float, I am disposed to think that the Almighty could make an ax head float.

"What," says some one, "would be the use of such a miracle?" Of vnst, of infinite, of eternal importance. Those students were preparing for the ministry. They had joined the theological seminary to get all its advantages. They needed to have their faith strengthened; they needed to be persuaded that God can do everything; they needed to learn that God takes notice of little things; that there is no emergency of life where He is not willing to help. Standing on the banks of that Jordnn, those students of that day of the recalled ax head had their faith reenforced, and nothing that they had found out in the classrooms of that learned institution had ever done more in the way of fitting them for their coming profession.

I hear from different sources that there is a great deal of infidelity in some of the theological seminaries of our day. They think that the garden of Eden is an allegory, and that Moses did not write the Pentateuch, and that the book of Job is only a drama, and that the book of Jonah is an unreliable fish story, and that water was not turned into wine, and [illegible] that most of the so-called miracles of the Old and the New Testaments were wrought by natural causes. When those infidels graduate from the theological seminary and take the pulpits of America as expounders of the Holy Scriptures, what advocates they will be of that Gospel for the truth of which the martyrs died! Hail the Polycarps and Hugh Latimers and John Knoxes of the twentieth century, believing the Bible is true in spots! Would to God that some great revival of religion might sweep through all the theological seminaries of this land, confirming the faith of the coming expounders of an entire Bible!

Furthermore, in that scene of the text God sanctions borrowing and sets forth the importance of returning. I do not think there would have been any miracle performed if the young man had owned the ax that slipped the helve. The young man cried out in the hearing of the prophet: "Alas, master, for it is borrowed!" He had a right to borrow. There are times when we have not only a right to borrow, but it is a duty to borrow. There are times when we ought to lend, for Christ in His sermon on the Mount declared: "From him that would borrow of thee turn thou not away." It is right that one borrow the means of getting an education, as the young student of my text borrowed the ax. It is right to borrow means for the forwarding of commercial ends.

If in any assembly it were requested that those who had never borrowed hold up their hnnds, none would be lifted, or if here and there a hand were lifted we would know that it was a case of inveracity. Borrow! Why, we are borrowing all the time. We borrow from the Lord the sunlight that shows us the way, our water that slakes our thirst, the food that refreshes us three times a day, the pillow on which we slumber. We borrow gladness from our friends; we borrow all elevated surroundings. The church borrows all its beauty from the Christ who founded it. In our songs and sermons we borrow from the raptures of Heaven.

We borrow time; we will borrow eternity, and that constant borrowing implies return. For what we borrow from God we must pay back in hearty thanks and Christian service, in improvement of ourselves and helpfulness for others. For what we borrow in the shape of protection from good government we must pay back in patriotic devotion. For what we borrow from our parents in their good example and their hard work wrought for us in our journey from cradle to manhood and womanhood for all the ages to come we ought to be paying back.

Haydon, the painter, said his ruin began the day he began to borrow money, and he wrote in his diary: "Here began debt and obligation, out of which I have never been and never shall be extricated as long as I live." Dr. Johnson said: "Do not accustom yourself to consider debt only as an inconvenience. You will find it a calamity." We have a right to borrow for the absolute necessities, expecting to pay back again, but we ought never to borrow for the luxuries.

In the summer wandering places north, south, east and west, in the great hotels, serving at table and in baggage room, are theological students who are in preparation for the ministry, earning in July and August the means by which they may study the other months of the year. I hail them; I cheer them; I bless them. They will be the Herschels in the observatories, the Dr. Motts in your medical colleges, the Rufus Chantes in your courtrooms, the Bishop Mellvaines in your pulpits. Let them not now be ashamed of the ax with which they hew the beam for Elisha's seminary.

Let all those who toil for their education remember that they are especially favored, and if things go against them and the ax head should fly the helve that every hinderment may some time turn out advantageously, as the accident by the river Jordan, which seemed to finish the young student's capacity to helpbuild the new seminary, resulted in a splendid demonstration of the power of Elisha's God to help anyone who helped himself. No ax that was ever wielded has wrought so well as that ax, the handle and bend of which parted.

Notice, also, how God is superior to every law that He has made, even the strongest law of nature, the law of gravitntion. The stick that Elisha threw into the Jordan floated, but the ax head sank. By inexorable law it must go down into the depths of the Jordan, yet without so much as a touch the hard, heavy metal sought the surface. There it is, the floating ax head. What a rebuke to those who reject mirncles on the ground that they are contrary to nature, as though the law were stronger than the God who made the law! Again and again in Bible times was that law revoked! Witness the scene on the banks of the same Jordnn, where, in after time, the ax head sank and rose. Elijah stood there, wearing cape of sheepskin, when there was a mighty stir in the air and a flashing equipage descended. Elijah stepped into it, and on wheels of fire, drawn by horses of fire, he rose. Fifty men for three days searched the mountains to see if the body of Elijah had not been dropped nmong the rocks and picked at by birds of prey, but the search was in vain. The law of gravitntion had been defented.

Do not feel lonely becnuse your nearest neighbor may be miles away, because the width of the continent may separate you from the place where your cradle was rocked and your futher's grave was dug. Wakened though you may be by lion's roar or panther's scream, God will help you, whether at the time the forest around you raves in the midnight hurricane or you suffer from something quite insignificant, like the loss of an ax head. Take your Bible out under the trees, if the weather will permit, and after you have listened to the solo of a bird in the treetops or the long meter psalm of the thunder, read those words of the Bible, which must have been written out of doors: "The trees of the Lord are full of sap, the cedars of Lebanon which He hath planted, where the birds make their nests; as for the stork, the fir trees are her house. The high hills are a refuge for the wild goats and the rocks for the conies. Thou makest darkness, and it is night, wherein all the beasts of the forest do creep forth. The young lions roar after their prey and seek their meat from God. The sun ariseth, they gather themselves together and lay them down in their dens. Man goeth forth unto his work and to his labor until the evening. O Lord, how manifold are thy works! In wisdom has thou made them all. The earth is full of thy riches." How do you like that sublime pastoral?

My subject also reminds us of the importance of keeping our chief implement for work in good order. I think that young theological student on the banks of Jordan was to blame for not examining the ax before he lifted it that day against a tree. He could in a moment have found out whether the halve and the head were firmly fastened. The simple fact was the ax was not in good order or the strongest stroke that sent the edge into the hard sycamore would not have left the implement headless. So God has given every one of us an ax with which to hew. Let us keep it in good order, having been sharpened by Bible study and strengthened by prayer. The reason we sometimes fail in our work is beeause we have a dull ax or we do not know how aright to swing it. The head is not aright on the handle. At the time we want the most skill for work and perfect equilibrium we lose our head. We expend in useless excitement the nervous energy that we ought to hnve employed in direct, straightforward work. Your ax may be a pen or a type or a yardstick or a seales or a tongne which in legislative hall or business circles or Sabbath class or pulpit is to speak for God and righteousness, but the ax will not be worth much until it has been sharpened on the grindstone of affliction.

Go right through the world, and go right through all the past ages, and show me one man or woman who has done anything for the world worth speaking of whose ax was not ground on the revolving wheel of mighty trouble. It was not David, for he was dethroned and hnuaded by unfilial Absalom. Surely it was not Paul, for he was shipwrecked and whipped with 39 stripes from rods of elm wood on his way to beheadment. Surely it was not Abraham Lincoln, called by every vile name that human and satanic turpitude could invent and depicted by cartoonists with more meanness than any other man ever suffered, on the way to meet a bullet crashing through his temples.

But I have come to the foot of the Alps, which we must climb before we can see the wide reach of my subject. See in all this theme how the impossibilities may be turned into possibilities. That ax head was sunken in the muddiest river that could be found. The alarmed student of Elisha may know where it went down and may dive for it and perhaps fetch it up, but can the sunken ax head be lifted without a hand thrust deep into the mud at the bottom of the river? No; that is impossible. I admit, so far as human power is concerned, it is impossible, but with God all things are possible. After the tree branch was thrown upon the surface of Jordan "the iron did swim."

You have a wayward boy. Only God knows how you have cried over him. You have tried everything for his reformation. Where is he now—in this city, in this country, or has he crossed the sea? "Oh," you say, "I do not know where he is. He went away in the sulks and did not say where he was going." You have about made up your mind that you will never hear from him again. Pretty hard pay he gives you for all your kindness and the nights you sat up with him when he was sick. Perhaps he struck you one day when you were trying to persuade him to do better. How different was the feeling of that hard fist against your face from his little hand in infancy patting your cheek! Father! Mother! That is an impossible that I would like to see God take hold of, the conversion of that boy, for he will never be anything but a boy to you, though you should live to see him 50 years of age. Did you say his heart is hard? How hard? Hard as stone? "Yes," you say; "harder than that. Hard as iron." But here is a God who can lift the soul that has been deepest down. Here is a God who can raise a soul out of the blackest depths of sin and wretchedness. Here is a God who can make iron swim, the God of Elisha, the God of the young student that stood in disnay on the banks of the Jordan at the time of the lost ax head. Lay hold of the Lord in a prayer that will take no denial.

Alas, there are impossibilities before thousands of people—called to do work that it is impossible for them to do, called to bear burdens that it is impossible for them to bear, called to endure suffering that it is impossible for them to endure. Read all the Gospel promises, rally all your faith, and, while you will always be called to worship the God of hope, to-day, with all the concentrated energies of my soul, I implore you to bow down and worship the God who can turn the impossibles into the possibles. It was no trivial purpose, but for grand and glorious nses I have spoken to you to-day of the borrowed, the lost and the restored ax head.

COST OF LIVING AND WAGES.

Some Facts Regarding "Prosperity" Gleaned from a Reliable Source.

Dun's Review of Janunry 4, 1902, contains tables based upon quotations for 350 articles, with due allowance for the relative importance of each, showing that the cost of living is now greater in this country than ever before. The following are the "index" figures for January 1, 1890, July 1, 1897, January 1, 1900, and January 1, 1902:

1890, January 1—Breadstuffs, 13.765; meats, 7.629; dairy and garden, 12.675; other food, 9.355; clothing, 14.845; metals, 16.240; miscellaneous, 15.311. Total, 90.191.

July 1 (low)—Breadstuffs, 10.987; meats, 7.629; dairy and garden, 8.714; other food, 7.857; clothing, 13.808; metals, 11.642; miscellaneous, 12.288. Total, 72.465.

1900, January 1—Breadstuffs, 13.254; meats, 7.358; dairy and garden, 13.702; other food, 9.200; clothing, 17.484; metals, 18.085; miscellaneous, 16.312;. Total, 96.295.

1902, January 1—Breadstuffs, 20.002; meats, 9.670; dairy and garden, 16.248; other food, 8.863; clothing, 16.567; metals, 15.375; miscellaneous, 16.783. Total, 101.587.

The totals show that the cost of living was six per cent. greater in 1900 than in 1890; 31 per cent. greater in 1900 than in 1897; and 40 per cent. greater in 1902 than in 1897.

Judging by the cost of living we are certainly in the midst of record-breaking prosperity. This is also indicated by the distribution on the first of the year of the greatest dividends ever made on the bonds and stocks of railroads and industrial companies. We may also observe—what even the blind can see—that the last four years have been the greatest trust-forming period in our history. Nenrly every commodity is now controlled by some trust and is carried by railroads working in harmony. Of course, we know that trusts cheapen production and lower the cost of living, and that that is their chief reason for existing; but somehow prices nearly always go up when a trust is formed, and here we are at the beginning of 1902 with more trusts than ever before and prices at the highest notch ever recorded.

But of course we are enjoying unheard-of prosperity! Let no one deny this statement! If some pessimist tries to stir up antagonism between wage-earners and employers by pointing to this remarkable increase in the cost of living and by telling the wage-earners that the manufacturers are pocketing all the difference in price and that the wage-earners are not earning or getting more money now than formerly, tell this old croak that "not only are the wage-earners receiving much better pay than at the earlier date, but they are well employed." This is the language of Dun's Review, which further reassures us that "the rate of wages is of trifling importance when there is no work. It was estimated by labor experts at the time that 3,000,000 men were unable to find employment. This means that 15,000,000 persons were living on as little as possible, and consequently the consumptive demand was reduced to the lowest point. At the present time there is little difficulty in meeting the higher level of quotations, for there is full employment, and each man has only his own family to think of instead of a host of unfortunate relatives and friends, as was the case duriag the earlier period." * * * On the other hand, the wage-earner benefits by lower rents and better accommodations, which have followed the increase of money seeking investment and consequent fall in interest rates."

The Review also hastens to remind the wage-earner, who may not like the look of Dun's figures in regard to the cost of living, of the phenomenal growth in the deposits in savings banks and the increased amount of life insurance policies. These it says do not indicate that "the manufacturers and the capitalists are pocketing all the profits."

These statements are very comforting to the millions of workingmen who are too busy to read census statistics but who, although they are working harder than ever, find themselves falling behind from year to year and who are becoming so troublesome that some of the railroads are raising wages slightly to prevent strikes. In fact, not only has the cost of living greatly increased during the last ten yenrs, but wages, money wages, have been declining.

About the middle of December the Journal of Commerce and Commercial Bulletin of New York contained the following statement:

"Census bulletins for the manufactures of 24 territories, agricultural states and four small manufacturing states — Connecticut, Rhode Island, New Hnmpshire and Delaware—show in ten years an increase of 62 per cent. in capital invested and 61 per cent. in the value of output, of 37 per cent. in the number of wage-earners and 33 per cent. in the amount of wages."

According to census statistics then money wages were about three per cent. lower in 1900 than in 1890. Reports for South Carolina and Tennessee were made public December 30 and 31. The figures for South Carolina showed that average money wages were 20 per cent. lower in 1900 than in 1890. Those for Tennessee showed a decline of nine per cent. in wages. Dun's cost-of-living figures show an increase of six per cent. from 1890 to 1900. As compared with the 1890 wage-earner the 1900 wage-earner got 96 or 97 cents instead of one dollar for his labor while the cost of goods had gone up from one dollar to $1.06. Actual wages then declined over nine per cent. from 1890 to 1900. As both of these were considered to be prosperous years the comparison is entirely fair.

The cost of living rose over 40 per cent. from 1897 to 1902. Have average money wages risen half as much even after making allowance for the greater number of unemployed in 1897? But, the statisticians are telling us, there were more women and children employed in 1900 than in 1890. If so, why? Do we permit our wives, girls and boys to enter the workshop when our earnings are sufficient to support them in our homes and schools?

Either there is something wrong with our statistics or with our prosperity. Can it be possible that, in spite of the assertions of our trust statisticians, our boasted prosperity is, like the handle of a jug, all on one side and that the side of the protected trusts and monopolists?—Byron W. Holt.

SOME TRUST HISTORY.

How a Ship Building Combine Works Under Cover Until Established.

Moody's Manual of Corporation Securities, published last fall, contains three pages of information about the United States Shipbuilding company, a consolidation of five great shipbuilding plants, with a capital of $65,000,000. The five companies included are:

The Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Co., Newport News, Va.; the Union Iron works, San Francisco, Cal.; the Bath Iron works (limited), and the Hyde Windlass company, Bath, Me.; the Crescent Shipyard and the Samuel L. Moore Sons Co., Elizabethport, N. J.; the Canada Manufacturing company, Carteret, N. J.

All kinds of benefits were to flow from the consolidntion of these great plants, employing 24,000 men and consuming 275,000 tons of steel annually. Orders on hand amounted to $63,000,000, on which profits of $7,000,000 were estimated. Net earnings for the first three years were placed at $17,335,500. The directorate of the new trust includes, besides many of the officers of the constituent companies, H. P. Huntington, vice president of the Southern Pacific company; E. H. Harriman, chairman of board, Union Pacific Railway company, and Jesse Stillman, president of the National City (Standard Oil) bank.

The prospectus, which is reprinted in Moody's Manual, states that "The plan will become operative as soon as Messrs. H. W. Poor & Co. notify the Mercantile Trust company that the corporation has acquired the properties of the constituent companies."

Strange to say, no other of the many Wall street publications mentions this shipbuilding trust in their lists. Neither have they announced its failure. All information in regard to it appears to be suppressed. Those of the outsiders who are best informed say that the deal has gone through and that the consolidation is completed, but is not launched and probably will not be until the present congress has taken action on the pending Frye ship subsidy bill. It was thought that the launching of this trust would injure the fair prospects of the subsidy bill and that it was best to pigeonhole the affair for awhile and to refuse to give information to outsiders. In the meantime all hands are working overtime to get the Frye bill through congress. A few minutes, or possibly days, after the president has signed the bill, which will convey millions of our surplus each year to wealthy shipping companies, this $65,000,000 shipbuilding trust will be launched before an amazed country.

POINTS AND OPINIONS.

——Senator Elkins says that the president recently talked to him in a low tone of voice, but it was only about the weather.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——Mr. Foraker says some one has been lying about him. This would seem to be a clear waste of energy, when the truth would do just as well.—Atlanta Journal.

——It is reported that Gov. Shaw is "strongly opposed to dancing and to the use of liquors in any form." Got to Washington, though, just in time for the Roosevelt ball. He may be able to rescue the president from the cakewalk habit.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——It is said in Washington that the selection of Gov. Shaw was intended as a rebuke to Mark Hanna. However, Mr. Hanna is too busily engaged in rebuking Senator Foraker in Ohio and in being rebuked back again to bother about trifles like cabinet appointments.—Albany Argus.

——Roosevelt seems to be "in the saddle." That he means to strengthen himself with influences that will assure his nomination in 1904 is evident. His practical surrender to the protected interests, as shown in his message and his appointment of a "practical politician" to succeed Secretary Smith, are straws which indicate which way the wind is blowing.—Atlanta Constitution.

——The peril of the present system of trust capitalization is plain. The general public is in profound ignorance of trust conditions. Investors necessarily take undue chances when they buy trust securities. There should be at least a reasonable guarantee of safety to investors as well as to consumers. This guarantee must be found in publicity as one means of regulation.—St. Louis Republic.

——Monopoly, in whatever form, is taking from consumers by inflated capital more than a nominal price for commodities, is laying the foundation for a panic. When it reaches the point that the people can no longer pay the tribute demanded a stoppage, a shock and a demoralization are felt throughout the industrial fabric. If we would avoid panics, which come at regular intervals, we must destroy their cause—monopoly.—Buffalo Courier.

WHEN THE SNOW FALLS.

Curious Formation of Drifts as Observed in the Adirondack Mountains.

On a good drift-making day the snow comes, not in the star-shaped flakes that look so pretty when portrayed on a page of the dictionary, but in small pellets, writes John R. Spears in Scribner's. These pellets are in shape like tiny white footballs usunlly, and they come rolling and tumbling downwind as if they had been "kicked for fair" by the half-back gods of the gale! And yet while they roll and tumble and bound they find lodging places, and as the idler gazes he sees them pile up in a wall on the crest of the road cut. Higher and higher grows the pile, forming at first a vertical wall, but before this has risen three inches it is seen to overhang the gulch. Though round and easily rolled, these pellets in some way fit to each other as bricks would until the overhang is perhaps a fifth as great as the elevation of the wall, and then, marvelous and impossible as it would seem to the unaccustomed observer, a lip forms on the crest of the wall, and soon it begins to droop and hang down. Wider and longer it grows, farther and farther it droops, until its shape is precisely like the lip formed on a huge wave when it breaks on a shoal-water beach. Lips thnt are ten feet wide and hang down three feet clear of all, though but six or eight inches thick where they join the chin of the wall, are not uncommon. By what magic is it that these frozen, oblong pellets thnt go bounding along as merrily as footballs form into such a shape as that? Of course if the storm continues a time usually comes when the lips break off because of their growing weight. And then no new lip forms to replace the lost one. The snow merely drops over into the lee of the wall and generally fills the cutting.

Another curious feature of these lips is seen when they do not fall. A thaw may come—often does come—and spread a hardened skin over the lip to hold it on.

The most wonderful snowstorms of all that may be seen every winter in the Adirondacks are those that prevail when the sky is cloudless. Of these there are several varieties. Every week or two we would see what looked like a foghorn about the distant hills and then come drifting across the creek valley. Doubtless it was a real snow-laden cloud that had been drifting along until it struck our level (1,300 feet above the sea) in the Adirondacks, when the conditions became favorable for the release of its feathery burden. We saw these clouds fill the air with flakes that were driven along almost horizontally by a strong gale, although the tops of our old hemlocks and spruces rose into the clear air and unobstructed sunlight above the highest level of the snow-producing air stratum. We even saw the snow so thick in the air about us that the trunks of trees six feet above the earth were not visible, although the treetops could be seen, and the sun shone down through the shnllow storm with strength enough to cast distinct shndows. We have stood on a quiet sunlit hilltop and looked down into a valley less thnn a hundred feet below us, where a snowstorm was raging with violence and the temperature was frigid.

The Man and the Baby.

Once upon a time a father was sleeping soundly, while the mother was awake, sitting in bed with a crying baby in her arms, trying her utmost to quiet it. Finally her great stock of patience became exhausted.

"John," she said to her husband, as she pushed him with her foot, "please get up and carry the baby around the room for a few laps. The little darling is holding out his arms to you and crying for you to take him."

The aroused husband got out of his comfortable bed, took the baby from his wife and started on a four-mile tramp.

AGRICULTURAL HINTS.

HANDY DUMPING SLED.

For Hauling Manure and Dirt the Device Here Described Will Prove a Great Convenience.

The illustration, Fig. 1, shows a dumping sled for one or two horses, a convenience that will be much appreciated by many for hauling manure, dirt, etc. Take two pieces of 8-inch plank for runners, which connect with two cross-pieces of 2 by 4 scantling mortised into the planks. On inside of each runner, nail or bolt securely at required distance apart, two uprights of about 1½ by 5-inch material. The distance apart and length of these uprights will be dependent upon the length of the sled-box. Gouge out a V-shaped notch in top of each of the two rear uprights and make a square or rectangular notch in tops of two front ones. Make a box of the dimensions thought most suitable for the object in view, a little longer than broad, however, in all cases. Put a 2 by 4-inch crosspiece on bottom of box near the center. Round off the projecting ends of this cross-piece to fit in the tops of rear uprights of runners. Put another lighter cross-piece on bottom of box in front of the other, at right point to have its projecting ends rest in the top notches of the front uprights. Over the ends of the center cross-piece, that rest in the rounded notches, put iron straps or clips to prevent the ends of cross-piece from moving out of place and yet allow them to turn in the notches. The front of box can now be raised, the center cross-piece on bottom acting as a pivot by reason of its rounded ends.

A framework is put inside of the four uprights, extending under front of box and being braced as is shown in the illustration. To keep box from dumping while the sled is being loaded or in transit, the front end is fastened down to this framework by a hinge-hasp and staple, such as are used to hold shut the lid of a chest, a door, etc. If the cross-piece which acts as pivot is placed a little in front of box center, the sled when evenly loaded will dump itself as soon as hasp is disengaged; if a little to the rear of center, the front of box will have to be raised by hand when desiring to dump it. The exact location of the pivot cross-piece will, therefore, determine the ease of dumping, and the matter may be settled to suit the wishes of the builder of sled.

When the box is in its horizontal position and the hasp is fastened, insert a wooden or other pin in the hasp-staple in the place that would be occupied by a padlock were the hasp used as a door or lid latch. Make an end-gate at the rear of box. In Fig. 2, A shows the box inverted in order to explain fully the manner of applying the supporting cross-pieces.

While this kind of a dumping box could be used on any size of sled so far as the main idea is concerned, it would not be satisfactory if box were made too large, as the increased height of uprights in this case would make the sled inconvenient to load and handle. On a sled of a size adapted to one horse ordinarily or two horses in case of being loaded with very heavy material, the sled is very satisfactory. It is especially convenient to have this sled stand where the manure from the stable can be thrown into the box, and when full, hitch on the team and haul it to the field and dump it.—J. G. Allshouse, in Ohio Farmer.

An Evidence of Civilization.

Roads are at once a means and an evidence of civilization. The remains of the Roman highways testify of their advancement, and show how they carried Roman ideas to the utmost bounds of the empire. There is nothing our people more need than to "mend their ways;" nothing for which they would more willingly be taxed.—Rev. Philip L. Jones, American Baptist Publication Society, Philadelphia.

Famous Writer's Comment.

During the winter months I live in Arkansas. I may safely say that good toll roads through that state would be worth more than gold mines to its inhabitants. It is a state where almost every kind of fruit and vegetable can be cultivated; but the lack of good roads does almost as much to hinder a market as the general climate does to help.—Octave Thanet.

Get Out of the Mud.

In the constitution of human affairs we are obliged to travel knee deep and sometimes neck deep along the moral roads of life; and since it seems impossible to get macadam for these roads, it does seem that the organization of society and government might at least give us macadamized roads for our physical pilgrimage.—W. E. Harte, Boston.

MODEL COUNTRY ROAD.

Kept Up by the Farmers Living Alongside of It for Their Own Comfort and Convenience.

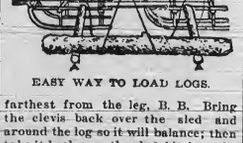
One of the best kept roads I know of anywhere is in Caldwell county, Mo., between Nettleton and Hamilton. I have driven over this road at all times of the year, but have never seen it rough or muddy. It is not because Missouri has superior road laws. There are roads in the state that would wreck a leather bag in a spring wagon. Neither is it because the township trustees compel the road overseer to attend to his business. Township trustees and road overseers here are about ordinary, but are ordinarily not about when needed.

This is the explanation. On each side of that road are fine farms. Beautiful farms with clean-cut hedges, well-kept orchards and fine meadows. On these farms are well-built, well-painted and nicely ornamented farm-houses, with beautiful lawns and trees about them. In those houses live progressive men, who have agreed that this road shall be well kept. Each man owns a scraper. Each farmer takes the piece of road along his farm, just as the city resident does his sidewalk. When one is busy, another takes care of his road. When a bridge is to be built they all come together and build it. The road is graded in the middle, so the water runs off at once. When it begins to get rough they run a scraper over it. During parts of the year they go over this road from three to six times a week. Sometimes even oftener.

It takes some time? Yes, but not half as much as it does some other men trying to sell their farms when they want to change. An average of three hours per week for each farm keeps the road. When they want to go to town, as they often do, the drive is a pleasure. It's a pleasure for other people, too, and when one of them wants to sell his farm he gets from five to ten dollars more per acre than if he were located at the side of end of a narrow gullied buggy-breaking bypath. Then they have free mail delivery along that road now. Some of the rest of us haven't, and I am told the road had something to do with it. —W. H. Hamby, in Orange Judd Farmer.

USE HOME MATERIAL.

A Road-Building Hint Which Applies with Equal Force to Character Building.



It is reported by the director of the office of public roads inquiries that a costly mistake is sometimes committed by districts which are anxious to improve the condition of the local roads. Through not having scientifically determined the comparative value of different materials, they use an unsuitable substance to harden the surface of the highway, when all the time there is at hand a more suitable material which can be obtained at less expense. If they knew their own resources they would not send away from home for what, after all, cannot be turned to as good account as the substances easily within reach.

If we are ever tempted to lament the lack of educational advantages—or whatever the particular drawback may be—in our neighborhood and to envy some more fortunately endowed locality, let us postpone our discontent until we have made the best of such things as we have. The library of our district is small, perhaps, in the number of books, but have we extracted all the marrow out of its Shakespeare and Milton? The society is uncultivated, but has not the narrowest member of it something to teach us? To build up a strong and even beautiful character, it is not necessary to travel very far; we may find all the material for it very near home.—Wellspring.

FOR LOADING LOGS.

An Arrangement Which Saves Lots of Labor and, in Some Cases, Lots of Profanity.

Arrange two stout timbers, A A, with one end of each on the ground and the other on the sled or wagon. Double a 1¼-inch rope of suitable length. Loop the middle through a clevis, so it will not slip. Tie the ends of the rope to the side of the sled farthest from the log, B, B. Bring the clevis back over the sled and around the log so it will balance; then take it back over the sled, hitch on the team at D and go ahead. Have a wood rack on the sled and remove the stakes from the side on which the log is received.—L. E. Emmons, in Farm and Home.

Good Roads and Churches.

Better roads often mean better church attendance. It is not without significance that the Jews were commanded to "prepare the way of the Lord." To "gather out the stones," and to "take up the stumbling blocks," may be a duty in a literal as well as a figurative sense. The invitation: "Let us go up to the house of the Lord," would be often more effectual if it were not so difficult a thing to get there.—Rev. D. F. Lamson, Manchester, Mass.

The most fertile sources of disease in poultry are lice and filth. Next come unsuitable quarters, improper feeding and overcrowding.

LADY SELBORNE IN POLITICS.

Marquis of Salisbury's Eldest Daughter Wields a Very Great Influence.

The English prime minister's eldest daughter, countess of Selborne, a very clever, remarkable woman, is regarded by many as the one of all Lord Salisbury's eight children who most resembles him in clearness of judgment and intelligent appreciation of passing events. The women of the Cecil family have always been noted for their great qualities.

Lady Selborne has been one of the most successful of political hostesses in the last six years. When as Lady Beatrix Maud Cecil her engagement to the then Viscount Wolmer was announced there was a sensation, for her chosen husband was known as a typical liberal of the old school, while her father was a tory of tories. The wedding was a great political as well as social event nine years ago, the leading members of the two parties doing honor to the pair.

The bride evidently won her husband over, for he became under secretary of the colonies under Lord Salisbury in 1895, and held that post until the reorganization of the cabinet this year, when he was made first lord of the admiralty.

TWO ORIGINAL CONTINENTS.

Dr. A. E. Ortman, Princeton Professor, Corroborates Theories of Vonibering and Hedleys.

Dr. A. E. Ortman, curator of invertabrate paleontology in Princeton university, Princeton, N. J., has made a discovery as to the original locations and situations of the continents. The discovery adds to the evidence of the correctness of Vonibering and Hedley's theory, which is that formerly there existed only two main continents, known to scientists as Archelenos and Archelotos. He did this by noting the geographical distribution of the fresh water crayfish. The continents on which the crayfish are found must originally have been connected, forming one main continent, and the places where the fish do not occur must have formed another continent. Archhelenos is the name given by scientists to the continent on which the crayfish did not occur, and consisted of what is now India, Africa and tropical America. The other continent, called Archinotos, consisted of the southern part of South America, Australia, the Antarctic regions and the eastern part of Asia.

MARRIED BY TELEPHONE.

A Wedding Ceremony Is Performed in Georgia Over a Long Distance Line.

A wedding ceremony over the long distance telephone line from Bowden, Ga., to Carrolton, Ga., was performed the other night.

C. W. McDonald and Miss E. V. Craben, an eloping couple from over the Alabama line, fled to Bowdon as a safe place of refuge, and determined to use the wires to hasten the ceremony and thwart any possible interference from pursuing parents.

The operator at Bowdon phoned the operator at Carrolton to secure a license and a minister. The services of the latter could not be obtained, so a justice of the peace was substituted. In a few minutes the license was procured, and the ceremony was performed by Justice J. T. Norman, of that place.

Witnesses at several way stations and the terminal overheard the ceremony, and at its close offered their congratulations. Payment of fees and other necessary details were arranged through the phone.

FASHIONS IN WORDS.

"Lady" and "Party" Are Now Coming Back Into Favor After Long Disuse.

A word that is gradually coming into its own again after a period of neglect is "lady." After having been overworked until it lost its significance, the word was suddenly subdued and expelled from all polite, if not educated conversation.

Now there is a tendency to receive "lady" back into the modish vocabulary. The word is occasionally heard in the talk of persons who flatter themselves that they speak the latest New Yorkese. But it must be uttered with a slight emphasis in order to show that the word has just been taken up, says the New York Sun.

"Party" has after a term of banishment been restored to high favor in drawing-room conversation. Only a few years ago the word was as much scorned as "lady" in circles that were supposed to be critical in details of such importance. It was never heard.

But now "party" is among the overworked words of the fashionable vocabulary and is added to every term of description.

Thus one hears of "musical parties," "dancing parties," and so on throughout the whole category.

His Resolution.

"I have made a good resolution to-day," said Mr. Sourdropp.

"And what was that?" asked Miss Oldgirle.

"Well, you know I have been a bachelor for 42 years, and now I have resolved—"

"Oh, this is so sudden," murmured Miss Oldgirle, getting ready to fall into his arms.

"I have resolved," he continued, with some sternness, "to be a bachelor for 42 years more."—Baltimore American.

Bringing With it Catarrhal Diseases of All Kinds---Pe-ru-na Cures.

A Singer's Experience.

MISS MAUD PALMER

Miss Maud Palmer, "The Willows," Catarraugi, Ont., is a singer of local note. She writes:

"I acknowledge with thanks the value of Peruna as a splendid remedy in case of a severe cold. Last winter I caught a cold and did not pay the proper attention to it until it got so bad that I could not attend to my regular work. My aunt advised me to try Peruna and I commenced taking it at once. Within three days I found great relief. In ten days I was not entirely well but my system was toned up, and I felt much stronger than I had before. We keep it on hand, and if any member of the family feels sick a dose or two of Peruna is all that is needed to cure."

Winter is half over. People are continuing to catch colds, and not a house but hears the winter cough. People are trying to get something to cure these troubles which are almost inevitable at this time of the year. It can safely be said that nine-tenths of the people in the United States have a cold some time during the winter. There is one remedy which will prevent colds and cough and cure them with certainty when contracted. This remedy is Peruna. Taken with regularity during the winter months it will entirely prevent colds, coughs, la grippe, consumption, bronchitis or pneumonia. It will also cure without failure catarrh and recent cases of consumption, and often in advanced stages.

Everybody should have the 64-page book on catarrh and winter diseases which is being sent free by The Peruna Medicine Co., of Columbus, Ohio.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Peruna can be purchased at any first-class drug store at $1.00 per bottle.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Thousands of Women Have Kidney Trouble and Never Suspect it.

To prove what The Great Kidney Remedy, Swamp-Root, will do for YOU, every reader of this paper may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail.

Women suffer untold misery because the nature of their disease is not always correctly understood; in many cases when doctoring, they are led to believe that womb trouble or female weakness of some sort is responsible for their ills, when in fact disordered kidneys are the chief cause of their distressing troubles.

Nervousness, headache, puffy or dark circles under the eyes, a dragging pain or dull ache in the back, weakness or bearing down sensation, profuse or scanty supply of urine, frequent desire to pass it night or day, with scalding or burning sensation,—these are all unmistakable signs of kidney and bladder trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy, stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. A trial will convince anyone.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

When the heart is acting badly, have you ever thought that it may be due to kidney trouble, as is often the case?

Other symptoms showing that you need Swamp-Root are sleeplessness, dizziness, sallow, unhealthy complexion, plenty of ambition but no strength.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is used in the leading hospitals, recommended by physicians in their private practice, and is taken by doctors themselves, because they recognize in it the greatest and most successful remedy that science has ever been able to compound.

If you are already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere.

DOCTOR AFTER DOCTOR.

"None of Them Suspected that the Cause of My Trouble Was Kidney Disease."

MRS. SCOTT.

VINTON, IOWA, JULY 15th, 1901.

In the summer of 1899, I was taken violently ill. My trouble began with pain in my stomach, so severe that it seemed as if knives were cutting me. I was treated by two of the best physicians in the county, and consulted another. None of them suspected that the cause of my trouble was kidney disease. They all told me that I had cancer of the stomach, and would die. I grew so weak that I could not walk any more than a child a month old, and I only weighed sixty pounds. One day my brother saw in a paper your advertisement of Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy. He bought me a bottle at our drug store and I took it. My family could see a change in me for the better, so they obtained more and I continued the use of Swamp-Root regularly. I was so weak and run down that it took considerable time to build me up again. I am now well, thanks to Swamp-Root, and weigh 140 pounds, and am keeping house for my husband and brother, on a farm. Swamp-Root cured me after the doctors had failed to do me a particle of good.

MRS. GERTRUDE WARNER SCOTT.

EDITORIAL NOTICE.—Swamp-Root, the great Kidney, Liver and Bladder remedy, is so remarkably successful that a special arrangement has been made by which all our readers who have not already tried it may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail. Also a book telling all about kidney and bladder troubles and containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured by Swamp-Root. In order that your request for sample bottle may have immediate attention be sure and mention reading this generous offer in this paper when sending your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Hicks and J. R. Thompson dined with Mr. and Mrs. John Satchwell, Sunday.

Miss Marietta Riley was given a surprise party Wednesday night of last week. It was her birthday. All had a merry time.

The Ladies' Society met with Mrs. John Williams Jan. 18, and were high ly entertained. Miss Alva served delicious refreshments.

There will be services at the Presbyterian church the fourth Sunday morning, conducted by Rev. Chas. Delhl, of Crescent Springs.

Our little town was thrown into quite a state of excitement, Thursday morning. Mrs. Sallie Burkitt's home was discovered in flames. Help soon reached them and very little damage was done.

JACOB'S WELL.—Mrs. Sallie Tanner is dangerously ill of measles.

Sorry to hear that Miss Susie Snyder is quite ill.

Mrs. Dell Barlow was the guest of Mrs. Mamie Utz, last Friday.

W. P. Utz and family spent Sunday with his father at Gunpowder.

Mr. Harmon Klepten, of Cincinnati, is spending several days at Mr. Joseph Scott's.

Arthur Houston, of Union, was visiting his brother, Sumner, of this place, last Thursday night.

Miss Fannie Osborn, of Florence, was calling on Misses Fannie and Bessie Houston, last Sunday.

Geo. Bradford and wife, of Constance, passed through this neighborhood, last Thursday, enroute to visit friends at Union.

Mr. Drinkenberg, a great fancier of Berkshire hogs, killed and dressed the runt of his lot, one day last week, which netted 630 pounds.

Michael Dennedy, one of our nearest neigabors and friends, has had a steel trap set for 25 years, but in place of catching that which he wanted, he had to be satisfied with a hawk, weighing 4½ pounds.

Joseph Scott, our leading Jersey cattle breeder, shipped, a few days since, to Dr. W. S. Blackhart, of Cincinnati, for his farm at Reading, Ohio, the following registered Jersey cattle: Male calf, Tormentor's Tormentor 50952, St. Lambert's Nannie, Miss Vemicon's Beauty, Harry's Ravolit, Fayette Fury, Carris Greenville, Metafriel's Beauty. These cattle were purchased for foundation stock to build a herd upon by the doctor.

CRESCENT, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Minnie Collins was calling on Miss Ida Rector, last Thursday.

Mrs. Laura Williams is on the sick list.

Will Cahill is dangerously ill with typhoid fever.

Mrs. Tom Rice is confined to her room with the grip.

We hear that Doc. Tanner, of Gunpowder, is critically ill.

The graphophone entertainment at the Banklick school house, Friday night, was quite largely attended.

Miss Lucy Fleming, of Chicago, who is visiting her niece, Mrs. Jasper Carpenter, is very low with pneumonia.

Hubert Carpenter and G. C. Baker, our operator at Dixon, were calling on friends in Cincinnati, on Tuesday last.

Chas. Tanner, who is living on the Wm. Stephens farm, will move to Cincinnati next week, where he has secured a position.

James Glass has sold his tobacco to Booth at Walton, for 5½ cents around. Several crops have been sold in this vicinity, but we did not learn the prices paid.

John Brame, of Covington, entertained quite a large crowd with his graphophone, at the home of John Couner, of Richwood, on Thursday evening.

Thos. Northcutt, who has been spending several weeks with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Northcutt, has returned to Lexington, where he will resume his position with the Q & C railroad.

Some one reported, while we were enjoying a mild case of pneumonia, that we were about to "pull for the other shore;" but we think, that, unless we allow a brick house to fall upon us, or insist upon having right of track over some freight train, or forsake the Democratic party, that we shall continue to push the pencil for the RECORDER.

WALTON, Jan. 20.—Parties were given consecutively on Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights by members of the younger set, but little could be learned about the particulars. Two of them were at the residence of Mr. Will Houston, to-wit: Those of Thursday and Saturday nights. All that could be learned was that there would be supper and no desert; the youth giving the information ingenuously asserting that when desert was on the program the guests devoted their time to eating that could be more pleasantly devoted to playing. There has been any amount of fun to the youngsters the past week.

The foundation of the High street bridge is in a bad condition and a force will be put on this week to repair it.

Joseph Glenn lost his valuable three year-old Rene Wilkes colt by lung fever. His son Herbert while assisting in taking off his hide, cut himself very badly in the left arm.

Hon. Ben Stephens paid us another visit, last week, and seems to be very much interested in the game law. Had he accepted the nomination for the legislature, which his friends wished him to do, he might now be in Frankfort fighting his best for the good of his constituents.

Mrs. M. N. Northcutt, of Covington, paid a visit, last week, to her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Holder. She has a protege in a three year old neighbor's daughter, who is already a past mistress in using slang. She astounded her mother the day before Christmas by appearing before her with a stock of holiday toys saying, "I'm a son of a gun mamma, if Santa Claus has made a sneak on us."

John Woods, of Louisville, has taken the Tomlin tobacco warehouse and is buying to ship and sell in Louisville tobacco market. He says that he will buy here and can pay as good prices and maybe better, than any other house. Mr. Glasscock is not by any means idle and is riding day and night. Mr. Woods and he are great friends and have known each others strong points, so there is some fun ahead for the farmers.

Mr. and Mrs. Jno. W. Thomas will move from the Phoenix Hotel on or before the 1st of March. Two years ago when they took the house it was "run down" almost totally. By the indomitable energy and excellent management of Mrs. Thomas it has again become a respectable hotel. It now enjoys a good reputation with commercial men and is characterized by them as the best house on their routes. Mrs. Thomas is an exceptionally good house keeper and has been noted as well as all the daughters as one of the best cooks in Boone county. It is understood that they have taken the Kentucky House at the urgent solicitation of her town boarders and the commercial travelers who are loth to be left to the ministration of strange landladies.

One of the most delightful society events of the season was the progressive carrom party given by Miss Sallie Rachal Herndon at her sister's, Mrs. J. L. Adams, Wednesday evening, January 15th. Numbered among the guests were Misses Edna May Ransler, Mary Rouse, Myrtle May Jones, Mary Isabel Bagby, Harriet Virginia Edwards, Lula Jones, Gertrude Arlington Curley, Lucy Fields and Mrs. Walter Rouse; Messrs. Harry Leyon Eskew, Claud Elliston Ford, John Quincy Adams, Fred Orvill Eskew, Ben Bagby Tomlin, Walter Lafayette Rouse, Dr. Bruce, Metcalfe, Rob Milton Ryland, Dr. Jacob Franklin Cleek, Dr. James Lee Adams. Trophies were awarded to Mr. Fred Eskew and Miss Edwards. Dainty refreshments were served, and the merry faces of the guests in addition to the handsome costumes of the ladies, made the scene in the dining room too picturesque for words to describe. Miss Herndon was handsomely gowned in Paris mousselin over pink taffeta; Miss Rouse wore white silk with gold trimming; old rose and black peau de soi enhanced Miss Ransler's dark beauty; Mrs. Adams was stately in white silk with pearl ornaments; Miss Bagby's dress of white chiffon and velvet was very becoming; white organdie over silk added to Miss Myrtle Jone's attractiveness; Miss Edward's dress of blue taffeta suited well her blonde beauty; Miss Curley looked charming in green and black; Mrs. Rouse was very handsome in pink silk; Miss Leia Jones wore pale green with trimmings of real lace; Miss Fields was beautiful in black satin. A musical program was well rendered — two members deserving special mention, viz: the singlug by Messrs. Harry and Fred Eskew, and the selections on the mandolin and guitar by Misses Jones and Herndon. The guests will always remember with pleasure this party, as Miss Herndon is famous in Walton society for her hospitality and the charming manner in which she always entertains her friends.

Don't criticise our prices until you have investigated. We wish a trial.

ESKEW'S, Walton, Ky.

RICHWOOD.—Mrs. M. Grubbs is much better.

O. F. Glacken lost a cow last week.

Little Elmer Glacken is not very well.

Mr. and Mrs. C. Rector, of Kenton, were visiting Jas. Carpenter, Sunday.

Batty Long gave a party in honor of his daughter, Miss Fannie, last week.

Wm. Woodward and wife were the guests of John E. Carpenter's, Sunday

Ely Carpenter and wife spent Sunday with Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Carpenter.

Walter Grubbs and wife were visiting at Thos. Rice's, at Crescent, Sunday.

Mr. Cramin and sister, of Covington, were guests at Bud Carpenter's, Sunday.

Wm. Taliaferro shipped his household goods from here to Corinth, last Monday.

Roads are in finer condition for this time of year than they have been in a long time.

The Misses Cleek gave their young friends a delightful party, last Saturday evening.

Two doctors examined Covle Carpenter, last week, and report his condition as serious.

J. W. Dixon, of Crescent, left last Wednesday for a visit of six weeks to relatives in Florida.

Jasper Booth had a woodsawing, Thursday, followed by a dance to the young folks, that night.

From reports our rural mail scheme has gone glimmering. It seems that another route has preceded ours.

Albert Byland is boarding with Cary Carpenter, having secured a position at the Pullman shops in Ludlow.

It is rumored that Wm. Carpenter will, in the spring, move to the house occupied by the late Lewis Rice.

Clarence Tanner has accepted a position with Early & Daniel, of Covington, and will have a sale on the 28th, after which he will move to the city.

James T. Carpenter has secured a remission of a portion of the fine adjudged against him last spring by the Boone Circuit Court, through the clemency of Gov. Beckham.

Many attended William Taliaferro's sale, last Wednesday. Prices were as follows: Corn, 80 cents per bushel; fodder, 30 cents per shock; horses from $30 to $94; cows, $17 to $39; sheep, $2 to $4 50. Mr. Taliaferro has moved to Corinth to take charge of the hotel and livery business carried on by the late M. W. Neal.

CONSTANCE.—Capt. Louie Kottmyer is now a citizen of our town.

A. L. Loder has been very sick.

Mrs. Duly Peno is very ill of consumption.

The Sunday schools have been discontinued on account of measles.

Henry and Louie Kottmyer have leased their father's ferry at $1,000 a year.

Chas. Otten and a Miss Owens, of Augusta, were married in Covington, last Friday.

James Manord, who shot John Miller at Anderson's Ferry, lived in Stringtown.

Mrs. Huff and her two children have recovered from pneumonia and typhoid fever.

Everybody in attendance at the dance in Tanner's storeroom, the other night, reports a good time

There are 60 or 70 cases of measles in Constance and Stringtown. Mr. Jackson and his family of six are down with it.

The Dunkard's new church was dedicated at Stringtown, Sunday. It is a nice edifice, 20x30, and will seat 120 persons. At the night services the members took the Lord's Supper, engaged in foot washing and took the holy kiss. Meeting has been in progress there all week.

HATHAWAY, Jan. 20.—A. J. Utz is not expected to live many days.

E. R. Smith is very low.

The roads in this vicinity are as good as are seen in summer time.

Lewis Rector has moved to J. S. Mason's place near Big Bone church.

Misses Suale and Lena Rector were guests of Miss Pearl White, last Friday.

Mrs. Myrtle Sebree was the guest of Mrs. Cynthia White, Tuesday evening.

Miss Pearl White spent several days last week, with her brother near Burlington.

Ed Williams, of East Bend, has typhoid fever, and is in a dangerous condition.

Several at this postoffice received their first consignment of garden seeds from Congressman Goodin, last Saturday. As the writer, A. O. Hall and several other such gardeners were remembered, it is supposed that the lettuce, parsley, tomatoes, &c., are a new kind, and it was desired to get them into the hands of experienced gardeners that they may be properly developed.

Dr. Selker, the optician, who came here on Monday of last week, was arrested on Friday, charged with peddling without a license, and in lieu of bond for his appearance at Circuit Court at its next term to answer an indictment that may be found against him on that charge, he deposited $50 with the trustee of the jury fund of the county. If a case is made against Dr. Selker he can not obtain a license in this county under six months, should he so desire.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West Indis Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by all Druggists.

Master Harris Sproles has been quite ill for several days.

Judge Lassing began holding Circuit Court at Carrollton, Monday.

Atty. S. Gaines and wife spent Sunday with W. C. Goodridge and wife.

Esq. Solon Early, of Petersburg, was transacting business here, last Saturday.

N. E. Riddell spent a few days last week with the law-makers at Frankfort.

Miss Artie Hughes returned home, last week, from a pleasant visit to relatives in Kenton county.

Kirby Crisler, of the Union precinct, was in town Saturday. He looked like he is wintering well.

H. W. Blyth, of Petersburg, came up with tax supervisor Berkshire, Monday, and spent the day in town.

J. L. Riley and Addison Riddell, of the northern part of the county, were among the visitors in town, Friday.

Miss Anna Cowen fell, Monday, and cut an ugly gash in one of her ears. Dr. Rouse took several stitches to close the wound.

John Furlong came out from Covington, Saturday evening and remained until Sunday with his sisters, Misses Mary and Catharine.

Omer Clutterbuck and wife, Roy Clutterbuck and Mrs. Adna Hall were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Clore, of Bullittsburg, Sunday.

Everett Dixon, of Limaburg, came in, Monday, and not only moved his subscription up a notch, but added another name to our list.

John W. Gaines, of the Plattsburg Highlands, was doing business in Burlington, Friday. He appears to be regaining his health some.

C. E. Tanner, of Limaburg, was in to see us, Monday. He is a leading Chesterwhite breeder, and has some very fine hogs of that stock.

Mr. Henry Terrill, of Los Angeles, Cala., favored the RECORDER with a Mid Winter copy of the Times of that city. It was an interesting number.

Several persons met at Old Gunpowder church, last Saturday, and cleaned it up for services, which are to be held there to-night by Rev. S. M. Adams, of Walton.

James Hogan showed up here again last Thursday, the first time since he left at the beginning of the holiday period. He appears to have fared well while absent from his usual haunts.

Leonard Kite and L. S. Pope, Waterloo neighborhood, made the RECORDER a pleasant call, last press day. They reported the dirt roads they traveled that day in excellent condition—like summer time.

David Williamson, of Beech Grove neighborhood, was in town Saturday. He has purchased a home, a portion of the late John J. Ryle farm. He says that the best sale of tobacco down that way was made by Elmore Ryle, at 6 cents all round.

Lewis A. Smith, of Palatka, Florida, sent the RECORDER a calendar containing a picture of the hyacith beds in the St. Johns river. These flowers have become an obstruction to navigation; and the goverument is expending a large sum of money in an effort to exterminate them.

John Scothoru, of Francesville, was in town, one day last week, selling a History of America. It is a comprehensive book, and will be a valuable acquisition to any library. John is a hustler, and a liberal patronage is bespoken for him, as he is crippled so as to render manual labor for a support almost impossible. Give him an order.

Henry Afterkirk, one of the most successful tillers of the soil in Beaver neighborhood, was in town, Monday. He came to have a sitting with the Supervisors of Tax in the interest of his brother, but when the board explained that a clerical error in the books made it appear that the property had been raised when in reality it had not, he was satisfied.

Local real estate changed owners rapidly Monday. Geo. Blyth sold his farm of 37 acres adjoining town, to Mr. Jackson, of Scott county, for $3,600. He then bought for $2,000 the house and 8 acres of land owned and occupied by O. P. Conner, and 22 acres of Everett Hall adjoining it, for $600. It is evident the sign was right Monday. Real estate agent Vest pulled off the Jackson-Blyth trade.

The fame of Bucklen's Arnica Salve, as the best in the world, extends round the earth. It's the one perfect healer of Cuts, Corns, Burns, Bruises, Sores, Scalds, Boils, Ulcers, Felons, Aches, Pains and all Skin Eruptions. Only infallible Pile cure. 25c a box at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue.

A suit has been filed in San Francisco to break the will of the late James F. Brown, who died in California in December, 1900, which materially concerns some Grant County people. Brown left an estate valued at $80,003, mostly in cash and Government bonds. Shortly before he died he visited this part of the country. Near Crittenden, Grant county, live a number of his nieces and nephews. They differed, it is alleged, and Brown became angry and left the bulk of his property to the four legatees—Vina, Ella, Polly and John Brown, with whom, it is claimed he got along. The disinherited relatives have brought suit to recover the part of the estate each would have been inherited by law.

To the Trustees and Teachers of Boone county:

I have been asked, repeatedly, if a teacher is allowed time for attending the Institute. I quote from section 140 of the Common School Laws: "The time of actual attendance upon the Institute in days and parts of days shall be accredited to the teacher, if the Institute be held during the session of his school." The above is sufficiently plain without comment.

Examination for Common School Diplomas, will take place in Burlington on the last Thursday (the 30th) of this month. Those wishing to take said examination, will please be there at 9 a. m. D. M. SNYDER, Sup't.

NEIGHBORHOOD NEWS.

MOUNDFIELD FARM, Jan. 20.—Mrs. Amanda Graves was the pleasant guest of her son, Willie and family, last Friday.

Aaron Carder has sold his farm of 50 acres to John Popham. Consideration, $2,500.

The remains of little Charlie Rouse, were buried in the Hebron cemetery, last Saturday.

Miss Pauline Winston, of Idlewild, is visiting her sister, Mrs. Mamie Stephens, at Hebron.

Mrs. Lou Roberts, of the Burlington neighborhood, was visiting at her brother's, Willie Grave's, one day last week.

C. W. McFee spent a day with us, last week. He is one of the up-to-date farmers of the north end of the county.

Sam Aylor is talking of trading his huckster route to Early & Daniels for their grain and feed store. Will know next week whether it is a go or not.

Mrs. Edna Linfoot, of Covington, and Miss Grace Bradford, of Connersville, Indiana, were pleasant guests of Mr. Robert Bradford and family, one day last week.

Mrs. Jennie Aylor, wife of Perry L. Aylor, died on the 14th inst., of diabetis. Funeral services were held at the Hebron church on the 17th, Rev. Edgar Jones officiating. The remains were put in the vault.

From some cause, either a typographical error, or my own fault, Mrs. Batterson's name does not appear as one of the guests at the big spread at Mrs. Graham's last week. She is all broken up about it, and in order to put her right before the public, will say that she was certainly there.

Speaking of how long a sheep can live without water, William Seekman said he had a lamb to get covered up with hay, in one of his mows, last harvest, and a few days ago, he moved the hay and found the lamb, which was alive and in fine fix. It had had no chance to get water during the time it was imprisoned, and had subsisted on hay entirely.

Addison Batterson and Miss Pearl Moore, formerly of this county, were married at the Methodist parsonage in Cleves, Ohio, by Rev. Hypes, on the 15th inst. A royal reception was given them by their parents and friends at Moundfield that night. They were the recipients of many useful and handsome presents, among which were a set of silver knives and forks by Mrs. Nancy Tomlinson; set silver spoons, Mrs. Carrie Mabery; silver coffee pot, Misses Marjorie and Eloise Davison; silver butter dish, Mrs. J. W. Davis; table cloth and pair linen towels, Mr. and Mrs. Mannin; table cloth and one dozen napkins, Dr. and Mrs. Sayre; dresser scarf, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Ernst; W. A. Bullock, silver olive spoon; Jas. Bullock, pair towels; Misses Zsita and Mamie Ernst, silver sugar shell and butter knife; hand painted china cup and saucer, Mrs. Carrie Davison; table cloth and dozen napkins, Miss Nannie Scothoru; table cloth and napkins, Mrs. Batterson; pair linen towels, Mrs. Nellie Markland; worsted bed quilt, Mrs. Anna Graham. Add and his wife left for Pueblo, Colorado on the 16th, where they expect to make their future home.

VERONA, Jan. 19.—Master Roy Donovau, who has been spending a few days with Bryan Craven, returned to his home in Cincinnati, Wednesday.

Died, wife of Joseph Riggs, after a lingering illness of a complication of diseases. She leaves a husband and one son to mourn her loss. Burial at Walton.

W. H. Aldrich, of Battle Creek, Mich., after spending several days with T. W. Craven, returned to his work in Ohio, where he is engaged with the Erie Canal St. R. R. Co.

Willie Riley and Miss Belle Flynn, of this place, were married on the 15th inst., at the Catholic Church, Rev. Kavenaugh officiating. May the richest blessings accompany them in this life, is the wish of their many friends.

"The young, the lovely pass away." Death is always sad, and doubly so when its victims are the young. On the 17th of Jan., 1902, the spirit of little Willie, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Dempsey, left its earthly habitation and returned to its maker, after an illness of several days of measles. The sympathy of the community goes out to the bereaved and devoted parents. May they find consolation in the thought that though Willie can not come to them, they can go to him in that land where partings are no more. We commend them to Christ, Who is a refuge and an ever present help in trouble.

EARTHQUAKE SHOCKS

Many People Killed and Wounded in Chilpancingo, Mexico.

The State Capitol, Parish Church and Many Business Houses and Residences at Chilpancingo Are Totally Destroyed.

Mexico City, Jan. 18.—One of the most terrible catastrophes in the history of the state of Guerrero is reported to have occurred when an extremely violent earthquake shock was felt at Chilpancingo, causing a great loss of life and injuring many persons. Details from the stricken district are very meager, but scattering reports received here indicate that probably 300 persons were killed and as many more injured. It is known that the state capitol, the parish church and many business houses and residences are in ruins and there is much suffering as a result of the awful seismic disturbance. One of the edifices that suffered most was the Federal telegraph office, which explains the paucity of news that has so far reached this city. Meager details finally began to arrive here. The telegraph lines and apparatus at Chilpancingo were badly damaged, but the employes, all of whom were uninjured, quickly proceeded to erect an improvised telegraph office on the outskirts of the city.

The number of deaths was greater in the parish church than in any single place, as a crowd of worshipers were gathered there for the afternoon service. The solid masonry-walled roof came toppling down on the worshipers and several people were killed.

The war department has ordered troops in the neighborhood to co-operate in the work of rescue. Until this work is completed it will be impossible to accurately learn the number of victims. It is believed, however, that this is one of the most destructive seismic phenomena that has occurred in Mexico. The greater part of the population of Chilpancingo are now camping out under tents around the town, which is five days' journey from the national capital.

Earthquake shocks were felt in many other cities and towns. In Mexico City the earthquake took place at 5:17 o'clock, and was of such violence as to shake the most substantial buildings. The Pan-American congress was in session at the time and many of the delegates were greatly alarmed. The first movement here was one of trepidation and was very sharp. It was followed by an essier oscillatory movement north-northwest to south-southwest. The duration was 55 seconds. The damage in this city was only slight.

The state of Guerrero has always been the scene of seismic disturbances. Reports received here state that the shock was very severe at Chilapa. No casualties are so far reported from there.

The earthquake was also intense at Igusla, in the state of Guerrero, destroying the parish church and many buildings in the city and neighborhood. Among the latter was the sugar mill of Gen. Frisbie, an American. The mill had just been completed and fitted up with American machinery at a cost of $200,000. The property loss is immense throughout the state of Guerrero.

WEEKLY OCEAN MAIL SERVICE.

Post Office Department Makes a Contract With a Steamship Co.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The post office department Friday awarded contracts to the Red D steamship line, which, supplementing existing service, provide for a regular weekly ocean service out of New York and Venezuela ports and regular weekly service to Porto Rico. The present service is three trips a month. The new service will begin March 1 and is as follows: New York to Porto Cabello, Venezuela, calling at San Juan, Curacao and La Guira, every two weeks. Contract rates, $1 a mile.

New York to Maracaibo, Venezuela, touching at La Guira and Curacao once every two weeks. This latter route does not touch at San Juan. Contract rate 66 2-3 cents a mile.

Miners National Convention.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 18.—Delegates to the national convention of the United Mine Workers of America, which opens Monday, began arriving in the city Saturday. The credentials committee has about completed its labors. The indications are that between 800 and 900 delegates will be in attendance.

Bankers' Committee Statement.

Cleveland, O., Jan. 18.—The Everett-Moore bankers' committee gave out a statement to the effect that out of $11,500,000 liabilities, creditors to the extent of $10,000,000 had signed the asked for extension of time agreement, leaving only 16 per cent. of the creditors to be heard from.

Recruits For the Transvaal.

London, Jan. 18.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Co. from Buda Pest says that Baron Paul Bourayllnis, who has served with the Boers, and Baron Lussens will leave Buda Pest in February with a strong body of recruits for the Transvaal.

Young Corbett Denies It.

St. Louis, Jan. 18.—Young Corbett, who arrived in St. Louis Friday night, says he is not engaged to and never intended to marry the Denver girl, "Maud Slater." He says he hoped she would deny it.

THE ST. LOUIS WORLD'S FAIR.

Ex-Gov. Francis Denies That the Opening Will Be Postponed.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Gov. Francis in response to a request made the following statement regarding reports that the Louisiana purchase exposition would be postponed from 1903 to 1904:

"I was much surprised to learn that a statement had been printed to the effect that I had virtually admitted that the fair would be postponed from 1903 to 1904. I have never advocated nor contemplated such action. On behalf of the local company I desire to say that it can be ready for the exposition in 1903 and will be ready. When some newspaper men asked me Friday if the fair would be postponed and I made a negative reply I was asked if we could not prepare a better fair in 1904 than in 1903. I replied: 'Yes; and so can we prepare a better fair for 2004 than for 1904.' I can not say why this statement should be construed as an admission that the Louisiana purchase exposition would be postponed from the date fixed by congress and announced by the president in his proclamation inviting foreign countries to participate. Some of the European governments have sent replies declining, and one object of my trip to Washington is to ask the state department and the administration to bring additional pressure upon such governments to reconsider their conclusion.

"If, however, they refuse to do so, it would not mean that St. Louis would not have exhibits from those countries, as the commissioners would appeal to manufacturers and other exhibitors therein. One or more of the foreign countries have given as reasons for the declination that they have not time in which to prepare. Whether the governments so declining would participate in the event of a postponement has not been ascertained."

SHARKEY-MAHER FIGHT.

It Was Stopped in the Middle of the Third Round By the Referee.

Philadelphia, Jan. 18.—Tom Sharkey and Peter Maher, who were heralded to fight six rounds before the industrial athletic club for the championship of Ireland, at the industrial hall, were stopped by Referee Rocap in the middle of the third round, in one of the poorest exhibitions ever given in this city. The men had been arrested early in the evening and bound over in $5,000 bail to keep the peace, and this apparently reduced the steam of their blows.

Not a blow was struck which would have rocked a bantam's head. When the bout had progressed for two and a half rounds, amid incessant catcalls, hisses and yells of "Take them off," and "Fake!" Referee Rocap stepped to the side of the ring and said that he had been engaged to referee a contest. "This is no contest," he concluded, the men took their corners and the contest was over.

Both Sharkey and the president of the club attempted to address the angry crowd, but neither was permitted to speak. The spectators were worked up to such a pitch that they broke chairs and benches in their desire to "get even." It was little satisfaction for the 4,000 persons who had paid $2, $3 and $5 for seats.

COMPLSORY ARBITRATION.

The Plan Passed in the Pan-American Conference.

Mexico City, Jan. 18.—The atmosphere of the Pan-American conference was suddenly cleared Friday morning and in the midst of excellent feeling on all sides both the plan of compulsory arbitration and The Hague agreement passed through the conference. W. I. Buchanan, of the United States delegation, afforded a means whereby in spite of Thursday's discussion both Ecuador and Chili might adhere to The Hague convention, proposing that the minutes of the last two sessions showing the feelings of Chili with regard to arbitration should form part (as annexes) of the protocol whereby the nations represented at the conference express their acceptance of The Hague convention.

The Ninth Infantry to Return.

Washington, Jan. 18.—Orders have been prepared at the war department for the return to the United States of the 9th infantry, which played such a gallant part in the siege of Peking and has seen so much fighting in the Philippines. These troops will be brought to San Francisco as soon as the necessary arrangements can be effected, but it is hardly likely the movement will begin for several weeks yet.

Business Failures.

New York, Jan. 18.—Business failures in the United States for the week were 259, against 246 last week, 290 in this week last year, 255 in 1900, 262 in 1699 and 309 in 1898. Canadian failures for the week number 37, against 32 last week and 50 in this week a year ago.

WHAT SETTLERS IN SASKATCHEWAN VALLEY HAVE TO SAY.

Formerly from the United States.

Roshern, July 8th, 1900.

Frank Pedley, Esq.,

Superintendent of Immigration.

Sir:—We the undersigned settlers in Saskatchewan, Township 43, Range 6, beg to submit the following letter. We came from Springfield, Bonhomme County, S. Dakota, in the spring of 1899, and settled where we now reside. We had considerable crop last year we put in on breaking, and it was very good, and this year 1900 our crop is excellent. Our wheat will yield about twenty bushels to the acre, the oats and barley are also very good, and our potatoes and root crop all that could be desired. We consider this a fine country, and are glad we came, as our prospects could not be better. A poor man will get a start in this country much quicker than in Dakota.

We are yours respectfully,

John H. Schultz, H. A. Coshen, S. Cors, B. H. Dirks, C. D. Huey, P. [illegible], A. Ratelief.

All from South Dakota, U. S. A.

Rev. Marguerite St. Omer Briggs, 35 Mount Calm Street, Detroit, Michigan, Lecturer for the W. C. T. U., recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—My professional work has for the past twenty years brought me into hundreds of homes of sickness and I have had plenty of opportunity to witness the sufferings of wives and mothers who from want, ignorance or carelessness, are slowly but surely being dragged to death, principally with female weakness and irregularities of the sex. I believe you will be pleased to know that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured more women than any other agency that has come under my notice. Hundreds of women owe their life and health to you to-day, and, therefore, I can conscientiously advise sick women to try it."—MARGUERITE ST. OMER BRIGGS.

$5000 FORFEIT IF THE ABOVE LETTER IS NOT GENUINE.

When women are troubled with irregular or painful menstruation, weakness, leucorrhœa, displacement or ulceration of the womb, that bearing-down feeling, inflammation of the ovaries, backache, flatulence, general debility, indigestion, and nervous prostration, they should remember there is one tried and true remedy. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound at once removes such troubles.

No other medicine in the world has received such widespread and unqualified endorsement. No other medicine has such a record of cures of female troubles. Refuse to buy any other medicine.

Mrs. Pinkham invites all sick women to write her for advice. She has guided thousands to health. Address, Lynn, Mass.

Where the Difference Lies.

"Wherein lies the difference between photography and courtship?" he asked, softly.

"I don't know," she replied.

"In photography," he explained, "the negative is developed in the dark room, while in courtship that is where the affirmative is developed."

She blushed, but made no answer.

"Let us," he suggested, "proceed to develop an affirmative."

There being no objections, it was so ordered.—Chicago Post.

"A Back Door Market."

One was a well-known banker and the other was a reporter of financial news and views, and they were discussing the course of the Amalgamated Copper company and its management.

"What sort of a market do you call this?" asked the reporter.

"A back-door market," replied the banker.

"What do you mean by that?"

"Why, I mean," said the banker, "that it's a market when you go in at the front door and then crawl out of the back door while the public think you are still inside."—N. Y. Commercial Advertiser.

The Distinctive Value

of Syrup of Figs is due to its pleasant form and perfect freedom from every objectionable quality or substance and to the fact that it acts gently and truly as a laxative, without in any way disturbing the natural functions. The requisite knowledge of what a laxative should be and of the best means for its production enable the California Fig Syrup Co. to supply the general demand for a laxative, simple and wholesome in its nature and truly beneficial in its effects; a laxative which acts pleasantly and leaves the internal organs in a naturally healthy condition and which does not weaken them.

To assist nature, when nature needs assistance, it is all important that the medicinal agents used should be of the best quality and of known value and Syrup of Figs possesses this great advantage over all other remedies, that it does not weaken the organs on which it acts and therefore it promotes a healthful condition of the bowels and assists one in forming regular habits. Among its many excellent qualities may be mentioned its perfect safety, in all cases requiring a laxative, even for the babe, or its mother, the maiden, or the wife, the invalid, or the robust man.

Syrup of Figs is well known to be a combination of the laxative principles of plants, which act most beneficially, with pleasant aromatic liquids and the juice of figs, agreeable and refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system, when its gentle cleansing is desired. The quality of Syrup of Figs is due not only to the excellence of the combination, but also to the original method of manufacture which ensures perfect purity and uniformity of product and it is therefore all important, in buying, in order to get its beneficial effects, to note the full name of the Company—California Fig Syrup Co.—printed on the front of every package.

A HORROR IN SPAIN.

Many Killed and Wounded By a Boiler Explosion.

The Dead Include Many Children—The Queen Regent Has Wired Her Condolence to the Stricken Families.

Bareclona, Jan. 20.—The explosion of the boiler of a spinning mill near Manresa Saturday destroyed half the village of Puente de Viiumara. The hospital at Manresa is filled with the injured. Sixteen mutilated bodies of working people buried in the debris have been recovered. These include the manager of the spinning mill and his two sisters. Of the persons injured 30 are not expected to recover. The dead included many children. Queen regent has wired her condolences.

The boiler exploded in the evening, when the mill hands, many of whom were accompanied by their wives and children, were eating supper before commencing the night's work. The buildings of the mill collapsed entirely and the debris was buried in all directions, destroying other buildings and killing and injuring the people in the vicinity. Owing to the darkness the work of extricating the victims proceeded with great difficulty. During the work of rescue there was heard the groans of the victims whose mutilated limbs were pinned down by the ruins.

A long line of carts and carriages was engaged in conveying the injured to the Manresa hospital, five miles distant.

Sunday morning the inhabitants went among the ruins seeking the remains of friends and relatives, while the priests in the open air administered the last rites of the church to the dying.

It is now estimated that 60 persons were killed and 100 injured.

The search at the scene of the explosion was continued during the day by members of the Red Cross society and officials. Heads, arms and legs, separated from the bodies, and unrecognizable, blackened corpses were found.

INSURGENTS VICTORIOUS.

Serious Engagement With Venezuelan Troops Near Barquisimoto.

Willemstad, Island of Curacao, Jan. 20.—The Venezuelan insurgents, who have concentrated on the peninsula of Paraguana (on the east side of the Gulf of Maracaibo), Saturday inaugurated a movement against the government. The insurgents in the vicinity of Uehiro have also begun operations against President Castro. It is reported here that a serious engagement between the insurgents and the government forces has taken place not far from Barquisimoto, in the state of Lara, in which the insurgents were victorious, and that there has been fighting between the insurgents and the soldiers of the government in the streets of Maracaibo.

GEN. R. E. LEE'S BIRTHDAY.

Commemorative Services Were Held Throughout the South Sunday.

Menphis, Tenn., Jan. 20.—Memorial services commemorative of the birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee were held throughout the south Sunday. At the Central Methodist church in this city Rev. W. K. Piner took as the text for his sermon "The Good Soldier." Fifteen hundred people listened to Mr. Piner's eulogy on Lee.

Richmond, Va., Jan. 20.—Gov. Montague and wife and Lieut. Gov. Willard left here Sunday afternoon in a private car for Atlanta, where the governor will be the guest of honor at the Lee birthday celebration Monday.

THE THRONE OF SERVIA.

King Alexander Will Abdicate If Guaranteed a Sufficient Pension.

Vienna, Jan. 20.—A Belgrade correspondent declares the question of succession to the throne of Servia to be ripe for solution, as King Alexander, if guaranteed a sufficient pension, is willing to abdicate in favor of Prince Alexis Karageorgevitch, a desendant from Kara George, the Black George of the Servians, and claimant to the throne of Servia. In any case, continues the correspondent, Prince Alexis Karageorgevitch is likely to be proclaimed heir to the throne, as neither Russia nor Austria object to this course.

An Agrarian Riot.

Buda Pest, Jan. 20.—During an agrarian riot in the village of Alsoidecs, in the county of Maros-Torda, Transylvania, a mob attacked the government officials and the gendarmes were compelled to fire on them. Ten of the mob were killed and 13 were severely wounded. One of the wounded has since died, and four of them are not expected to recover.

Clothing Workers Locked Out.

Chicago, Jan. 20.—Five hundred custom clothing workers, the majority of them women, have been locked out, and it is said the number will be largely increased in the future as the result of an organized movement to stamp out unionism.

Big Stove Foundry Destroyed.

Memphis, Tenn., Jan. 20.—The plant of the H. Wetter Manufacturing Co., one of the largest stove foundries in the south, was destroyed by fire about midnight. The loss will probably reach $250,000, covered by insurance.

WOMAN'S DEADLY AIM.

Lillian Williams Shot and Killed Two Men and Wounded Another.

Montgomery, W. Va., Jan. 20.—William Slaughter and Ralph Johnson, colored musicians, were shot and instantly killed, and Powell Calloway, white, mortally wounded at Morris creek, this county, Saturday at midnight. Lillian Williams it was who used the revolver with such deadly results, each of the four bullets she fired taking effect save one. The scene of the tragedy was at a dance six miles south of here in the heart of the mining regions. Saturday was pay day at the mines and, as usual, the monthly dance was given, colored people coming for miles around, and even many whites dropping in to witness the festivities. About midnight the Williams woman entered the hall evidently under the influence of liquor. Proceeding to the center of the room she ordered the musicians to play some rag time music, and play it quick. When her demand was not complied with she whipped out a revolver from under her wrap and began firing at the orchestra. Slaughter and Johnson were almost instantly killed, the former getting a bullet in the mouth and the latter one in the left breast. Calloway was an onlooker at the dance and one of the bullets intended for a musician penetrated his back. Physicians pronounce his wound fatal. The murderess escaped lynching only by the timely arrival of officers, who succeeded in getting her away and lodging her in jail at this place.

ELEVEN SOLDIERS MISSING.

It is Thought They Perished or Were Captured By Filipinos.

Manila, Jan. 20.—A report has been received here that a dugout canoe, in which 11 men of Company I of the 24 infantry were traveling, is missing and is probably lost. It is believed the men either perished or were captured.

Gen. Wade has cabled from Cebu that 365 insurgents surrendered on the island of Bohol last Friday. The authorities here say that this statement is astonishing, if accurate, as the secret service had failed to learn of the existence of any such body of insurgents on Bohol.

An important capture was made in Laguna province, Luzon, when eight men of the 8th Infantry captured a woman insurgent named Aquada Kahabagan. She recently commanded an insurgent force of 800 men, 300 of whom carried rifles while 500 were armed with bolos. For six years past she has been leading insurgent bands against the Spaniards and the Americans. Gen. J. Franklin Bell is still active in Batangas province, Luzon. A recent engagement in this province in which the insurgents were defeated with severe loss resulted in the wounding of one American officer and the killing of one private.

Col. Theodore J. Wint, of the 6th cavalry, who is operating in Batangas and Laguna provinces, reports numerous small engagements.

ROBBERS BIG HALL.

Trunks Robbed of Over $10,000 Worth of Diamonds at Glendive, Mont.

Glendive, Mont., Jan. 20.—Robbers secured between $10,000 and $20,000 worth of unset and set diamonds Sunday by stealing two trunks from the baggage room of the Northern Pacific station and breaking them open. Nothing is missing from the trunks except a bag of unset diamonds and 300 or 400 diamond rings. A tray containing 24 set diamonds was overlooked by the robbers. The trunks were the property of C. B. Clausen, traveling representative of H. Clausen & Co., wholesale manufacturing jewelers, of Minneapolis.

HELD UP AND ROBBED.

A Syrian Relieved of $8,500—Two of His Countrymen Arrested.

Kirksville, Mo., Jan. 20.—I. Solomon, a Syrian living at Keokuk, Ia., was held up Saturday night and robbed of a money belt containing $8,500. Solomon had sold out his business in Keokuk and was looking for a location here. Two fellow countrymen have been arrested charged with the robbery. Solomon says one of them held him while the other cut the belt from his waist. The money has not been recovered.

Death of Judge Dewitt.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 20.—Judge Wm. H. Dewitt, a distinguished member of the Montana bar, is dead of acute heart trouble. He was associate justice of the Montana supreme court for several years, and 1900 was a member of the national republican committee for this state.

The McKinley Memorial Fund.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 20.—The Pittsburg committee of the McKinley Memorial association has raised $30,000 for the fund, and Vice President Wm. McConway thinks this amount will be doubled before January 29. The largest check received from any one person was for $5,000.

Janus-Faced Child.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 20.—A child was born here having in all but the head two perfect bodies, joined together, however, from the neck to the hips. The organs are well developed. There is but one head, and that has two faces.

Count Von Waldersee Coming.

Berlin, Jan. 20.—Countess Von Waldersee, answering an inquiry regarding the projected trip of Field Marshal Von Waldersee and herself to the United States, said: "We both hope to go to the United States in April."

A MASS OF WRECKAGE.

Four Business Houses at Detroit, Mich., Collapsed.

Had the Terrible Catastrophe Happened During Business Hours the Loss of Life Would Have Been Appalling.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 20.—Four buildings, each four stories high, located in the heart of the wholesale district of this city, collapsed at 8:30 o'clock Sunday night without any apparent cause, and all that now remains is a heap of ruins. The buildings were a part of the block bounded by Jefferson avenue and Shelby and Griswold streets, and were occupied by five concerns, and the loss on their stocks which is total, is estimated at $152,000. Loss on the buildings amounts to $50,500.

The buildings joined each other. The first and second floors of the building on the corner were occupied by the Maddocks Glove Co., manufacturers of gloves and mittens, and the two upper floors were used by the Imperial Cap Co., manufacturers of hats and caps.

Adjoining the Maddocks Glove Co.'s building was the brokerage firm of F B. Neuhoff & Co., who carried a large stock of commission goods. In the same building with this firm was located a stock of commission goods which he carried for Hills Bros., of New York, and which Mr. Neuhoff said was valued at $7,000.

The Michigan Produce Co. also occupied a part of this building.

The third and fourth buildings were occupied by Crusoe Bros., Limited, wholesale grocers.

No one seems to know what caused the collapse of the buildings. On Sunday night that district is practically deserted and the few who were in the vicinity say that the buildings seemed to fall into a heap without apparent cause, making a noise like the rumbling of distant thunder. There are evidences of an explosion about the ruins, but no one heard a sound of such an explosion. The walls of the rear part of the Maddocks Glove Co.'s building are still standing to the height of two stories, but the roof of this part of the building lies turned bottomside upward in the middle of Shelby street, and a large iron smokestack lies on the sidewalk on the opposite side of the street, smashed against the buildings there, as if driven by force.

Experts from the Detroit Gas Co.'s office made an examination of the ruins, but said they were unable to find evidences of a gas explosion. It was fortunate that the wreck occurred on Sunday night. Had it happened during business hours the loss of life would have been appalling, as there were approximately 200 persons employed by the various firms. They would have been caught in a veritable death trap and crushed and burned before they could have been rescued. The buildings collapsed into a heap and in a short space of time the inflammable material caught fire from the furnaces used for heating the buildings. There were no watchmen about the premises, consequently there will be no loss of life.

HANGED HIMSELF.

Catholic Priest Committed Suicide in a St. Louis Hospital.

St Louis, Jan. 20.—Frederick Krainhardt, a Catholic priest residing at Josephville, Mo., committed suicide Sunday at the Alexian Brothers' hospital in this city by hanging himself with a bed sheet. Rev. Krainhardt was 62 years of age and had officiated in a clerical capacity at Josephville for 30 years. He had been taking treatment at the hospital for nervous troubles since April, 1900.

Employes' Narrow Escape.

New York, Jan. 20.—Fire broke out Sunday night in the building on Broadway occupied by Blumenthal & Stiner, manufacturers of artificial flowers and feathers; Roche, Croll & Co., manufacturers of neckties, and Samuel Folkoff, cloaks and suits. Fifteen of Folkoff's employes, at work on the fifth floor, were rescued with difficulty, and several firemen were overcome. The loss is put at $75,000.

Shot Him Through the Door.

Shawnee, Okla., Jan. 20.—B. B. Hunt, of Huntsville, Mo., was shot and killed here Sunday by John Seville, who mistook him for an enemy. Hunt went to Seville's home and demanded admittance. Seville had experienced terrible trouble with other persons and supposed they returned to renew the quarrel and refused to admit Hunt and shot him through the closed door.

Many Fatalities in Alps.

Geneva, Jan. 20.—The total of 119 fatalities in the Swiss Alps constitute the record for 1901, and is double the number of fatalities in 1900. Chamonix is the principal center from which the deaths of climbers have been announced.

More Opposition to Uncle Tom's Cabin

Wilmington, N. C., Jan. 20.—The local chapter, Daughters of the Confederacy, have adopted resolutions endorsing the action of the Lexington, Ky., organization in protesting against the production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

Death Sentence Confirmed.

Graff-Reinet, Cape Colony, Jan. 20.—Lord Kitchener has confirmed the death sentence passed upon the Boer commandant, Scheepers, who was captured last October. He will be shot next Saturday.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 14.—Senate—Monday Mr. Nelson (Minn.) called up the bill providing for the establishment of a department of commerce. The bill, after discussion, went over, subject to call by Mr. Nelson. The senate was in executive session for an hour and a half. The Hepburn Nicaraguan canal bill was received by the senate from the house Monday and referred to the committee on interoceanic canals.

House—The house of representatives spent the day in general discussion of the pension appropriation bill, the first of the annual budgets. The debate took a wide range. Mr. Grosvenor (O.) and Mr. Hepburn (Ia.) denounced a report presented to the last G. A. R. encampment criticizing the course of themselves and other members of congress on the veteran "preference" bill which was defeated at the last session.

Washington, Jan. 15.—Senate—For the first time this season the Philippine question was touched on in the senate. The interest taken indicates that it will occupy the attention of the upper branch of congress for some time when the tariff bill is reported. The Philippines were the subject of an address by Mr. Hoar (Mass.), who spoke on his resolution introduced Monday providing for the appointment of the senate committee to investigate the administration of these islands. Senator Proctor introduced a bill providing for the repeal of that portion of the act of February 2, 190 relating to the army which requires that chiefs of staff of corps or departments shall be appointed from the officers of such staff.

House—The house continued the debate on the pension appropriation bill Tuesday and devoted much time to the proposition advanced by Mr. Rixey (Va.) Monday, to open the doors of soldiers' homes to ex-confederate veterans. Two notable speeches were made in support of the proposition, one by Mr. Gardner (rep., Mich.) and the other by Mr. Dearmond (dem., Mo.). Mr. Lamb (Va.) read a number of telegrams from prominent ex-confederates of Richmond protesting against it.

Washington, Jan. 16.—Senate—The bill which Senator Hale introduced authorizes the creation of a naval reserve of not to exceed 20,000 men and 600 officers, the men to receive $50 and the officers from $100 to $200 annually. Another bill authorized the organization of a naval reserve from honorably discharged sailors, but does not fix the number. A spirited discussion was precipitated in the senate by some remarks submitted by Mr. Hale (Me.) in respect to these bills.

House—The house passed the pension appropriation bill, which has been under discussion for three days, and then adjourned until Saturday. The resolution prepared by the special committee on the McKinley memorial exercises, providing for an address by Secretary of State John Hay in the hall of representatives on February 27, was adopted. A bill was passed to allow the redemption of war revenue stamps any time within two years after the passage of the act, and also a resolution on the same subject to authorize the secretary of the treasury to return upon demand, within one year, bank checks and drafts with war revenue stamps imprinted thereon after the cancellation of such stamps.

Washington, Jan. 17.—Senate—The senate Thursday for a brief time had under consideration the bill creating a department of commerce and the discussion tended to show that the measure will have to be amended in many particulars before it can receive the approval of the senate. Serious objections were raised to the transfer to the proposed department of several important bureaus now a part of other departments of the government. A large number of uncontested bills and private pension measures were passed. After which the senate adjourned until Monday. Among the bills passed were the following: Appropriating $125,000 for the construction or a public building at Hammond, Ind.; appropriating $90,000 for government expenses and floor space at the Charleston (S. C.) exposition; granting privileges to several American officers to accept foreign presents and decorations; appropriating sums of money for the establishment of additional light houses and fog signal stations; to pay certain persons in the south for property taken from them by the military forces of the United States.

Washington, Jan. 20.—House—The house of representatives was in session less than an hour Saturday. Only routine business was transacted, the most important feature of which was the reporting by Mr. Cannon, chairman of the committee on appropriations, of an urgent deficiency bill, which passed. For the protection of towns in the Indian territory; appropriating $90,000 for a government exhibit and floor space at the Charleston exposition.

FAVORS PANAMA ROUTE.

The Commissioner's Report Completed and Presented to the President.

Washington, Jan. 20.—The supplemental report of the isthmian canal commission on the proposition of the Panama Canal Co. to dispose of its property to the United States for $40,000,000 has been delivered to President Roosevelt. The members of the commission refuse to discuss the nature of the report, and like reticence is maintained at the white house, but it is stated on excellent authority that the report unanimously recommends that the offer of the Panama Co. be accepted.

The Ship Subsidy Bill.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The senate committee on commerce authorized a favorable report on Senator Frye's ship subsidy bill. The report will be made by Senator Frye. The democratic members of the committee voted against reporting the bill.

Another Producing Oil Well.

Boulder, Col., Jan. 18.—The second producing oil well near this city was opened. It is half a mile distant from the first. The excitement is great, land values are rising and many parties are preparing to drill for oil.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Doings of the Kentucky Legislature at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Jan. 15.—Senate—The senate Tuesday balloted for United States senator: McCreary, 23; Deboe, 11; Bradley, 1. Bills introduced: To provide for the establishment and maintenance of a confederate home, to be a charitable institution of the state of Kentucky; to amend the local option law by providing that where a whole county votes on the question of selling liquor that vote shall supersede all past votes in any city, town or precinct in said county on the same question; to make it unlawful to employ a child less than 14 years old in workshops, mines, mills or factories; to amend the charter of cities of the fifth class by providing that said cities may improve their streets on the ten-year bond plan; a joint resolution urging congress to pass a law prohibiting revenue collectors from granting liquor licenses in local option districts; to increase the pay of penitentiary guards from $60 to $75 per month.

House—McCreary received 74 votes in the house and Deboe 24. Bills introduced: Providing for uniform and cheaper books, and creating a commission to control the matter; providing that no city or town shall have the power to impose a license tax on any person selling corn, wheat, vegetables or farm products grown by the seller; appropriating $75,000 for a new building for deaf and dumb institute in Danville; providing for a dog tax; reapportioning the congressional districts.

Frankfort, Jan. 16.—James B. McCreary was declared elected United States senator to succeed W. J. Deboe at the joint session of the legislature Wednesday. Bills presented in the senate: Providing for the appointment of five members of the house and three members of the senate to look into the management and condition of the state prisons; to prevent women voting in school elections; to regulate the sale of tobacco and prevent misbranding; allowing all circuit judges to appoint an official stenographer for his court in each county; requiring that all legal executions take place in the state penitentiary; to submit to voters an amendment to the constitution so that the state can do its own printing; that counties shall pay the expenses of all primary elections; providing a whipping post for wifebeaters; providing that testimony in equity cases shall be taken orally, abolishing depositions; allowing juries to find special verdicts in certain cases and allowing the court to direct a verdict without motion; to more fully prohibit pools, trusts and monopolies.

Frankfort, Jan. 17.—Senate—The following bills were introduced Thursday: To increase the salaries of city jailers in cities of the second class from $1,200 to $1,800, and to permit them to appoint at their discretion a deputy at a salary of $1,200; to provide that a fiduciary required to give bond shall pay for it as an expense of the trust; to prevent the killing of rabbits between January 1 and November 15 of each year, except by owner of land to prevent injury to same; placing the police of towns of the sixth class under the direction and control of the town marshal; creating board of charitable institutions commissioners. Three commissioners at annual salary of $2,000 each.

House—One day was spent wrangling over a resolution offered several days ago by Representative Weatherford, recognizing Adm. Schley as the hero of Santiago, condemning the report of the majority of the court of inquiry and the "alleged naval clique," and inviting the admiral to come to Frankfort and address the assembly. On the final passage, the resolution received 70 votes to none against it, the republican side remaining silent and the conservative democrats acquiescing.

Frankfort, Jan. 18.—Senate—Bills introduced: Amending the law governing the selection of jurors by providing that if the grand or petit jurors first drawn from the wheel are exhausted before a jury is completed more names must be drawn from the wheel and forthwith summoned, provided the judge may in his discretion, if there be no more than three jurors lacking, direct the sheriff to summon from the bystanders; regulating the sale of kerosene or coal oil and to prevent a monopoly in the sale thereof; amending the game law by requiring non-residents of the state to pay a license of $10 to hunt in this state. It is intended to apply especially to all the Ohio river counties, making it a felony to throw vitriol upon the person of another.

House—Bills introduced: Authorizing sheriffs to summon posses to guard property threatened by mobs or raiders; amending act providing for the creation and regulation of private corporations; providing for uniform telephone rates in the state; requiring non-residents to pay a license fee of $25 for the privilege of hunting and shooting game birds and animals in the state; increasing the fine for running or galloping a horse upon a public highway from $10 to $25; increasing the salaries of railroad commissioners from $2,000 to $3,000, and providing a salary of $1,500 for the secretary of the commission; creating a state board of law examiners and providing for a uniform standard of admission to the bar.

Adairville's Loss By Fire.

Adairville, Ky., Jan. 16.—A supposed incendiary fire caused losses amounting to $17,000, with $13,500 insurance. The dry goods store of Rayburn & Smith, J. L. Butt's grocery, the Banner office, and several small establishments were burned.

Vault Door Blown Open.

Stanford, Ky., Jan. 16.—A futile effort was made to rob the Lincoln county national bank here. The vault door was blown open and the safe badly damaged, but the $17,000 in it could not be got at.

HOWARD ON THE STAND.

Testified In His Own Behalf and Was First Witness For Defense.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 14.—In the Jim Howard trial Monday Deputy Assessor A. W. Morgan, of Clay county, Howard's home, was the only important witness. Morgan testified that when Howard returned home from Frankfort early in January he said he was going back to Frankfort later and intimated that Gov. Taylor had promised to pardon him for the murder of George Baker. Howard, on his former trial, denied that he had made a trip here previous to the one on which he is accused of killing Goebel. Morgan gave the names of a half dozen prominent Clay county men who, he says, heard the remark.

"Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 15.—The chief item of interest in connection with the trial of Jim Howard, alleged Goebel suspect, was the sensational disappearance of Wesley Whittaker, a Clay county barber, who came here Monday night to testify in behalf of the commonwealth. Whittaker spent the night here, but left on an early morning train and efforts to locate him here been unsuccessful. Whittaker, it is said, would have testified that he saw Howard the night before he came to Frankfort and that his testimony on this point would be important, as the question of whether Howard wore a mustache at that time. The prosecution claims that Whittaker's disappearance is due to intimidation, and it is said he went to Indiana.

John M. Collins, of Clay county, was the only new witness on the stand Tuesday. He testified that he had certain conversations with Howard in which the latter showed him a picture of Goebel and intimated to him that he (Howard) had killed Goebel. His testimony was practically the same as that of James Stubblefield, who swore to similar remarks on the part of Howard. The prosecution will not conclude its side of the evidence before Thursday evening.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 16.—When court resumed at 2:30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon Mr. Franklin said he wanted to put one more witness on the stand before the state closed its case. D. B. Fields, an attorney of Whitesburg, Letcher county, was called. He came to Frankfort just a few days before the Scott-Colson tragedy, which was in the middle of January. He said Wharton Golden was on the train, and asked him if he could find a man in Letcher county who would kill Goebel. Fields said he replied that there were men in Letcher county who would do it.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 17.—Jim Howard took the stand in his own defense Thursday afternoon, being the first witness called on that side. In the forenoon Judge Thos. R. Gordon made the opening statement for the defendant. He paid a high tribute to the personal and political character of William Goebel, and was severe in his arraignment of ex-Gov. Taylor and Caleb Powers. He contended that the defendant, however, was innocent.

Howard's defense in the present as in the former trial, is an alibi. He swore that he was in the Board of Trade hotel when Goebel was shot. He was talking to Ben White and Joe Wages. He said he went to the state house the first time that afternoon. He says he was clean shaven and denied that he exhibited any cartridges to W. H. Culton. Howard's lawyers produced a photograph of Howard which showed the prisoner to be smooth shaven. He said it was taken in November, 1899.

Frankfort, Ky. Jan. 18.—The cross-examination of the defendant in the Jim Howard trial was completed at noon Friday and the defense introduced a number of witnesses to impeach the testimony of James Stubblefield, the leading witness for the prosecution. Several of them were Howard's neighbors, and they swore he was clean shaven and did not wear a mustache when he left Clay county to come to Frankfort. They also swore that Stubblefield was a man of bad character and that his reputation for truth and veracity was not good.

Among those who so testified were Judge W. L. Brown, of London; J. M. Boreing, son of Congressman Vincent Boreing, of the Eleventh district; S. A. Lovelace, L. C. Walker, Jeff. Mahon and J. D. Fleming.

The sheriff of Clay county Friday afternoon arrived, bringing with him five witnesses who had been summoned but did not come, and attachments were issued for them. Wesley Whittaker, the witness for the prosecution who skipped out, has not been heard from.

J. M. Boreing, one of the witnesses who testified Friday, said that after the killing of Goebel he saw Wharton Golden at London and that the latter told him he believed a detective had killed Goebel.

Banker McKnight Sentenced.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 17.—In the federal court Thursday morning J. H. McKnight, former president of the defunct German national bank, of this city, who was convicted last Saturday of embezzling the bank's funds, was sentenced to the penitentiary for six years and fined $10.

Posse After Him.

West Liberty, Ky., Jan. 17.—Ben Blevins, it is reported, shot and killed Ed Williams, jr., near Dingess. The sheriff and his posse are now after him.

STOPS PAIN

Athens, Tenn., Jan. 27, 1901.

Ever since the first appearance of my menses they were very irregular and I suffered with great pain in my hips, back, stomach and legs, with terrible bearing down pains in the abdomen. During the past month I have been taking Wine of Cardui and Thedford's Black-Draught, and I passed the month-ly period without pain for the first time in years. ANNIE DAVIS.

What is life worth to a woman suffering like Nannie Davis suffered? Yet there are women in thousands of homes to-day who are bearing those terrible menstrual pains in silence. If you are one of these we want to say that this same will bring you permanent relief. Console yourself with the knowledge that 1,000,000 women have been completely cured by Wine of Cardui. These women suffered from leucorrhoea, irregular menses, headache, backache, and bearing down pains. Wine of Cardui will stop all these aches and pains for you. Purchase a $1.00 bottle of Wine of Cardui to-day and take it in the privacy of your home.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 29, 1902. NO. 15.

A WEEK'S COLLECTION OF PERSONAL AND NEWS ITEMS BY THE RECORDER'S FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENTS

RICHWOOD.—Government seeds have arrived, with garden weather out of sight.

Covie Carpenter is some better.

Cary Carpenter is on the sick list.

Miss Ida Grubbs spent Saturday in Cincinnati.

Excelsior Grange will meet next Saturday at 2 p. m.

Walter Robinson has a severe attack of chicken-pox.

E. H Surface and family were guests at Walter Gruhbs', Sunday.

Two of Edward Stephens' children are threatened with pneumonia.

Lee Robinson and wife, of Cincinnati, were visiting friends here, Friday.

Miss Chambers' school was closed on account of measles in her father's family.

Another month an ye movers will be on the wing, and to their new homes will fly.

John R. Carpenter and others shipped a car load of hogs to Cincinnati, last week.

Albert Byland was compelled to quit work at the Pullman shops on account of bad health.

Wm. Lancaster and Perry Carpenter shipped a carload of walnut logs to Cincinnati, last week.

Ambrose Easton has rented of Mrs. Lucy Carpenter her house and farm recently rented of Mrs. Kate Rice.

In Aylor and wife, of Paynes Depot, came down last week to attend the funeral of his grandfather, A. J. Utz.

It is rumored that Ell Carpenter will move where Cary Carpenter now lives. Cary will go back to his old home.

Mrs. Lee Cleek and daughter gave a delightful "hop" to their friends, last Thursday evening, at their unoccupied house on Frogtown road.

Mr. Fightmaster, our genial telegrapher, spent last week with his relatives at Williamstown. Hubert Carpenter, of Crescent, took his place.

Some of our people were compelled to go to Gunpowder grist mill, Friday and Saturday as the double funeral at Hopeful caused the millers to postpone until Saturday.

A law requiring hunters from other States to secure license would not afford the relief desired here, as hunters from Covington are our principal source of annoyance. Let a law be passed providing that each county shall collect a tax on each hunter coming from another county. Such a law as that would cover the case.

Two bills presented at Frankfort last week, will be heartily endorsed by the farmers. One is to license hunters from another State in the sum of $25 if they desire permission to hunt in this State; the other is to prevent cities and towns from exacting a license fee from farmers who desire to sell their own produce therein.

We hear that Mr. Tangeman, present owner of Kensington Syndicate land, contemplates draining the lake at that place. If he does it will be a great loss to our people, as two-thirds of our people haul water from there during dry weather, and as people in no way injure his property, there is something besides business in the move. Over $500 was sunk by persons here last spring by persons who rented land from Mr. Wade, agent of the old company, and when the U. S. Court gave Mr. Tangeman possession, the land was refused them, and no money was refunded to them by either party.

WALTON, Jan. 27.—A very successful dinner party was given by Miss Myrtle Jones at her uncle, Mr. J. A. Sanders' pleasant residence in North Walton, at 6 p. m., the 22d inst., to the members of the same coterie that were so handsomely entertained by Miss Sallie Herndon, at the home of her sister, Mrs. J. L. Adams' on the eve of Jan. 16th, as related in last weeks' Recorder. The entertainment was a success and Miss Myrtle is such a charming hostess that it could not well be otherwise. The dinner was enjoyed byall, and this one was so recherche that everybody went home happy.

A most enjoyable evening party was given, last week, by Messrs. Thomas and Leon and Miss Tete Percival at their country residence a few miles from Walton, to the younger set of our youths and maidens, and they had as good a time as only such a joyous, pleasure loving crowd (there were over fifty) of youngsters could have. Misses Katie Bents and Annie Baker two interesting and lovely young girls, assist Miss Tete, and all went merry as a marriage bell. The event was a delightful one, and the happy hearted, joyous young creatures could almost imagine themselves to be dwellers in Farryland—so brightly, beautiful are the dreams of youth.

The meeting called for Friday to take steps for the organization of a Grange, was well attended, and was enthused by the stirring addresses made by Master Wolcott and the Rev. Lafe Johnson: A temporary organization was effected with G. C. Powers, Master; J. W. Rusk, of Fiskburg, Overseer; Lafayette Johnson, Lecturer; James Watson, Steward; Edward Bristow, Assistant Steward; James Sturgeon, Chaplain; James Cleek, Treasurer; W. H. Metcalfe, Secretary; Edwin Johnson, Gatekeaper; Mrs. W. H. Metcalfe, Pomona; Mrs. Powers, Flora; Mrs. Arthur Stephens, Ceres. The Grange will meet for permanent organization at the Opera House, Friday, Feb. 7th.

It is always interesting to hear from those with whom we have been accustomed to meet on friendly terms. We seem to share their joys and sorrows. This reflection came to many of us the other day when Mr. Wm. Pangalis and wife, nee Miss Ethel Waltz, brought their baby boy from Louisville for interment in the Walton cemetary. She was loved by everybody, and as the sad procession moved along the streets many a heart bled for the young mother, and mourned silently with her for the loss of her first born, and to those who feel deply, words of condolence are cold and ortimes comfortless. God knows best, and it is not for us to question His acts.

From the Tecumseh, Okla., Standard of the 17th inst., it is learned that on that day Cashier, Thos. Southgate, was married to Miss Hattie Durham, and there is about half a column of congratulations over the event. If there it anything in the' heredity, he is deserving to the fullest extent. His father, the late Bernard Southgate, was the best boy I ever saw, and his mother was one of the most estimable women I ever knew.

Mrs. Lathrop has bargained with the Brittenhelm Bros., for the house across the street from Mrs. Martin's on the corner of Main on the street running down to the old cannery. Mr. Charles A. Slater is slated for removal to Hume, this county, this week. His son, Garfield, will attend Medical Lectures in Louisville this winter.

Harry Diers, son of H. C. Diers, of Harrison, Ohio, was here Saturday, looking much better than he did when last here. His aunt Yetch's favorite Harvey, used to come in for much petting, and it was noticeable that on Saturday she was highly elated.

The weather boarding has been stripped from the corner of the Opera House on Botts street, preparatory to putting in a glass front. The question is, will it be completed before the Odd-Fellows' Building?

A. M Edwards has finally succeeded in buying a nice pair of blacks for a hearse team.

Mesdames L. H. Voshell and B. L. Rice were guests of Mrs. B. L. Norman, last Wednesday.

There will be prayer meeting services at the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

After a protracted illness, Mr. Jeff Utz died at his home, Wednesday, the 22d inst. His remains were interred at Hopeful, Friday at 1 o'clock.

Sam Hicks says, "tell the Richwood cor. to post himself a little better in regard to the price of hogs, and not be guilty of quoting 4½ cent hogs at 7c, as he did in the last issue."

Rev. J. M. Brodnax's friends will be glad to know that his health is improving, and he will soon be able to take up his work again. He is now at Clifton Springs, N. Y.

The Ladies of the Baptist church will give an entertainment, the night of Feb. 14th. They will have a splendid program. The principal feature of the evening will be a lecture by Will Smith Ranson, of Covington. We know his ability, and urge all to come and hear him.

FRANCESVILLE, Jan, 25.—We fear there will be no ice harvest this year.

Our school will close next Friday.

Snelling, Saturday at 2 p. m., Revs. Cook and Early officiating, after which the remains were interred in the cemetery here. She leaves one son, residing in Indiana.

Card of Thanks.—I desire to express my sincere thanks for the kind assistance and earnest sympathy shown me in my sad bereavement, during the sickness and death of my beloved mother, Mrs Polly Wingate. I especially wish to thank Bros. Early and Cook for their consoling words, the singers, and the friends for their floral tributes, and Mr. Botts for the kind and efficient manner in which he conducted the funeral.

Beloved Daughter.

Much to the surprise of the family and friends of Miss Ogia McWethy and Thomas Randall, they were quietly married at the home of Dr. J. M. Grant at 12:30 Thursday, January 23d. Preparations were being made for an elegant wedding at a later date, but Miss Olga, being of a frugal mind, preferred the quiet means of matrimony which she carried into effect without the knowledge of her parents. There was no opposition, whatever, to the union on either side, but simply a desire on the part of contracting parties, to avoid publicity in the sacred rite, that prompted them to choose the unexpected time when all were interested in the wedding of Elder Edgar Jones and Miss Fannie Willis at the Bullittsville church, two hours later. Only a few friends witnessed the ceremony.

At 2:30 p. m., last Wednesday, January 22rd, Miss Annie M. Weindel, of this place, and Hugh E. Arnold, of Bellevue, were married at the Palace Hotel, Cincinnati, by Rev. O. J. Chandler, pastor of Taylor St., M. E. Church South, Newport, Ky. Those present were Miss Flora Arnold (sister of the groom), and Johnnie Moody, of Bellevue; Edward Keim and wife, sister of the bride, Miss Julia Smith, Miss Lou Allen, of this place; Mrs. J. R. Clutterbuck and Mrs J. M. Lassing, of Burlington; Dr. Wm. Weindel, brother of bride, and wife, of Patriot, Ind. The young couple left Cincinnati for Louisville on the evening boat, and from there extended their trip to Owensboro, where they spent a few days with the groom's sister, Mrs. Otto Scott. Their many friends join in wishing them a long, happy and prosperous journey in their new relation.

GUNPOWDER, Jan, 27.—Rather a small congregation at communion services at Hopeful last Sunday.

M. R. Tanner and wife were visiting in Erlanger, Sunday.

E. H. Surface and family spent the day with W. N. Surface and wife, Saturday.

Jerry Beemon and wife, of Limaburg, were entertained by Aunt Minnie Tanner, Sunday.

After about 9 weeks illness and intense suffering, A. J. Utz died at his home near Hathaway, on Jan. 23, at the age of 73 years, 9 months and 7 days. Bro. Utz, a few years since, had a stoke of apoplexy from which he never fully recovered, but was able to attend to his domestic affairs until his recent illness. In addition to the above he had stomach trouble, which resulted in his death. Uncle Jeff was, for several years, a prominent live stock dealer and farmer. He United with the Lutheran church early in life, and was an exemplary member of that body, and having given the power portion of his life to the service of the Master, he was prepared to go when the summous came. He said to the writer a few days previous to his death, "I have all my arrangements completed in regard to my funeral, &c., and I don't know why the Lord don't take me home." He filled the most important offices in Hopeful church during his life, and was highly esteemed by his fellow workers in office, which was a testimonial to him as an upright, honorable, christian gentleman. He was the father of four children, one daughter, Mrs. Libbie Taylor, who preceded him to the grave several years, and three sons, Alonzo, E. E. and Rev. T. L. Utz, all of whom are consistent members of the Baptist church. After a brief service by pastor Slater, the remains were placed in the vault of Hopeful, to await final interment. His companion and three sons have the sympathy of a host of friends in their sad bereavement. Appropriate funeral services will be held at some suitable time in the future.

FLICKERTOWN.—Several crops of tobacco from here have been delivered to the Petersburg buyers.

The fox hunters were out last week and gave reynard some pretty lively chases.

John Burke and family, of Cincinnati, have been visiting Mrs. Burke's parents, here the past two weeks. Mr. Burke will move to Aurora in the near future.

The report that Taylor Johnson came near drowning, last week, was a mistake. He did fall through the ice, but a good soaking was the only injury done.

Little Gladys Smith gave her parents quite a scare last Saturday, when she drank about half of a bottle of flavoring extract. She was pretty badly strangled but soon recovered.

Mr. William H. Moore, aged 77, died at his home in the North Bend neighborhood, last Saturday night of pneumonia following measle. He was a son of the late John Moore, who came to this county from Virginia at an early day. When a boy William Moore received an injury that caused him to keep his room for the last 64 years of his life. He was a successful farmer, a great reader and a man with a large fund of general information, and always took a [illegible] interest in [illegible]. He leaves a widow but no children.

DUTIES AND TRIALS

Sermon of Dr Talmage for Persons of All Ages.

Wholesome Advice to Those in the Twenties as Well as Those Who Have Reached the Allotted Three Score and Ten.

(Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

From an unusual standpoint Dr. Talmage in this discourse looks nt the duties and trials which belong to the different decades of human life; text, Psalms 90:10: "The days of our years are threescore years and ten."

The seventieth milestone of life is here planted as at the end of the journey. A few go beyond it. Multitudes never reach it. The oldest person of modern times expired at 169 years. A Greek of the name of Stravaride lived to 132 years. An Englishman of the name of Thomas Parr lived 152 years. Before the time of Moses people lived 150 years, and if you go far enough back they lived 900 years. Well, that was necessary, because the story of the world must come down by tradition, and it needed long life safely to transmit the news of the past. If the generations had been short lived, the story would so often have changed lips that it might have got all astray. But after Moses begnn to write it down and parchment told it from century to century it was not necessary that people live so long in order to authenticate the events of the past. If in our time people lived only 25 years, that would not affect history, since it is put in print and is no longer dependent on tradition. Whatever your age, I will to-day directly address you, and I shall speak to those who are in the twenties, the thirties, the forties, the fifties, the sixties, and to those who are in the seventies and beyond.

First, then, I necost those of you who are in the twenties. You are full of expectation. You are ambitious—that is, if you amount to anything—for some kind of success, commercial or mechanical or professional or literary or agricultural or social or moral. If I find someone in the twenties without any sort of ambition, I feel like saying: "My friend, you have got on the wrong planet. This is not the world for you. You are going to be in the way. Have you made your choice of poorhouses? You will never be able to pay for your cradle. Who is going to settle for your board? There is n mistake about the fact that you were born at nll."

But, supposing you have ambition, let me say to all the twenties, expect everything through divine manipulation, and then you will get all you want and something better. Arc you looking for wealth? Well, remember that God controls the money markets, the harvests, the droughts, the centerpillars, the locusts, the sunshine, the storm, the land, the sea, and you will get wealth. Perhaps not that which is stored up in the banks, in safe deposits, in United States securities, in houses and lands, but your clothing and board and shelter, and that is about all you can appropriate anyhow. You cost the Lord a great deal. To feed and clothe and shelter you for a lifetime requires a big sum of money, and if you get nothing more than the absolute necessities you get an enormous amount of supply. Expect as much as you will of any kind of success, if you expect it from the Lord you are safe. Depend on any other resource, and you may be badly chagrined, but depend on God and all will be well. It is a good thing in the crisis of life to have a man of large means back you up. It is a great thing to have a moneyed institution stand behind you in your undertaking. But it is a mightier thing to have the God of heaven and earth your condjutor, and you may have Him. I am so glad that I met you while you are in the twenties. You are laying out your plans, and all your life in this world and the next for five hundred million years of your existence will be affected by those plans. It is about eight o'clock in the morning of your life, and you are just starting out. Which way are you going to start? Oh, the tweaties!

"Twenty" is a great word in the Bible. Joseph was sold for 20 pieces of silver; Samson judged Israel 20 years; Solomon gave Hiram 20 cities; the flying roll thnt Zechariah saw was 20 cubits; when the sailors of the ship on which Paul sailed sounded the Mediterranean sea, it was 20 fathoms. What mighty things have been done in the twenties! Romulus founded Rome when he was 20; Keats finished life at 25; Lafayette was a world-renowned soldier at 23; Oberlin accomplished his chief work at 27; Bonaparte was victor over Italy at 26; Pitt was prime minister of England at 22; Calvin had completed his immortal "Inatitutea" by the time he was 26; Grotius was attorney general nt 24. Some of the mightiest things for God and eternity have been done in the twenties. As long ns you can put the figure 2 before the other figure that helps describe your age I have high hopes about you. "Look out for that figure 2. Watch its contiauance with as much earnestness as you ever watched anything that promised you salvation or threatened you demolition. What a critical time—the twenties! While they continue you decide your occupation and the principles by which you will be guided; you make your most abiding friendships; you arrange your home life; you fix your habits. Lord God Almighty, for Jesus Christ's sake, have mercy on all [illegible] women in the twenties! [illegible] in the thirties. [illegible] And what [illegible] thought all that was necessary for success was to put on your shutter the sign of physician or dentist or attorney or broker or agent and you would have plenty of business. How many hours you sat and waited for business, and waited in vain, three persons only know—God, your wife and yourself. In commercial life you have not had the promotion and the increase in salary you anticipated, or the place you expected to occupy in the firm has not been vacated. The produce of the farm with which you expected to support yourself and those depending on you and to pay the interest on the mortgage, has been far less than you anticipated, or the prices were down, or special expenses for sickness made drafts on your resources that you could not have expected. In some respects the hnrdest decade of life is the thirties, because the results are generally so far behind the anticipations. It is very rare indeed that a young man does as did the young man one Sundny night when he enme to me nnd snid: "I have been so marvelously prospered since I came to this country that I feel as a matter of grntitude thnt I ought to dedicate myself to God." Nine-teaths of the poctry of life has been knocked out of you since you came into the thirties. Men in the different professions and occuptions saw that you were rising, and they must put an end toppel on you or you might somehow stand in the way. They think you must be suppressed. From 30 to 40 is an especially hard time for young doctors, young lawyers, young merchants, young farmers, young mechanics, young ministers. The struggle of the thirties is for honest and helpful nnd remunerative recognition. But few old people know how to treat young people without patronizing them on the one hand or snubbing them on the other. Oh, the thirties! Joseph stood before Pharnoh at 30; David was 30 years old when he began to reign; the height of Solomon's temple was 30 cubits. Christ entered upon his netive ministry at 30 years of age; Judas sold him for 30 pieces of silver. Oh, the thirties! Whnt a word suggestive of triumph or disaster!

Your decade is the one that will probably afford the greatest opportunity for victory, because there is the greatest necessity for struggle. Read the world's history and know whnt nre the thirties for good or bad. Alexander the Great closed his career at 32; Frederick the Grent made Europe tremble with his nrmies at 35; Cortes conquered Mexico at 30; Grant fought Shiloh and Donelson when 38; Raphael died at 37; Luther was the hero of the reformation at 35; Sir Philip Sidney got through by 32. The greatest deeds for God and agninst Him were done within the thirties, and your greatest battles are now and between the time when you cease expressing your age by putting first a figure 2 and the time when you will cease expressing it by putting first a figure 3. As it is the greatest time of the struggle, I adjure you, in God's name and by God's grace, make it the greatest achievement. My prayer is for all those in the tremendous crisis of the thirties. The fact is that by the way you decide the present decade of your history you decide all the following decades.

Next I accost lhe forties. Yours is the decade of discovery. I do not mean the discovery of the outside, but the discovery of yourself. No man knows himself until he is 40. He overestimates or nnderestima'es himself. By that time he has learned what he can do or what he cnnnot do. He thought he had commercial genius enough to become a millionaire, but he is satisfied to make n comfortable living. He thought he had rhetorical power that would bring him into the United States sennte; now he is content if he can successfully argue a common case before a petit jury. He thought he had medical skill that would make him a Mott or a Grosae or a Willard Parker or a Sims; now he finds his sphere is that of a family physician, prescribing for the ordinary ailments that afflict our race. He was sailing on in a fog and could not take a reckoning, but now it clears up enough to nllow him to find out his real latitude and longitude. He has been climbing, but now he has got to the top of the hill, and he takes a long brenth. He is half way through the journey nt least, and he is in a position to look backwnrd or forward. He has more good sense than he ever had. He knows human nature, for he has been cheated often enough to see the bad side of it, and he has met so many gracious and kindly and splendid souls he also knows the good side of it. Now, calm yourself. Thank God for the past and deliberately set your compass for another voyage. You have chased enough thatledown; you have blown enough soap bubbles; you have seen the unsatisfying nature of all enrthly things. Open a new chapter with God and the world. This decade of the forties ought to eclipse all its predecessors in worship, in usefulness nnd in happiness.

My sermon next accoals the fifties. How queer it looks when in writing your age you make the first of the two figures a 5. This is the decade which shows what the other decades have been. If a young mnn has sown wild oats and he has lived to this time, he reaps the harvest of it in the fifties, or if by necessity he was compelled to overtoil in honest direction he is called to settle up with exacting nature some time during the fifties. Many have it so hard in early life that they are octogenarians at 50. [illegible] and rheumatisms and neu- [illegible] and insomnias [illegible] A man's hair begins to whiten, and, although he may have worn spectacles before, now he asks the optician for No. 14 or No. 12 or No. 10. When he gets a cough and is almost cured he hacks and clears his throat a good while afterward. O ye who are in the fifties, think of it! A half century of blessing to be thankful for and a half century subtracted from an existence which, in the most marked cases of longevity, hardly ever reaches a whole century. By this time you ought to be eminent for piety. You have been in so many battles you ought to be a brave soldier. You have made so many voyages you ought to be a good sailor. So long protected and blessed, you ought to have a soul full of doxology. In Bible times in Canaan every 50 years was by God's command a year of jubilee. The people did not work that year. If property had by misfortune gone out of one's possession, on the fiftieth year it came back to him. If he had fooled it away, it was returned without a farthing to pay. If a man had been enslaved, he was in that year emancipated. A trumpet was sounded loud and clear nad long, and it was the trumpet of jubilee. They shook hands, they laughed, they congratulated. What a time it was, that fiftieth year! And if under the old dispensation it was such a glad time, under our new and more glorious dispensation let all who have come to the fiftieu hear the trumpet of jubilee that I now blow. That was the allusion made by Mr. Toplady, the great hymnologist, when he wrote:

"Blow ye the trumpet, blow
The gladly solemn sound;
Let all the nations know,
To earth's remotest bound,
The year of jubilee is come;
Return, ye ransomed sinners, home.

"Ye who have sold for naught
Your heritage above
Shall have it back unbought,
The gift of Jesus' love.
The year of jubilee has come;
Return, ye ransomed sinners, home."

My sermon next necosts the sixties. The beginning of that decade is more startling than any other. In his chronological journey the mnn rides rather smoothly over the figures 2 and 3 and 4 and 5, but the figure 6 gives him a big jolt. He says: "It cannot be that I nm 60. Let me examine the old family record. I guess they made a mistnke. They got my name down wrong in the roll of births." But, no, the older brothers or sisters remember the time of his advent, and there is some relntive a year older and another relative a year younger, and, sure enough, the fact is established beyond all disputation Sixty! Now your great danger is the temptation to fold up your faculties and quit. You will feel a tendency to reminiscence. If you do not look out, you will begin almost everything with the words: "When I was a boy." But you ought to make the sixties more memorable for God and the truth than the fifties or the forties or the thirties. You ought to do more during the next ten years than you did in any 30 years of your life, because of all the experience you have had. You have committed enough mistakes in life to make you wise above your juniors. Now, under the accumulated light of your past experimenting, go to work for God as never before. When a man in the sixties folds up his energy and feels he has done enough, it is the devil of indolence to which he is surrendering, and God generally takes the man at his word and lets him die right away. His brain, that under the tension of hard work is active, now suddenly shrivels. Men, whether they retire from secular or religious work, generally retire to the grave. No well man has a right to retire. The world was made to work. There remaineth a rest for the people of God, but it is in a sphere beyond the reach of telescopes.

My subject next accosts those in the seventies and beyond. My word to them is congratulation. You have got nearly if not quite through. You have safely crossed the sea of life and are about to enter the harbor. You have fought at Gettysburg, and the war is over—here and there a skirmish with the remaining sin of your own heart and the sin of the world, but I guess you are about done. There may be some work for you yet on a small or large scale. Bismarck, of Germany, vigorous in the eighties. The prime minister of England strong at 72, Haydn composing his oratorio, "The Creation," at 70 years of age. Isocrates doing some of his best work at 74. Plato busy thinking for all succeeding centuries at 81. Noah Webster, after making his world renowned dictionary, hard at work until 85 years old. Rev. Daniel Waldo praying in my pulpit at 100 years of nge. Humboldt producing the immortal "Cosmos" at 76 years. William Blake at 67 learning Italian so as to read Dante in the original. Lord Cockburn at 87 writing his best treatise. John Wesley stirring great audiences at 85. William C. Bryant, without spectacles, reading in my house "Thanatopsis" at 83 years of age. Christian men and women in all departments serving God after becoming septuagenarians and octogenarians and nonagenarians prove that there are possibilities of work for the aged, but I think you who nre passing the seventies are nenr being through.

But the most of you will never reach the eighties or the seventies or the sixties or the fifties or the forties. He who passes into the forties has gone far beyond the average of human life. Amid the uncertainties take God through Jesus Christ as your present and eternal safety. The longest life is only a small fragment of the great eternity. We will all of us soon be there.

Eternity, how near it rolls!
Count the vast value of your souls.
Beware and count the awful cost—
Some have gained whose souls are

AN ELEPHANT INDEED.

The Party in Power Has in the Philippines Something It is Unable to Handle.

Evidences from the beginning to the present time is cumulative and convincing that this nation has made one of the greatest blunders of its existence in dealing with the Philippine islands. Their people were fighting to throw off the Spanish yoke, just as were those of Cuba, yet we helped the latter to independence and forced the former to the condition of a colony without rights save as granted by the United States government. While discussing the bill to provide revenue temporarily for these oriental possessions, Congressman Hepburn admitted that he did not regard either the Filipinos or Cubans as capable of self-government, and charged that the democratic party forced the administration, against its will, to declare the independence of Cuba.

No approved political leader ever made a more damaging admission as against his own party, says the Detroit Free Press. It was in control of every branch of the federal government, and responsible to the country for all its acts. Yet he says that it was coerced by the minority without either legislative or executive power to enforce its wishes. There could be no more unqualified confession that the party placed in power and vested with representative authority is not able to control, and has in this instnnce placed itself in a position where it is forced to the ridiculous subterfuge of making a scapegoat of a minority that is absolutely without power, save in the right to protest.

All this only goes to accentuate the straits to which those responsible for our Philippine policy are drivea. Attempt at its enforcement has resulted in a series of grievous mistakes. In the outset we declared to the world that the Monroe doctrine is a dog-in-the-manger doctrine. No foreign power must extend its control on this side of the world, but we may seize a whole archipelago on the other side. The props are pulled from under the high moral stand on which we rested the doctrine. It must hereafter be upheld by brute force.

The claim that we took the islands in the interest of civilization is too old, shop-worn and hypocritical to bear discussion. This is not the age of the church militant, crusades and armed devotions. The age is worshiping at the shrine of commercialism. But even here we have overdone the part. The controlling element of selfishness at home was not taken into account. The fact that the sugar, hemp and tobacco trusts had to be reckoned with was not considered. We were going to expand our commerce, and thus enhance the value of our resources. Contemplation of the outcome is pitiable. Our shipments to the islands are made up largely of what we send to the 70,000 troops over there, purchase price, transportation and the cost of distribution paid by taxes collected from our own people. Instead of inviting trade with these people we approach the point of prohibition in fixing the duties upon their products, and then make a fine assumption of generosity in telling them that we shall turn over to them what we make in spite of our best efforts to assure against making anything.

Our political institutions are in no sense adapted to a policy of colonization, and the fact becomes more apparent daily. Our constitution was made for a free, self-governing people, and does not in a single sentence or sentiment contemplate the government of a dependency. It is being violated in the spirit and the letter. It does not sanction a single vital step in our colonial policy. Its sole support is an arbitrary course of legislation by congress and "a shifting majority of one" in the supreme court.

PRESS COMMENTS.

——When the trusts took President McKinley in hand he recanted his belief in the "plain duty" of the United States and signed the Porto Rico tariff bill which congress thrust at him. Is President Roosevelt getting ready to imitate the complacency of his predecessor?—Boston Post.

——The necessity of a reduction of taxation to divert the unneeded surplus accumulating in the treasury to legitimate channels of business is more apparent than ever. In spite of liberal if not extravagant expenditures in the month of December the treasury surplus for the month amounted to $9,740,000. This is at the rate of nearly $120,000,000 annually, and it gives fresh point and force to the argument in favor of sweeping tax reduction.—Pittsburg Post.

——The country's business men are not all tariff barons who run the government to eat up the people. The tariff question is coming in seven-league boots and the republican statesmen of the present day don't seem to see it, or if they do they have that indifference to danger which sometimes characterizes the drunken man. They are intoxicated with power and the long submission of the people. The day of reckoning always comes, though. In this particular case it is close at hand. —Cincinnati Enquirer.

——When the Dingley tariff was arranged its authors provided in it a means of qualifying its most repulsive features by providing for the negotiation of reciprocity treaties. The republican party in convention indorsed the policy thus set forth and hailed protection and reciprocity as twins. President McKinley did his best to keep faith with the people. But the trusts have become more powerful than their creators. They refuse to keep the promise of the Dingleys and McKinleys and insist upon their pound of flesh.—Philadelphia Record.

PUTTING UP A JOB ON CUBA.

Private and Trust Interests at Work to Shape Legislation to Their Own Ends.

Recent dispatches from Washington have stated that the delegations from certain states have united in opposition to any law which may admit Cuban sugar free of duty to the markets of the United States. The movement is stated to be in the interests of the cultivators in those states of beet sugar, says the St. Paul Globe.

On December 3 last the Cuban commissioners addressed a communication to the president of the senate and the speaker of the house in which they submitted the proposal that Cuban molasses and raw sugar up to No. 16 of the Dutch standard should be admitted free to the United States and all other Cuban products at half the rates of duty on the same commodities exacted from the most favored nations. In exchange for this they declared Cuba's willingness to admit all America's products to the island at half the rates now prevailing on American products admitted to other countries under the favored nation clause, this willingness to be first established by the declaration of the American military governor, under whose direction the question might be submitted to the vote of the Cuban people.

The commissioaerr asked further that a special act might be passed by congress establishing such a reciprocal tariff arrangement because the delay would be too great in the existing exigent situation in Cuba if it were to be carried out through the medium of a formal treaty after the formation of the Cubaa government.

There would be no objection to such an arrangement on the part of other "most favored" nations, as diplomatic rules and usages establish, because the Cubaa republic was not in existence at the time of the negotiation of the other "most favored nation" treaties, and becnuse such treaties intend thnt the privileges granted under the favored nation clause shall only refer to gratuitous privileges, and do not cover privileges granted on the conditions of a reciprocal advantage such as is offered by the arrangement suggested.

It is evident that private and sectional interests will use their utmost efforts to prevent the passage of such a law or of any law which will carry out to its logical and moral fulfillment the policy which underlies our intervention between Spain and Cuba. The all-potent force behind all these interests will be the sugar trust; and the preseat administration, like the last, will find itself confronted by the necessity of taking back water on the pledges which it has made. If Roosevelt has the fiber in his make-up that he is credited with having, he will withstand the efforts of all the concentrated interests, and will force the hand of congress in that respect. If he has not, or if the republican majority in congress itself is not able to make good the party pledges, then the United States will be convicted before the world of having brought to an inglorious, if aot a disgraceful, end a course of conduct which, if it is pursued until Cuba is safely launched on the dangerous waters of nationhood, will reflect to the enduring honor of this people.

MARK HANNA'S CONTROL.

Where the Ohio Boss Gets His Power to Dictate Nominations to Suit Himself.

A word or two will suffice to bring out the almost complete mastery of party machinery which has fallen into the hands of the national committee since it became a continuously netive body and took to itself such new and great powers, saya Rollo Ogden, in Atlantic. When the chairman now calls to order a national convention he is really facing a large number, sometimea a majority, of delegates who are there because he willed them to be there. To "call" the convention has, in fnct, come to be pretty nearly the same thing as deciding who shall be among the "called." * * * This has especially been the case with Mr. Hanna and almost all the republican delegates from the south. They have been peculiarly his progeny for eight years past. When he first began to look about for a profitable field in which to invest the money he had raised to aominate Mr. McKinley for the first time it was to the southern states that he turned. He "bought Reed's niggers," in even a more wholesale way than that in which Senator Sherman had accused Gen. Alger of buying his in 1888. Since then, in the nature of the case, that colored brigade has been absolutely under Mr. Hanna's commaad. * * * They are naturally his creatures, and the sheep of his pasture. What he does so sweepingly with them he does in a less degree and sporadically, but still effectively, with the delegates from other sections. Large numbers staad ready to do his bidding. They vote as he prays. The result is to give him enormous power in dictating nominations in advance and in molding the convention like clay to his hand.

——The situation in congress seems to be that unless a compromise can be effected, favorable to Admiral Schley's vindication, and which shall wipe out the slight put upon Admiral Dewey, the naval ring will be completely overhauled by a congressional investigation. Perhaps that might be the best possible result of the whole controversy. The naval ring is badly in need of an overhauling, and the public interests would be subserved by a thorough investigation, wholly apart from the Schley controversy.—Albany Argus.

OUR DUTY TO CUBA.

The peace of Cuba is necessary to the peace of the United States; the health of Cuba is necessary to the health of the United States; the independence of Cuba is necessary to the safety of the United States. The same considerations which led to the war with Spain now require that a commercial arrangement be made under which Cuba can live.—Secretary Root's Report.

I most earnestly ask your attention to the wisdom, indeed, to the vital need, of providing for a substantial reduction in the tariff duties on Cuban imports into the United States. Cuba has in her Constitution affirmed what we desired, that she should stand, in international matters, in closer and more friendly relations with us than with any other power; and we are bound by every consideration of honor and expediency to pass commercial measures in the interest of her material well-being.—President Roosevelt's Message.

TEETH IN WARFARE.

England's Experience in South Africa Shows Need of Dentistry.

After 21 months' fighting four dental surgeons have been sent to South Africa to attend to the teeth of the army. Thus does the war office put forth stupendous efforts to atone for past inspitude, says the London Pall Mall Gazette.

In an army of a quarter of a million men these four surgeons should be kept tolerably busy. No soldier who has campaigned six months in Africa will, if he be wise, neglect a chance of having his teeth examined. Each surgeon, therefore, will have a clientele of 62,500 officers and men. Assuming that on every day of the week, including Sunday, 30 men are treated by each dentist, the teeth of the army will have been overhauled and the work of filing, excavating and filling completed in something over 60 months. It should console a man on active service suffering to-day from toothache in a precious molar, which he can ill afford to lose, to know that he will not be troubled with the agonizing pain later than April, 1907.

In the unequal struggle between trek ox and biscuit on the one hand and mere human teeth on the other, not five per cent. of the men of my company came through scatheless. In many cases the damage was slight; in others, where the teeth were naturally weak and brittle, the mischief done was irreparable. Even with an average set, straining on an average biscuit, you never felt quite certain which would be the first to go—your teeth or your biscuit.

FROM SASKATCHEWAN, WESTERN CANADA.

In a letter written from Prince Albert, Saskatchewan, one of the districts of Western Canada, by Henry Laughlin to Dr. C. T. Field, of Chase, Michigan, and which appeared in the Reed City (Michigaa) "Clarion," appenred the followiag:

"If any one should ask you how I like it up here, tell them I am perfectly well satisfied; for me it is just the place. I have as good a piece of land as ever laid out doors. Wouldn't exchange it for the whole of Lake county, or at least the township of Chase.

"Of course I have not been here very long, but as much of the country as I have seen, it cannot be beat anywhere. We had as good crops here last fall as I ever saw, and everything gets ripe in good, shape. We had as good ripe potatoes as I ever ate in my life. There is no better place for stock on the continent thnn here. Horses and cattle will do as good running out all winter here, as they do where they are fed all winter there. Have built me a residence and now all I want is a wife to keep house for me. I have some breaking already done on my place, but next summer I intend to have more done and then I will be ready for business.

"We have had a very fine winter so far. It has not been much below zero, if any, except about a week in the middle of November. It has been quite cold the past day or two. We are in log shanties, and they are just muddied up on the outside, and nothing has frozen on the inside as yet. There is ac wind or rain, just nice steady weather all the time."

Historic Plat to Sold.

A plat of land in Fourteenth street New York city, adjoining on the east the site on which stands the Fourteenth street Presbyterian church, has just been sold by J. Edgar Leaycraft & Co. for Rutherford Stuyvesant to Mandelbaum & Lewine. This plat was owned in 1648 by Peter Stuyvesant, who about that time was governor in chief of Amsterdam, in New Netherlands, now called New York, and for many years it was part of his famous Great Bouwerie farm. The property has been in the possession of his descendants ever since he bequenthed it to them until the recent sale, when it passed, out of the possession of the Stuyvesant family. Near the site Gov. Stuyvesant planted a pear tree which he brought from Holland in 1647. The tree was cut down in 1867.

THE ENGLISH ORPINGTON.

An Excellent Breed of Large, Low-Set and Heavy Fowls, Very Popular Across the Water.

The Orpington is an English bred fowl which is gaining a fair foothold in this country. They are bred in several colors with both single and rose or double combs. So far, the black and buff-colored Orpingtons with single combs have been in favor with the people of this country. An Orpington club has been formed in their interest, and we may expect to see them gain in favor, as they are quite desirable as table poultry.

Having come from the union of Minorca, a black sport from Plymouth Rocks and Black Langshan blood, they are rather large, low set and heavy in body—inclined to become fat when fully fed. They are good egg producers, but their eggs are rather smaller than might be hoped for from the union of such blood. Formerly the shape of the Orpington, as preferred in England, was much like that of the Dorking, but in a recent letter from Mr. Lewis Wright, of England, he states that the proper form is such as we have illustrated in this paper, and the long body like that of the Dorking is discouraged by English experts.

The proper type for the Orpington is a broad and massive body on short legs. They should have close and not loose or fluffy plumage. They should have a white skin and of the type that produces Buff Plymouth Rocks. Buff Orpingtons and Buff Wyandottes all from the same stock, should be driven out. If we are to have Orpingtons in this country they should be constrained within the bounds of good Orpington shape and not allowed to drift along from the shape of a Dorking to the Cochin shape, just as they may come.

As stated above, the proper Orpington shape is shown by the illustration as we present it from the English artist, Mr. Ludlow. The female is shaped something like a Brama without cushion or fluff, the male something like a low set, full-breasted Cochin with close plumage.—Country Gentleman.

NOTES FOR BEEKEEPERS.

If honey is overheated both color and transparency is injured.

Keep bees to make your own honey. Begin with a few hives.

Strong colonies protect themselves against robbers and bee moths.

It is quite an item to breed the hive full of bees just before winter.

Never leave a newly-hived swarm near the place where it clustered.

Bees generally require about 30 pounds of honey on which to winter.

Thick, well-ripened honey will not granulate so readily as that which is thin.

In rendering beeswax use a tin, brass or copper vessel. An iron one will darken it.

It is a good plan to do what feeding is necessary at night, so as not to excite robbing.

A little pine tar smeared on a board and put next the hive will drive away ants.

In making candy to feed to bees be careful not to burn it. Burnt candy will kill bees.

In cold weather when bees are quiet is when they are doing best; do not disturb them.

There are three personages in the beehive proper—the queen, the worker bee and the drone.

Unite weak colonies and their stores. They will winter better together than separately.

Besides loosing its beauty and fine appearance, honey kept in a cellar gets watery and its flavor is lost.—Agricultural Epitomist.

Dry-Picking for Market.

When dry-picking turkeys or other poultry for market be careful to remove the pin-feathers. The carcasses are "plumped" by throwing them into ice-cold water, allowing them to remain in the water four or five hours or longer, then hanging them up, heads down, to drip and dry, keeping them in a cool place. Do not scald dry-picked birds. While the dry-picking method gives the birds the best appearance for market, for home use the best and easiest mode is to quickly scald them, then remove the feathers, and also the entrails. If "plumped" it should be done before drawing the entrails. The scalding process cleans the skin and also saves labor.—Farm and Fireside.

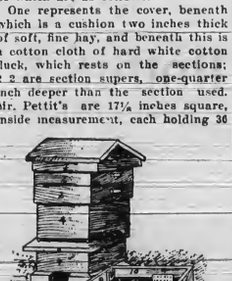
DOMESTIC WATER FOWL.

Raising of Geese and Ducks, When Scientifically Conducted, Pays Good Profits.

In no line of poultry raising can there be more profit than in the handling of geese and ducks. They are very hardy naturally, and adapt themselves to almost any condition of climate, and thus give a large advantage for their successful breeding over the ordinary farmyard fowls.

A good place for keeping water fowls is oftentimes not a good place for keeping anything else in the way of poultry. A creek bottom or the ponds of a lake or artificial ponds made for fish are well adapted for keeping ducks and geese. It is true that ducks and geese may be raised where there is no water for them to swim in, but this is the unnatural method of raising these fowls, and they do not do so well as where they can satisfy their natural inclinations by a bath and a swim in pond or lake.

There is always a good demand in the markets for the domestic water fowl; choice young stock always bring good remunerative prices. Of course, they are in a measure seasonable, and this is no disadvantage to the producer—it gives you time to breed and grow them. Ducks are great egg producers and are profitable in this way. They also have a value in their feathers, which gives them a threefold value, eggs, feathers and meat. The goose is a great feather producer, and will always be called upon to supply this product to a greater or less extent.



When properly prepared, it is astonishing how many ducks and geese can be kept on a few acres of land with good water advantages. Of course, there are drawbacks to this business, if one permits them to creep in, such as allowing loss by wild animals that incline to harbor about streams, mink, muskrats, etc. These obstacles are to be found in the poultry raising business, and must be removed. In no line of live stock business do you find a clear, open road to success. An ever watchful eye must be kept on the flock, to see that enemies and disease are warded off, and success will certainly follow intelligent, diligent efforts.—Nebraska Farmer.

SOME APIARY HINTS.

The System of Comb Honey Production Followed in Canada Described at Length.

The illustration, originally presented in the Farmer's Advocate, shows the system of comb honey production followed by a successful Canadian apiarian, the principal points of which are as follows:

One represents the cover, beneath which is a cushion two inches thick of soft, fine hay, and beneath this is a cotton cloth of hard white cotton duck, which rests on the sections; 2, 2 are section supers, one-quarter inch deeper than the section used. Mr. Pettit's are 17¼ inches square, inside measurement, each holding 36 sections; 3, queen bar of excluder, which covers the brood chamber, admitting only the worker bees to the super; 4, brood chamber; 5, wedges of wood one inch deep in front, gradually tapering to a point at the back. These are used in summer to allow ventilation, and they also raise the front of the hive so as to induce the bees to go up the side walls of the hive and the brood combs near the back of the hive; 6, floor projects ¾ inches in front of the brood chamber; 7, 7, stand of two six-inch boards, and two seven-inch; this rests on bricks, as shown; 8, comb honey supers, same as 2; 9, 9, divider, set on two sides of the super as shown in position. It is one-eighth of an inch thick and has three-eighth inch holes, through which the bees pass to the sections; 10, section in position, resting on 7 tins 13 and against a divider. The section is filled with light foundation of good quality within three-sixteenths of an inch of the bottom. With sections fitted with foundation in this way the bees fill them evenly; 11, bee space of five-sixteenths of an inch, created by six blocks numbered 13 on divider No. 9. The advantage of the extra bee space at the sides of the super is to allow for a double quantity of bees to keep up necessary animal heat, which is advantageous to the finishing up and capping the combs in the sections.

Look Well to the Poultry.

Look after your perches; provide yourself with crude oil and an old paint brush, and coat them well over once a week. Do not feed your fowls old sour swill, as such food is not fit for a hog. They require good, wholesome food; a great many hens take sick and die when fed bad food. Then again, who wants to eat an egg made from food unfit to eat? Look well to your nest boxes; see that they have clean straw, and that the sides of the boxes are treated to a coat of crude oil often.—Midland Farmer.

FINANCIAL AND TRADE GOSSIP

American insurance syndicates are invading England.

New York wholesale grocers are planning a national combination.

Much of existing prosperity is due to the enormous outlays of railroad companies.

The iron and steel industry is now entering the period of greatest activity ever known. All mills and furnaces have their producing capacity strained to the utmost.

The paper and wood pulp industry of the United States represents a capitalization of $167,500,000, or nearly double that of 1890. Fifty thousand wage-workers are employed.

The frequency of oil gushers in Texas is attracting the close attention of railroad managers, pipe line builders and bankers. The last gusher is good for 50,000 barrels a day. Vast financial schemes are being hatched in connection with the marketing of this product.

The great iron ore companies of Spain have combined under English capital and 15 immense and modern blast furnaces will be built as quickly as the material can be furnished. England must have cheap steel to meet American competition, and this is the only way to get it.

IN THE BRITISH ISLES.

British shareholders lose 12,000,000 a year by trade failures.

Two thousand pounds of jet are dug annually from the Yorkshire cliffs.

It is said that the commonest name in Scotland, as well as in England, is Smith.

Ireland has 255 poultry for every 100 inhabitants. England has only 94 per 100 people.

Two and one-quarter million tons of salt, worth £700,000, are made annually in the British Isles.

Thirty-nine per cent. of English lunatics recover, 42 per cent. of Scotch, and 48 per cent. of Irish.

It is declared by a British judge that anyone could assume whatever name he liked, and did not require a royal license. He quoted cases in point, one being that of a man named Bugg, who, being displeased with that appellation, assumed the name of Norfolk Howard—as a result of which, added the court, certain insects came to be called "Norfolk Howards."

FOOTLIGHT CELEBRITIES.

Anton Dvorak is the first musical composer ever made a member of the Austrian house of lords.

Eleanora Duse, when not acting or rehearsing, seeks absolute rest. She receives no one except old friends, and only a few of them.

George Vierling, the composer, who died recently in Berlin, left to a charitable institution of that city the substantial sum of 1,500,000 marks.

Adelaide Ristori recently celebrated the eightieth anniversary of her appearance on the stage. Her mother was an actress, and the future tragic actress was brought upon the stage when a few months old in a play where a baby was needed. She received the congratulations of Ernest Legouve, senior of the French academy, now in his ninety-fourth year, whose "Medea" provided Ristori with one of her most famous parts.

GERMAN INTERESTS.

Germany now stands third as a coal-producing power, mining 101,000,000 tons yearly.

Forty-six out of every 100 postcards sold in Germany last year were tourists' pictorial cards.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Pe-ru-na.

Mr. Brock's Age is 114 Years.

MR. ISAAC BROCK, BORN IN BUNCOMBE CO., N. C., MARCH 1, 1788.

His age is 114 years, vouched for by authentic record. He says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Pe-ru-na."

Born before United States was formed.
Saw 22 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.
Always conquered the grip with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at age of 110 years.
Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal diseases.

ISAAC BROCK, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived for 114 years. For many years he resided at Bosque Falls, eighteen miles west of Waco, but now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

A short time ago, by request, Uncle Isaac came to Waco and sat for his picture. In his hand he held a stick cut from the grave of General Andrew Jackson, which has been carried by him ever since. Mr. Brock is a dignified old gentleman, showing few signs of decrepitude. His family Bible is still preserved, and it shows that the date of his birth was written 114 years ago.

Surely a few words from this remarkable old gentleman, who has had 114 years of experience to draw from, would be interesting as well as profitable. A lengthy biographical sketch is given of this remarkable old man in the Waco Times-Herald, December 4, 1898. A still more pretentious biography of this, the oldest living man, illustrated with a double column portrait, was given the readers of the Dallas Morning News, dated December 11, 1898, and also the Chicago Times-Herald of same date. This centenarian is an ardent friend of Peruna, having used it many years.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate. For 114 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States.

"I have always been a very healthy man, but of course subject to the little affections which are due to sudden changes in the climate and temperature. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds and diarrhoea.

"I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases. For the last ten or fifteen years I have been reading Dr. Hartman's writings. I have learned much from his books, one thing in particular: that these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

"It exactly meets all my requirements. It protects me from the evil effects of sudden changes; it keeps me in good appetite; it gives me strength; it keeps my blood in good circulation. I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine.

"I believe it to be valuable to old people, although I have no doubt it is just as good for the young. I should be glad if my sincere testimony should become the means of others using this remedy, because I believe it to be the greatest remedy of this age for catarrhal diseases.

"When epidemics of la grippe first began to make their appearance in this country I was a sufferer from this disease.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Pe-ru-na was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Pe-ru-na for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"It has saved me several times from a siege of the grip. I feel perfectly safe from this terrible malady so long as I have Peruna at hand. I hope that Dr. Hartman may live to be as old as I am, to continue the good work of teaching people the value of his great remedy, Peruna.

Very truly yours,

Isaac Brock,

For a free book on catarrh, address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

The Four Track News.

There is much of education and enlightenment in the dainty little monthly magazine, "The Four-Track News," which comes to us from the editorial workshops of the passenger department of the New York Central & Hudson River Railroad Company. Its pages are filled with interesting matter regarding travel, our expanding commerce, and the development of our transportation facilities. The January number is devoted largely to California, the idea of the editor being to give special attention each month to that portion of the world to which people are at the time traveling. The leading article on this subject is "The Land of the Sunset Sea," written by Luther L. Holden. Other interesting features are "Egypt Then and Now," by George Eade; "The Romance of Reality," by Jane W. Guthrie; a sketch of Hudson, New York, by H. R. Bryan, and much that is entertaining in verse and well-edited departments. There are also valuable contributions on the cultivation of prunes, olives, grain and sugar beets. 50 cents per year, 5 cents per copy. Business communications should be addressed to George H. Daniels, General Passenger Agent, Grand Central station, New York city.

JUDGE CARROLL, says the Oldham Era, ordered the Sheriff to shoot an unruly negro if it be necessary, during the session of the Henry county Circuit Court, last week.

THERE is a desire on the part of some Democrats to have nominations for all county and district offices to be elected in 1903, made this year, in order to get these primaries out of the way of the State canvass.

THE Senate has passed Senator Hanna's bill pensioning Mrs. Ida S. McKinley, widow of William McKinley, late President, to the amount of $5,000 a year. She has also been given the franking privilege for and during the remainder of her life.

MR. TELLER'S effort in behalf of the Sheepers in South Africa came too late, as the Sheepers had been executed; but, then, it resulted in just about the same, as this country has turned its back on the South African Republic which England seeks to overthrow.

WILL MATHIS, a Mississippi murderer, who has been sentenced to be hung on February 14th along with a negro murderer, has requested to be executed on a separate scaffold and at a different time. He is opposed to social equality at all times and under all circumstances.

THE home-grown, hand-spanked, barefooted, hard-fisted country boy makes a much better fight in the battle of life than the pampered, high-collared, creased-trousered youth of our cities, whose clothes have always been dusted with a whisk broom instead of a shingle.

THE United States Senate sat down, good and hard, on Senator Mason's effort to get that body to consider a joint resolution extending to Rear Admiral Scott Schley the thanks of Congress for his brave and able conduct while in command of the American fleet at the victorious battle at Santiago.

WHAT'S the matter with Crittenden, Grant county? In 1890 it was a town of 440 people, but in 1900 the population is only 199. The U. S. census is authority for the above statement. Has Uncle Sam been so unjust to our neighbor as not to give it all to which it is entitled in the way of population in his recent enumeration?

SENATOR CARROLL'S bill which provides that all trains shall stop on signal or to discharge passengers at all county seats through which they pass, has stirred up the railroad men, and they are fighting the bill with all their might. The Senator claims that the passage of the bill will result in railroads providing better accommodation for local travel.

STUBBLEFIELD, witness for the Commonwealth against Jim Howard charged with the murder of Gov. Goebel, may be the character of man witnesses for the defense swore he is, but, be that as it may, the public records show that he has received the indorsement of Eastern Kentucky Republicans for responsible official position more than once. He certainly has the record on his traducers.

WHEN Mayor Duncan, of Lexington, leaves his office for a day's recreation, Howard McCorkle, President of the Board of Aldermen, mounts the tripod, calls a special session of the Council and undoes all that the Mayor has had done, and runs the city to suit himself. To avoid this annoyance Mayor Duncan has sued out an injunction, and now feels that he can leave home without risk of having all his official acts repudiated.

SOMEBODY who wants to take part in a special session of the Legislature or profit in some way by it, has concluded that a special session will be necessary in order to redistrict the State. By the time the present session has expired enough money will have been appropriated to cause the taxpayers to send up a protest against any further legislation for a period of at least two years. If there is not time in which to redistrict the state, reenact the present law and let it go at that. "The people first, last and always" is to be considered.

ACCORDING to a dealer doing business in Kansas City the demand for cotton mules in both the Carolinas will this season be of the poorest description. Last fall so much rain fell that cotton and other crops were not gathered in good shape and there is not much money among the planters to spend for any purpose this year, while among the renters and poorer classes of agriculturists conditions are very bad indeed. This same dealer made a tour through Georgia and says that in that State things are much better and that the demand ought to be of the usual volume after the New Year, if the high price of feed does not interfere and he thought from what local dealers said to him that the stock would be needed feed or no feed.

LARD is climbing the market pole as if it had greased itself and slid up. It is to-day the most altitudinous of packing house products and it is accounted for in a peculiar way. When the corn market is low the farmers put their corn into pork. When the market is up the corn is as good as pork and does not need conversion. It is sold as corn and the hog does not get it. Failing to get corn he also fails to get fat. He is sent to market in a scrawny condition and when he gets to the butcher he trims down into two meaty hams and as many shoulders, a couple of lean sides and that is all there is of him. No lard is to be got out of him, that is, not more than enough to make a sample exhibit. There is a little there but it is hardly a pay steak. And the butcher men say that is why lard is climbing the greasy pole, and to a fellow on the ground it looks to be an awful long way to the top.—Ex.

A STATEMENT credited to the erstwhile desperado, Frank James, comes from Parkersburg, West Virginia, to the effect that during Senator Goebel's campaign for Governor, his friends became so embittered at the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, which took such an active part against him, that they planned to blow up every bridge, culvert and tunnel belonging to that Company in Kentucky, and that the powder and dynamite had been secured and a gang of men selected to each separate job, all the work to be done on the same night. Goebel, it is alleged, heard of the plot, and went to work to flustrate it, threatening, if the plot was carried out, to run down and bring to justice every man engaged in it. The scheme was abandoned because of Senator Goebel's strenuous objections. Very little credence is given the statements reported as coming from James, but the positive manner in which he plot is said to have been vetoed by Gov. Goebel is very much like him.

THE local option people throughout the State are elated over the prospects of receiving desired recognition by the legislature this winter, and they are confident of the passage of the Farris Local Option Bill, although there will be a hard fight made against it. The Farris Bill is practically the Roberts Local Option Bill which was presented at last session. It makes the county the unit in deciding the question of local option, so that if a majority of the voters in a county vote "dry" there can be no liquor sold in any part of that county. Under the present law one district in the county might vote "dry" while another might vote "wet," Counties having large towns or cities, under the proposed local option law, would almost invariably vote "wet" it is claimed, while in the counties containing smaller towns it is said that the opposite result would be reached. The county unit rule has been a bone of contention between the prohibitionists and those who favor the sale of liquor. A poll of the two houses by interested persons is said to have resulted in the discovery that the friends of local option have a majority of about two to one in the Senate and of nearly three to one in the House as matters stand now. Therefore it is believed that the fight over this question this year will be equally as exciting as it was when the Roberts Bill was before the Legislature.

A LARGE delegation from Kentucky points along the Big Sandy River appeared before the House Committee on Rivers and Harbors last Thursday, and made arguments in favor of continuing an appropriation for the improvements of that river. They represented that the territory tributary to the Big Sandy had by actual computation upward of 2,217,216,000 tons of coal, available to slack water navigation, which is a larger tonnage than the shipping of the great lakes for 200 years. They said the coal along the Big Sandy was greater in quantity than the coal which would be shipped from Pittsburg in 300 years, taking last year as an average. Big Sandy River coal, they declared, was the richest in the world, being the only coking coal superior to the Connellsville product, and containing 93 per cent of fixed carbon. "It has," they declared, "the only large deposit of coal that can be delivered by water to the Middle West during the 90 days of each year when the low water in the Ohio prevents shipping from upper points, thus preventing periodical coal famines in many manufacturing centers." They also claimed that the coal was of the finest quality, and the most available for the building up of an export trade. "The Big Sandy," they argued, "has the only water-course capable of slack water reaching the famous Pocahontas coal, adopted by the United States Navy, and which upon completion of slack water can be delivered at New Orleans at $1 per ton." The improvement desired is a continuing contract amounting to $4,200,000 for the improvement of the Levisa and Tug Forks of the Big Sandy.

IN his write-up of members of the General Assembly in last week's issue of his paper, editor Westover, has this to say of the gentlemen from Boone:

"Boone county has always been noted for her conservatism and the good common sense of her people. Senator S. W. Tolin, of that county, representing in the Senate the Twenty-third Senatorial district composed of the counties of Gallatin, Boone and Owen, is a living exemplification of their conservatism and good judgment. He is Chairman of the Committee on Railroads and is a member of half dozen other good committees. No man in the Senate possesses more influence or stands higher with his fellow members than does Senator Tolin. This is Senator Tolin's last session. He was elected two years ago this coming summer to fill out the unexpired term of Dr. J. G. Furnish, who had recently been appointed Superintendent of the Lakeland Asylum for the insane."

"One of the best informed farmer members of the Legislature in either House is James W. Kennedy, of Boone county. He lives in Union and is a farmer, tobacco raiser and stockman and dealer in leaf tobacco. He also owns an excellent country store at Corinth, in this county. Mr. Kennedy is one of the best and safest members of the Lower House. He is a member of a half dozen important committees, and a very conservative member, always ready and willing to do what he thinks is the right thing by his people and for the State. We predict that Mr. Kennedy will be heard from in a way that will greatly please his constituents."

As Samuel W. Adams, is a Boone county production her people are always interested in what is being said about him, and here is the way Mr. Westover sizes him up:

"Sam W. Adams, of Kenton county, is one of the youngest and cleanest members of the Lower House. He lives at Erlanger and is akin to a large number of the Adams family in Grant county. He is a young lawyer of decided ability. He was elected over that gallant old war horse of Democracy, Capt. "Steve" Henry of the same town. Mr. Adams has already taken a very prominent part in the Legislature. He has introduced a number of important bills and is pushing them to the front. If a man is well liked and much respected, his influence in the Legislature extends and broadens. Other members help him to get his work done. This is true of Mr. Adams. The Sixth District has her eye on young Adams and may well expect a good report from him."

IN recounting and tabulating the vote in the Mayoralty contest of Pettit against Yewell, in Owensboro, Pettit's attorneys find that Delker, Miller, Ogden and McCarroll, Republican candidates for councilmen, who were declared elected, were, in fact, not elected, the face of the returns showing that Hite, King, Ewing and Haines, Democratic candidates, were elected. No contest for Councilmen was filed, however, and the time for filing contests having elapsed, the Republican Councilmen are secure in their places.

ESKEW'S, Walton, Ky.

HOWARD'S attorneys declare that his trial now drawing to a close has been fair and impartial, notwithstanding the articles that have been published in some of the partisan newpapers to the contrary.

THE reelection of Miss Pauline Hardin Helm as State Librarian by the joint assembly, last Saturday, was made unanimous on motion of ex-Governor Worthington, who made a speech that was highly complimentary to the very efficient lady official.

The visit of the big crowd from St. Louis this month to the Kentucky Legislature will be one of the most enjoyable occasions of the coming session. It is thought that about 500 will come, headed by a brass band. Of course they will ask for about $200,000, but it is not expected they will get it as the institutions throughout the State are clamoring for money for needed improvements, and all are in favor of a large Capital appropriated. But St. Louis should get something for its big exposition.—Western Argus.

A Deep Mystery.

It is a mystery why women endure Backache, Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness, Melancholy, Fainting and Dizzy Spells when thousands have proved that Electric Bitters will quickly cure such troubles. "I suffered for years with kidney trouble," writes Mrs. Phebe Cherley, of Peterson, Ia., and a lame back pained me so I could not dress myself, and, although 73 years old, I am now able to do all my housework." It overcomes Constipation, improves the Appetite, gives perfect health. Only 50c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue; H. L. To the Editor of the Recorder:

In a recent issue of the RECORDER, your Richwood correspondent gives us this item: "Several of our young men were full during Christmas, but they were excusable as the moon was full too."

We agree with the worthy scribe from Richwood in saying that the young men were excusable; but beg the privilege to discriminate between the fullness of our satellite and that hillarious condition known as "full" in the genus homo.

The moon, when full, has always been observed to attend to her duties with accuracy and precision, and has never been known to attempt to swallow a barrel-house, or to hang itself on a lamp post for an hour at a time, and to declare, in a voice that could be heard from Richwood to Crescent, that it was the wildest individual that ever landed in the particular region where it might be.

We have on several occassions observed young men performing the above mentioned exercises; while in a state of fullness, but do not ever remember seeing the moon celebrating in that manner.

If we indulged in the popular recreation of getting "full," we think that we would prefer the company of the moon to that of the young men; for, although, we speak from observation only, we believe that we would enjoy ourselves more to move in a certain fixed orbit, and to run on schedule time, than we would to measure pavements lengthwise and cross-wise, and to have a misunderstanding with every policeman that we met, and to, finally, reach our destination a week after we started, and in a such, a demoralized condition that we were unrecognizable.

So, hoping that we have the sanction of your talented Richwood correspondent, we have endeavored to demonstrate that the fullness of the moon is entirely dissimular from that ecstatic condition some times assumed by our young men during the holidays.

Blown to Antoms.

The old idea that the body sometimes needs a powerful, drastic, purgative pill has been exploded; for Dr. King's New Life Pills which are perfectly harmless, gently stimulate liver and bowels to expel poisonous matter, cleanse the system and absolutely cure Constipation and Sick Headache. A convention of tobacco growers will be held in Warsaw, Gallatin county, on Saturday, February 1st, when plans, &c., will be discussed for organizing against the tobacco trust. If the growers throughout the tobacco producing district will organize, something may be accomplished, and such meetings as that to be held at Warsaw are necessary precedents to a general organization.

Quite a number of farmers in the Browningsville neighborhood and other sections of the county have had horses to die from a strange affliction during the past week or ten days, 11 having succumbed to the malady near Browningsville alone in three days. The ailment is a peculiar type of brain trouble and proves fatal within an hour or two. What produces the trouble has thus far baffled all investigation.—Pendletonian.

"Some time ago my daughter caught a severe cold. She complained of pains in her chest and had a bad cough. I gave her Chamberlain's Cough Remedy according to directions and in two days she was well and able to go to school. I have used this remedy in my family for past seven years and have never known it to fail," says James Prendergast, merchant, Annato Bay, Jamaica, West India Islands. The pains in the chest indicated an approaching attack of pneumonia, which in this instance was undoubtedly warded off by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It counteracts any tendency of a cold toward pneumonia. Sold by all Druggists.

We of intimate acquaintance with Judge Cason, knew that he was an all-purpose entry, and, that as a divorce lawyer and in untying nuptial knots, he was an adept and stood at the head of the local bar, but last Thursday the Judge convinced the people that he can perform the marriage ceremony as well as sever the blissful tie. On that day a couple, whose names we will not here mention, of high social standing and wealth, hied themselves to Burlington, and after securing their license, were ushered into the office of the Judge, who, in a short but well chosen ceremony, spoke the words that made them man and wife. This was the Judge's first attempt, but the ceremony was appropriate, well-timed, and pronounced with the smoothness and solemnity of an old divine.

The Rising Sun Local gives the following account of the fatal accident to W. F. North, cashier of the Rising Sun Deposit Bank, mention of which was made last week:

"Mr. Wm F North, cashier of the Rising Sun Deposit Bank, accidentally shot and killed himself at Patriot, Friday morning, Jan. 17. * * * On Thursday Mr. North left here for a few days' stay and recreation on his farm near Patriot. Friday morning he was preparing to go hunting, when the accident which caused his death occurred. He had cleaned and loaded the gun, and in crossing the room to go down stairs, he tripped on a rug and fell. The gun was discharged, the load taking effect in the left side and ranged upward, and he died before help reached him. Mr. North was 53 years old last July. The funeral was held at Patriot from there Sunday, under the auspices of the Masonic order."

As will be seen by his card elsewhere in this paper, O. W. Adams, who has been engaged in the tobacco business in Cincinnati, for many years, has gone to Louisville, where he will be glad to see the Boone county producers with their crops of the weed. Mr Adams knows every tobacco grower in this county, and no doubt but he will turn considerable of their trade down the river.

THE JONES-WILLIS NUPTIALS.

The wedding of Miss Fannie G. Willis, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Thos. G. Willis, and Rev. Edgar D. Jones was celebrated this Thursday evening, January 23d, at 2:30 o'clock, at Bullittsville Christian church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. George A. Miller, pastor of Covington Fifth Street Christian church. Miss Eunice Willis, sister to the bride, was maid of honor, and Rev. Milo Atkinson, of Lexington, was gentleman attendant of the groom.

The bride wore a beautiful gown of mode colored cloth, elaborately trimmed in cream applique, chiffon and light blue pauue velvet with milaugo, with black Gainsboro hat. She carried a large shower bouquet of white roses and lillies of the valley. The maid of honor wore a navy blue, trimmed in white and gold, with hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of pink roses.

Four beautiful young lady friends of the bride, served as ushers, and the ease and grace with which they seated the large audience, was charming. They wore black skirts, with pink and blue waists, and carried bouquets of pink and white carnations.

The church was beautifully and elaborately decorated with evergreens, with an artistic interespersing of pink and white roses and lillies of the valley. A marriage bell, covered with mistletoe, was suspended from an arch over the altar. Under this the marriage contract was consummated in a beautiful and impressive ceremony.

At the appointed hour the doors were thrown open, and Misses Bernice Duncan and Aline Chambers, in blue waists, carrying a bouquet of pink roses, entered the left aisle. Simultaneously Misses Anna Gaines and Sheba Roberts, in pink waists, with bouquet of white roses, entered the right aisle. They marched slowly up either aisle in perfect time to Mendlessbon's wedding march, rendered most beautifully by Miss Zayda Gaines at the organ, assisted by Mrs. Robert L. Grant, of Texarkana, Texas, on the violin. Following, at regular intervals, came the bride and her maid of honor on the left, and the groom and his best man on the right. They were met at the altar by Rev. Geo. A. Miller, who united their young lives in holy wedlock, with a beautiful ceremony.

This was a most appropriate marriage—two young people were never better suited for each other. Mr. Jones has chosen the ministry as his profession, and though but 25 years of age, is a powerful, convincing and entertaining speaker, and for him is predicted a future that will not only arouse the envy of the great pulpit orators of the day, but will cause his wife to ever look back with pride upon the step she has this day taken.

The writer has known Fannie Willis from childhood, and asserts, without a fear of contradiction, that there lives not a lady who possesses more beauty and loveliness in person and character than she does. She was never known to lose control of her temper, nor to speak disparagingly of anyone. A typical wife for a minister of the gospel—one who will ever sympathize with and assist her husband in his glorious mission of redeeming and elevating the human family to its highest state of human excellence.

Mr. and Mrs. Jones will spend a month among friends in Missouri, Kansas City, and elsewhere in the West, and after April 1st, they will be at home to their friends in Erlanger.

REMARKABLE CURE OF CROUP.
A Little Boy's Life Saved.

I have a few words to say regarding Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. It saved my little boy's life and I feel that I cannot praise it enough. I bought a bottle of it from A. E. Steere, of Goodwin, S. D., and when I got home with it the poor baby could hardly breathe. I gave the medicine as directed every ten minutes until he "threw up" and then I thought sure he was going to choke to death. We had to pull the phlegm out of his mouth in great long strings. I am positive that if I had not got that bottle of cough medicine, my boy would not be on earth today.—Joel Demont, Inwood, Ia. HE IS EXONERATED.

The Charges Against President Mitchell Not Sustained.

Congressmen to Be Petitioned to Limit the Power of Federal Judges in the Issuance of Blanket Injunctions.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 22.—Charges against President Mitchell, Secretary Wilson and the executive board of the United Mine Workers of America were the first order of business before the U. M. W. convention Tuesday afternoon. Miss Mollie Meredith, an ex-employe of the national office, read her charges against the officials. The charges concern the shortage of ex-Secretary-Treasurer Pearce. An investigation committee was appointed.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 24.—The ... committee exonerates Mitchell and Wilson and says the statements of Miss Meredith do irreparable damages to the miners' organization.

The statement was made Thursday by members of the scale committee that the miners outside of Pennsylvania, Ohio, Indiana and Illinois will make no attempt at this convention to break into the inter-state agreement, which is binding between the operators and miners of these four states. Iowa tried to get in last year, but President Reese, of that state, who is also chairman of the scale committee, said Thursday that Iowa and other states will wait until next year, when the miners hope to be in a position to get recognition from more operators.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 25.—The Mine Workers' convention re-elected the old officers without contest. They are: President, John Mitchell; vice president, T. L. Lewis; secretary-treasurer, W. B. Wilson.

The result of the election of delegates to the American Federation of Labor convention will not be known till the 950 ballots have been counted.

The convention adopted a resolution appropriating $500 to the National McKinley memorial fund, after a prolonged discussion.

The committee on officers' reports recommended all the suggestions made by President Mitchell in his address and the convention took up, seriatum and disposed of them as follows:

That the national officers be empowered to levy such assessments as might be necessary to carry on the strike now on in Hopkins county, Kentucky, until that struggle should be won. Referred to a special committee.

That locals throughout the country petition their respective representatives in congress to favor the limitation of the power of federal judges in the issuance of blanket injunctions in times of labor troubles. Adopted.

That the paramount questions to the miners in the anthracite fields are an eight-hour day, recognition of the union and a minimum wage scale. Consideration postponed until next Monday.

That the salaries of the executive board be increased from the present per diem of $3 to $5.50. Referred to the committee on constitution. That a change be made in the voting powers in convention of national board members. Referred. That the national officers be elected by the popular vote of locals in the various districts. Referred. That a national department of statistics be created. Adopted. That the mine engineers he organized under the supervision of the United Mine Workers with separate districts in keeping with the action of the American Federation of Labor. This was not concurred in, but a motion that the "unconditional surrender of the engineers be demanded" was passed with a vim.

The convention also concurred in the recommendation for the appointment of a committee of five to draw up suitable resolutions on Chinese exclusion.

Another recommendation directing the committee on resolutions to draft a suitable expression as to "government by injunction" and reported favorably by the committee on reports, was referred.

Arrangements have already been made at the leading hotels for the coming of representatives of the operators, and the prospect for a large presence of operators here for conference with the miners in a few days is said to be good.

BOUND, GAGGED AND ROBBED.

Young Bride Relieved of $1,100 Worth of Diamonds and $1,500 in Money.

Wichita, Kan., Jan. 25.—Mrs. Angelina Anderson was bound and gagged here in broad daylight in her room and robbed of $1,100 worth of diamonds and $1,500 in money. She came here a few months ago and married an 18 year-old livery stable boy, who was taking care of her horses, and is now sending him to a local college. The woman is said to be from Racine, Wis.

THE REBELLION SPREADING.

Execution of Two Commandants Caused Loyalists to Join the Boers.

London, Jan. 25.—The Daily News published from its correspondent at The Hague, whom it claims to have been very accurate, the following dispatch taken from private advices:

"News from South Africa has reached military circles here that the power of the Boers over Cape Colony is increasing daily, that the rebellion is constantly spreading and that the colonists are joining the Boers in steadily increasing numbers. The executions of Commandant Lotter (October 11, 1901) and Commandant Scheepers (January 18, 1902), have had the result of deciding the loyalists to join the Boers, whose position is, persistently reported to be more favorable than ever."

The same private advices assert that the British suffered a dozen defeats from September to November, 1901, of which no mention is made in Lord Kitchener's reports.

OHIO COAL LANDS.

Pittsburg and Philadelphia Parties Close a Deal For 8,000 Acres.

Pittsburg, Jan. 25.—Capt. Alfred Hicks, of Pittsburg, and Thomas M. Mahon, of Philadelphia, closed a deal for 8,000 acres of land situated in Belmont county, O., for a sum close to $1,000,000. The property adjoins the De Armit Coal Co.'s working, and has three mines in operation. The property will be developed as rapidly as possible. The Baltimore & Ohio, Cleveland, Lorraine & Wheeling and the Wabash railroads traverse the tract. J. P. and C. W. Troll, of St. Clairville, O., representing the Black Diamond Coal Co., the Ohio & West Virginia Coal Co., and the Echo Coal Co., negotiated the sale.

THE MISSING CONDOR.

Vessels Sent Out in Search of the British War Vessel.

Victoria, B. C., Jan. 25.—The United States cutters Grant and McCulloch and the British ship Phaeton have already started in search of the missing sloop of war Condor. The Egeria, the only warship now in port, left dry dock Saturday and prepared to start on the same errand. The naval officers are much exercised over the Condor, for many now tell of how Capt. Sclater spoken at times of danger to the vessel should her big guns break from their lashings in a storm.

TELEPHONE RATES CUT.

They Shall Not Exceed $125 Per Year in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 25.—Judge Tuley decided that the annual legal rate for business telephones in Chicago shall not exceed $125, which is a cut of $50 a year. This is the result of the war waged against the company by the Illinois Manufacturing association and the final order directed by Judge Tuley Friday was signed by him Saturday as intimated to council on both sides of the case.

Managua, Nicaragua, Jan. 25.—President Iglesias, of Costa Rica, after conferring with President Zelaya, has left for Guatemala to obtain President Cabrerara's signature to the peace protocol, which was drafted in Corinto.

CALAMITY IN A MINE.

Twenty-One Killed and Eight Injured By an Explosion.

The Dead and Injured Victims Were Horribly Burned and Mutilated, Some of Them Almost Beyond Recognition.

Oskaloosa, Ia., Jan. 25.—As a result of a terrible mine disaster at Lost creek, 21 dead are in an improvised morgue and eight are in a temporary hospital.

The explosion occurred at noon and was what is known as a dust explosion. The miners had just fired their usual noon shots, one of which proved to be a fizzle. The burning powder ignited the gas and the explosion followed. Smoke and debris were blown out of the shaft 200 feet high. Part of the top works were torn away and the fans and cages were partially wrecked. This made the work of rescue very slow and it was 3 o'clock before volunteer parties dared to venture into the east entrance, where the explosion occurred.

When they fought their way in a horrible sight greeted them. The dead and injured were terribly burned and mutilated, some of them almost beyond recognition. Fire which, it was first feared, would destroy the entire mine, had broken out and this added terror to the spectacle. The flames were finally controlled, and after several of the rescue party had succumbed to the fumes, all the dead were found and carried to the top of the shaft.

At the time of the explosion more than 100 men were in the mines, but all those except the men in the east entry escaped with only slight injury. The total property damage will be about $10,000.

When the last of the dead was taken out the scenes of anguish among the families of the men were most pitiful. Nearly all of the men were married and leave families in poor circumstances. The mine is owned by the Lost Creek Fuel Co., of this city, and has been in operation about one year.

NEW PHILIPPINE COINS.

Sketches Shown the House Insular Committee By Mint Director.

Washington, Jan. 25.—Sketches of the new Philippine coins, as proposed by the Philippine commission, were shown to the members of the house insular committee by Director of the Mint Roberts. They show a Philippine design with a native head and wording on one side, while the reverse side shows an American emblem and the wording in English. Mr. Roberts was heard concerning the needs of a revision of the Philippine currency as proposed in the Lodge and Cooper bills.

Arrested Charged With Stealing Government Funds.

Atlanta, Ga., Jan. 25.—J. H. Alexander, a colored messenger in the office of Maj. P. C. Stevens, paymaster of the United States army, was arrested for the second time by a secret service agent on the charge of stealing government funds amounting to $1,769, which mysteriously disappeared from the satchel of Maj. Stevens November 8 last as he was leaving this city for Pensacola, Fla., to pay off the garrison there. The Negro was committed to jail for trial next Monday.

ADM. SCHLEY'S APPEAL.

The President Referred It to the Navy Department For "Comment."

Washington, Jan 25—The president has referred Adm Schley's appeal to the navy department for "comment." This is the technical term employed in naval law to designate a reply in the nature of a criticism to any presentation. If charges are lodged against an officer the are referred to him in order that he may "comment" upon them and his reply is known legally by that name. It is understood that the preparation of this comment will consume about two weeks.

Lake Erie and Ohio Canal Bill.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The Dalzell bill, contemplating a canal connecting Lake Erie and the Ohio river, was referred to a special committee of the house committee on rivers and harbors and another committee was appointed to consider the bill of Mr. Mudd, of Maryland, for government acquisition of the Delaware and Chesapeake canal.

Hobson Turned Down.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The naval retiring board declined to recommend Capt. Richmond P. Hobson for retirement. Hobson had applied to be retired from active service, having alleged failing eyesight as the reason.

THE TREATY SIGNED.

Danish West Indian Islands Ceded to the United States.

Washington, Jan. 25.—The treaty of cession of the Danish West Indies islands from Denmark to the United States was signed at the state department by Secretary Hay and Constantine Brun, the Danish minister.

The new treaty is peculiar in that it will require action, not only by the senate and the Danish rigsdag, but by the United States house of representatives as well, since it will be necessary for the house to supply the needed appropriation to defray the expense of purchase. It is regarded as a strong point by the framers of the treaty that the people of the Danish West Indian islands are to have a voice in this question of cession. The treaty itself does not contain any reference to a plebescite, but the Danish government has given notice that before it ratifies the treaty it will submit the question of cession to the people of the islands. Not much objection is expected here from these people as the treaty is so framed that they are not called on to surrender their Danish allegiance, and they may remain Danes in face and name, while enjoying whatever advantages in a commercial way may result from a transfer of the islands to the United States. The plebescite will not be controlled in any sense by the United States. It is stated distinctly that the Danish government itself will take steps to ascertain the inclinations of the people of the islands before the final steps in the transfer are taken.

St. Thomas, the largest of the islands, is formed by a chain of high hills running east and west. It is 13 miles long and measures three miles at its greatest width and contains an area of 17 square miles; population about 12,000. The sea surrounding this island is filled with small islets, called keys, which belond to it. About two miles to the northeast lies the island of St. John, and some 40 miles to the south is the third island, St. Croix; population 25,000; it is perhaps better known as Santa Cruz. The port of St. Thomas is a good one and it is stated that 200 vessels can anchor there with safety. The islands are considered of great strategic importance. The initial efforts to secure them were begun by the United States during President Grant's first administration. The consideration is about $4,000,000.

A BIG RAID MADE.

Several Notorious Resorts Closed Up and 32 Prisoners Locked Up.

New York, Jan. 25.—A raid of unusual proportions was made by nearly 100 policemen on the Bowery. Several notorious resorts were closed and 32 prisoners locked up. The large number of policemen on the scene prevented any outbreak of violence and there was little difficulty in getting the prisoners to police stations. The raids foreshadow the doom of the Bowery, for they mark the preliminary step in the wholesale cleaning of that somewhat famous thoroughfare. In nearly every raid the proprietor of the resort was arrested.

REVOLUTIONISTS DEFEATED.

It Is Reported That Gen. Herrez's Force Met With a Reverse.

Panama, Jan. 25.—A report has reached here that the forces under the Colombian general, Castro, had an engagement with the troops with the revolutionary leader, Gen. Herrez, in the neighborhood of Agua Dulce, in the vicinity of Las Tablas, on the Azuro peninsular, southwest of Panama, in which the revolutionary forces were defeated. Confirmation of the report is awaited.

WHY HE SUCCEEDED.

Stole Money to Start Business and His Girl Refused to Marry Him.

St. Louis, Jan. 25.—Julius F. Yaeger, jr., aged 26, chagrined because a St. Louis girl refused to marry him after he was known to have stolen money from his employers, hanged himself in his father's barn at Oakville, St. Louis county. Yaeger took $2,230 which he laid by to start in business with. His sweetheart would have nothing to do with him and he hanged himself.

Wholesale Grocery Store Gutted.

Mobile, Ala., Jan. 25.—Fire totally gutted the large wholesale grocery establishment of Michael & Lyons. The grocers occupied the ground floor of the building and the two upper stories were occupied by cotton factors as offices and warerooms. Loss will amount to $50,000.

GOV. GEN. WM. H. TAFT.

He Tells of the Conditions in the Philippines.

Natives Are Developing An Affection For American Institutions and Are Becoming Valuable Members of the Community.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—William H. Taft, civil governor of the Philippine islands, arrived in Chicago Sunday afternoon from San Francisco. He was met at the depot by President S. M. Felton, of the Chicago & Alton railroad, and went at once to Mr. Felton's residence where he spent the day.

Gov. Taft left at 9 o'clock Sunday night for Cincinnati. It was his intention to hurry to Washington on Tuesday, but the death of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Herron, caused him to alter his plans and it will be several days before he reaches the capital. In an interview Gov. Taft said:

"The only answer I have to make to the ideas of individual observers who declare that the true condition in the Philippines is being concealed, or that we are hugging delusions of peace that can never be brought about is that the government is concealing nothing and that its conclusions are not based on wild theories, but substantial facts."

This was the reply Gov. Taft made to a statement published by Stephen Bonsal, declaring that desperate opposition was still being encountered in the field and that the natives are irreconcilable and better organized than before the capture of Aguinaldo.

"As a matter of fact," he added, "the embers of distrust are being kept alive by sensationalists, who seize on every petty point and seek to twist it into some horrible barbarity of our government in the islands. Take, for instance, the talk about concentration camps. Although I am not sufficiently well acquainted with the full military plans to speak with absolute authority, I can say that the whole subject is much misunderstood by our people.

"As a matter of fact, there has never been any thought of establishing 'concentration camps' in the ordinary acceptation of the term. All that has been proposed is an inaurgent cordon, the establishment of a dead line into which will gradually be drawn all the remnants of insurrection that exist.

"The non-combatants of the islands have never, even at the hardest period of the war, received anything but the utmost kindness and consideration at our hands, and it is hardly probable that this policy will be reversed now that the opposition is fast drawing to a close."

The governor believes that only existing opposition to authority are those who form the Hong Kong junta, most of whom were formerly residents of the coffee growing province of Batangas.

"It is in this province that we are now meeting with our only difficulty. My statements concerning the close of the rebellion are not 'optimistic' in the sense that they are overdrawn. They are based on nothing but plain facts.

"The natives are rapidly developing an affectiou for our institutions and a large number of former insurgents have become valuable members of the community, fully worthy of any trust that may be reposed in them. The coming elections will develop the real progress in this direction, and I am certain that the result will be gratifying."

SUDDEN SUMMONS.

Mrs. J. W. Herron, Mother of Mrs. Gov. Gen. Taft, Expired.

Cincinnati, Jan. 27.—Death came suddenly Saturday to Mrs. John W. Herron, the wife of the well-known attorney of that name, at her residence in 305 Pike street. For some time Mrs. Herron had been ill, and recently her heart failed, an attack coming suddenly Saturday from which she was unable to rally.

She was the mother of Mrs. William H. Taft, the wife of Gov. Taft, of the Philippines, who were on their way home to this city.

PRISONERS ESCAPE.

One of Them Is Dead and Jailer N. D. Knapton Was Injured.

Fort Smith, Ark., Jan. 27.—The prisoners in the county jail attempted to escape at noon Sunday. One man, Jesse Jones, a Negro, charged with forgery, was killed in a fight, and the jailer, N. D. Knapton, was injured. Harry Folsom, Samuel Blaine and Andy Rogers, all charged with grand larceny, succeeded in getting away. Bloodhounds are on the trail of the escaped prisoners.

Manila, Jan. 27.—The United States Philippine commission has appropriated $5,000 for improving the harbor of Iloilo and $3,000 to be expended on the Cagelyan river, in Northern Luzon.

ADM. SCHLEY IN CHICAGO.

The Naval Hero Was Greeted With a Tumultuous Acclaim.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—Rr. Adm. W. S. Schley arrived in Chicago at 9:20 a. m. Saturday, and was greeted with a tumultuous acclaim from thousands of people, who crowded the Baltimore & Ohio depot and thronged near-by streets for blocks. The day for the admiral was a round of receptions, at each of which he expressed his gratitude for tokens of esteem and approbation.

Visitors were denied Adm. Schley Sunday and he was given ample time to rest after Saturday's arduous programme. After breakfast in their apartments at the Auditorium, Adm. and Mrs. Schley, in company with Mr and Mrs. E. A. Munger, at 11 o'clock attended services at Trinity Episcopal church. When the service ended the congregation stood in line at the door and as Adm. Schley passed out he shook hands with them right and left.

Monday the admiral was kept busy from early morning until late at night. Commencing at 9:30 a. m. he visited the Winfield Scott Schley school, where he delivered a short speech. At 11 a. m. he was presented with resolutions from the German societies of Chicago. The presentation took place in Memorial hall. At noon he lunched with E. A. Munger, president of the Hamilton club, and a few others. The rest of the day's programme follows:

At 2 p. m., reception to Adm. and Mrs. Schley by the Maryland society of Chicago at the Palmer house. At 3 p. m., great public reception at the Auditorium to which all Chicagoans are invited. At 5 p. m., termination of reception. At 6 p. m., dinner with the officers of the Illinois naval militia. At 8 p. m., review of first ship's crew of the illinois naval militia at the armory in Michigan avenue.

TAKEN PRISONER.

Lord Kitchener Tells of the Capture of Gen. Viljoen.

London, Jan. 27.—A report sent by Lord Kitchener, in Johannesburg, tells of the important capture of Gen. B. Viljoen, in the neighborhood of Lydenburg, Transvaal colony, as well as the captures of small parties of Boers elsewhere.

The capture of Gen. Viljoen, who was Gen. Botha's most able lieutenant, and who has given the British a deal of trouble, has created lively satisfaction in London.

Pretoria, Jan. 27.—Col. Wilson captured 20 Boers near Frankfort, in Orange River colony, last Saturday. He was preparing at dawn the next day to move away with his captives when a superior force of Boers made a desperate effort to recapture the prisoners. A hot fight ensued, in which all but three of the prisoners escaped and in which a few men were killed or wounded on both sides.

MANILA EXPOSITION.

A Director of the Federal Party Endeavoring to Inaugurate One.

Manila, Jan. 27.—Felipe Buencamino, one of the directors of the federal party, is endeavoring to inaugurate an exhibition of commerce to be held next December. He relies mainly upon exhibits from the United States, China, Japan, Siam and Borneo. The merchants of Manila are inclined to think that this exhibition should be delayed another year yet, if sufficient support is promised the United State Philippine commission will be asked to assist in carrying out the idea.

FAMOUS MONASTERY BURNED.

Nine Monks Perished and 20 Others Were Seriously Injured.

London, Jan. 27.—Telegraphing from Vienna, the correspondent of the Daily Chronicle says that the newspapers of Athens report that the celebrated Saint Paul monastery, on Mount Athas, was burned [illegible]day night. The prior and nine monks perished and 20 others were seriously injured. The occupanta of the monastery were sleeping when the fire broke out, according to the Athens papers, and the monastery itself was damaged to the extent of £80,000.

An Interchange of Freight.

Pittsburg, Jan. 27.—Brinton, or Port Perry, just above Braddock, is to be made the point for the central connection for the interchange of freight between the Pennsylvania railroad main line and the Baltimore & Ohio, and the Pittsburg, Virginia & Charleston roads.

King of the Speedway.

New York, Jan. 27.—Mr. Gerken's gelding The Monk (2:08¼) was crowned the champion trotter of the Speedway for 1901 at a meeting of the executive committee of Road Drivers' association.

A Knockout.

St. Louis, Jan. 27.—At the St. Louis rowing club Lou Friedman, of Rochester, N. Y., was Sunday knocked out by Andy Stevenson, of St. Louis, in the first round of a ten-round match.

Noted Guide and Pathfinder Dying.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Jan. 27.—George Rea, a noted guide and pathfinder, is dying in a log cabin on Snake river. Rea was one of the first men to explore Yellowstone park, and is often referred to as the Daniel Boone of Wyoming.

Body Turned to Stone.

Omaha, Neb., Jan. 27.—Former Federal Judge Elmer S. Dundy's body has turned to stone. The remains were taken to New York city for burial a few days ago, and required the strength of seven men to move them.

THE LATE PRESIDENT.

Memorial Services Held in Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul.

A Collection For the McKinley Memorial Fund Was Taken Up By the Congregations—National Holiday Advocated.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—At many of the churches special McKinley memorial services were held Sunday. In some of the churches, where no special services were held, the life of the late president was eulogized by the ministers in preludes to their sermons and by incidental mention. Special collections for the McKinley memorial were also taken at many of the churches.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Rev. Dr. Charles Bayard Mitchell made his morning service a McKinley memorial. He said that it was especially appropriate that the Methodist church should eulogize his memory because he was its most conspicuous member. Dr. Mitchell reviewed the president's boyhood and said he had received a solid Christian training from his mother. Dr. Mitchell said that Mr. McKinley did not follow his religion mechanically, but gave it his sincerest attention.

Dr. Mitchell said Mr. McKinley's death was a beautiful example of Christian resignation and heroism; not a complaint from the time of the first shot until his eyes closed in death.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 27.—McKinley memorial services were held in many of the Milwaukee churches Sunday in all of which high tributes were paid to the memory of the late president. A feature of the services was the advocating by Rev. George H. Ide, pastor of the Grand Avenue Congregational church, of another national holiday to commemorate the birth of William McKinley. Dr. Ide said in part:

"Shall we begrudge another anniversary day when we turn aside and put into the foreground of our thought the remembrance of the immortal Lincoln? What we call material wealth is but the shadow of men. Our richest treasures, our finest products, are the men that have become identified with our national life. When we take a day off to celebrate their anniversaries we are simply making an inventory of the values which they have bequeathed to posterity." Collections for the memorial fund were taken up in many of the churches.

St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 27.—A majority of the churches in this city united in holding a joint service in memory of the late President McKinley. The service held at the People's church Sunday afternoon was largely attended. Addresses were made by Gov. Van Sant and others. A collection for the McKinley memorial fund was taken up.

NEW HOME FOR THE PRESIDENT.

A Structure May Be Erected to Cost About $7,000,000.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Fairbanks, chairman of the senate committee on buildings and grounds, has practically decided to urge a new executive building for the use of the president, with his business offices; for the state department and the department of justice. The size of the president's family has practically forced this departure on the government. There is not room in the present white house for the comfortable accommodation of the president. The new structure is to eclipse the beauty of the congressional library and will cost about $7,000,000.

A TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION.

The German Societies Will Parade in Honor of Prince Henry.

New York, Jan. 27.—Representatives of the various German societies of New York city met Sunday afternoon to further consider plans for the reception of Prince Henry. It was decided that there should be a torchlight procession on the evening of February 26, the same evening on which the newspaper men of the country will meet the prince at dinner. It was announced that Dr. Von Holleben had given his sanction to the procession. It is estimated that more than 30,000 marchers will be in line, and Prince Henry will review the parade from the building of the Arion society, 59th street and Park avenue.

COLOMBIAN DISPATCH BOAT.

Two Shots Fired at It From the Revolutionary Gunboat.

Panama, Colombia, Jan. 27.—A small gasoline launch belonging to the government and named the Gen. Campo, bearing important dispatches for the Colombian Gen. Castro, was sighted by the revolutionary fleet near Rio Grande, off the coast of Agua Dulce, southwest of Panama. Two shots were fired at the Gen. Campo from the revolutionary gunboat Padilla and the former was obliged to return here.

An American League Franchise Sold.

Chicago, Jan. 27.—The St. Louis American league franchise was sold Sunday by Matt and Henry Killilea, of Milwaukee, to R. L. Hedges, who represents a number of St. Louis capitalists. The price paid was not made public.

Valuable Treasure Found.

Peking, Jan. 27.—Chinese officials have found treasure to the value of over 100,000,000 taels in gold and silver, which was burned in the women's quarter of the palace before the court fled from Peking.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 22.—Senate—For nearly three hours Tuesday the senate had under consideration the Philippine tariff bill. The measure was made the unfinished business and probably will hold that position of preference until it shall have been voted on finally. A number of private pension bills were passed, also the following: Extending the time for the construction of a railroad, wagon and pedestrian bridge over the Missouri river near Council Bluffs, Ia., and Omaha, Neb.; authorizing the construction of a number of bridges; appropriating $150,000 each for the erection of public buildings in Muncie, Ind., and Anderson, Ind.; appropriating $150,000 for the establishment, control and maintenance of the northern branch of the national home for disabled volunteer soldiers at Hot Springs, S. D., with an additional appropriation of $20,000 for transportation of inmates; appropriating $70,000 for the erection of a public building at Bluefield, W. Va.; to provide suitable bronze medals for the survivors or their heirs of the officers and crews of the United States vessels of war Cumberland, Congress and Minnesota; appropriating $400,000 for the erection of a public building in Wheeling, W. Va.

House—In the absence of other pressing business the house managers are allowing the widest latitude in the debate on the urgent deficiency bill now before the house. The irrigation of arid lands in the west and the advisability of retaining control of the Philippines were the main topics under discussion Tuesday. The following bills were introduced: A bill designed to prevent the holding up of trains for purposes of robbery. It provides a penalty of death or life imprisonment for the guilty parties; for the union of Oklahoma and Indian territory as a state to be known as the state of Oklahoma; to increase the pay of rural free delivery carriers from $500 to $600 for the first year, $660 for the second and $720 for third year.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Senate—Debate of the Philippine tariff bill was not continued Wednesday, no member of the body being prepared to proceed with the discussion. The bill providing for the establishment of a department of commerce was under discussion for nearly two hours. Little progress was made with it. Senator Mason introduced a bill prohibiting the importation of opium for smoking purposes into the United States. Senator Platt introduced a bill providing for the establishment of a home for lepers in the United States.

House—Some of the old partisan fire was injected into the proceedings of the house Wednesday when the item in the urgent deficiency bill appropriating $500,000 for a military post at Manila, which the democrats have been using as a text for speeches in opposition to the Philippine policy of the administration for the last three days, was reached. Mr. Cannon, in charge of the bill, confessed that the appropriation was subject to a point of order and it went out. In lieu thereof he offered an amendment to appropriate the same sum for "shelter and protection" of the officers and enlisted men of the army on duty in the Philippines. This the chair held to be in order and it at once became the subject of a very spirited debate. The vote on the adoption of the amendment stood, ayes 167, nays 100.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Senate.—An unsuccessful effort was made Thursday by Mr. Mason (Ill.) to obtain consideration for a joint resolution which he introduced extending the thanks of congress to Rr. Adm. Winfield Scott Schley for his brave and able conduct while in command of the American fleet in the victorious battle of Santiago. The resolutions introduced by Mr. Teller providing for intervention on the part of this government in behalf of the men condemned to Scheepers, sentenced to death by the British South African authorities, was postponed indefinitely, as Scheepers had been executed. Mr. Teller made a brief but caustic speech on the action of Great Britain in the Boer war and declared that if the facts of this case were as he understood them "Great Britain, in putting Scheepers to death, is guilty of a vile assassination." The department of commerce bill was under consideration during the greater part of the session, but no definite progress was made. Adjourned until Monday.

House.—The consideration of the urgent deficiency bill, which has been under debate in the house since Monday, was completed Thursday, but, owing to the lateness of the hour, passage of the bill was postponed until Friday. A successful effort was made to increase the pay of rural free delivery carriers from $500 to $600 per annum. Representative Dick (O.) introduced the bill agreed upon by the militia officers of the several states to increase the efficiency of the militia.

Washington, Jan. 25.—House.—The house passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill and devoted the remainder of the session to private pension legislation. It then adjourned until Monday. The republicans forced a record vote on the amendment to the deficiency bill to appropriate $600,000 for the "protection and shelter" of American soldiers in the Philippines and 16 democrats voted for it. Representative H. C. Smith (Mich.) introduced a bill repealing Paragraph 11 of Section 2 of the war revenue act. The section which it is proposed to abolish is that imposing a tax of $50 upon bankers having a capital of not exceeding $25,000. The senate was not in session.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The president Thursday signed the bill providing for the free transportation of all mail matter sent by Mrs. Ida S. McKinley, widow of the late President McKinley.

Emperor William's Wish.

Berlin, Jan. 24.—Emperor William has expressed a wish that the inhabitants of Berlin should not illuminate the city on his birthday, January 27, but devote the money which might thus be expended to helping the unemployed and the needy.

Favorably Reported.

Washington, Jan. 24.—The senate committee on Indian affairs Thursday authorized a favorable report on Senator Rawlin's resolutions authorizing that committee to investigate leases of lands on Indian reservations.

INTERESTING STATE NEWS.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Doings of the Kentucky Legislature at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Jan. 22.—Senate—Bills introduced Tuesday: Appropriating $154,639 to erect buildings and conveniences at the eastern asylum in Lexington; providing for a game warden system under the supervision of three commissioners, who will appoint the warden and as many deputies as necessary; making it a felony for furnishing answers to questions on examinations for teachers' certificates; to increase the power of county fiscal clerks by authorizing them to provide a hospital to care for the sick poor; adding fifth and sixth class towns to the list, so that registration may be had in those towns; amending the law governing the state houses of reform, so that officers taking inmates to said houses may be paid their expenses.

House—New bills: Amending the code of practice as to bail in criminal cases; changing Bardwell from the fifth to the sixth class; providing for prison improvements; regulating appeals to the court of appeals; abolishing the office of assessor, and providing that assessments shall be made by justices of the peace; repealing the McKane tobacco law; making it a felony to unlawfully dispose of the personal property of another; dividing the state into 100 representative districts.

Frankfort, Jan. 23.—Senate.—Bills passed Wednesday: To provide that all accounts against counties shall be itemized; the same kind of a bill, but applying to cities and towns; providing for submitting to the people the question of amending the constitution so as to return to the old viva voce system of voting was passed by a strictly party vote the republicans voting against it—yeas 23, nays 9; circuit judges to appoint an official stenographer in each county, and empowering the circuit judge in his discretion to order the stenographer to make a carbon copy of transcipts sent to court of appeals at one-fifth the cost of the original copy; to increase the annual appropriation for the maintenance of the state guard from $7,000 to $28,000.

House.—The one incident of the house session was the entrance of the members of the senate, who came in to the form to sit in the house chamber and listen to the comparison of the minutes of the two bodies showing the election of ex-Gov. McCreary to represent Kentucky in the United States senate. Mr. Hearn, of Scott county, offered a resolution requiring the custodian of public buildings to furnish the committee on state capitol with information as to the amount of money invested in other states in capitol buildings.

Frankfort, Jan. 24.—Gov. Beckham Thursday morning signed the first measures sent to him by the legislature for his approval. Among them was the Weatherford Schley resolution. Representative J. A. Morrison, in the house, offered a resolution calling on congress to pension the South Cumberland battalion in actual service for the union in 1861-1865. The senate passed Senator Taylor's bill doing away with serial numbers in distillers' reports to the auditor, and giving distillers ten days in which to report whisky in bond. Among the new bills was one by Senator Farris prohibiting the sale or use of cigarettes. Speaker Pro announced the following special committee to consider the McDonald confederate home bill: H. P. McDonald, A. C. Thompkins, F. B. Brown, M. F. North, W. C. Clark, J. W. Alexander, W. E. Offutt, W. J. Worthington and D. R. Hubble.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 25.—Senate.—The senate Thursday passed the Bools double liability repeal bill, doing away with the double liability cause of the statutes as to all corporations except banks, trusts and insurance companies. Among the bills reported by the house to the senate was the Drewery firemen's pension fund bill, and the Farris bill to return to the viva voce system of voting.

House.—Bills adopted: To give magistrates and police courts final jurisdiction in local option cases; to reduce the amount of fine for violation of local option laws to $100, so that magistrates and police courts will have final jurisdiction; to take from women of cities of the second class—Lexington, Covington and Newport—the right to vote in school elections; to prohibit the use of any textbooks in the common or graded schools that do not give full credit for the naval victory at Santiago to Adm. W. S. Schley. Representative Averdick (dem.) introduced a joint resolution condemning the action of President Roosevelt in sending a special envoy in the representative of this country to the coronation of King Edward.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., Jan. 25.—The Lawrenceburg Business Men's club appointed a committee to get options on a site for a public building in this city. Congressman Gilbert is confident that an appropriation will be made.

More Fraud Orders.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 25.—Postmaster Clay Elkin has received fraud orders against six additional investment companies, running their total up to 15. The order to stop the companies' mail makes a big difference in the post office receipts and the amount of mail handled.

Charged With Robbing a Store.

Columbia, Ky., Jan. 25.—H. C. Simpson and Robert Anderson are under arrest on a charge of robbing a store and the post office at Gentry's Mill, this county, last Saturday night.

THE DEFENSE RESTS.

The Prosecution in the Howard Trial Gives Rebuttal Testimony.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 22.—When Jim Howard's case was continued Tuesday morning Misses Mattie and Lillie Jones testified that Howard was at their parents' home in Frankfort on January 1. He was then cleanly shaven.

R. L. McClure, of Lexington, swore that Wharton Golden told him "Youtsey could not get money for testifying for he had fixed that."

Capt. Delli Walcott testified that W. H. Culton told him that he had a contract with the commonwealth to get immunity and that he would receive money for his testimony.

Dr. Phillips, of Clay county, when cross-examined by the commonwealth, said that Jim Howard told him that his train was late and he did not reach Frankfort until after the shooting of Goebel.

The defense will conclude its direct testimony in the Howard case early Wednesday. One of the attorneys Tuesday night said that only one or two witnesses now remain to be examined. The commonwealth has held in reserve a number of witnesses who are to be called in rebuttal and attorneys on that side intimate that they have some strong evidence to be brought out at this stage of the trial.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 23.—The defense reated its case in the Jim Howard trial Wednesday and the state began the testimony in rebuttal. Several witnesses were introduced to show that Howard's principal alibi witness, H. C. Robertson, had said that he was at the gate of the capitol square when Goebel was shot, and saw him fall. Robertson claimed to have been in the Board of Trade hotel with Howard when the shot was fired. Numerous witnesses also contradicted Howard's own story as to his whereabouts on the night following the shooting. The evidence will be concluded Thursday and the case will go to the jury Friday night or Saturday morning.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 24.—At the morning session of the trial of Howard Samuel Gregory, Elijah and John Herd, of Clay county, swore that Jim Howard had exhibited to them a false mustache, black in color, which he carried in an envelope. William Sanderlin, of Owsley county, testified that Bev White told him that Jim Howard had killed Goebel; that he and his brother, John G., had spent $4,000 in the case, and they would spend every cent they had for him.

Sanderlin was put under the guard of a deputy sheriff after he came to Frankfort to prevent him leaving town. He said Robert Webb came to him and told him if he would escape from the sheriff and not testify against Howard, Bev White would give him $50.

Quite a number of witnesses testified to unimportant details concerning the removal of Senator Goebel to the Capital hotel through the streets after the shooting.

At the afternoon session considerable testimony was given to show that Howard was not in the Board of Trade hotel, as he stated, at the time of the shooting. Among the witnesses was Thomas Pence, proprietor of the hotel. The state has practically finished its case.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 25.—The testimony was closed in the Jim Howard trial Friday afternoon, and the arguments were begun. The developments of the day were unimportant. No limit has been placed on the speeches, and it is probable that there will be four for the defense and three for the prosecution. Judge Cantrill ordered that all spectators be searched for arms on entering the court room. This is said to have been due to reports that some of the mount Boers in attendance on the trial were threatening to create trouble.

KENTUCKY FEUD.

A Fight Took Place Which May Result in a Triple Murder.

London, Ky., Jan. 25.—News was received here Friday evening of a bloody fight on Buck creek, Owsley county. Seven men were engaged in the battle, six of whom were wounded. The participants were Dan and Newell Brewer and Robert Lynch, on one side, and George Scott, and Lucien and John Treadway and Dan Allen on the other. Five of the men were armed with pistols and two with knives. The cause of the trouble was an old grudge existing between Newell Brewer and George Scott, the latter having been a county officer at one time and fined Brewer in a pistol case. Both Dan and Newell Brewer are so badly wounded that their recovery is improbable, and Scott's wounds may also prove fatal. Robert Lynch, Lucien Treadway and Dan Allen are also dangerously wounded, but will recover.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 5, 1902. NO. 16.

A WEEK'S COLLECTION OF PERSONAL AND NEWS ITEMS BY THE RECORDER'S FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENTS

BELLEVUE, Feb. 3.—Uncle Mike Clore is still improving.

The young are enjoying the snow—sleighriding.

James Rogers had a couple of fine sheep killed by dogs one day last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Arnold were visiting Mrs. Arnold's parents in Petersburg, Sunday.

We are informed that T. T. Kelly has purchased the farm of Mrs. R. P. Berkshire near Rabbit Hash.

Miss Maggie Hunter has returned to her home across the river, after a week's visit with Miss Eva Botts.

W. B. Arnold had no idea what it was to be left dancing in the pig-trough until his brother Hugh, got married.

N. E. Vanness, of Rabbit Hash, was calling on J. H. Lawell, last Saturday. It has been many a day since Tuck was seen in this vicinity. He is strictly a home man.

Mr. and Mrs. James Rogers gave the young folks a party, Monday. It was enjoyed by all in attendance. Mr. and Mrs. Rogers know how to make everybody enjoy themselves at their home.

Mrs. Clara Smith was the recipient of a set of silver teaspoons, presented by the Christian Sunday-school, showing their appreciation of her faithful and untiring labors in the school for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. O. N. Grant, Misses Leola McWethy, Maggie Hunter, Eva Botts, Minnie Clore and Messrs. Carl Grant and Charlie Clore, attended the party at Mrs. Lourena Scott's, last Monday night.

Lawrence Phipps has abandoned the idea of marrying, and came to town, one day last week, and purchased a quantity of material for bed comforts, preparatory to sitting up a batchelor's hut. Boys, console him in his sad disappointment.

Misses Mary Huey, Minnie Clore, Eva Botts, Maggie Hunter, Genie Moody, John Moody, Jr., Charlie Clore and many others, whose names we did not learn, attended the reception which W. B. Arnold and sister, Flo, gave in honor of their brother, Hugh and bride.

Mrs. Eliza Akins, wife of Jas. B. Akins, of McVille, was buried in the new cemetery, last Friday. Her death occurred last Wednesday, after several months suffering. Mrs. Akins was highly respected by all her neighbors and friends, and in her death we lose a christian and worthy lady.

PETERSBURG.—Home talent will give the temperance drama, Ten Nights in a Bar Room, at Gordon's Hall in the near future.

Have heard that F. P. Walton will resign his position in the city and come back to Boone and resume farming.

James Moreland, who was so severely bitten by a horse he was trying to bridle, last summer, has never recovered from the effects of the bite.

The M. E. Sunday school elected the following officers: A. J. Buchanan, Supt.; Mrs. J. P. Olds, Assistant Supt.; Miss Lou Allen, Organist; Miss Ida Thompson, Secty; Earl Whiting has a class of grown young men.

Solon Early, J. P. has fitted up a nice office in the Smith building, and J. E. Gaines supplied him with a load of excellent kindling. Now when the business houses close too early for the Squire and Billy Stephens they can pair to the office of Early & Stephens, where they can commune with another till the wee sma' hours.

WALTON, Feb. 2.—The Grangers will meet again Friday afternoon, the 7th inst., and will elect permanent officers under the charter, they will receive that day. Master of the State Grange, Wolcott, the Rev. L. Johnson and other speakers are expected to be present. Applications for membership will be in order.

Miss Effie Lermond has returned home after finishing the five months school term on Friday last.

Mr. John Senior, farmer, 56, died at his residence, last Friday morning. There was no funeral at the request of the deceased, and the remains were deposited in the vault at Independence.

Tobacco is coming in slowly, the severe weather keeping back the stripping. Both the houses, however, are tolerably well filled with tobacco and it will take some good, lively work to keep it out of the way, if mild, soft weather should make an appearance.

The young folks also held forth at the residence of Mrs. Madge Grubbs, with a numerous attendance, and Mr. Willie Holder, the father of Mrs. Grubbs, when asked how many were there, answered promptly, "too many to count, and they frisked about with so much jollity, that I almost felt as if I were a boy again, when life seemed of sunny years," etc.

The "Our Funny Folks Club," entertained with a masquerade party on the evening of the 1st inst., at Miss Gertrude Curley's, and the function was a very pleasant one to all concerned in it. Misses Sallie Herndon, Mabel Bagby, Hattie Edwards, Mary Rouse, Myrtle Jones, Edna Ransier, and the fairy-like hostess, Miss Gertrude Curley, led the gentlemen attendants, Messrs. Claud Ford, Willie Norman, and Drs. Jacob Cleek and C. C. Metcalfe quite a merry round, and it was really the happiest event of the season. The club is a secret organization, with a membership of seven young ladies, who derive much pleasure from the sessions, which are held twice a month. The members are invited to meet with Miss Myrtle Jones on the afternoon of the 15th inst., at 2 o'clock.

The smallpox has broken out again in several families in the Richwood neighborhood, and is occasioning much alarm all over the southern part of the county. The authorities are required by the laws to take immediate action for stamping out the disease, and if they do not do so the people should take steps to put them out of office. It is stated that there are two cases at Lawrence Ryan's, two at Harmon Heard's, one at Frank Robinson's; one at Andy Collili's and one at John Glacken's. There may be other cases unreported, and there is danger of its spreading. It is said that the disease was brought into the infected district by a son of Mr. Frank Robinson, who was visiting in the city, and who attended the public school. The authorities know whose duty it is to go to work without any of the usual official shill-shallying that so frequently characterizes the actions of officials.

BEAVER—Robert Litterell is preparing to build a nice barn near his newly purchased home in Beaver.

Miss Mattie Gregory, who has been visiting relatives at Patriot, Ind., much to the gratification of her many frinds has returned home.

Clive Eldred, who has been sojourning some months with his grandmother Lamkin, in Patriot, Ind., has returned home to his parents.

J. B. Eldred and wife have moved into the cottage at the residence of C. C. Sleet, Mrs. Eldred is nursing the infant of Mrs. Sleet. Lon Henry moved into the house vacated by Mr. Eldred.

There is serious talk of trying to establish a Free Rural Mail Delivery route here, at an early date, and a petition to that effect is being circulated among those interested in the project.

Several of Charles Reib's relatives were called from here, by telephone Monday morning, to his bedside in Covington where he is stricken with paralysis, and his death is momentarily expected.

Many, in fact most of the farmers in this vicinity have sold and delivered their tobacco at a tolerably reasonable price. Some are still holding for bigger money, which we hope they will be able to get.

Measles and pneumonia fever in an epidemic form are giving the people in Beaver great trouble. At present there is scarcely a family here but what has one, two or three cases. Doctor Ryle reports some in a very precarious condition.

The dance given at the hospitable home of Mrs. Mike Ryan was the grandest social function of the season. There were a goodly number of ladies and gentlemen present, and good music was furnished by the Beaver string band, and every body present enjoyed themselves hugely.

Died, Jan. 25th, at the residence of her son-in-law, John Smith, near Big Bone church, in the 71st year of her age, Aunt Lucinda Miller, of old age and general debility. On Sunday at 3 o'clock p. m., after a brief funeral sermon by Rev. Mills, assisted by Rev. Gregory, the remains were laid to rest in the beautiful Hughes Chapel cemetery.

MOUNDFIELD FARM, Feb. 3.—Miss Getta Erusts is quite sick with grippe.

Measles are epidemic in Hebron and vicinity.

For a change, we have no deaths to report this week.

Robert Aylor and wife are the happy parents of a little daughter.

Elijah Tanner made a flying business trip to Dayton, Ohio, last week.

Dr. and Mrs. Sayre entertained a number of their friends at dinner, last Sunday.

Cleve Hankins and wife were pleasant guests of Chester Davis and wife, last Thursday night.

A very excellent and enthusiastic meeting was held by the members of Greenwood Grange at their hall, last Saturday.

A male quartett has recently been organized at Hebron. They meet Saturday nights, but would sing any other night if called on.

A. G. Winston has disposed of his handsome farm, where he lives, and contemplates moving with his family to Chicago in the near future.

R. L. Bradford has accepted a position as salesman, with the H. G. Heintz, Pickle Manufacturing Co., of Pittsburg, He begins work to-day, with head quarters at Lexington, Ky.

Henry Quick and wife gave a birthday dinner, one day last week, in honor of Mrs. Quick's sister, Mrs. Will Garnett, and Miss Kate Crigler, their birth days coming on the same day. A large number of their friends met with them and a sumptuous dinner was served by Mrs. Quick.

Dr. Sayre and wife, Lou Crutcher and wife, and Billy Gaines and wife, took advantage of the good sleighing, last Thursday night, and walked up to Moundfield, where the evening was pleasantly spent. Games were indulged in, suggestions for the good of the order were made, and discussions on the topics of the day were discussed pro and con. The whole concluded with an elaborate feast, consisting of pop corn and bellflower apples.

The big fire at Bromley, week before last, was not only a great loss to the village, but broke into Charlie Garnett's arrangements very much. We understand that he had made a deal with Esq. Crigler (who owned the buildings that were burned) to occupy one of them as a banking house. He had made arrangements to quit the huckster business and open a bank at Bromley but, now, as the building is burned, he will continue huckstering until he can secure a building that suits his convenience.

Without a doubt, John Clore is the champion hay hauler of this county. He is a hustler from away back. It matters not what the weather may be, John is out making three trips a week to the city, and most generally with two wagons at a trip, and such loads as he hauls—they look like hay mows moveing as he passes by. Then John has teams to draw these loads. He keeps sixteen work horses, fat as moles, slick as eels and fiery as obained lightning. If one team gets jaded he puts another in and away he goes.

LIMABURG, Feb. 3.—The sleighing is very fine.

Two new cases of measles at Kidville.

The public school closed here on the 31st ult.

Spring lambs are making their appearance here.

Hubert Beemon had a $100 horse to die the other day.

Mrs. Lura Rouse, who has been very ill of measles is improving.

Our items are calling forth so many comments that we will strike for a higher salary, or private secretary to answer our correspondence.

While some scoff at the Doctors calling this disease small-pox, it is not reasonable that four should be mistaken on an old time disease. Many call this mysterious disease, "Cuban itch."

Our new "scribbler" from Frogtown says "Walter Grubbs wants to be road-overseer." Walter says he is like the rest around here, "he did not vote for Judge Cason, in the first place; and, second, he don't know how a road should be worked to the best advantage, but he will recommend a man that does."

Some one stole a Smith & Wesson, 22 caliber revolver from the home of Walter Grubbs. The thief is known and if the pistol is not returned he will be prosecuted. This revolver and another one were stolen some years ago from Mr. Grubbs, and the thief was captured and lay in Burlington jail for a few weeks, when he secured bail and left for parts unknown.

Nearly 20 years ago, small pox broke out in Andrew Glacken's home, now occupied by Frank Robinson, and five persons fell victims to the disease. Mr. Glacken and a colored man dying, but the disease never spread beyond that home. Can it be the germs of the disease lurked in some of the buildings and after so long a time seized Mr. Robinson, or did Earl catch it in town?

Many are divided on the "Paris Green Hill. We look at it this way, if the tobacco growing counties that raise thousands of acres where we raise ten, are compelled to quit the use, will we not be benefitted by a higher price. If they can afford to worm theirs for 5c a pound more, can we not do so? It is a late thing with us, and if the bill passes, we can most certainly tend our crops with less expense and labor than they can, and get better prices than now. Boone can stand it if others do.

Hello, Union! Give me Sam Hicks, please. Sam, we were posted and wires up, but staples pulled out, and your hogs that you said would weigh nearly 140 pounds, must have said, "excuse haste and a bad pen" and you got something that weighed nearly 200 to make 6 hogs at 140 pounds bring a price over $45. We were high, but think you were low. Will ask, "How Scales" or your self next time, a dozen men were heard to say they would weigh from 100 to 125 pounds, but if you weighed them —we will "vamoose."

We have a small-pox scare here and if the Doctors are correct in their diagnosis, there will be an epidemic never before heard of in this community. Members in more than ten families are already broken out with the disease and nearly every one here has at one time come in contact with it. It began in what at first was thought to be chicken-pox, and Frank Robinson's youngest son, Earl, was the first victim, next, Walter, was taken, and two doctor's pronounce it genuine small-pox, and as to the other cases, though similar, it is hoped it has passed its worst.

GUNPOWDER, Feb. 3.—Mrs. Alice Houston is quite ill of throat trouble.

We are having a pretty fair spell of winter weather.

Joseph Scott and daughter, Miss Emma, have measles.

Weddings are epidemic in this end of the county.

Earnest Grant has over 60 young lambs.

The secrets some people don't tell are the ones they don't know.

Mrs. Joe Fitch is recovering from a dangerous spell of pneumonia following measles.

The wireless telegraph is an established fact. Now let us see if we can't have wireless political conventions.

The ground hog didn't see his shadow; the hole was stopped up with snow and ice, and he could not get out.

The tobacco buyers are stirring around quite lively of late, but farmers are holding off, waiting for further advance in prices.

Abram Swing, who lives a short distance below the Aurora Ferry, is very low with inflammation of the kidneys and kindred ailments. There is little or no hope of his recovery.

Mrs. Elijah Parker is visiting her daughter, Mrs. Ben Johnson, of the Lawrenceburg vicinity. Mrs. Johnson and son have been very much indisposed for some time.

Frank Hartman has a heifer with the smallest calf that ever made its advent here. It weighed 15lbs at birth and has to be held up to the teats to suck, being too low to reach them.

We have seen a copy of the bill introduced in the legislature to establish a home for infirm and indigent Ex-Confederates. It does not meet our approval, being an old ex-Confederate, who served through the entire war, we suggest that a small pension be granted to the needy and maimed or otherwise disabled veterans, and let them remain at home among their relatives and friends. We think a much larger number of deserving veterans could thus be reached and helped than through a confederate Home, where we think the bum element would predominate. Most of the veterans have families and would not leave them to live in the home. Furthermore, let the pensions be limited strictly to those who remained true to the cause of the South to the close of the war, or were honorably discharged by the Confederate authorities. The amount to be paid for pensions would be small to start on, for there are not comparatively few of us left, and we have reached an age that the death rate is rapidly increasing and in a few years the last one of us will have crossed over the great divide, and pensions will cease forever.

FLORENCE, Feb. 4.—Miss Nell Crigler has returned home from a visit in Crittendeu, Ky.

Mrs. Elija Hehn, of Ludlow, is the guest of Mrs. Noah Clore.

If the ground hog, our old, infallible weather prophet, emerged from his hiberuation, last Sunday at the appointed time, his obfuscation was entirely satisfactory, and terrible weather for the next six weeks may be reasonably expected.

Squire Sam Noell and wife have moved from Hume, on Mudlick creek, to their old home at Midway, on the banks of that classic old stream, Big Bone. Sam says he would feel lost if he were to get out of reach of the tremendous roar of some durned old creek.

There is intense excitement here on account of the prevalence of smallpox between here and Richwood and Walton. Doctor Lassing visited here, Saturday, and vaccinated a number of persons who are justly alarmed at the proximity of the loathsome disease to our hamlet.

Died, February 1st, of pneumonia fever, in the 52d year of his age, John Senlour, at his home on the Beaver and Walton grade, about midway between these two points. Although living the life of a batchelor, he was one of the best of neighbors, friends and citizens in the Walton precinct. He was in good circumstances, and liked by all who knew him, and will be greatly missed in his community.

LOCAL NEWS.

The following from the Danville News gives a specimen result of last week's storm throughout Central Kentucky:

"The storm of sleet, rain and snow which prevailed over this section Tuesday and Wednesday was unprecedented in many years in the damage done to property of all kinds. Tons of ice and half frozen sleet accumulated on roofs, trees, and wires, and literally crushed every substance subject to the ground. Trees were denuded of their branches, and where they happened to be of the unbreakable variety were in a great many cases bent over until their branches touch the ground. The destruction to orchards would be difficult to estimate, but the effect of the storm will be felt by fruit producers for many years to come. Frozen gutters backed up water on roofs, flooded houses, and filled cellars. The store rooms of Welsh and Wiseman and Robertson Brothers were flooded in this way, but the damages will not be heavy.

"The East Tennessee Telephone Company will be the heaviest financial sufferer. It is impossible to estimate the cost of repairs at this time, but it will run up into the thousands of dollars. Of over 400 connections in the county, only 50 remain at this time, and it will be many weeks before the system is restored to its former condition. In addition to wires breaking, many poles fell to the ground.

Sheriff Beall is fattening hogs on hickory nuts. He says they thrive admirably on hickory nuts that were carefully selected in the fall, and kept in a good, dry place all winter.

The following persons have been appointed by the county court as trustees for the town of Florence: W. H. Tanner, Ed Corbin, Arnold Bowers and Lee Eddins. John Hampton, who was elected, had qualified.

A DRAMATIC BATTLE.

The Biddle Brothers. Condemned Murderers, Escape.

Captured After Being Badly Wounded By Officers—They Died Later—Warden's Wife, Who Assisted Their Escape, Wounded.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 31.—Edward and John Biddle, awaiting execution in the county jail for the murder of Grocer Thomas D. Kahney, of Mt. Washington, overpowered the guards at 4 o'clock Thursday morning and escaped. Both prisoners had been provided with saws with which they cut the bars in their cells and were ready at any moment to make an opening sufficiently large to pass through. The prisoners occupied adjoining cells on the second range. They had evidently been preparing for escape for some time, and had assistance from the outside, as both were armed with revolvers.

The escape of the Biddles has been explained. Warden Peter K. Soffel has authorized its publication. It is the allegation that his wife is responsible for the furnishing of revolvers and saws to the Biddles, which enabled them to escape. In her infatuation for the handsome desperado, Edward Biddle, it is alleged that she bas left her husband and her four children and it is supposed is to meet the escaped convicts at a place agreed upon.

The prison board began an investigation Thursday afternoon and announced upon adjournment Thursday night that Warden Soffel, at bis own request, had been relieved from duty pending the result of the investigation. Deputy Warden Marshall was placed in charge temporarily.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 1.—Edward Biddle in jail dying, John Biddle riddled with buckshot and in a precarious condition, and Mrs. Peter K. Soffel lying in the hospital with a self-inflicted bullet wound in the breast, is the sequel of the sensational escape of the Biddle brothers from the Allegheny county jail, aided by Mrs. Soffel, the wife of the jail warden, on Thursday morning. The story of the close of the Biddle tragedy is a thrilling one.

The scene was a snow covered road two miles east of Prospect, Butler county, near Mt. Chestnut, and the exact place was at McClure's barn, where two double team sleighs, filled with eight officers, three of them Pittsburg detectives, John Roach, Albert Swinehart and Charles McGovern, met the two Biddles in a one-horse sleigh, stolen at Perrysville, and at once opened fire on the trio.

The Biddles returned the fire after jumping out of the sleigh. Mrs. Soffel was shot through the breast.

The Pittsburg officers were met at Butler Friday afternoon by Deputy Sheriffs Rainey and Hoon and Officers Frank Holliday and Aaron Thompson the latter under command of Chief of Police Robert Ray, of Butler.

The Biddles and Mrs. Soffel ate dinner at J. J. Stephen's, at Mt. Chestnut. They had made a detour of the town of Butler and after going several miles east turned north and then west. The Pittsburg officers reached Mt. Chestnut not less than half an hour after the Biddles and Mrs. Soffel. At this point William Watson, storekeeper, had fresh horses awaiting them, and the chase for life began anew.

The two sleighs with the eight officers aboard started westward, and met the Biddles and Mrs. Soffel at McClure's barn, two miles from Mt. Prospect, the Biddles having learned that they were almost overtaken, and taking what they considered the only chance they had, drove eastward and met their doom.

When the detectives got within about 60 yards of the fugitives they opened fire. The Biddles promptly answered with shotgun and revolvers. When Ed Biddle fell and Mrs. Soffel saw she was about to be captured she fired a bullet into her breast. An examination by physicians shows that she will recover, as the bullet was deflected by her corset and the wound is comparatively slight.

Ed Biddle got a bullet in the breast which penetrated his right lung and will probably end his life soon. John Biddle may recover, his wounds, though numerous, failing to reach a vital spot. The escape of the officers is miraculous. The Biddles have demonstrated on several occasions that they are good marksmen, and why they should have failed on this occasion to bring down their men is a mystery.

After the Biddles fell to the snow covered ground the officers picked up the apparently lifeless bodies of Mrs. Soffel and the Biddles and came back to Butler, bringing the stolen sleigh, patched up harness and worn out horse that the trio had tried so strenuously to get away with toward Canada and liberty.

Mrs. Soffel made a statement after her capture in which she said she became involved in the affair through her sympathy for Ed Biddle. She said she now realized her mistake and wisbed she was dead. She said she did not shoot herself.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 1.—John and Edward Biddle, the wounded convicts, died Saturday evening.

Butler, Pa., Feb. 3.—The terrible fate of the Biddles is the sole topic of conversation here. A great deal of sympathy for the boys is expressed on all sides, and not a few of the female portion of the crowd expressed a desire to see what kind of a man Biddle was, that he should exert such a wonderful influence over men and particularly women. The jail doors were closed all day, and no one got in but the doctors, who attended the autopsy, and the coroner's jury, which organized at 9 o'clock Sunday morning. Coroner John L. Jones arrived at 9 o'clock at the jail and selected the jury. The testimony of all the officers concerned in the capture was taken except Robert Ray.

At the inquest Sheriff Hoon testified that between 40 and 50 shots were fired at the Biddles. Both men fell out of the sleigh, and were lying on their faces when the officers came up to them. Detective McGovern, Hoon says, "walked up and hit Jack on the back of the head with the butt end of his Winchester when he was on his face. Then I turned Ed over on his back. I was the first to touch either of the men, and he was going to shoot them again. He stepped back and shot Jack again after he was on the ground. I turned Ed over, and he said: 'For God's sake, don't shoot again—let me die.' Mr. Holliday turned Jack over and coaxed him (McGovern) not to abuse him—to let him die. The slugs that entered the arms and side of Jack Biddle were from the shot fired by McGovern after he was lying face downward on the snow at close range."

The verdict of the jury is that Ed Biddle came to his death by a revolver shot fired from a 32-caliber revolver by himself, and that Jack Biddie met his death from a gunshot wound inflicted by the officers in discharging their lawful duty.

Under instructions of Coroner Jones, an autopsy was held on the Biddles Sunday morning. The evidence secured by the autopsy bears out the statements that the Biddles intended to kill themselves rather than be taken alive, and that Ed succeeded in his attempt while Jack failed, though his life was forfeited.

Dr. Bricker gave the following statement after the autopsy:

"Jack Biddle was the worst wounded of the two men, although he was in better condition than Ed, when the men were brought to the jail Friday night. He had two gunshot wounds on the right side in the region of the liver, the bullets passing up and around the body and did no damage. They were removed on Saturday. A bullet wound was found in the roof of the moutu, but it was slight and would not have caused his death. This wound was inflicted by himself with the evident intention of committing suicide.

"In all, Jack was suffering from nine wounds, but excepting the one that penetrated the kidney none of them would have been fatal. Ed's terrible sufferings were caused by a bullet wound that struck him on the left breast about an inch and a half to the right of the nipple and passed down between the fourth and fifth ribs to the left of the heart and through the lung. This wound was made by Ed himself. The powder marks are visible on the skin. Death was caused by hemorrhages and the man suffered untold agony to the last breatb. Another wound found on his body was on the same side about an inch from the left nipple, but the bullet struck the fourth rib, passed under the skin and did no damage. Both bullets found in Ed were 32 caliber, and in the opinion of the doctors, who beld the autopsy, there is no doubt that he killed himself."

After the autopsy the bodies of the Biddles were taken in charge by Undertaker W. P. Roessing, of Butler, who prepared them for burial.

Arrangements were made to take the bodies to Pittsburg Monday morning. They are in charge of Sheriff T. R. Hoon.

Since the officers concerned in the fight and capture of the Biddles have had time to cool off a little, there appears to be a disposition to be fair towards each other in the matter of the distribution of the prize money, and an agreement to divide the $5,000 reward equally among the four officers here, the driver, J. A. Snyder, and the three Pittsburg detectives, has been practically consented to by all of the men except Detective McGovern, who is not here.

Mrs. Soffel was reported to be spitting blood Sunday night at the hospital and her condition is not considered so favorable. The track of the bullet wound in her breast runs close to the pleura and the doctors are not yet able to tell whether the hemorrhage is caused by the wound or is attributable to some other cause not yet fully developed.

MURDERERS CAPTURED.

The Slayers of James Heekin Brought to Bay Near Crenshaw, Pa.

Brockwayville, Pa., Feb. 3.—Half-naked and nearly starved, Thos. Madaiena and Bennie Poll, the Italians, wanted for the murder of James Heekin at Shawmut Saturday, January 28, were brought to bay in a lonely woods near Crenshaw, two miles from this place, and captured. The two Italians have been pursued and searched for since the night of their crime, and the commissioners of Elk county and the Shawmut Mining Co. have offered a reward of $1,000 for their capture. The pursuing party was composed of four Italians, under the direction of Squire Thomas Keys, of this place. The murderers had been biding in the woods since Heekin was murdered. They declared that they had had nothing to eat for four days and were nearly famished. When the Italian deputies, under Squire Keys, appeared, they were too weak to offer any material resistance and were easily overpowered by the posse.

Worst Blizzard of the Winter.

Cory, Pa., Feb. 3.—The worst blizzard of the winter is raging in Northwestern Pennsylvania. Since early Sunday snow has fallen, and a fierce wind from the west drives it into huge drifts. Railway traffic is much impeded and telegraph and telephone companies are having much trouble.

A BIG CONFLAGRATION.

A Two Million Dollar Fire at Waterbury, Ct.

The Flames Were Gotten Under Control About Midnight, But Broke Out in New Places—Assistance Called For.

Waterbury, Ct., Feb. 3.—The most disastrous fire in the history of Waterbury broke out in the heart of the city shortly before 6:30 Saturday evening. A large section of the business part of the city has already been wiped out and in the high wind prevailing there is little hope of saving what still stands in that part of the business section south of Exchange place. The fire originated in the upholstery department on the third floor of the store of the Reid & Hughes Dry Gooda Co., at 108-112 Bank street. That store and many adjoining buildings are in ruins. The origin of the conflagration is not known. The fire was not discovered until it had gained tremendous headway.

The wind, which was at first shifting, settled toward the east and carried destruction with it. The first building to catch from the Reid & Hughes Co. store was a tall structure occupied by the Salvation army barracks and a Turkish bath. A moment or two later the flames leaped across Bank street and wiped out the Ryan & Fitzmaurice block, Cannon & Webster's drug store, Davis' cigar store and the store of J. B. Mullings & Sons. The fire burned rapidly through to South Main street and jumped across that street, shrivelling the buildings like paper. At the same time the flames caught the Masonic temple and traveled from the Salvation army building to the rear of the Franklin house on Grand street and the entire block, consisting of seven or eight handsome five story buildings, with 30 tenants, and the large quarters of the Waterbury American were in ruins before midnight.

Shortly after midnight the fire which had apparently been brought nearly under control, broke out in new places, and the efforts of the local firemen, combined with the aid given by fire fighters and apparatus from Hartford, Torrington, Bridgeport, New Haven and Naugatuck, seemed powerless to stay its progress. The blaze was wiping out the business portion of the city, all the fire being confined to that section, though residential parts of the city were in danger by sparks driven by the furious wind.

At 1 o'clock conservative estimates place the loss at $2,000,000.

At 4:20 a. m. flames 30 feet high were leaping from the roof of the Scoville house, which caught fire after the flames had been thought under control. The guests in the Scoville house and the Exchange hotel have fled in their night clothes. The second fire has placed the city in a panic. The origin of the last blaze is a mystery.

The city hall is threatened. The Exchange hotel is burning like tinder.

TRAINS ABANDONED.

Heavy Snow Storm Accompanied With High Westerly Winds.

Bradford, Pa., Feb. 3.—Snow has fallen steadily since 7 o'clock Sunday morning, accompanied by high westerly winds. All trains on the Western New York & Pennsylvania branch of the Pennsylvana railroad, the Bradford, Bordell & Kinzua, the Bradford branch of the Erie, Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg, have been abandoned. The fast passenger train between Rochester, Buffalo and Pittsburg has been abandoned. Trains are running several bours late on the main line of the Erie.

CHINESE BOXERS.

Reported They Invaded Corea and Plundered Several Towns.

London, Feb. 3.—"A report has reached here from Western Corea," wires the St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, "that 2,000 Chinese Boxers have crossed the Corean frontier and plundered several towns, the inhabitants of which fled. The government has asked for military assistance."

Smooth Nickels Go.

St. Louis, Feb. 3.—"Smooth" nickels must be accepted at their face value, according to a decision rendered by Judge Ryan in the circuit court in the case of John F. Ruth, who was awarded $2,000 against the St. Louis Transit Co. for being ejected from a car, arrested and locked up over night because he tendered a worn coin.

Pier Demolished.

Halifax, N. S., Feb. 3.—A blizzard which promises to be the severest in years prevails throughout the provinces, having been preceded by wind of almost hurricane force. The new big steel ferry steamer Scotia broke from her moorings and, crashing into a pier, demolished it.

Sailed For the West Indies.

New York, Feb. 3.—The United States gunboat Machias, Lieut. Commander Henry McCrea, which has been at the navy yard here for the past month receiving repairs, sailed Sunday afternoon with orders to proceed to the West Indies.

Stolen Jewels Recovered.

Glendive, Mont., Feb. 3.—The diamonds stolen from the two iron-bound trunks belonging to C. B. Clousen, traveling representative of a Minneapolis wholesale jewelry firm, were recovered at Terry, 40 miles west of Glendive.

Mixed History.

The juvenile son of an army officer made a strange mixture of the history of George Washington the other day. A visitor called during the absence of his parents, and to entertain the children and instill a lesson of manly honor and patriotism told them the famous stories of the liberty bell and the cherry tree. The scion of the soldier was much interested, but the details got badly twisted in his head. When his father returned home he was told of the fine story the visitor had told about the Father of his Country. "Washington must have been a wonderful man," said the boy. "He smashed the liberty bell with his little hatchet and his father whipped him with a cherry tree for telling a lie." It took paterfamilias some time to straighten things out.—Washington Star.

Grand Trunk Secures Space at Sportsmen's Show.

The Grand Trunk Railway Company has completed arrangements for an extensive exhibition in connection with the second annual Sportsmen's Show to be held in Chicago from February 3 until February 22. The Show is being held in the Coliseum, a large building admirably suited for the purpose. The exposition will probably be the finest that has ever taken place in America, excelling even that held in Philadelphia during last December. The Grand Trunk exhibit will include the collection of large photographs of scenes throughout the summer resort districts situated on its line, including the Muskoka Lakes, Lake of Bays, Magnetawan River, 30,000 Islands of the Georgian Bay, Kawartha Lakes, and Lakes Simcoe and Couchiching, as well as views on the Portland division, combining land and water scapes, scenes in the White Mountains, and surf bathing scenes taken on the Maine sea coast.

The space to be occupied by the Grand Trunk will be about 4,000 square feet, and will be one of the most attractive and most interesting exhibits at the show. The Grand Trunk has expended thousands of dollars in bringing before the people of the United States and foreign countries the beauties of the Canadian districts. In the districts embraced in what is known as "the Highlands of Ontario," nearly 30,000 tourists were carried during the summer months, the majority of whom were from the United States. These districts have become so popular that each year finds the hotel accommodation increasing and modern and up-to-date structures are being erected to accommodate the ever increasing travel that is being brought into Canada.

ENGLAND'S ANSWER.

Refuses Holland's Request Concerning Peace in South Africa.

Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds Are Still Obdurate in Their Claims for the Independence of the Two Republics.

London, Feb. 1.—Wiring from The Hague the correspondent of the Daily Mail says that the reply of Great Britain to the Dutch concerning peace in South Africa is a polite refusal of the request that permission be granted for a commission to proceed to South Africa.

"The lack of any authorization by the Boers has proved fatal," says the correspondent, "but the door of negotiations are not wholly closed, since Great Britain's reply reaffirms the willingness of that country to accede to any authorized proposal tending to the conclusion of peace."

London, Feb. 1.—A dispatch from Brussels, published Saturday morning in the Daily Telegraph, says that Mr. Kruger presided at a meeting held at his residence in Utrecht last Friday of all the Boer delegates in Europe, when several expressed themselves in favor of accepting the advice of Queen Wilhelmina and the government of the Netherlands to abandon their claim to independence, but that Mr. Kruger and Dr. Leyds were still obdurate.

Paris, Feb. 1.—The Journal, in an interview, quotes Mr. Kruger as saying: "We do not fight for the delight of battle. We are a Christian and peaceful people. We only fight to preserve our liberty. We only fight because we want peace. Any action the nature of which is to bring peace nearer would satisfy us, and whoever takes the initiative in such action is entitled to our gratitude."

Paris, Feb. 1.—The Liberte prints a dispatch from Brussels Friday which says that Dr. Leyds, the European agent of the Boers, recently received a communication from Gen. Botha, dated only six weeks ago, in which the Boer commander-in-chief not only does not allude to his alleged desire for peace, but declares the Boers are sufficiently provisioned to continue the struggle hopefully and that the situation in Cape Colony is growing worse for the British.

PHILIPPINE CIGARS.

Over 2,000,000 Are on the Way to the United States.

San Francisco, Feb. 1.—Private advices from Manila received state that over 2,000,000 cigars are on the way from the Philippines to this country. It is thought that before the end of February or by the middle of March, at the latest, there will be ten times that number consigned to American tobacco interests from the same quarter of the world. The different factories in the islands are working night and day. There seems to be a fear that the present revenue law will be revoked, and the manufacturers of the Manila article are determined to take every advantage of the opportunity.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT.

Bill Providing For the Erection of a Building For its Accommodation.

Washington, Feb. 1.—The senate committee on public buildings and grounds authorized Senator Fairbanks to make a favorable report on his bill providing for the erection of a new department building at Washington on the site of the old Corcoran art gallery. The bill provides that the building shall be devoted to the use of the state department and the department of justice and that space shall be allotted in the building to the clerical force under the immediate control of the president and which now finds working space in the white house.

Separated Once More.

Rr. Adm. Schley's Visit in Louisville Came to An End.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 1.—The visit of Adm. and Mrs. Schley in this city came to an end at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon when they left in the private car of President Milton H. Smith, of the Louisville & Nashville railroad for Nashville. The car was attached to the "Florida Limited" and Theodore Cooley, a member of the Nashville reception committee, accompanied the departing guests In spite of the fact that every effort had been exerted to make the admiral's departure as quiet as possible, a crowd of people were at the station to cheer him as he boarded the train.

As the cars pulled out of the depot the crowd gave three cheers and the admiral stood on the rear platform and waved his handkerchief.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 1.—Adm. and Mrs. Schley are the guests of Nashville, and the city is in holiday attire in their honor. The train bearing them from Louisville was met at Bowling Green, Ky., by a committee of Nashville's citizens. Both the admiral and his wife appeared in the best of health and spirits, and expressed themselves as highly delighted with their stay in Louisville.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 3.—Adm. and Mrs. Schley braved the cold Sunday for a visit to the tomb of Andrew Jackson. The trip to the hermitage, 12 miles out, was made in a special train leaving here at 10:30 Sunday morning. Arriving there the party was taken in charge by a committee from the Ladies' Hermitage association and escorted to the old brick church, where Jackson worshiped. These services were conducted by Rev. D. C. Kelley, a Methodist minister, who with the rank of colonel commanded a brigade of confederates under Gen. Nathan B. Forrest. After the services, which were largely attended by people of the "Hermitage district," the distinguished visitors were forced to hold something of a levee, the congregation filing by and shaking hands.

Monday morning Adm. and Mrs. Schley visited the Peabody normal college. In the afternoon a public reception at the Tabernacle was held and in the evening Maj. and Mrs. F. B. Stahlman entertained the visitors at the University church.

Tuesday at 9:30 a. m. Adm. and Mrs. Schley will leave over the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis railroad for Chattanooga.

THE JURY'S VERDICT.

Jim Howard Convicted and Received a Life Sentence.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31.—Thursday morning the jury in the case of Jas. Howard, accused of complicity in the murder of Gov. Goebel, returned a verdict finding the prisoner guilty and fixing his punishment at life imprisonment.

This was Howard's second trial. On the first trial he was found guilty and sentenced to hang, but the court of appeals set aside the verdict and granted a rehearing of the case.

The jury is said to have voted unanimously in favor of the verdict of guilty. On the question of punishment seven voted on the first ballot for life imprisonment and five for hanging. On subsequent ballots the five for the death penalty voted with those favoring the life sentence. Howard looked pleased when the verdict was announced. His attorneys will enter a motion for a new trial.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 3.—Judge Cantrill overruled the motion for a new trial in the case of Jim Howard, and sentence was passed on Howard, consigning him to imprisonment in the penitentiary for the term of his natural life. The attorneys for the defense prayed for an appeal to the court of appeals, which was granted as a matter of right, and sentence was passed upon Howard, who Monday was transferred to the Georgetown jail.

Howard stood up in response to the order of the court, and when asked if he had cause to show why sentence should not be passed upon him, he replied: "None except that I am absolutely innocent."

New York, Feb. 1.—Paintings which formed the collection of the late P. C. Hanford, of Chicago, were sold in this city under the auspices of the American Art association. The total for the sale was $124,135.

THE LOSS VERY HEAVY.

Miners at Hondo, Mex., Struck Gas Pocket and Explosion Followed.

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 3.—The latest information from the Hondo, Mex., mine explosion shows it to have been fully as serious as at first reported. There was a total of 106 miners at work in the mine when the explosion occurred and all of them are dead. The majority of the victims are Mexicans and Chinamen, very few Americans having been at work in the mine.

Every mule in the mine was killed, three dead ones being taken from the debris Sunday. The work of clearing away the wreck in order to get to the bodies is being rushed as rapidly as possible, but there is no hope that any of the 106 men will be rescued alive.

The explosion occurred in mine No. 6 and was occasioned by striking a gas pocket. The mine is the property of the Coahuila Coal Co., R. M. McKenny being superintendent.

The loss to the owners of the mine is very heavy.

The Hondo mines are located at Cohilla, at a terminus of a branch of the Mexican International road, about 100 miles south of Eagle Pass, and are the most important in that state. Details of the disaster are meager, no names of the victims being learned here.

SNOW STORMS IN EUROPE.

Many Lives Were Lost and Shipping Badly Damaged.

London, Feb. 3.—The recent gales have been succeeded by heavy snow storms in Western Europe and the shipping along the coast of Spain has suffered considerably.

Forty lives are reported to have been lost in shipwrecks on the Italian coast. Several persons were killed by avalanches in Italy; rivers there have overflowed their banks, a score of bridges have been broken, and many towns are blocked by snow. A village near Verona has been wrecked by the storm and certain districts adjacent to Rome have been flooded. There is three feet of snow at Turin and Milan.

A German bark stranded on St. Martin rock, off the Sicily islands, Sunday evening and was broken up before the life savers reached her. The crew of the bark was drowned. Much North sea wreckage is washing ashore at Sheerness.

"YOUNG GRIFFO."

The Pugilist Found Nearly Frozen to Death in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Albert Griffths, the Australian prize fighter best known as "Young Griffo," was found Sunday nearly frozen to death in a vacant lot within half a block of the Bridewell. Both hands and feet were frozen and surgeons are of the opinion that an amputation of the hands will be necessary. Griffo for many years was a fistic marvel, was considered one of the most skilled and scientific pugilists who ever donned boxing gloves. Of late years Griffo has been leading a fast life and was penniless.

HIS THIRD TERM.

J. Santos Zelaya Inaugurated President of Nicaragua.

Managua, Nicaragua, Feb. 3.—J. Santos Zelaya was Sunday inaugurated president of Nicaragua for his third term in the presence of the Nicaraguan congress and a large assemblage of citizens. Judge Matos, of the supreme court, administered the oath to the president, who, in his address, briefly reviewed his previous administration in Nicaragua and referred hopefully to the prospects for the construction of the Nicaraguan canal and to the benefits that Nicaragua would derive therefrom.

INDEFINITELY POSTPONED.

There Will Be No Illinois Day at the Charleston Exposition.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Illinois day at the Charleston exposition, set for March 4, has been indefinitely postponed. Gov. Yates has taken this action after being notified by Col. Fred A. Smith, president of the Illinois commission to the exposition, that there was doubt whether the exposition management would be ready to receive the Illinois representatives on the date named.

Monterey, Mex., Feb. 3.—Gov. Leal has received word from Mexico City that the members of the Pan-American congress will arrive in Monterey Friday afternoon, February 7, and remain the guests of the city for at least four days.

Well-Known Newspaper Man Dead.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Cornelius M. Leek, one of the best-known newspaper men in Illinois, died Sunday of consumption. He was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., in 1849. His first newspaper work was with the Bloomfield, Ind., Democrat as publisher.

Alice May Not See Coronation.

Washington, Feb. 3.—The president says he was not ready to make an announcement of whether he would permit his daughter Alice to attend the coronation. In diplomatic circles it has been known for several days that the visit was contemplated.

Snow Storm in Paris.

Paris, Feb. 3.—The heaviest snow storm of the winter commenced here early Sunday afternoon and continued until dark, covering the streets of the city to a depth of several inches, seriously impeding traffic.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Jan. 28.—Senate—An animated and prolonged discussion was precipitated in the senate Monday over the right of army officers to criticize utterances made in the senate or elsewhere on the conduct of affairs in the Philippines. Bills were passed as follows: To amend an act granting to the Clear Water Valley Railroad Co. a right of way through the Nez Perces Indian land in Idaho. Bills introduced: Providing for the erection in Washington of a statue of the late John Sherman to cost $50,000; to prevent a false branding or marking of food and dairy products as to the state and territory in which they are produced; to increase the efficiency of the militia.

House—The house adopted a resolution calling for documents relating to the old training ship Vermont which was placed out of commission last summer, and also passed a bill to provide for the compulsory attendance of witnesses before registers and receivers of the general land office. A bill to appropriate $100,000 for the establishment of homes for teaching of articulate speech to deaf children was defeated. The house adjourned until Wednesday.

Washington, Jan. 29.—Senate—The bill to create a department of commerce and labor passed the senate Tuesday. Senator Hoar introduced a bill increasing to $100 per month the pension rate for total blindness. A bill was passed providing for the transfer of census records and volumes to the census office; also a bill increasing the limit of the cost for the public building at Cleveland, O., from $2,500,000 to $3,000,000. A number of private pension bills were passed. Just before the adjournment of the senate Senator Spooner introduced a substitute for the Nicaraguan canal bill. The new bill practically authorizes the president of the United States to choose between the Panama and the Nicaraguan routes.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Senate—For an hour Wednesday the senate had under discussion the question whether a censorship of press dispatches exist in Manila. While no such turbulent scenes as Tuesday's were enacted the debate for a time was very spirited. The secretary of war was quoted as saying that no press censorship now existed in the Philippines, and a letter from Gen. Greely, chief signal officer of the army, was presented by Mr. Beveridge (Ind.), making tue statement officially that there was no censorship of press dispatches and that "the press is entirely free."

House—The house adjourned after being in session 25 minutes. Mr. Hopkins (Ill.) reported the permanent census bill and gave notice that he would call it up Thursday. A request to make the oleomargarine bill a special order for next Monday was objected to on the democratic side.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Senate—Thursday's session of the senate was entirely void of the tumultous scenes which characterized the sessions of the past three days. After the Philippine tariff measure was taken up at 2 o'clock, Mr. Tillman delivered a speech devoted almost entirely to a discussion of the part his state took in the war for the independence of the colonies. Prior to taking up the Philippine bill the senate passed a number of unobjected bills on the calendar.

House—The house passed the bill for the creation of a permanent census bureau. The friends of the civil service law, who were opposed to making the employes of the bureau eligible for transfer or retention, were overwhelmingly defeated. By the terms of the bill the permanent organization will succeed the present temporary organization July 1, 1902, and all employes on the rolls upon the date of the passage of the act will become eligible for transfer to other departments or retention in the permanent organization. The bill also provides for a manufacturing census in 1905, and for the collection of certain special statistics annually. Early in the session a bill was passed for the protection of the lives of miners in the territories.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Senate—An extended speech on the pending Philippine tariff bill was delivered in the senate by Mr. Morgan (Ala.), who devoted particular attention to an amendment he offered to the bill last week. He maintained that the enactment of the bill as it stands now would not be a constitutional remedy for the situation the measure is designed to relieve, but said with the adoption of his amendment the bill would stand the closest scrutiny of the courts. An hour and a half was devoted to consideration of a bill to increase the salaries of judges of United States courts, but no action was taken.

House—The house prepared to defend itself against what it considers the threatened invasion by the senate of its prerogative in the matter of revenue legislation by directing the ways and means committee to investigate the subject and report to the house its conclusions. The action of the house was the outgrowth of the agitation in the senate of the claim that reciprocity treaties affecting the customs revenues can be negotiated without the concurrence of the house. Several private claims bills were passed.

Entertained at Dinner.

Berlin, Feb. 1.—Prince and Princess Henry, of Prussia, Andrew D. White, United States ambassador, and Mrs. White, John B. Jackson, secretary of the embassy, and Mrs. Jackson, together with a large company, were entertained at dinner by Count Von Buelow, the imperial chancellor.

Sent Up For Contempt.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Judge Smith sentenced John F. Bentley, of the printing firm of Bentley, Murray & Co., to 60 days' imprisonment in the county jail for contempt in refusing to bring the books of the firm before the grand jury.

Nominations Confirmed.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The senate Thursday confirmed the following nominations: W. T. Metcalf, pension agent at Topeka, Kan.; H. Skinner, United States attorney for the Eastern district of North Carolina.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Doings of the Kentucky Legislature at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Jan. 27.—The general assembly met in joint session at noon Saturday and elected Miss Pauline Helm Hardin, formerly of Covington, state librarian, to succeed herself. Miss Brown, of London, Laurel county, was voted for by the republican minority. Before the announcement of the vote, former Lieut. Gov. Worthington arose and made a motion that, as a compliment to Miss Hardin, "who has made one of the most efficient officers the state has ever had in this office," her nomination be made by acclamation. After the ballot—80 for Miss Hardin to 22 for Miss Brown—Senator Nat Howard, of the republican side, seconded the motion of Gov. Worthington, and it was adopted.

Frankfort, Jan. 28.—Senate—There was a short session Monday. The most important measure of the day was a senate bill to give the women of Kentucky the right to vote in presidential elections. Other bills were introduced as follows: Act to provide that the union label shall be on all state printing; act to provide coguardianship of father and mother over children.

House—The house convened at noon with several members absent. Mr. Letterle's bill to regulate the practise of barbering and to provide for proper sanitation of barber shops and tools was brought up at the opening of business. An amendment to make it effective only in first, second and third-class cities was adopted. The Letterle bill was then placed on its final passage. The author of the bill was absent, as were many members. The bill passed by a vote of 43 to 13. Adm. Schley's telegram, regretting his inability to visit the legislature, was read to the house.

Frankfort, Jan. 29.—There were short sessions in both houses of the Kentucky legislature Tuesday. Bill day in the house brought out a bunch of new bills. Among them was a bill by Mr. Parker, of Laurel, rep., to repeal the act of 1900 creating the Goebel reward commission and appropriating $100,000 for the purpose of bringing the murderers of William Goebel to justice. Mr. Brown introduced a bill to place the election of the state librarian in the power of the appellate judges at the expiration of the present term. The Thompkins bill to remove the devices from ballots was favorably reported by the committee on suffrage and election.

Frankfort, Jan. 30.—The house Wednesday morning adopted a motion to adjourn until Friday. Thursday, January 30, is the second anniversary of the Goebel assassination, and those who urged adjournment did so as a mark of respect to him. It was also favored so as to give the legislators a chance to attend the Scaley celebration at Louisville. The house committee on municipalities reported favorably a bill changing Paducah from third to second class, and it was advanced. The fight over the state capitol appropriation bill came up in the house Wednesday. A majority report, signed by five members, and a minority report by four were read, and the bill was advanced to its second reading. The minority report, signed by Searcy, Thompson, Castner and Adams, says the minority members of the committee oppose outright an appropriation for the capitol until people have voted on what sum they want expended and where they desire it located. The vote on ordering the bill to second reading was taken viva voce, and did not amount to a test.

Frankfort, Feb. 1.—Both houses of the legislature were without a working majority Friday and in consequence adjourned over until Monday. The senate had only five of its 38 members present and these five adjourned without the formality of having prayers said for them. Bills introduced in the house: To amend charters of cities of the second class so as to extend the terms of the present mayors of these towns two years longer, and also repeals the clause which requires that appointments by the mayor shall be confirmed by the boards of council or aldermen; to appropriate $200,000 for a monument in memory of the confederate dead at Perryville battlefield; making consorting of whites and blacks a felony.

RIVER ON A RAMPAGE.

Frankfort Threatened With the Worst Flood in Its History.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 31.—Frankfort was Thursday night threatened with the worst flood in her history. The Kentucky river is out of banks and continues to rise at a rate of ten inches an hour. The lower parts of the city are already submerged, forcing occupants of houses in that part of the city to upper stories, and the biggest part of the flood, the 36 foot rise from Beattyville, has not yet reached here. Added to this, rain began falling Thursday night, and if it should continue and take the heavy coat of snow and sleet off at once the result will be far more serious than the big rise of 1884, which wrought great damage and suffering. Light and power are things of the past, and great havoc has been played with trees and other property.

Debenture Company Assigns.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.—As a result of bad business caused by the "fraud orders" issued by the post office department at Washington against local debenture companies the "Home Investment Co.," of this city, Friday made an assignment of its business for the benefit of its creditors.

Woman Charged With Illicit Selling.

Winchester, Ky., Feb. 1.—Lou Adkins, alias Caldwell, was arrested and taken to Barbourville, where she is under indictment on seven counts, charging illicit sales of whisky.

EFFECTS OF THE STORM.

Paducah in Darkness and Many of the Streets Blockaded.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 1.—The city is practically dead. It is in darkness, many of the streets being blockaded with broken trees and hundreds of wires on broken poles. All day, as a result of a steady drizzle which froze as it struck, wires and poles have been breaking, shutting down factories and public utilities. The newspapers whose machines and presses are run by electricity, are suspended, the city's street electric light and fire alarm systems are useless and huge poles snap every hour, bringing down their loads of wires and adding to the existing confusion. Several roofs have collapsed from the ice and water, entailing thousands of dollars damage to stocks in many stores. The oldest inhabitant can remember nothing like it. The damage from broken poles and wires alone will be $25,000, and to merchandise over $100,000, while that to business can not be estimated. If no other damage results it will require two weeks to straighten things out. The damage in all Southwest Kentucky is correspondingly large.

Lexington Remains in Darkness.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 31.—Lexington remains in darkness and street cars and all elevators and plants dependent on electricity for power are paralyzed. The Cumberland Telephone Co. had over one hundred poles to fall, and its service is practically suspended. Telegraph companies have suffered severely. Streets are almost impassable from fallen trees and limbs. The aggregate property loss is over $30,000 to the present time.

Owensboro Buried in Sleet.

Owensboro, Ky., Jan. 30.—Owensboro is completely buried in sleet. Damage to business interests estimated at $75,000. The Cumberland Telephone Co. and Home Telephone Co. wires are twisted and broken to pieces, blockading streets.

A SWEEPSTAKE RACE.

Brook Curry Challenges Stallion Owners of the Country.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 1.—Brook Curry has, through the local trotting association, issued a challenge to the stallion owners of the country for a stallion representative sweepstake race for 3-year-olds, $500 per entry, three heats in five, to meet the agent of Silent Brook, by Dark Night, during the October meeting here. Tod, Prelatess, Oxford Boy, Eldred, Hattie Smith, Chesko and many other fast colts will be eligible, and it is expected that the purse will be worth between $6,000 and $7,000.

DUEL ON A TRAIN.

An L. & N. Freight Conductor Met Death While Fighting a Thief.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Feb. 1.—A pistol duel at Pembroke resulted in the deaths of Robert Johnson, a conductor on an L. & N. freight train, and William Sherman, a Negro.

The trainmen caught Sherman stealing and the Negro opened fire, shooting Johnson through the neck. The conductor, after being wounded, drew a revolver and fired four times, two balls passing through Sherman's body. The Negro died an hour later, his dead body being found in the woods. Johnson died in three hours.

Pratt Declared Attorney General.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 30.—The court of appeals overruled a petition for a rehearing in the Pratt-Breckinridge contest over the attorney generalship. The decision upholds the decision of the court rendered in December ousting Attorney General Breckinridge, and puts in Judge Clifton J. Pratt, the republican contestant.

Will Not Visit Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Jan. 30.—In answer to an invitation asking Prince Henry, of Prussia, to visit this city during his stay in America, Mayor Grainger has received a letter from the imperial German consul at Cincinnati, C. Pollier, stating that owing to lack of time the prince will be unable to accept the invitation.

Fine Brood Mare Dead.

Lexington, Ky., Jan. 31.—O. H. Chenault's fine D'Or chestnut mare, by imported Rayton D'Or—Mary Constant, is dead at Spendthrift stud from foaling. She is the dam of Mart, May Morning and Honeymoon.

Fatal Pin Scratch.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Jan. 31.—Mrs. Belle Moore Anderson, wife of Dr. E. C. Anderson, died Thursday morning of blood poisoning, resulting from a pin scratch on the ball of her foot. She had been married seven months.

A Deathbed Charge.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 1.—The United States post office department, in discharging Shelby Love, a letter carrier, paid heed to the deatbbed charge of a servant girl of Parkland, who died in a hospital and who claimed that Love betrayed her.

Another Well of Lubricating Oil.

Henderson, Ky., Feb. 1.—At a depth of 213 feet, well No. 2 in the Tilden field of the White Lick Gas and Oil Co., this county, was brought in. A fine quality of lubricating oil began to flow, when the drill was removed.

ANOTHER chapter from Bradley on Yerkes is in order.

HAS Kentucky not done a good part by Missouri by furnishing her so many able and distinguished men?

THE Board of Supervisors of Grant county raised the assessed valuation of property in the county $75,000.

AND Congressman Scuth Trimble has a boom for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination, but the boom has not escaped from Washington, D. C. yet.

THE bill to repeal the State Board of Epualization is creating considerable interest, and the supporters believe they will be able to put the bill through.

PARIS consumed 1,750,000 pounds of snails last winter. The best came from the Burgundy vineyards, and were sold for from eight to nine francs a thousand.

NOT long since it was claimed that Senator Foraker, of Ohio, was for Roosevelt for President in 1904, but it is now believed that he is busy laying wires for himself.

SOME of the robes at the coming coronation, both for peers and peeresses, will be made of velveteen instead of velvet and trimmed with rabbit's fur instead of ermine.

THE ground hog could observe his shadow at any hour during the day, last Sunday, and from the way Monday was ushered in the whole hog family must have seen their shadows.

CENSUS statistics show an increase of 44 per cent, in the number of manufacturing industries in the United States since 1800, and an increase of 51 per cent in capitol of such industries.

THE fact that there are several cases of smallpox in the Richwood neighborhood is no excuse for any unusual excitement. Get vaccinated and keep away from persons who have the disease is about the best prescription.

COL. R. P. ERNST, of Covington, is mentioned as a probable Republican candidate for the Gubernatorial nomination Col. Bradley and Congressman Boreing are also being discussed in that connection. Ernst will be a hard man to down if he actually wants the nomination.

THE reappointment of C. M. Barnett to be Surveyor of the Port at Louisville, is a clear knock down for ex-Gov. Bradley, who was making a strong fight for his brother-in-law, C. M. Collier. Senator Deboe and Commissioner of Internal Revenue Yerkes were for Barnett, and his reappointment is regarded by them and the other Barnett people as a descisive victory over Mr. Bradley.

A BEAUTY contest conducted by one of the local papers at Paris, this State, has agitated society circles there from center to circumference, and friends of the lady who came second in the contest are charging that several election methods were indulged in by the tellers and others who had access to the ballots. It will be some time before the friends of the who got second place will lady become reconciled to her defeat.

THE legislators are so badly divided in their opinions in regard to the matter of making an appropriation for a new capitol building that it is hardly probable that anything can be accomplished by the promoters of the measure at this session of the legislature. All the members admit that the State needs a new capitol, but there is not a majority who are willing to take the responsibility of making the necessary appropriation.

WHEN the bill came up in the Senate, last week, prohibititing the use of paris green on growing tobacco, it caused a spirited discussion. Senator Tolin opposed the bill, making a speech against it. He contended that by the use of paris green the small growers can save much time, labor and expense; that unless other tobacco growing States also prohibit its use, it is useless to impose a hardship on the small producers of Kentucky to benefit other tobacco growing territory; that no injury could be shown to the public health.

FOR the first time in the legal history of the District of Columbia a woman has brought suit to recover damages from another woman for the alleged alienation of her husband's affections. Actions of this nature were only made possible by the new code. A section of the new code provides that a married woman shall have the same rights under the law as her unmarried sister, and in accordance with this provision Mrs. Fannie B. Baker has instituted proceedings to recover $25,000 damages from Mrs. Elizabeth D. Robinson for the alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Nathan H. Baker.

THE "comment" of Judge Advocate General Lemley and Solicitor Hanna upon the appeal of Rear Admiral Schley from the finding made against him by the court of inquiry has been made public. It leaves Schley with very little, if any, credit for his part in the Santiago campaign. It declares he has shifted his ground from the main point and bases his appeal upon "unimportant features," touching which it says that Schley did not exercise command at Santiago except to some extent only over his own flagship, the Brooklyn. Even what he is acknowledged to have done is strongly criticised.

THE banner horse breeding State of the Union is Iowa, with 1,401,427 horses within her borders. Illinois comes second with 1,344,784 and Texas third with 1,266,000 equines within her boundaries. Allowing 1,000,000 horses in Iowa to be in use on the farms, for pleasure and the varied industries of cities, would leave a surplus of 400,000 to supply the outside demand. While there may be shortage in some of the agricultural States, it would appear that Iowa is well equipped to supply for outside distribution. The same is practically true of Texas and Illinois, the youngsters coming on will more than fill the vacancy of aged horses being sent to wholesale markets.

Senator Cantrill, of Scott county, has introduced a bill in the Kentucky Senate to prohibit the use of Paris green on tobacco. The bill passed that body on Thursday by a vote of twenty-four to eight, after rather strong opposition from several sources, the opponents to the bill claiming it would restrict cultivation. It is confidently expected that the bill will pass the house, and with an emergency clause, become effective this season. It looks to us as if it would be a good thing for the grower and The "Weed" hopes to see it passed.—The Weed.

So far as the growers in this part of the county have been heard from, they are very much opposed to the bill which the Weed hopes to see passed.

ARRANGEMENTS were completed at Wilkesbarre, on January 23 for the celebration of a notable anniversary, the one hundredth, of burning coal in this country, says the New York Tribune. This took place at the old Fell House, the experiment being conducted by Jesse Fell on February 11, 1802, and was witnessed by all the prominent men in town, word having been received from Mauch that the "black rock," so plentiful in the region, would burn and give heat. The occasion was made an important event, and the anniversary will be no less so. The old grate is still in existence, although it was twice stolen, once at the close of the Philadelphia Centennial, and again a short time later, and is now in the same spot where it first held the glowing coal.

IN his speech in defense of Jim Howard, in the Franklin Circuit Court, last week, Mr. Violett, who is also attorney for W. S. Taylor, said: "I am here to say that I am offering no excuses for any man who becomes a fugitive from justice from my native state and is protected by a friendly Governor. I do not seek to palliate the action of any man who fails to face the charge against him. I make no insinuation that the counsel for the Commonwealth has done anything that is not right in the prosecution of Jim Howard. I would as soon suspect Mr. Franklin of dishonesty as I would Judge Cantrill himself, and there is no lawyer who believes more firmly in the absolute honesty, integrity and fairness of Judge Cantrill than I. No man could have construed the law better or thrown more protection around Jim Howard in his trial than the honorable Court."

When the St. Louis crowd left yesterday the normal condition of things were again in motion in the legislative halls. It is safe to say St. Louis will not get all it asks for, and very doubtful if it gets anything. Many are opposed to the appropriation at present, owing to the many appropriations asked for by the charitable institutions at home. Many think it an expenditure for which there will be no return, for past appropriations to expositions have taught many lessons to be careful with the public funds. The appropriation to the World's Fair at Chicago was money thrown away, and many to-day in the House and Senate speak of it as the "worst job ever worked." It did look like a shame to see these big fellows from St. Louis squeeze into the old rattle-trap of a State Building and ask for $250,000 to make a big show in the Missouri town. —Western Argus.

MR. W. J. OVERTON, of Illinois writes to the Breeders' Gazette, that he does not believe the place for the draft horse is on American farms. He has raised some of the largest and best draft horses in the county, and sold them at the yards at figures not reached by any other draft horse in six months, but he never could get the work out of them that he could get out of a good-sized American horse with as much Morgan blood as he could get. When they tried to breed their small or medium sized mares to the draft horses they thought they wanted larger horses. They got them larger in some parts. It might be in the legs, the head or the body, but usually not all in one colt. No one will claim that they have as good wearing breed of horses as they had twenty years ago. "The farmer who only raises colts for his own use, with now and then one to sell, had better stay by the good-sized smooth, American-bred horse," he says.

WHILE the gold fever is spreading in Kentucky, it may be well to let our county people know that we have gold right here in Boone, though no one has yet taken interest enough in the matter to investigate it sufficiently to know whether it exists in paying quantities. Our older citizens well remember William H. Vaughn, now a resident of Saline county, Missouri, but for years a resident of North Bend neighborhood, this county. He was a most worthy man, perfectly reliable in every respect, well read and very intelligent. He was a California "forty-niner," and though failing to accumulate a fortune as a gold hunter, he acquired great experience along that line, and after returning from California he tried his hand, to some extent, in searching for the yellow metal in the hills in North Bend neighborhood, and while not going extensively into the business, he succeeded in finding gold in the branches and ravines in North Bend, but not, as he thought, in paying quantities. Can not some one have a full and complete investigation made? This is no ghost story.

THE delegation of colored Republican politicians who went to Washington from this State, to ascertain what recognition the Kentucky colored voters are to expect from the administration, lodge the following written statement of facts with the President. "The colored people compose one-third, and perhaps a larger proportion, of the Republican strength of the State. Not one of our number holds a Presidential appointment, except one in the consular service, and only one above the grade of gauger, storekeeper or janitor in the classified or unclassified service. States hopelessly Democratic receive the recognition which is not accorded to Kentucky. In our State colored Republicans have little or no recognition in the management of party affairs. Success is absolutely impossible without our interest, yet no attention is paid to our claims. If our claims are recognized we feel sure that the unrest and apathy which have increased in our party for years will be removed."

IF the Legislature will enact a law requiring every person who desires to hunt, regardless of residence, to obtain a permit so to do, when he wishes to hunt on lands of another, then provide for the appointment of game wardens to enforce the law, the game law problem will be solved. The bills now before the General Assembly fail to meet the case except in "spots," as it were.

THE following statistics are of interest to Kentuckians: The State is now maintaining 2,040 pauper idiots. The Circuit and County Clerks paid into the State treasury last year taxes amounting to $439,010 63. Of the 119 counties, eighty-four receive more money from the State than they pay into the treasury while only thirty-five pay a net revenue to the State. Criminal prosecutions and jury expenses last year cost Kentucky $595,692,30, and the amount paid to Circuit Judges and Commonwealth's Attorneys was $123,821,08.

Frankfort is to make a determined effort to pull the capitol appropriation bill out of the fire. Leading property owners of the city have organized to work systematically for the success of the bill, and if vigorous work can bring back the conditions which existed when the Legislature met, there is believed to be still a hope that the measure may become a law this session.

The Care of Hogs.

Try to feed your hogs regularly. Never feed late, especially the evening meal. It is better to abandon the evening meal than to feed it late.

When you commence to cross breed you are not sure what the outcome will be, but most likely it will be a dismal failure.

The hog has paid off more mortgages, educated more children and furnished food for more poor people than any other animal on the farm.

Pumpkins, squashes, turnips and small potatoes will help to make a balanced ration for the hog during the winter. Don't let anything of this kind go to waste.

Try and keep a few more good brood sows over the winter. They will prove to be the best investment on the farm before another year rolls around.

Don't be in too big a hurry to breed unless you have an extra good place for the sow to farrow in, and even then the weather may be so bad that it will cause heavy losses among early farrows.

Harmony of Men and Women.

We hear a great deal nowadays of strife and competition between the sexes, but surely there should be no strife between two halves of a perfect whole.

Man is king, as women is queen, and to do good work in the world the two must rule harmoniously together.

One is not greater or less than the other; each has the qualities necessary to make both happy. And men and women are never seen at better advantage than when their total unlikeness to each other is most apparent.

An effeminate man is contemptible; a masculine woman is ridiculous.

It is not by asserting herself as the equal of man that "sovereign woman" will best keep her sovereignty; it is rather by emphasizing and insisting on the great difference there is between herself and him.

Imitation is, we all know, the sincerest form of flattery, but none flatter man so much as to try to make ourselves in any way like him is carrying the compliment somewhat too far.

We women can be useful workers in the world without sacrificing our chief birthright— womanliness.

It is not by copying man's dress, his sports or his customs that we shall keep and hold our best influence and control over him.

His costume—if the gentlemen permit me to say so—is really not worth imitating. His sports and his customs are of his nature—not ours.

No woman ever gains anything by asserting that she is as good as a man. She ought to be so much better as to make any assertion of the kind totally unnecessary.—Marie Corelli.

Life is a building. It rises slowly, day by day, through the years. Every new lesson we learn lays a block on the edifice which is rising silently within us. Every influence that impresses us, every book we read, every conversation we have, every act of our commonest days adds something to the invisable building.

Miss Mabel Kirtley's friends to quite a number, gave her a surprise party, last Monday evening, in honor of her thirteenth birth day. The youthful Misters and Misses enjoyed themselves until ten o'clock, when they departed for home, wishing their young hostess many happy birthday.

The Christian Endeavor Society held quite and interesting social at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Hall, last Friday night. After an entertaining program, consisting of music and recitations, was disposed of, all kinds of games were played. Among those present from a distance were Messrs. Wallace Tanner and Everett Aylor, of Limaburg; Walter Hafer and Lewis Harding, of Hebron. The next meeting will be held at Dr. Rouse's, Friday night, February 28th. All invited.

The local insurance company has adjusted the L. D. Jackson loss at Beaver, Mr. Jackson accepting $450 in payment of same. The loss was sutained some time since, and the claim had been hanging fire on account of a misunderstanding in regard to work that was being done on the building at the time it was burnt.

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1896 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Norwood, N. Y. For sale by all Druggists.

Edgar Berkshire is circulating a petition asking for the institution of a free mail delivery route from Burlington to the toll gate near Bellevue, thence to Petersburg, thence to Idlewild, thence back to Burlington. This route would cover the required distance and serve several more than the minimum of families. The petition has been signed by quite a number, and the route has not been canvassed by one fourth.

It is told that a charming Miss not a long time since went into a drug store and asked how to take a dose of castor oil without tasting it. The clerk asked her if she would like to have a glass of soda, and she said she would with thanks. After she drank it she was asked if she tasted the oil "Heavens, no! Did you put it inthe soda?" "Yes" was the reply. "Oh, Lord! I wanted it for my mother," she remarked as she took a "hot fool" for home.

In renewing his subscription, R. J. Stephens writes: "I have moved—will want my paper sent to Arrow Rock, Mo. Enclosed you will find check for another year's subscription. It is still dry here, and the wheat looks bad. We have had lots of snow, and there is about six inches on the ground now. Water is scare, many springs being dry. Feed is scarce and high. Give my best wishes to all the boys. I wish you all a prosperous year."

The Hayseed Euchre Club closed its season with a sitting at W. C. Goodridges, last Saturday. Mrs. Goodridge served an excellent dinner for the participants. The contestants at cards were pretty equally matched until the last two sittings, when Goodridge and Porter took a strong lead, which Berkshire and Campbell could not overcome. It is said that the latter two each carried a rabbit's foot during the contest, but a close examination revealed the fact that they were hind feet. The last act of the club was, by unanimous consent, to change its name to that of The Bon Ton Euchre Club.

For some time Walter Adams, who lives on the J. R Teaney farm back of River View cemetery on Laughery bottoms, has been missing small cribs of corn from his crib but was unable to locate the "leakage." Last Saturday night Adams heard a peculiar noise about his barn and at once suspected that something was radically wrong. So he took his shot gun along for company and went to make a search. When he neared the barn he could plainly hear someone in his pile of corn. Not wishing to take chances of getting the worst of a hand to hand encounter in the dark barn he took aim at the part of the barn in which the corn bin is located and "let drive." In an instant a human form came bounding out. Adams took another shot at the form and reloading took a third shot which brought forth a cry "For God's sake don't kill me!" Adams then ceased firing and approached his surrendered foe whom he discovered to be a well-known young man of that section of the country with enough of this world's goods that resorting to petty thievlng was not necessary, if in fact stealing is ever necessary. As the young man was not mortally wounded the affair was "hushed."—Aurora Spectator.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) A GRATEFUL SPIRIT.

Should Be Cultivated by One and All, Says Dr. Talmage.

We Should Rehearse All Our Blessings and Give Praise to God for Them—The Gospel of Good Morals.

(Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

In this discourse Dr. Talmage calls attention to causes of thanksgiving that are seldom recognized and shows how to cultivate a cheerful spirit; text, Psalms 33:2: "Sing unto Him with a psaltery and an instrument of ten strings."

A musician as well as poet and conqueror and king was David, the author of my text. He first composed the sacred rhythm and then played it upon a harp, striking and plucking the strings with his fingers and thumbs. The harp is the oldest of musical instruments. Jubal invented it, and he was the seventh descendant from Adam. Its music was suggested by the twang of the bowstring. Homer refers to the harp in the "Iliad." It is the most consecrated of all instruments. The flute is more mellow, the bugle more martial, the cornet more incisive, the trumpet more resonant, the organ more mighty, but the harp has a tenderness and sweetness belonging to no other instrument that I know of. It enters into the richest symbolism of the Holy Scriptures. The captives in their sadness "hung their harps upon the willows." The raptures of Heaven are represented under the figure of "harpers harping on their harps." We learn from coins and medals that in the Maccabean age the harp had only three strings. In other ages it had eight strings. David's harp had ten strings, and when his great soul was afire with the theme his sympathetic voice, accompanied by exquisite vibration of the chords, must have been overpowering.

With as many things to complain about as any man ever had David wrote more anthems than any other man ever wrote. He puts even the frosts and hailstorms and tempests and creeping things and flying fowl and the mountains and the hills and day and night into a chorus. Absalom's plotting and Ahithophel's treachery and hosts of antagonists and sleepless nights and a running sore could not hush his psalmody. Indeed, the more his troubles the mightier his sacred poems. The words "praise" and "song" are so often repeated in his psalms that one would think the typesetter's case containing the letters with which these words are spelled would be exhausted.

In my text David calls upon the people to praise the Lord with an instrument of ten strings, like that which he was accustomed to finger. The simple fact is that the most of us, if we praise the Lord at all, play upon one string or two strings or three strings when we ought to take a harp fully chorded and with glad fingers sweep all the strings. Instead of being grateful for here and there a blessing we happen to think of, we ought to rehearse all our blessings so far as we can recall them and obey the injunction of my text to sing unto Him with an instrument of ten strings.

Have you ever thanked God for delightsome food? What vast multitudes are a-hungered from day to day or are obliged to take food not toothsome or pleasant to the taste! What millions are in struggle for bread! A confederate soldier went to the front, and his family were on the verge of starvation, but they were kept up by the faith of a child of that household, who, noticing that some supply was sure to come, exclaimed: "Mother, I think God hears when we scrape the bottom of the barrel."

Have you appreciated the fact that on most of your tables are luxuries that do not come to all? Have you realized what varieties of flavor often touch your tongue and how the saccharin and the acid have been afforded your palate? What fruits, what nuts, what meats regale your appetite, while many would be glad to get the crusts and rinds and peelings that fall from your table. For the fine flavors and the luxurious viands you have enjoyed for a lifetime perhaps you have never expressed to God a word of thanksgiving. That is one of the ten strings that you ought to have thrummed in praise to God, but you have never yet put it in vibration.

Have you thanked God for eyesight as originally given to you or, after it was dimmed by age, for the glass that brought the page of the book within the compass of the vision? Have you realized the privation those suffer to whom the day is as black as the night and who never see the face of father or mother or wife or child or friend? Through what painful surgery many have gone to get one glimpse of the light! The eyes so delicate and beautiful and useful that one of them is invaluable! And most of us have two of these wonders of Divine mechanism. The man of millions of dollars who recently went blind from atrophy of optic nerve would have been willing to give all his millions and become a day laborer if he could have kept off the blindness that gradually crept over his vision.

You may have noticed how Christ's sympathies were stirred for the blind. Ophthalmia has always been prevalent in Palestine, the custom of sleeping on the housetops, exposed to the dew and the flying dust of the dry season, inviting this dreadful disorder. A large percentage of the inhabitants could not tell the difference between 12 o'clock at noon and 12 o'clock at night. We are told of six of Christ's miracles for the cure of these sightless ones, but I suppose they are only specimens of hundreds of restored visions. What a pitiful spectacle Saul of Tarsus, the mighty man, three days led about in physical as well as spiritual darkness, he who afterward made Felix tremble by his eloquence and awed the Athenian philosophers on Mars hill and was the only cool headed man in the Alexandria corn ship that went to pieces on the rocks of Miletus, once the mighty persecutor of Saul, afterward the glorious evangelist Paul, for three days not able to take a safe step without guidance!

Have you ever given thanks for two eyes—media between the soul inside and the world outside, media that no one but the infinite God could create? The eye, the window of our immortal nature, the gate through which all colors march, the picture gallery of the soul! Without the eye this world is a big dungeon. I fear that many of us have never given one hearty expression of gratitude for treasure of sight, the loss of which is the greatest disaster possible unless it be the loss of the mind. Those wondrous seven muscles that turn the eye up or down, to right or left or around. No one but God could have created the retina. If we have ever appreciated what God did when he gave us two eyes, it was when we saw others with obliterated vision. Alas, that only through the privation of others we came to a realization of our own blessing! If you had harp in hand and swept all the strings of gratitude, you would have struck this, which is one of the most dulcet of the ten strings.

Further, there are many who never recognize how much God gives them when He gives them sleep. Insomnia is a calamity wider known in our land than in any other. By midlife vast multitudes have their nerves so overwrought that slumber has to be coaxed, and many are the victims of chloral and morphine. Sleeplessness is an American disorder. If it has not touched you and you can rest for seven or eight hours without waking—if for that length of time in every 24 hours you can be free of all care and worriment and your nerves are returned and your limbs escape from all fatigue and the rising sun finds you a new man, body, mind and soul—you have an advantage that ought to be put in prayer and song and congratulation. The French financier, almost wealthy enough to purchase a kingdom, but the victim of insomnia, wrote: "No slumber to be bought in any market." He was right. Sleep is a gratuity from Him who never sleeps. Oh, the felicities of slumber! Let all who have this real benefaction celebrate it. That is one of the sweetest strings in all the instrument of ten strings.

Further, celebrate on the instrument of ten strings our illumined nights. They spread their tents over us, and some of us hardly go out to look at them. During the nights other worlds come in sight. The author of my text chimed the silver bells in the tower of the midnight heavens, saying: "When I consider the heavens, the work of Thy fingers; the moon and the stars, which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him?" We thank God for the day; we ought also to thank Him for the night. Worlds on worlds in sight of the naked eye, but more worlds revealed by telescope. At least one night in his lifetime every man ought to go into astronomical observatory and see what has been done by the great World Builder. Thank God for lunar and stellar illumination!

Another string of this instrument I now touch—friendships, deep and abiding, by which I refer to those people who, when good or bad motive may be ascribed to you, ascribe the good; those concerning whom you do not wonder which side they will take when you are under discussion; those who would more gladly serve you than serve themselves; those to whom you can tell everything without reserve; those who are first in your home by person or by telegram when you have trouble. Oh, what a blessing to have plenty of friends! Aye, if you have only one good friend, you are blessed in that glad possession. With one such friend you can defy the world. But he must be a tried friend. You cannot tell who are your real friends till disasters come. As long as you collect vast dividends and have health jocund and popularity unbounded you will have crowds of seeming friends, but let bankruptcy and invalidism and defamation come, and the number of your friends will be 95 per cent. off. If you have been through some great crisis and you have one friend left, thank God and celebrate it on the sweetest harpstring.

"While all this is so," says some one, "there are so many things that others have which I have not." I reply, it is not what we get, but what we are, that decides our happiness. With the bare necessities of life many are unspeakably happy, while others with all the luxuries are impersonations of misery. In the Roman empire there was no man more wretched than the Nero who ruled it. The porticos of his palace were a mile long. A statue of him in silver and gold 120 feet high stood in the vestibule. The walls of his palace were mother of pearl and ivory. The ceiling was arranged to shower flowers and pour perfumes upon the guests. His wardrobe was so large that he never wore a garment twice. His mules were shod in silver. He fished with hooks of gold. A thousand carriages accompanied him when he traveled. His crown was worth $500,000. He had everything but happiness. That never came. Your heart right, all is right; your heart wrong, all is wrong.

But we must tighten the cords of our harp and retune it while we celebrate Gospel advantages. The highest style of civilization the world has ever seen is American civilization, and it is built out of the Gospel of pardon and good morals. That Gospel rocked our cradle, and it will epitaph our grave. It soothes our sorrows, brightens our hopes, inspires our courage, forgives our sins and saves our souls. It takes a man who is all wrong and makes him all right. What that Gospel has done for you and me is a story that we can never fully tell. What it has done for the world and will yet do for the nations it will take the thousand years of the millennium to celebrate. The grandest churches are yet to be built. The mightiest anthems are yet to be hoisted. The greatest victories are yet to be gained. The most beautiful Madonnas are yet to be painted. The most triumphant processions are yet to march. Oh, what a world this will be when it rotates in its orbit a redeemed planet, girdled with spontaneous harvests and enriched by orchards whose fruits are speckless and redundant, and the last pain will have been banished and the last tear wept and the last groan uttered, and there shall be nothing to hurt or destroy in all God's holy mountain! All that and more will come to pass, for "the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it."

So far I have mentioned nine of the ten strings of the instrument of gratitude. I now come to the tenth and last. I mention it last that it may be the more memorable—heavenly anticipation. By the grace of God we are going to move into a place so much better than this that on arriving we will wonder that we were for so many years so loath to make the transfer. After we have seen Christ face to face and rejoiced over our departed kindred there are some mighty spirits we will want to meet soon after we pass through the gates. We want to see and will see David, a mightier king in Heaven than he ever was on earth, and we will talk with him about psalmody and get from him exactly what he meant when he talked about the instrument of ten strings. We will confront Moses, who will tell of the law giving on rocking Sinai and of his mysterious burial, with no one but God present. We will see Joshua, and he will tell us of the coming down of the walls of Jericho at the blast of the ram's horn and explain to us that miracle—how the sun and moon could stand still without demolition of the planetary system. We will see Ruth and have her tell of the harvest field of Boaz, in which she gleaned for afflicted Naomi. We will see Vashti and hear from her own lips the story of her banishment from the Persian palace by infamous Ahasuerus.

We will see and talk with Daniel, and he will tell us how he saw Belshazzar's banqueting hall turned into a slaughter house and how the lions greeted him with loving fawn instead of stroke of cruel paw. We will see and talk with Solomon, whose palaces are gone, but whose inspired epigrams stand out stronger and stronger as the centuries pass. We will see Paul and hear from him how Felix trembled before him and the audience of skeptics on Mars hill were confounded by his sermon on the brotherhood of man, what he saw at Ephesus and Syracuse and Philippi and Rome and how dark was the Mamertine dungeon and how sharp the ax that beheaded him on the road to Ostia. Yea, we will see all the martyrs, the victims of ax and sword and fire and billow. What a thrill of excitement for us when we gaze upon the heroes and heroines who gave their lives for the truth. We will see the gospel proclaimers Chrysostom and Bourdaloue and Whitefield and the Wesleys and John Knox. We will see the great Christian poets Milton and Dante and Watts and Mrs. Hemans and Frances Havergal. Yea, all the departed Christian men and women of whatever age or station.

But there will be one focus toward which all eyes will be directed. His infancy having slept on pillow of straw; all the hates of the Herodic government planning for his assassination; in after time whipped as though he were a criminal; asleep on the cold mountains because no one offered Him a lodging; though the greatest being who ever touched our earth, derisively called "this fellow;" His last hours writhing on spikes of infinite torture; His lacerated form put in sepulcher, then reanimated and ascended to be the center of all heavenly admiration—upon that greatest martyr and mightiest hero of all the centuries we will be permitted to look. Put that among your heavenly anticipations.

Now take down your harp of ten strings and sweep all the chords, making all of them tremble with a great gladness. I have mentioned just ten—delightsome food, eyesight, hearing, healthful sleep, power of physical locomotion, illumined nights, mental faculties in equipoise, friendships of life, Gospel advantages and heavenly anticipations. Let us make less complaint and offer more thanks, render less dirge and more cantata. Take paper and pen and write down in long columns your blessings. I have recited only ten. To express all the mercies God has bestowed you would have to use at least three, and I think five, numerals, for surely they would run up into the hundreds and the thousands. "Oh, give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good, for His mercy endureth forever." Get into the habit of rehearsal of the brightnesses of life.

Notice how many more fair days there are than foul, how many more good people than bad you meet. Set your misfortunes to music, as David opened his "dark sayings on a harp." If it has been low tide heretofore, let the surges of mercy that are yet to roll in upon you reach high water mark. All things will work together for your good, and Heaven is not far ahead. Wake up all the ten strings. Blessing and honor and glory and power be unto Him that sitteth upon the throne and unto the Lamb forever. Amen!

IN FASHION'S REALM.

Pretty Features of Some of the Newest Costumes of the Current Season.

A three-piece set for spring wear consists of a large white chiffon boa, muff and hat, each decorated with a touch of black velvet. On the boa there are black satin roses.

Rhinestones and black jet, separately or in combination, are the ornaments on the latest trimmed hats.

Long gloves have become popular, and are worn with reception costumes. These gloves are made of glace as well as suede, and the long wrists are drawn in wrinkled effect up over tightly fitting sleeves. They are much worn with all-black costumes.

Already spring parasols are in the stores, and women who are ahead of time in making their spring gowns can find parasols to match any color. In these the white and black effects still predominate, although there are many pretty colored chiffons. In the pure white ones crochet lace will, it is said, be the fad, reports the New York Tribune.

Antique lace and embroidery form the trimmings of the up-to-date woman's costume. This fashion comes from Paris, where reproductions of old designs and colors are worn by those who do not possess choice pieces as heirlooms. Antique embroideries, even if damaged by time, are much coveted.

A simple yet popular adornment for the neck is a broad straight band of velvet. Sometimes a color to combine with the costume is worn, but usually the band is of white or black. This may be studded with real or imitation gems, wrought into floral designs with the aid of gold thread, or decorated in any way fancied by the wearer.

The craze for old-fashioned things shows itself again in the little reticules, almost square in form, that accompany the lucky possessor at all functions. These, if heirlooms, are of antique silk daintily embroidered or trimmed with fine old lace. Women make them also of materials to match their gowns, and some of the finest ready-made costumes have reticules attached.

A favorite costume for evening wear is made of black lace with incrustations of colored or white lace. Any original ideas may be carried out in this way. Black lace on white tulle is also popular. A ball gown in this combination shows birds of black lace sprinkled across the front and sides of the gown in imitation of the flight of swallows.

Straight-front corsets have been so universally worn that their popularity is established beyond question, say the manufacturers, who are putting the finest satins and brocades in their construction; $9.50 is not considered an unreasonable price for a pair in either of these materials.

TREATMENT OF CONSUMPTION

How to Take Care of Patients in a Sensible Manner at Home.

The treatment of consumption may be properly classified as the hygienic. It is fair to presume that the search for specifics is not yet done, nor likely to be given up, but the patient's safety probably does not lie in that direction, says the Medical News. The most noteworthy feature in the reports of recent studies is the uniformity of success under climatic conditions the most diverse. We may safely feel that we are not of necessity bound to any climate or altitude. The patient must live out-of-doors. Next to good air we place good food, and of this there must be an abundance. The patient should be steadily encouraged to eat more than he wants. Cream and butter should be introduced into as many dishes as possible. The third feature is good rest. It is a good rule for the patient to take no exercise until there is no fever. All sources of excitement and worry should be eliminated. The patient should sleep as much as he chooses. The fourth factor is good cheer. The moral influences surrounding the patient are all-important. Medicines from the shop really do not enter as a necessary part into this plan of treatment. The various symptoms may, however, be treated by the well-known remedies. The ordinary hygienic rules should be carefully observed. All cases, even the most desperate, are suitable for this home treatment.

To Clean Dark Furs.

Dark furs may be cleaned with fine cedar or mahogany sawdust which has been heated in an oven. Alaska sable, seal, electric seal, fox, etc., should be beaten with a switch until free from dust, then laid with the fur side up and the hot sawdust rubbed in. Use plenty of sawdust and do not be afraid to rub. Then place the garment upon a feather pillow with the fur side down and beat it until all traces of the sawdust have disappeared. After this hang it in a shady place.—Chicago Daily News.

THE SHIP SUBSIDY SCHEME.

Interests of the Multimillionaire Treasury Raiders Being Carefully Looked After.

The reconstructed Hanna-Payne trick-mule shipping bounty bill has been reported favorably from the senate commerce committee. This will not surprise anybody. It has been understood as a matter of course that the committee would report the bill with as little amendment and with as much haste as was compatible with a tolerable show of dignity.

Senators Hanna and Frye profess to entertain no doubt that the bill will pass. But that consummation undoubtedly would surprise some statesmen even on the republican side of the chamber—men who are afraid for some inscrutable reason to face a record vote, but who are opposed to the grab and who think they know how to prevent the bill from being brought to a vote.

The above-named senatorial attorneys for Standard Oil and the rest of the allied poor beggars make believe they have nothing to fear except from the democratic side of the chamber. Accordingly they do not hesitate to let it be known that their plan is to repeat their last winter's tactics—get their grab on the calendar as unfinished business so that it may be kept before the senate to the exclusion of everything else until the democrats have talked themselves out and yield from sheer exhaustion.

This plan of operation goes on the theory that republican senators who are opposed to the outrageous steal lack the courage of their convictions and will not dare to vote against the bill if they are forced to face the issue, much less to fight it openly, as they ought.

The prospect is, therefore, that a great deal of time will be wasted which might as well be saved if the republicans who are opposed to the bill would assist in bringing it to a vote after denouncing it as it deserves, and stand up like men and be counted against it.

It is difficult to discuss the details of the measure with any degree of patience. It was reported after certain conferences of the multimillionaire treasury raiders that they had so changed their bill that it would be somewhat less a source of unearned wealth to the Standard Oil and allied interests. The report of the committee, however, shows that those interests have been carefully provided for. It shows that the American line will get the snug sum, of $4,700,000 a year for carrying mail matter across the Atlantic, or at least $700,000 more than it would have received for the same service under the bill in its old form.

This one fact is a sufficiently sharp commentary upon the claim of Senator Frye that the bill "will establish the maritime supremacy of the United States in trade." It gives the lion's share of the shameless grab to lines already in existence and lines which will get the money not for carrying freight but for carrying the mails.

This fact calls to mind Commissioner Chamberlain's admission that the mail steamers will draw most subsidy and carry least bulk of cargo. It also calls to mind his comment that to complain of that was "about as pertinent as to complain that a general gets more pay than a captain, but does less fighting." Finally it recalls the remark in a circular of the Reform club that Mr. Chamberlain's comment implies that "the International's great passenger steamers, carrying tourists both ways, immigrants this way and practically no exports at all, except a few protected manufactures to be sold abroad at lower prices than charged here, are 'generals' in command of the export trade, which is actually carried on by the freighters who are cut off with a pittance."

This line of argument against the monstrous grab is tolerable only as showing how superlatively bad the pending bill is and as exposing the false pretenses under which it sails. While opposing the entire grab in whatever form or guise it may appear, we may turn aside to show how its promoters seek to conceal their real purpose, provided we do not forget that it is the steal itself and not any particular manner in which it may be accomplished, or the parties who may get the swag, to which the american people should offer all the resistance they can.

The only argument in support of this grab which has the semblance of reason consists in the fact that European governments have paid, and to some extent are still paying, shipping bounties. That fact proves nothing. If other countries are foolish enough to pay shipping bounties or sugar bounties or any other bounties out of money contributed by their taxpayers with the result that the people of other countries get cheap service at their expense it does not by any means follow that we ought to be as foolishly generous, as wasteful and as unjust to our taxpayers as they are to theirs.—Chicago Chronicle.

——There is no question as to the folly of maintaining an unnecessary tariff on certain foreign products, in competition with which American manufacturers are undersetting all others in foreign markets. The "protection" thus afforded is entirely superfluous and tremendously costly to the American consumer. If a retaliatory war such as Germany now contemplates is ultimately provoked American trade must inevitably suffer. Nor shall we have any ground for honest complaint.

The late President McKinley undoubtedly saw that the moment had arrived for the abandonment of the high protective tariff. His plea for reciprocity, almost the last of his public utterances, was based on this perception. The logical following out of his recommendations would mean an extensive scheme of tariff reduction, though this revision of the tariff would be accomplished under the name of reciprocity. As the foremost representative of the high tariff idea Mr. McKinley made a notable concession when he urged the negotation of reciprocity treaties with certain foreign governments. Had he lived to bring the full pressure of his influence to bear, tariff revision would be much easier of attainment.

The trouble seems to be that the eastern protectionists are combating the McKinley reciprocity policy with an effective force which testifies to the completeness of their control of the republican party. The high tariff is still held as sacred and inviolate. There must be no tinkering with the established schedules. The tariff wars with other great governments, so clearly foreseen by Mr. McKinley, are evidently not visible to the radical protectionist eye. All that is perceptible is that reciprocity would mean the beginning of tariff reduction, and this must be prevented at any cost. The indications at present point to a failure on the part of the Fifty-seventh congress to take decisive action on the reciprocity question. There would be no occasion for surprise, indeed, if the debate on this question were postponed to the next session.

NO TARIFF REDUCTION.

Eastern Protectionists Have No Idea of Going Over to the Reciprocity Policy.

Germany's apparent willingness to enter upon a tariff war against the United States, as manifested in the proposed amendment to the German tariff bill which would authorize retaliation for penalties imposed upon German exports, should receive intelligent attention in this country, says the St. Louis Republic.

There is no question as to the folly of maintaining an unnecessary tariff on certain foreign products, in competition with which American manufacturers are underselling all others in foreign markets. The "protection" thus afforded is entirely superfluous and tremendously costly to the American consumer. If a retaliatory war such as Germany now contemplates is ultimately provoked American trade must inevitably suffer. Nor shall we have any ground for honest complaint.

OUR "PLAIN DUTY" TO CUBA

There Should Be a Commercial Arrangement to Let the Island Live.

Senator Mason made an eloquent plea for justice to Cuba. Invoking the name of McKinley in support of his argument for real reciprocity as a commercial necessity to the United States, he declared that, having deprived Cuba of a European market and assumed under practical coercion the control of her foreign relations, we are morally bound to give her "a chance to live" through normal trade relations with us, at the same time benefiting enormously our own people by giving them cheaper sugar and a freer market for their surplus.

"While the grass is growing the horse starves," and while our protected sugar interests—the beet men and the cane men—are haggling in the lobby over how much reduction of the Dingley duties they are willing to permit congress to make for Cuba's relief, starvation is staring her people in the face, says the New York World.

Whatever is done to help Cuba must be done quickly. She has another sugar crop of over 800,000 tons on her hands and no way of selling it except at a loss unless congress lets down the bars. In the words of Secretary Root: "The same considerations which led to the war with Spain now require that a commercial arrangement be made under which Cuba can live."

No one stands in the way of this urgent act of justice and humanity except the protected sugar twins—western beet and southern cane.

Just for a Blind.

It is announced that the leaders in congress have determined upon a material reduction of the war taxation, and that a caucus will shortly be called, at which the plan is to abolish the residue of this form of taxation, or else to make a large cut therein. This is all right, as far as it goes, and the people are not likely to look with any disfavor upon any legitimate move to reduce the burdens of taxation. But there is reason to fear that Mr. Payne and his colleagues intend to use the abolition of these war taxes like a flourish of trumpets, to drown the sound of the protest against the indefinite continuance of tariff taxation. Night and day, year in and year out, the tariff tax takes toll of Peter in order to enrich Paul, and from this policy of favoring the few at the expense of the many there is no prospect of relief. —Albany Argus.

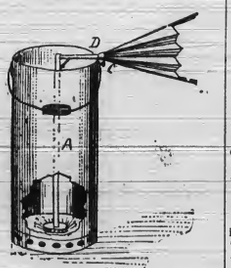
——The American people are opposed to subsidies and rebates, and they are fast wearying of extreme protection. The tide is in the other direction. In the present case they want all the sugar they can get at the lowest price, and they also want to see Cuba free and prosperous—which she can never be if we forbid her to trade with the rest of the world and refuse to trade with her ourselves. What is wanted is a straight reduction of all sugar duties, or, better yet, their abolition. The rebate plan is simply a scheme for keeping up taxes. The Cuban planters do not desire a subsidy. All they ask is a chance to trade with us. That they should have.—Indianapolis News (Ind.).

THE FARMING WORLD

COWS FOR THE DAIRY.

Why Farmers Should Raise Their Own Stock Rather Than Buy It in the Open Market.

It is exceedingly difficult to get a good cow without raising her. Once in awhile a farmer or dairyman will pick up a good cow from some farmer that does not know a good cow when he sees her. But the intelligent farmers, and especially the professional breeders, prefer to hold onto their best animals and sell off the poorer stock. If the buyer wants the best cow in a herd he is charged a prohibitive price or one that is so high that he is likely to find little profit in her, when the cost and risk are taken into consideration. The dairyman that depends on buying all of his cows will get beaten many times, or, rather, he will beat himself. The writer remembers one man that purchased a "springer" to go into his dairy. The cow had a wonderful udder and gave a very large flow of milk. It was, however, of very poor quality. As the milk went into the general mass for sale by the quart, the question of richness did not count for very much. But what did count was the fact that in about four months the cow began to dry up, the milk product having fallen to so low a point that she was hardly worth milking. Moreover the cow had the very bad habit, even when in full milk, of holding up her milk at every little cause of excitement. The man had paid for that cow a larger price than was being asked for other cows that had smaller udders. Taking the year as a whole she was one of the poorest cows in the bunch. This goes to show that a man that buys a cow on her appearance cannot by any means be sure of the kind of a cow he is getting. Hence the necessity for the farmer raising his own cows and keeping them after they are raised.—Farmers' Review.



AERATION OF MILK.

An Arrangement That Will Work Satisfactorily Under Any and All Circumstances.

It is somewhat difficult to properly and quickly cool down warm fresh milk when set in the large cans, says a Michigan farmer in Hoard's Dairyman. For this purpose the narrow shotgun cans, 8 by 20 inches, are far more preferable.

It pays to use some standard device for aerating and cooling the milk drawn fresh from the cows. The aeration of warm milk is very important when several cows are milked. For a small quantity of mild in shotgun cans a home-made device can be utilized. The accompanying cut illustrates its construction and use.

Procure a good hand bellows and have a tinsmith solder on a small tin

tube, with a "rose" attachment at the bottom, somewhat like that shown at A in the cut. B represents a brace soldered on to make the attachment more rigid. A clamp can be attached at C to fasten to the edge of the can, though the bellows can be easily operated without. It may be necessary to extend the tube of the bellows to D.

This arrangement will work satisfactorily in quickly aerating a can of warm milk, and can be done while the can is setting in water to cool down. Have the cans in pure air when pumping air to the bottom of the cans.

Rigid Inspection Is Needed.

The inspection of export dairy produce is not, it seems, under a very rigid or comprehensive law. The man that wants to export his dairy produce without inspection can do so. The man that wants to have his butter or cheese inspected and stamped will have to make application for the same to the secretary of agriculture. Butter and cheese so marked should sell in the English market at a good advance over products coming from this country with no mark on them. We hope that the time is not far distant when the law will provide for the inspection of all dairy products whether the said inspection is asked for or not.—Farmers' Review.

Model Dairy Establishments.

The dairymen who supply the large cities with milk, must have the best milkers. This has forced many of them to become breeders. The apparent change of recent years in the style of running milk farms is not only tending to improve the dairy stock of the country, but it is convincing the farmer that greater profits can be obtained from their business by running good farms in connection. Model dairy establishments now have farms connected with them, that are in a high state of fertility, where nearly or quite all the feed required for the cow is raised.—Ohio Farmer.

HOW MILK IS TAINTED.

Disagreeable Flavor Is Due to Neglected Pasture Fields and Carelessness of Milkers.

The most unpleasant taste of tainted milk which appears in a good deal that is shipped to market in the fall and winter is due to a large extent to the condition of the pasture fields and the carelessness of the milkers. Nothing probably prejudices city people more against drinking milk than to taste this disagreeable flavor. Dairymen who are careless in their methods do a great deal to condemn milk as a daily diet. More and more people are coming to the conclusion that milk forms the best diet provided by nature, but people will not drink it so long as they have their sense of cleanliness and healthfulness offended by this disagreeable odor which comes from careless milking and feeding. If the trouble could not be remedied there would be some excuse for its existence, writes C. S. Walthers in the Massachusetts Ploughman.

Most of the odor and tainted flavor comes from weeds allowed to grow up in the pasture field. These weeds are ignored by the cows when the pasture is good, but when fall comes, and there is little else to eat in the fields, they will eat weeds. Now these weeds absolutely produce no good at all. They do not nourish the cows nor make milk. They simply taint the milk, cream and butter, and spoil its chances of sale. Therefore, the dairyman who permits the weeds to grow in the pasture fields in the autumn is practically injuring his own interests at both ends. The weeds which are systematically rooted out and cut down every summer and fall cannot long persist in growing, and the combat will become easier and easier every year. But one season's crop that is allowed to produce seeds will counteract the good work of several years on the part of the dairyman.

The matter of cleanliness in milking is one that should not need emphasizing, and yet the dirty, filthy methods followed on so many farms is sufficient evidence that careless methods are still followed. The milk that has a cowy flavor is tainted by the dirt and filth that drops in the milk pail. Careless milkers are responsible for it, and they should receive their lessons in cleanliness by those who handle the milk. If we would but remember that all such tainted milk hurts the whole business, and in most cases ruins the dairyman who practices the method, there might be less poor milk shipped to market, and less poor butter made on the farm or creamery.

WORTH CULTIVATING.

Facts and Figures Which Show That Our Dairymen Should Cultivate Home Markets.

The American home market for dairy products is the one that should engage the attention of American cow keepers. We have the best market in the world, and a market that is continually increasing its demand. Many of our states and territories do not make enough butter to supply their home demand. In a recent report of the dairy commissioner of the state of Washington we find that last year that state imported from other states 4,400,000 pounds of butter and 1,413,000 pounds of cheese. Though there are 200 creameries and 100 cheese factories in the state, the supply of dairy products is that much short. The populations in these western states is increasing at a great rate, as well as are the populations in the great cities of the country. Although some of the western states that import dairy products are really so situated that it would be possible to produce the dairy foods needed, yet the habits of the people are such that no great and rapid advance in that direction can be looked for. They are absorbed in other pursuits that they deem more profitable. These markets are susceptible of great development, and with proper methods of distribution the amounts consumed would be very much greater than at the present time.—Farmers' Review.

ANTI-KICKING DEVICE.

Although Exceedingly Simple in Construction It Has Always Been Found Effective.

Take a strip of hard wood one-quarter inch thick, 1½ inch broad and 20 inches long. Dress it smooth with a plane and bore a hole in each end the narrow way of the board. Pass through the hole a small rope or steel cord and tie a hard knot in the end. Put the other end through the other hole and draw up the rope until it is just long enough to go over the hook joint when in position, and then put a knot in that end also, as shown by the cut. Sew or rivet on a strap on the middle of the board, on the flat outside put a common wood screw and have a hole in the leather strap large enough to slip over the head of the screw. This completes the device, which is placed in position by wrapping about the hock joint and buttoning strap over screw head.—D. L. Young, in Farm and Home.

In the Sheep's Favor.

It is in favor of the sheep that they will yield a profit under conditions so unfavorable that other farm animals, under the same conditions, will be unprofitable.

Princess Urusoff, wife of the Russian ambassador in Paris, has written to the papers warning travelers against the organized system of robbery to which they are exposed on Italian railways.

Twenty years ago hardly 20 per cent. of our man-of-war's men were native born, and not 50 per cent. even naturalized citizens. To-day fully 90 per cent. are American citizens, and nearly 70 per cent are American born.

At the entrance to the harbor of Genoa, Italy, there is an acetylene lighthouse which has been established two years. In that time many experiments have been tried which go to prove that it is superior to electricity. There is one of this type at Tino, 40 miles from Genoa, which cannot be seen from there, whereas the acetylene is plainly visible.

IN CONTINENTAL EUROPE.

Europe has five reigning princes who are over 80 years old, and nine others who are more than 70.

Electric cab service in Paris has proved very unprofitable. It is said that the loss so far represents $900,000.

In Holland, the extent of the mail service routes is over 30,000 miles. The uniform of the postman is semi-military in character; the men themselves are said to be a remarkably handsome body.

The order prohibiting Spanish army officers from marrying unless they are 25 years old or more and enjoy an income at least equal to the pay of a captain (about $50 a month) is now thought to have been promulgated by Gen. Weyler simply to prevent Mason's marriage to Senorita Consuela De Lanz, who, though very beautiful and of noble family, is not in all other ways acceptable to the general.

The street car system of Buda-Pesth is considered the best in the world, and has been imitated by several American cities, including Washington. The underground railway is also a model. The stations are built of porcelain tiles inside and out. The cars hold 42 people, they run by electric third-rail system, and the fare is four cents, the stations being at intervals of a quarter of a mile.

The U. S. Census Report of Catarrh.

COMPILED BY THE GREATEST LIVING AUTHORITY ON CATARRHAL DISEASES.

MRS. BELVA A. LOCKWOOD.

Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood, late candidate for the Presidency, writes: "I have used your Peruna and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down and with nerves unstrung. I desire, also, to say that it has no evil effects." Mrs. Lockwood's residence is Washington, D. C.

CONGRESSMAN CUMMINGS, OF NEW YORK CITY,

Hon. Amos J. Cummings, of New York, says: "Peruna is good for catarrh. I have tried it and know it. It relieved me immensely on my trip to Cuba, and I always have a bottle in reserve. Since my return I have not suffered from catarrh, but if I do I shall use Peruna again. Meantime you might send me another bottle."

GENERAL JOE WHEELER.

Major General Joseph Wheeler, commanding the cavalry forces in front of Santiago, and the author of "The Santiago Campaign," in speaking of the great catarrh remedy, Peruna, says: "I join with Senators Sullivan, Roach and McEnery in their good opinion of Peruna. It is recommended to me by those who have used it as an excellent tonic and particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."

Catarrh has already become a national curse. Its ravages extend from ocean to ocean. More than one-half of the people are affected by it. Catarrh is a systemic disease. Peruna is a systemic remedy. Peruna cures catarrh by removing the cause. Address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, O., for free book.

Handsomest Calendar of the Season.

The Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Co. has issued a beautiful Calendar in six sheets 12x14 inches, each sheet having a ten color picture of a popular actress—reproductions of water colors by Leon Moran. The original paintings are owned by and the Calendars are issued under the Railway Company's copyright. A limited edition will be sold at 25 cents per calendar of six sheets. Will be mailed on receipt of price.—P. A. Miller, General Passenger Agent, Chicago.

In Doubt.

Bildad—Did the size of her pile make you hesitate?

Perkins—Yes. For a long time I didn't know how much she had.—Detroit Free Press.

Sensitive Organ.

The manager came before the curtain with his I-deeply-regret-to-state face on, and said to the waiting throng:

"I shall have to ask the indulgence of the audience a few minutes while Mme. Primdon recovers the use of her vocal chords, which were severely strained just now by yawning over some verses that were sent to her by an admirer."—Chicago Tribune.

It Is Running Down.

"I should advise," said the polite croupier, as he raked in another stack of Lord Rosslyn's blue checks, "that you take something for your system."—Baltimore American.

Kindness in us is the honey that blunts the sting of unkindness in another.—Landor.

How It Leaked Out.

Towne—Yes, their marriage was a secret, and it never would have been discovered but for one thing.

Brown—What was that?

"They couldn't keep the divorce proceedings from becoming public."—Philadelphia Press.

The new chief of police has notified the members of the New York police force that they must keep out of debt. They have the option of paying as they go or going as they don't pay.

Nothing resembles pride so much as discouragement.—Amiel.

Grit turns defeat into victory.—Ram's Horn.

HAZARD
Hazard powders are manufactured at one plant only, and under the same supervision as for many years. This causes no variation in the output, and insures uniformity of all grades made by THE HAZARD POWDER COMPANY. That is what every one wants in any article, confidence in order to continue its use, and nearly much to the manufacturer. No complaints. There are no complaints made against Hazard Black or Smokeless powders. Your dealer carries it in preference to other makes—apply to him.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up. I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. A commercial traveler well known to the cycle trade on both sides of the Atlantic adds this to the collection of jokes on newly made happy fathers:

The hero is the manufacturer of the wheel which the narrator sells. Being compelled to go away on a business trip about the time an interesting domestic event was expected, he left orders for the nurse to wire him results according to the following formula:

If a boy, "Gentleman's safety arrived."

If a girl, "Lady's safety arrived."

The father's state of mind may be imagined when, a few days later, he received a telegram "Tandem."—Denver News.

Andrew Jackson Wheeler, of Maysville, who occupies a position on the force of the Custodian of Public Buildings at Frankfort, is what might be aptly called an all-round record breaker.

Wheeler is fifty-three years old and is a Kentuckian, yet he has the following record:

He never took a drink of any intoxicating liquor.

He never was sick a day in his life.

He never had a physician to visit him.

He never took a dose of medicine.

He never spent a sleepless night.

He never used tobacco in any form.

He never scratched the Democratic ticket.

He is a widower, yet has never proposed a second time.

He never had a quarrel with his wife.

He never missed eating three square meals each day.

He never missed having the cash to pay for the meals or the credit to get them when it became necessary.

He never had a dark-brown taste in his mouth.

He never has known what the "next morning" feeling is.

"The only nights I ever stayed awake were those I spent sitting up with a corpse or sparking a girl," said Mr. Wheeler. "Once I sat up with a corpse and sparked a girl at the same time. The corpse was my grand-mother-in-law. That is, she wasn't, you know, when I sat up with her that night, but I sparked the girl who was her granddaughter, and that's how the lady got to be my grand-mother-in-law."

Wheeler says he never had but one fight. That was after the battle of Cynthiana. He started an argument with a Northern man, and it ended in a fight.

A number of Mason county men back Wheeler up in the statement that he hasn't an enemy in the world.

The RECORDER does not believe that Mr. Wheeler is a Kentuckian or is any kin to anyone who is a Kentuckian.

Some men know so little about human nature that they will try to argue with women with facts.

Only to the old is youth a precious jewel.

Our honor is something that is hurt when we get found out.

A woman's idea of a good photograph of herself is when a friend looks at it and says: "What a beautiful woman! Who is she?"

When you have tried everything else on a woman and it has failed tell her you are puzzled to know why it is she always reminds you of the Fauboury St. Germain.

MOTHERHOOD

The greatest ambition of American men and women is to have homes blessed with children. The woman afflicted with female disease is constantly menaced with becoming a childless wife. No medicine can restore dead organs, but Wine of Cardui does regulate derangements that prevent conception; does prevent miscarriage; does restore weak functions and shattered nerves and does bring babies to homes barren and desolate for years. Wine of Cardui gives women the health and strength to bear healthy children. You can get a dollar bottle of Wine of Cardui from your dealer.

WINE OF CARDUI

163 Market Street,
Memphis, Tenn., April 14, 1901.

In February, 1901, I took one bottle of Wine of Cardui and one package of Thedford's Black-Draught. I had been married fifteen years and had never given birth to a child until I took Wine of Cardui. Now I am mother of a fine baby girl which was born March 21, 1901. The baby weighs fourteen pounds and I feel as well as any person could feel. Now my home is happy and I never will be without Wine of Cardui in my house again. Mrs. J. W. C. SMITH.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 12, 1902. NO. 17.

A WEEK'S COLLECTION OF PERSONAL AND NEWS ITEMS BY THE RECORDER'S FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENTS

PETERSBURG, Feb. 8.—Two degrees below zero here this morning.

J. W. Weindell, M. D., and wife, of Patriot, are visiting the Doctor's parents here.

Miss Lelle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Thompson, has united with the Baptist church.

Paul Geisler, aged 7 months, died of pneumonia, yesterday, after an illness of only two days.

J. E. Hensley, who was feeding cattle at Tiptonville, Tennessee, distillery, has returned home.

The Baptist congregation will have preaching at Gordon's Hall on the third Sunday in each month.

Grant Mathews and O. C. Hughes, revenue men, have been transferred to Milldale, and Uncle Billie Snyder has been given charge of the books here again.

Dr. Robert Grant has returned from New York, where he has been receiving some medical instructions. He will return to his home in the Lone Star State, shortly.

Alex Swing, aged 52, and a batchelor, died of Bright's disease yesterday. The writer is not certain, but believes that it was his father who established the present Aurora ferry.

A. E. Chambers, who went to Arkansas some time since with a view to locating there to engage in the practice of dentistry, did not like the country, and has returned. He will locate in Ludlow.

We had an old time fiddlers' contest here the other day, Allie Delph and a Mr. Hessong being the entries. Tunes of the days of our forefathers, such as Gray Eagle, the Devil's Dream, Leather Breeches, Such a Getting up Stairs I Never Did See, &c., &c., were touched up with the bow in a style truly artistic.

The young people had been having great sport for several days coasting down the Jenkins hill, and were terribly put out yesterday when it became known that the authorities had decreed that the perilous sport should be discontinued. The speed of an express train is very slow when compared with the time some coasters were making out on the hill. No accidents had occurred.

Feb. 10.—Mrs. Isham Brown fell and broke her arm, Saturday.

Bros. Cook and Mills, of Walton, began a protracted meeting at the M. E. Church, Sunday night.

Wymond, son of Lou Terrill, got badly hurt about the head in a coasting accident at Aurora, Saturday.

Miss Edna, daughter of Geo. R. Berkshire, while attending a party at Elijah Parker's, Saturday night fell on the sleet and snow and dislocated her shoulder.

The young people gave Thos. Randall and wife a shower party, last Saturday night, and they were recipients of many handsome and useful presents. Cooney Walton was the most liberal doner.

Miss Julia Smith entertained Hugh Arnold and wife, Sunday. Those present from a distance were: John Moody, Miss Flora Arnold, Culbert Wendell, Effie Hensley, Wm. Wofford, Effie Sebree and Earl Walton.

Feb. 11.—Miss Pearl Crisler is visiting at Hebron.

Our town is now in the midst of a coal famine.

Miss Lola McWethy will teach the spring school here.

Frank Cox has bought R. J. Gardner's store in Aurora.

Ed Smith, of Aurora, is the guest of friends here this week.

Prof. W. H. Crisler will teach a spring school at Hebron.

H. C. Lyons is at home after a visit of two weeks at Lexington.

John Fink has been very busy remodeling and repairing the Old Kentucky Hotel. It will astonish his friends and the public to see what a neat, cosy place he is making—however, John has surprised the people on many former occasions.

The youth and maidens had another big party Friday night at the residence of Mr. Sleet Yonell. Some one had a mouth organ which he got hold of (he is dead gone on music anyhow) and commenced with some old fashioned breakdown, to which the youngsters responded with screams of delight and immediately began to "pat juba." Sleet gave the music and they commenced to "double shuffle," "hoe de corn and dig potatoes" as their grandparents had done before them. A happier, merrier crowd, Walton has not seen for many a day.

Miss Hallie Watson had a real nice party Saturday afternoon, Feb. 8th. The most pleasing feature of the affair was the sled ride given them to Mr. James Watson's, a few miles out of town. Squire John Watson drove his five horses to a big sled. Gee! but it was fine, the children were full of delight and will remember the sled ride to the longest day of their lives. The following were the participants in this delightful country party, Stella Mayhugh, Lula Jones, Blanch Dixon, Carrie Watson, Ella Haley, Mabel Powers, Gladys Wilson, Sallie Jones, Virgie Cluster, Clifton Botts, Harris Watson, Leslie, Charles and Richard Jones, Eddie Rouse, Robert Coffman, Cecil Watson and Roy Cluster. Mrs. Alice Coffman chaperoned the party.

A postal card received this morning from A. P. Collins, Esq., Richwood, denying that there is a case of small pox in his family, will, it is hoped, serve as a lesson to some friends of this paper how they make assertions of the condition of things existing in their neighborhoods. Of course it pained Mr. Collins and it grieves the writer to read him of this kind when there is no foundation of truth in them. Today, or rather yesterday, I met some friends from the infected district and probed somewhat closely into what they knew of the number of families that were afflicted with the odious disease. In this manner I ascertained that many of them believed that it was not small-pox at all, but only, "Cuban itch." Asked what were the symptoms? Was answered that it was a breaking out and not much attention paid to it. The patient ran about with it and it did not seem to make them sick. It was apparent, however, that those claiming it to be "only Cuban itch" were violently opposed to vaccination and these were streuuous about the disease being "only Cuban itch." Asked if they had been exposed to the contagion in anyway? was answered negatively, and, further, that they took care to avoid all persons who were alleged to have the symptoms on their premises.

CONSTANCE—Loule Kotneyer has moved to town.

The fine sleighing weather has been taken advantage of by all who were lucky enough to have a sleigh, and a buggy looked as much out of place on the road now as a sleigh would in summer time.

With the thermometer at zero and ground covered with ice, the majority of R. H's population have been afraid to venture out, therefore, we will not require much space in your valuable paper this week.

A certain old bachelor of R. H. whose name, respect for his benevolent qualities forbids us to mention, was called on by a widow of the hill country, who having heard that he desired to sell his house and property for a certain sum, called with a view of purchase. After looking over the property with the obliging owner, who accompanied her, she announced her intention of moving in immediately, as she was willing to pay the price mentioned. The owner astonished her by saying that he didn't say he would sell—he just merely stated that his property was worth that sum.

Mr. C. F. Brown, representing a Chicago picture firm, came to town Monday, and called at Clutterbuck Bros., with whom he claimed the firm he represented had a contract for them to handle their pictures in connection with their business. It appears that there was some misunderstanding in regard to the conditions of the contract. A hot argument ensued, and lead up to an encounter, in which several blows were given and received by Roy Clutterbuck and the drummer, before bystanders could separate them. The belligerents were arrested and taken before Judge Cason, and the evidence showing that the drummer was the aggressor he was fined $5 and cost, amounting in the aggregate to $17 50.

Last Saturday's Western Tobacco Journal reported Boone county tobacco as selling as follows: At Farmers and Shippers House, 8 hhds. at $3 90 to $7 95. Morris House, 25 hhds. Boone county tobacco at $4 to $8 90. At Louisville 6 hhds. Boone county at $4 to $4 10; 15 hhds. at $5 50 to $6 30.

The Crowd Was Very Orderly. There Was No Shooting and All Was Done Quickly and Quietly—Instruction to Coroner.

Nicholasville, Ky., Feb. 7.—Tom Brown, the Negro who assaulted Miss Della Powell Wednesday, was hanged at 12 o'clock Thursday to a tree in the courthouse yard. The crowd that followed the carriage containing the prisoner and officers to the Powell home Thursday morning, returned with it, the numbers having been swelled by angry farmers.

Miss Powell had again identified the Negro, but requested that he be not hanged near her home. Nothing then could have made the determined men change the resolution to hang him.

When the carriage stopped at the jail the mob demanded Brown. The officers protested, the mob insisted, the crowd surged forward against the carriage, the officers then gave up the prisoner. He was half dragged, half carried almost unconscious to the courthouse yard. When a tree immediately in front of the building was reached a rope was placed around his neck and hundreds of hands grasped it to swing him up. A few gasps, a few twitches of the face and hands, and all was over. The Negro was left hanging for several hours, and was viewed by hundreds of people, men, women and children, white and black. The mob was a very orderly one, there was no shooting, no loud speeches; all was done quickly and quietly. Instructions to coroner by a county officer were to return a verdict of death at hands of unknown men or of citizens of Jessamine county.

Miss Powell is a student at the Jessamine institute, in this city, and lives at her brother's home, about three miles north. Wednesday evening she started home in company with the Misses Braden, who also live out of town and attend here.

Leaving the Braden girls at their home, Miss Powell continued on foot her way to her brother's, about half a mile further on.

At a secluded spot an unknown Negro sprang out from the roadside and assaulted her. When she reached her brother's house a half hour later she was so ill and dazed that she could give but little description of her assailant beyond saying that he was a low, heavy-set, yellow Negro.

The alarm was at once given, and a hunt for the Negro began. Suspicion fell on Tom Brown, and he was placed under arrest.

BRILLIANT WEDDING.

Marriage of Payne Whitney to Miss Helen Hay in Washington.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Miss Helen Hay, the daughter of Secretary of State John Hay, and Mr. Payne Whitney, second son of former Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, were married Thursday morning in the Church of the Covenant.

The ceremony was witnessed by one of the most distinguished and largest assemblages ever gathered in Washington at a similar service. Besides the president of the United States and his family, the cabinet, a majority of the senate as well as prominent men and women from all over the country, occupied seats in the church. The wedding was international in character, inasmuch as the diplomatic corps almost to a man were among those present.

Never was such a display and collection of wedding gifts presented to a bride in Washington before.

THE BRITISH LOSSES.

Up to January 31 the Reduction of Forces Were 25,305 Men.

London, Feb. 7.—The war office Thursday evening published a summary of the British losses in South Africa. Up to January 31 the total reduction of forces, from death or permanent disability, were 25,305 men. The total of the casualties, including surviving wounded, was 5,240 officers and 100,701 men.

Will Abandon Boer Cause.

London, Feb. 7.—The Brussels correspondent of the Daily Telegraph declares it to be absolutely certain that, owing to the attitude of the powers and the Boer leaders, the Dutch government is now firmly determined to abandon the Boer cause and any idea of fresh intervention.

American Swimming Record.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—William J. Tuttle, of Chicago, clipped one-fifth of a second off from the American swimming record for 40 yards, held by B. Carroll Schaeffer, Thursday night at the Sportsmen's show. Tuttle's time was :23 3-5.

GEN. HERRERA'S FORCES.

About 1,300 of Them Are Encamped Southwest of Panama.

Colon, Columbia, Feb. 8.—The wife of a government soldier, who was made a prisoner by the rebels last month, and who managed to escape from Gen. Herrera's company, has arrived at Panama. She reports that the liberal forces, to the number of 1,300 men, are encamped from Penonome to Chame (about 70 miles southwest of Panama), and that Gen. Herrera and his staff are at Chame. According to this woman Gen. Herrera sent word to the government general, Castro, to surrender. The latter answered that he had been sent out to fight and was ready to do so. The plans of the revolutionists indicate their intention to attack Panama, but they are undoubtedly awaiting reinforcements. The only fighting so far has been between two exploring parties in the vicinity of Tonosi, where the revolutionists landed.

Gen. Herrera addressed a note to the American, French, British and German consuls here. In it Gen. Herrera claimed, among other things, that the government of Senor Marroquin, the president of Colombia, was not lawful, and that therefore the rebels, although deploring the bloody results of the war, would fight to the end for the ultimate success of the liberal principles.

Gen. Herrera proposed that the consuls addressed ask their respective governments to declare the line of the Panama-Colombia railroad to be a neutral ground, with which the government should not build entrenchments or the liberals attack, and that only a police force be left to guard the line. Gen. Herrera said he proposed if possible to compel the government to attack the liberal forces, and that the liberals had a strong fleet and army, provided with cannon, etc. Gen. Herrera also declared in his note that the liberals considered the capture of Panama and Colon to be absolutely necessary for the development of their military plans, that they would act to obtain such results and that in due time they would notify consuls of such proposed action, allowing 24 hours for foreigners to take refuge at a place of safety, to be agreed upon with the consuls, and that the point so selected would not be fired upon.

THE TRUE ENEMY OF EUROPE.

Count Adelbert Sternberg in a Letter Says It Is the United States.

London, Feb. 8.—The Times publishes a letter from Count Adelbert Sternberg, who fought upon the Boer side in South Africa and was captured. In the course of this letter, which deals with European Anglophobia and declares that peace could be negotiated at once by the promise of local self-government and the rebuilding and re-stocking of Boer farms, Sternberg says that his visit to North America taught him who is the enemy of Europe. Instead of hating England, who opens her colonies to the trade of the world, Sternberg says the continent ought to recognize that its true enemy is now arising in the west like a great sun of gold.

DUEL TO THE DEATH.

Two Percheron Stallions Fought in a Stock Car, and One Was Killed.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Feb. 8.—Two Percheron stallions, imported from England, fought a duel to the death on a fast stock train on the Union Pacific. One was killed, the car was smashed into splinters and Edgar Boise, the owner of the animals, lost $1,500, the value of his horse. Two keepers in charge of the animals had to climb outside to escape the hoofs and teeth of the infuriated animals. One of the horses severed the jugular of his rival, which bled to death.

BOTH ARE DEAD.

Two Colored Men Fought a Duel on a Plantation Below Shreveport.

Shreveport, La., Feb. 8.—Word comes from Bossier parish that at a plantation 18 miles below Shreveport two Negroes named Duke Boynton and Jim Heath quarreled over the affections of a Negress. They agreed to fight it out, retired to the district levee, counted off the distance, drew their pistols and had a duel without seconds or surgeons. When the smoke cleared away both Negroes were dead.

An Eight League Club.

St. Louis, Feb. 8.—The circuit committee of the Western league is in session here. It has been definitely decided that there will be an eight club league. Indianapolis and Toledo will probably be the two cities to complete the league.

Business Failures.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Business failures in the United States for the week number 247, against 303 last week, 250 in this week last year, 231 in 1900, 183 in 1899 and 278 in 1898. Canadian failures for the week number 29, against 48 last week.

Special Mass.

Rome, Feb. 8.—The pope was present at a special mass in the Sistine chapel, the 24th anniversary of the death of Pope Pius IX. His holiness pronounced the absolution in a clear, strong voice.

THE MINERS AGREE.

The Delegates Reaffirm the Scale of 1901 as a Whole.

The Action Was Presented as a Matter of Form to the Joint Conference and Ratified By the Operators.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 8.—In a secret session the massed delegates of the United Mine Workers, acting finally upon the advice of each of their national officers, adopted the report of the joint scale committee, and which reaffirmed the scale of 1901 as a whole.

The matter was not settled, however, until after a long and bitter debate in which a strike was threatened.

Vice President Lewis urged the adoption of the report as the most plausible and rational settlement of a complicated situation.

"This is no time for a strike," he said. "I believe it is time for cool and calm deliberation just now. We can not hope to gain such concessions as we have asked of the mine owners and it would be much better to let well enough alone, if we can not just now make better our conditions in the mining fields. I am for the adoption of the report under these circumstances."

The report as adopted provides for the following rate prices for mining coal:

Pick mining, 80 cents a ton, thin vein, Pittsburg; 80 cents per ton, Hocking Valley; 80 cents a ton, Indiana bituminous; 90 cents a ton, Indiana block.

Run of mine, 40 cents a ton, Indiana bituminous; 40 cents a ton, Danville, Ill.; 57 1-7 cents, Hocking Valley, when run of mine exists; 51¾ cents, Pittsburg district.

No change was made in the machine mining scale from last year with the exception that a provision was made that where differences occur the same shall first be acted upon by the districts.

The action taken was presented as a matter of form to the joint conference Saturday morning at Tomlinson hall, where it was ratified and members of both sides on the scale committee were appointed to draw up the contract for the next year.

CRIMINAL IDENTIFICATION.

Bill to Creat a National Bureau For That Purpose Favorably Reported.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The judiciary committee of the house Friday reported favorably the bill for a national bureau of criminal identification in Washington, as advocated by the police chiefs of the country. The division is to keep a record by photographs and measurements and this material is to be available to police authorities for the detection of criminals. Before reporting the bill the committee was advised that unfavorable action recently taken by a senate committee was due to misapprehension that the attorney general opposed the measure, and that as there was no such opposition the bill would not be favorably reported in both houses.

IMPROVED BATTLESHIPS.

Rearrangement Plan of the Virginia Class Approved.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The navy department has approved a general rearrangement plan for the new battleships of the Virginia class, prepared by the bureau of construction. The changes look to better accommodations for the sick, enlarged quarters for the officers and improved ventilation. An important alteration will be made in regard to the armament of the vessels in the shape of additional protection for the gun deck guns.

RAILWAY ACCIDENTS IN RUSSIA.

Report Shows There Are An Average of Over 12 Per Diem.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The state department has received a report from Consul General Holloway, at St. Petersburg, on the unusual topic "railroad accidents in Russia." He says a recent report of the minister of ways of communication shows that in 1899 there were 4,447 accidents, or an average of a little more than 12 per diem. Altogether 1,226 persons were killed and 6,933 injured.

Federal Restriction of Polygamy.

Washington, Feb. 8.—The movement for strong federal restriction of polygamy by means of an amendment to the constitution has taken form again, and in response to many petitions and letters urging action the house committee on judiciary fixed February 25 for a hearing on the subject.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Senate—After brief discussion Tuesday the senate passed the bill providing for a 25 per cent. increase in the salaries of United States judges. All amendments were voted down, including one to increase the salaries of cabinet officers from $8,000 to $12,500 a year. During the remainder of the day's session the urgent deficiency appropriation bill was under consideration, the Philippine tariff measure being laid aside temporarily. John F. Dryden was inducted into office as the successor of the late Senator William J. Sewell (N. J.). Senator Jones (Ark.) introduced a bill increasing from $8 to $12 per month the pensions of Mexican war veterans under the act of January 29, 1897, who have reached the age of 70 years or over.

House—Debate on the oleomargarine bill continued Tuesday in the house and the prospects are that a vote will not be reached earlier than Thursday. The opponents of the bill are making a strong fight so far as the presentation of argument is concerned.

Washington, Feb. 6.—Senate—Throughout Wednesday's session the senate had under consideration the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, and just before adjournment passed it substantially in the shape in which it was reported to the senate by the committee. The following resolutions and bills were introduced: Directing the attorney general to bring suit to determine the constitutionality of the retrocession of that portion of the original District of Columbia which was ceded to the United States by the state of Virginia; increasing the salaries of senators and members of the house to $7,500, and the salaries of the speaker of the house and the president pro tem of the senate to $15,000 each; to amend the law requiring railroad trains to be equipped with automatic couplers, so as to provide explicitly that it shall apply to all vehicles engaged in the inter-state commerce or those engaged in business in the territories; providing for the transmission in the mails of sums of money of one dollar or less by postage stamp certificates to be used in lieu of postage stamps.

House—An agreement was reached in the house Wednesday whereby the oleomargarine bill will be brought to a vote after two days of consideration, one to be devoted to general debate and one to debate under the five minute rule. The debate Wednesday continued in desultory fashion without special incident. Thursday the bill will be laid aside to permit action on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bills.

Washington, Feb. 7.—Senate—For four hours Thursday the senate had the Philippine tariff bill under discussion. The measure was completed so far as the Philippine commission is concerned, all of the committee amendments being adopted. Several other amendments, however, will be offered, one or two being pending. Toward the close of the session the discussion became heated. Bills were then passed as follows: Authorizing the construction of a bridge across the Columbia river by the Washington & Oregon Railroad Co.; increasing the limit of cost of the public building at Newport News, Va., to $250,000; appropriating $2,500,000 for the erection of a post office in the city of New York; appropriating $55,000 for the erection of a public building at Tacoma, Wash.; providing for two additional associate justices for the territory of Oklahoma.

House—The house spent the day on the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. Very rapid progress was made, 74 of 130 pages of the bill being disposed of before the adjournment. No debate of importance developed during the consideration of the bill and no amendments of importance were adopted. Representative Griffith (Ind.) introduced a bill to provide for coupon currency in order that small sums, in multiples of five cents, may be conveniently sent by mail.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Senate—The Philippine tariff bill was taken up early in the senate Friday. The session was notably quiet. After the adoption of only minor amendments the pension appropriation bill was passed early in the session. The following bills were passed: Respecting proceedings in the courts of the United States in the western district of Missouri; appropriating $200,000 for the enlargement of the public building at Nashville, Tenn.; to fix the fees of United States marshal in the Indian territory; to receive arrearages of taxes due the District of Columbia to July 1, 1900, at 6 per cent. per annum, in lieu of penalties and costs; to regulate the collection of taxes in the District of Columbia.

House—The house passed the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, the second of the regular supply bills. As passed it carries $25,171,969, which is $503,721 in excess of the current law. Only two amendments of importance were adopted. One provides for a commission to redistrict the legislative districts of Oklahoma and the other authorizes the president, in his discretion to cover into the civil service the temporary clerical force employed on account of the war with Spain. There are about 1,250 of these clerks still in the service. By the terms of the amendment the president must place all or none of them under the civil service.

Department of Mining.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Mining organizations in the west are manifesting much interest in a bill introduced by Representative Wood, of California, creating a department of mining under a cabinet officer.

Resumption of Specie Payment.

St. Thomas, D. W. I., Feb. 6.—The German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which left Kiel January 18, and touched at Gibraltar January 28, arrived here Wednesday morning. The vessel had an unusually fine voyage.

THE KANSAS PEOPLE ARE IN LOVE WITH WESTERN CANADA.

They Say the Land There Is the Finest on Earth.

A great number of delegates have been influenced through the agency of Mr. J. S. Crawford, the Canadian Government representative at Kansas City, to visit Western Canada, and whether from Missouri or Kansas the story is always the same—they are pleased with the new country being opened up. Isaac H. Levagood writes from Didsbury, Alberta, as follows:

"I met three delegates from Kansas yesterday at Didsbury, and took them home with me and took them out in the afternoon and showed them some of the finest land that lays on top of God's green earth. They are more than pleased with this country. They stayed with me last night, this morning I took them to Didsbury, and they went on North. When they come back they are coming to my place and I am going to help them to run some lines and they are going to locate in sight of my house. There have been over 1,200 acres of land changed hands here in our neighborhood this spring. When I located here last Fall I was the furthest back of any of the settlers, to-day I am in the centre of the settlement. We have 36 children that are of school age in our district, and we will have our school district organized next month, when we will proceed to build our school house. The longer we stay here the better we like the country, that is the way with everybody here, they all seem to be satisfied and doing well. I have talked with a great many men here and they told me that they had less than $50 when they got here, and to-day they have got 160 acres of good land and five or six hundred dollars' worth of stock. Crops are looking fine here, I think this will be a good winter wheat country. One of my neighbors has a small piece and it looks fine."

GREAT FIERY FURNACE

Millions of Dollars Worth of Paterson, N. J., Property Burned.

The Conflagration Started at Midnight and Was Not Gotten Under Control Until Late Sunday Afternoon By the Firemen.

Paterson, N. J., Feb. 10.—A great fire swept through Paterson Sunday and in its desolate wake are the embers and ashes of property valued in preliminary estimate at $10,000,000.

It burned its way through the business section of the city and claimed as its own a majority of the finer structures devoted to commercial, civic, educational and religious use, as well as scores of houses. There was but small tribute of life and injury to the conflagration, but hundreds were left homeless and thousands without employment. A relief movement for the care of those unsheltered and unprovided for has already been organized, and Mayor John Hencheliffe said Sunday night that Paterson would be able to care for her own without appealing to the charity of other communities and states. The great manufacturing plants of the place are safe, and the community, temporarily dazed by the calamity, has already commenced the work of reorganization and restoration.

The fire came Saturday midnight and was only checked after a desperate fight that lasted until late Sunday afternoon. Every city and town within reach sent firemen and apparatus to the relief of the threatened city.

A northwest gale gave the conflagration its impetus and carried its burning brands to kindle the blaze afresh at other points. The firemen made stand after stand before the wall of fire, but were repeatedly driven back, and when victory finally came to them they were grimed and exhausted.

Among the properties destroyed were eight public buildings, including the city hall and No. 1 engine house; five churches, six banks, five clubhouses, seven office buildings, two telegraph companies, the Garden theater, two newspapers and 25 stores.

An estimate made from a general inspection of the smouldering ruins placed the number of dwellings and apartment houses destroyed at 500, and the number of families left without shelter at 1,000.

The fire began its work of far-reaching destruction at the power house of the Jersey City, Hoboken & Paterson Traction Co., which fronted on Broadway and extended a block to the rear on Van Houten street. It commenced in the car shed and was burning fiercely when one of the employes detected it. The firemen tried to hem it in but it speedily crossed Van Houten street in one direction, Main street in another and, gaining vigor as it went, burned unchecked down into the business district. Every piece of fire mechanism in the city was called out, but fire and gale were masters. A great torch of flame rose high in the air, lighting up the country for many miles and carrying a threat and warning to the people and property in its path. Property was often moved to a place of presumed safety, only to be eventually reached and destroyed. The warning to many was brief and they were forced to flee, scantily clad, into streets glazed over with ice and swept by the keen wind.

Main street was soon arched over with a canopy of fire for a block and then for two blocks, as the flames fastened themselves upon building after building. The firemen fought with every resource of their craft and the impulse of desperation, but the flames found new avenues in Ellison and Market streets and got beyond all control.

The city hall, a magnificent structure surmounted by a great clock tower, situated on Washington, Ellison and Market streets, finally caught and with it went all of the splendid business structures that surrounded it. They made a great furnace of fire that burned with a fierce roar.

There was a series of explosions and scores of walls fell when the fire left them strengthless. Flying firebrands carried the conflagration over some buildings and around others and it therefore burned in an irregular course. These brands finally cleared the tracks of the Erie railroad and Ramapo avenue and alighting on Straight street started another great area of fire in which the destruction and desolation wrought was nearly as great as in the other.

This second great fire started at the angle of Park avenue and Washington and swept almost unchecked until on these two thoroughfares there was no more fuel. On the right hand side of Market street it encountered Sandy Hill cemetery as a barrier to check it, but on the left hand side at Carroll street it claimed St. Joseph's church, a great classic stone building. It was on this second great fire that the volunteer firemen from the outside cities did their most heroic and effective work.

President Roosevelt Will Attend.

Washington, Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt has accepted an invitation to be the guest of the department of the Potomac of the Grand Army of the Republic, which is to give a dinner in this city to Gen. Torrence, the commander-in-chief, on February 19.

Two Children Suffocated.

New York, Feb. 10.—Jennie and Elsie Berlinger, aged 8 and 6 years respectively, children of Dr. R. Berlinger, were suffocated and died while a fire was in progress at their father's residence in this city Sunday.

TO ENTERTAIN THE PRINCE.

The Programme at the Metropolitan Opera House Completed.

New York, Feb. 10.—Maurice Grau, director of the Metropolitan Opera Co., after a conference with the opera committee of the mayor's committee, appointed in connection with the proposed visit of Prince Henry, Sunday announced the arrangements as far as completed for the entertainment of the prince at the Metropolitan opera house on the evening of February 25. The programme probably will consist of the first act of Lohengrin, the second act of Carmen, the third act of Aida, the second act of Tannhauser, the first act of LaTraviata and the third scene of LeCid.

In this programme each of the prima donnas and all of the great tenors of the Metropolitan Opera Co. will take part.

The following schedule of prices will prevail: Orchestra chairs, $30; dress circle, $15; first rows in the balcony, $12.50; rear rows in balcony, $10, and family circle, $5. Admission with standing room will be $5. All of the boxes have been disposed of to the opera committee. The scale of prices for the boxes decided upon by Mr. Grau and the committee, according to Mr. Grau, is as follows: Stall boxes, containing six seats, $250; stall boxes containing five seats, $200; stall boxes of four seats, $150, and rear stall boxes containing three seats, $100. The remaining seats in the house will be placed on sale to the general public.

ATTEMPT TO CATCH DEWET.

The Well Laid Plans of Lord Kitchener Came to Naught.

London, Feb. 10.—From Wolvehoek Lord Kitchener telegraphed a long description of a combined movement of numerous British columns with the object of securing Gen. DeWet.

Lord Kitchener says that on the night of February 4 the whole force moved from various directions and forming a continuous line of mounted men on the best bank of the Liebenbergs Vlei, from Frankfort as far south as Nanny Horns, and thence to Kaffirkof. The line then advanced to the west, and the following night the British entrenched with their outposts 50 yards apart. The advance was continued February 6 and DeWet was within the inclosure, but realizing his position, he ordered his men to disperse and seek safety during the night. DeWet, himself, with some men and a number of cattle, made for the Kroonstadt-Lindley blockhouse line and at 1 o'clock in the morning, when it was very dark, by rushing his cattle at the fence, broke his way through the line, mixed up with the cattle and losing three men killed.

STRANGE FUNERAL.

Skeletons of Sts. Magnius and Bonosa Buried in Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 10.—Clad in rich, red robes, the skeletons of St. Magnius and St. Bonosa, two Catholic saints who were slain at the command of a Roman emperor, nearly 1600 years ago on account of their religious beliefs, were buried in St. Martin's church in this city Sunday afternoon. The bones were found in the catacombs of Rome in 1700. They were given to an order of sisters in North Italy and were kept by them until last summer, when the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Francis Zahler, pastor of St. Martin's church, secured them. St. Magnius was a Roman centurian and St. Bonosa a Roman virgin.

THE HINDOO TWINS.

They Were Separated By a Surgical Operation By a Paris Physician.

Paris, Feb. 10.—The Hindoo twins, Radica and Dordina, who were united in a manner similar to the Siamese twins, who were exhibited throughout the world, were separated Sunday afternoon by Dr. Doyon. The operation lasted 20 minutes and was entirely successful. But, owing to the weak condition of the patients, due to the illness of one of the twins, who has been suffering from thrush, the final result of the operation is still doubtful.

At 1 o'clock Monday morning the condition of both patients was satisfactory. It is reported that cinematograph pictures of various stages of the operation were taken.

Chicago Theater Damaged By Fire.

Chicago, Feb. 10.—The Orpheon theater in Washington street opposite the city hall was damaged by fire Monday morning to the extent of $30,000. The flames spread with such rapidity that three attaches of the theater and two hotel ratlers, who were in the building when the fire started, were overcome by smoke and severely burned before they could be rescued.

FATAL FIRE IN A HOTEL

Ten Men and a Women Lost Their Lives and Eight Injured.

It Was the Coldest Night of the Winter in St. Louis, and Every One Suffered From Exposure.

St. Louis, Feb. 10.—An early morning fire, which destroyed the Empire hotel, a large three-story lodging house at 2,000 and 2702 Olive street, occupied by men exclusively, caused the death of ten men, one woman and dangerously injured eight people. Ten or more who had narrow escapes from death in the fire were more or less injured by being frost bitten. It is estimated that there were between 35 and 40 persons in the building Saturday night, and it is believed all have been accounted for. The financial loss is nominal. It is thought that $20,000 will cover the damage to building and contents, which were destroyed.

The fire started at 3:30 a. m., when but few persons were abroad, and gained considerable headway before it was discovered and the alarm given. There was considerable delay in turning in an alarm, and when the engines finally reached the scene the whole front of the building was in flames and the interior was a seething furnace. By that time all who escaped death had gotten out of the building by jumping from the windows, climbing down ropes made of bedclothes. A few escaped from the ground floor through the front door. Some of the escapes were very narrow.

Almost everybody who got out suffered some injury or was frost bitten. The guests barely had time to get out when aroused, the flames had spread so rapidly. Some saved their clothing, which they carried in their hands, but others were not so fortunate, losing everything. After some delay nearby houses were opened to the unfortunates, and they were given shelter from the biting cold weather. It was one of the coldest nights of the winter, the ground being covered with ice and snow, and everyone suffered from exposure. The suffering ones were put under the care of physicians. Harry Cline, Walter Johnson, Henry Robinson and an unknown man, who died later, were taken to the city hospital. Robinson recovered enough to be taken home. The others named will be laid up for some time.

After a short fight the firemen got the flames under control, and, assisted by the police, made a search of the ruins. The first body found was that of John C. Lueders, who was killed by jumping from the third story. His head was crushed in. The body of Lueders and those of the others found later were taken to the morgue, where friends and relatives later identified them. Sarah Harris was found on the first floor. Her body had been burned. The remains of the other victims were found in their rooms, where they were suffocated or burned.

R. A. Worsley, a medical student, whose home is in Galesburg, Ill., had a room on the second floor. Finding the regular exits cut off, he slid to the ground safely with the aid of two sheets tied together. Harry Cline, of Marion, Ill., who is a student in the medical department of Washington university, had a narrow escape from death. He roomed on the second floor with Harry Thompson, of Nashville, Ill., a student at the same college. Cline was aroused by cries of fire. He awakened Thompson and together they attempted to escape through the hall. They found the stairway on fire and the hall filled with smoke and flames which drove them to the window in their room. Thompson jumped first and hurt his ankle.

FIRE IN BROOKLYN.

Fourteen Persons Injured and a Property Loss of $300,000.

New York, Feb. 10.—An official estimate of the damage done by the fire which destroyed the plant of the Shadbolt Manufacturing Co., in Brooklyn, early Sunday morning, fixes the loss at $300,000. Fourteen people were injured and taken to the hospitals, and a number of others were attended by ambulance physicians on the spot.

The loss to the Shadbolt Co. is given as $250,000, fully covered, it is said, by insurance.

This loss includes the building and the stock of wagons and carriages manufactured by the company. The total loss to the other buildings in the vicinity is placed at $50,000.

The blaze was first discovered on the ground floor of the Shadbolt building, which was a mass of flames before the first relay of fire engines arrived. Eventually, two-thirds of the Brooklyn force was at work. The marine fire corps of the Brooklyn navy yard was employed. The injured were struck by falling debris. Some of them, particularly the firemen, are reported to be in a serious condition, but so far no deaths have been reported from the hospitals.

Stabbed to Death.

Lake Providence, La., Feb. 10.—As the result of a fight J. L. Wilson, a sawmill man of this town, and Paul Jones, a leading citizen, are dead, and a Negro, John Nelson, is seriously wounded. Knives were used and Wilson and Jones were stabbed to death.

Wisconsin State League.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 10.—The Wisconsin State Baseball league was formed at Kaukauna, and will include Appleton, Milwaukee, Oshkosh, Kaukauna, Sheboygan, Fond du Lac, Waupun and Green Bay.

THE PRESIDENT'S SON.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Critically Ill at Groton, Mass.

Washington, Feb. 8.—Mrs. Roosevelt, the wife of the president, left Washington at 4:50 o'clock Friday afternoon for Groton, Mass., where their son, Theodore, jr., is lying seriously ill of pneumonia. She traveled in a drawing room on the Pennsylvania road, which goes through to Boston without change, and arrived their Saturday morning at 7 o'clock. Mrs. Roosevelt's train reached Groton at 10:33 a. m. She was accompanied only by a maid.

The first information to reach the President and Mrs. Roosevelt of the illness of their son was received at the white house by telegram at 9:20 Friday morning. The message was signed by the president of the college where the young man is a pupil and stated in effect that a slight indisposition had developed into an acute and sharp attack of pneumonia, and that he was seriously ill, and that the young man's temperature was 104. Arrangements were at once set on foot for Mrs. Roosevelt's departure for Groton, and since the first intelligence was received the president has been in almost constant communication by telephone and telegraph with the college faculty.

Washington, Feb. 10. — President Roosevelt, owing to his son's illness, Saturday cancelled his intended trip to the Charleston exposition for the present and Saturday evening left for Groton, Mass., where Theodore, jr., is down with pneumonia.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 10.—President Roosevelt, upon his arrival at the Groton school Sunday afternoon, did not find his son, Theodore, jr., alarmingly ill with pneumonia, but the boy's condition was not sufficiently reassuring to warrant the president's immediate return to the national capital. Young Roosevelt, with two school mates, Horace P. Potter, of New York, and William Gammell, of Providence, both having pneumonia, lie in large, airy rooms on the second floor of the college infirmary. Mrs. Roosevelt has been with her son for two days. He greeted his father cheerfully Sunday afternoon. Sunday night it was stated that his condition is unchanged and he is holding his own well. The school has been dismissed and the 150 boys have scattered to their homes upon an enforced vacation.

All the sick boys are having the best medical attention and nursing. The president's stay here is indefinite, although it is not believed it will be prolonged much after Wednesday unless the boy's condition takes a turn for the worse.

FARMHOUSE BURNED.

Four Children of Wm. P. Robertson Cremated Near Cumberland, Md.

Cumberland, Md., Feb. 8.—The farmhouse of Wm. P. Robertson, about 29 miles east of here, on the Maryland side of the Potomac river, was entirely destroyed by fire and four of the Robertson children, Pearl, Owen, Effie and Joseph, the oldest aged 10 and the youngest aged 4 years, were cremated.

The fire, which is thought to have started from anopen hearth, spread so rapidly that Mr. and Mrs. Robertson found all means of escape gone for the children, who were asleep in another room and was compelled to jump from a second-story window, only in their night clothes in order to save their own lives. The parents made several futile attempts to reach the children, but were driven back by the flames, and after the fire had subsided somewhat they were almost frozen before aid came from neighbors.

BIG DAMAGES.

Mrs. Barnhill Gets a Judgment For $20,000 For Her Husband's Death.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 8.—Mrs. Libbie Barnhill, of Tennessee, recovered a judgment in the federal court against L. T. Morgan, of Fayette county, for $20,000, equally divided between actual and exemplary damages. Half the amount goes to Mrs. Barnhill and the other half to her children. Mr. Barnhill was a former business partner of Morgan, and was killed by the latter. It is claimed, as the result of a business disagreement.

Mrs. McKinley's Present.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 8.—Lawrence N. McKay, aged 12, is in receipt of a present from Mrs. McKinley, widow of the martyred president, in the form of a pair of slippers knit by Mrs. McKinley's own hands. The boy made some wax flowers and sent them to Mrs. McKinley.

Mrs. Leland Married.

New York, Feb. 10.—Mrs. Kate E. Leland has been married to William J. Elias, a wealthy business man. Mrs. Leland was the widow of Warren Leland, jr., son of the widely known hotel proprietor whose wife and daughter were killed in the Windsor hotel fire in this city.

Boer Leader Captured.

Matjesfontein, Cape Colony, Feb. 8.—Lourens Erasmus, better known under the name of Commandant Marais, has been captured in the neighborhood of Laingsburg. Marais was the leader of the Boers who operated on the Zwart Kop range in 1901.

Bust at Annapolis.

Annapolis, Md., Feb. 8.—The house of delegates, under a suspension of rules, unanimously passed Friday the senate bill appropriating $3,000 to raise a bronze bust of Rr. Adm. W. S. Schley in the state building here.

STATE ODDS AND ENDS.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Doings of the Kentucky Legislature at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Feb. 4.—Both houses of the legislature held only brief sessions Monday. The capitol appropriation bill was made a special order in the house for Wednesday, February 12. Both houses passed resolutions, adjourning out of respect to the memory of William Goebel, who died February 3, two years ago. Both republicans and democrats voted for it.

Frankfort, Feb. 5.—Senate—Bills introduced: Dividing the state into 38 senatorial districts; act to amend section 1701, Kentucky Statutes, by striking out that part which prohibits exemption from execution bill for rent, fuel and medicine to amount of $50 for wage earners; to prohibit stock from running at large on macadamized and fenced roads; to amend section 75 of the act relating to embezzlement by making it apply to clerks, agents and others who are in the employ of any individual, firm or person, as well as banks and corporations; to prevent the disturbing of camp or field meetings.

House—A bill making labor day a holiday was passed by a vote of 54 to 26, after a motion to table had been lost. The following bills were also passed: Requiring county clerks to advertise annually a statement of sums expended by county warrants; allowing the commonwealth attorney in Louisville an assistant at a salary of from $1,800 to $2,500 per year; appropriating $10,000 toward the monument to mark the grave of William Goebel. About $15,000 has already been raised by popular subscription.

Frankfort, Feb. 6.—Senate—Bills passed Wednesday: Providing for the appointment of a special committee to reapportion the three railroad commissioners' districts; providing for assessment of real estate in cities of second class only once in four years: to fix the salary of the jailer for second-class cities at not less than $1,500 nor more than $2,000; providing that election officers shall be paid out of the county levy of the year in which they serve, instead of waiting a year. The Puryear bill, to fix the minimum price for keeping paupers in the county poorhouse at $60 per year, was defeated—yeas, 13, nays, 18.

House—The house advanced the bill which prohibits the use of any kind of book in Kentucky schools that does not give full credit to Schley for the Santiago victory. The committee on education reported it adversely, but the house, by a vote of 38 to 32, advanced the bill, the report of the committee notwithstanding. The following bills were passed: Requiring fiscal courts to make itemized accounts of money expended; applying the common school law to schools established under special charters.

Frankfort, Feb. 7.—Senate—The senate Thursday passed the bill introduced by Senator Dyer (Newport) which provides that fiduciaries shall pay for the bond for trust estates committed to their charge. Senator Richardson introduced a bill which is aimed to kill poolrooms, except on race tracks. It makes the operation of poolrooms except on race tracks a felony. Both houses adopted resolutions to go to Lexington Tuesday as guests of the Lexington chamber of commerce and officials of the state institutions there.

House—The defeat of the Drewery bill to create a state labor bureau was one of the features of the session of the house. The bill was one of several measures which had the backing of the various labor organizations of the state. Col. Colson's bill to make trespass upon certain classes of property a felony was reported favorably by the committee on agriculture. The $15,000 annual appropriation bill for the purpose of establishing a state fair, was also reported favorably. The house judiciary committee Thursday night decided to report favorably the bill to make the sale or use of cigarettes a felony.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 8.—Among the bills introduced Friday are the following: To appropriate $10,000 for the purpose of erecting a monument over the grave of Gen. George Rodgers Clark in Cave Hill cemetery, Louisville; to authorize city clerks in cities of the second class to select a daily newspaper, to be known as the official newspaper; to authorize second class cities to issue bonds to restore to contractors profit fund money used in redeeming street improvement bonds; to provide for ad valorem tax for maintenance of turnpikes; to place a bounty of $1 for scalps of chicken hawks; prohibiting spitting on floors of public buildings or common carriers, and punishing it by a fine of $10; to tax dogs; to allow actions to be brought against railroads in any county through which they pass; punishing gaming by a fine of from $100 to $1,000, and confinement in jail for one year; to authorize cities of the second class to issue refunding bonds to pay off maturing improvement bonds.

Mrs. Howard Destitute.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 6.—Mrs. L. Clay Brock has issued an appeal for the wife and family of Jim Howard, who has been sentenced to life imprisonment for the murder of Senator Goebel. She says that Mrs. Howard is an invalid and in destitute circumstances.

Railway Company Indicted.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 8.—The grand jury returned an indictment against the Pennsylvania, Cleveland, Cincinnati & St. Louis Railroad Co., charging failure to provide separate coaches for white and colored passengers, according to law.

School Building Burned.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 8.—The public school building at Thurston burned at noon Friday. The loss is $600. J. R. Holloway, of Henderson, filed a petition in bankruptcy Friday. He owes $530.

A TRIAL BY TELEPHONE.

The Defendant's Fine, With Costs, Amounted to $12, and Was Paid.

Mount Vernon, Ky., Feb. 8.—While Judge Durham, who is magistrate in the Wildie district, was in town on some business he was called up over the telephone by Contable Harry Jones who said he had in charge Dan Dickerson, charged with breach of the peace. Dickerson asked an immediate trial and it was agreed to conduct the trial by telephone.

Half an hour's use of the wires by Judge Durham and County Attorney Rethrurum at this end and the constable and defendant at the other concluded the trial, the defendant's fine, with costs amounting to $12, which was promptly paid.

A NOTABLE WEDDING.

Clare Hill Draper and Grace Engman United In Marriage.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 6.—Clare Hill Draper, of Hopedale, Mass., youngest son of Gen. Wm. F. Draper, former ambassador to Italy and ex-congressman, was married at noon to Miss Matilda Grace Engman, daughter of Col. B. A. Engman, of this city. The elaborate scale of the preparation for the event and the prominence of the families went to make the wedding one of the most beautiful and brilliant ever seen here. The ceremony was performed by Dean Baker Lee in the presence of a great crowd at the Episcopal cathedral.

ESTABLISHED A NEW RECORD.

Twice In a Day An Unfortunate Man Fell and Broke His Nose.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 7.—In breaking his nose twice in one day Charles Roeschlaub undoubtedly established a new record. The man fell in an epileptic fit at the Auditorium Thursday afternoon, and in falling struck his nose against the sidewalk, breaking it. He was taken to the city hospital and his injuries dressed, after which he was discharged. Roeschlaub then went to the post office, and while there suffered another attack, and again fractured his nose.

POLICE AFTER HIS ASSAILANT.

A Veteran Badly Beaten Up in a Lawrenceburg Saloon.

Lawrenceburg, Ky., Feb. 7.—Wednesday night about 11 o'clock, in the saloon of Duncan & Boggess, Parker Morton, a union veteran of the civil war, was assaulted by Robert Duncan, an employe in the barroom, and beaten and kicked until his life is despaired of. Morton was a well-known citizen, and has several times held the office of coroner. Duncan has fled and the officers are now searching for him.

IN TWO FACTIONS.

Feud Started as the Result of Two Stores Being Burned.

Scottsville, Ky., Feb. 8.—The general merchandise establishment of Atwood Bros., at Cedar Springs, was burned Friday morning by incendiaries. Mr. Zeentschell's storehouse was burned several months ago, and the Atwood Bros., who opened a like establishment across the road, were arrested and tried for arson. They were acquitted. The community divided into two factions and serious trouble was narrowly averted. It is now believed that the Zeentschell-Atwood feud may result in serious trouble.

J. C. S. Blackburn, Jr., Critically Ill.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 6.—Joe C. S. Blackburn, jr., son of the junior senator from Kentucky, is critically ill in this city. Senator Blackburn arrived from Washington Wednesday and stopped off at his home at Versailles. Wednesday afternoon his son was taken much worse and at one time was thought to be dying, but Wednesday night he rallied to some extent.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 7.—Joe C. S. Blackburn, son of the senator, was no better Thursday night and the physicians attending him say that while he may live a day or so, there is no hope for his recovery.

The Shortage Made Good.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 7.—The bond company which was surety for the late Stuart R. Young, formerly city treasurer of Louisville, who committed suicide last November after a shortage in his accounts with the city had been discovered, Thursday afternoon sent to Mayor Grafiner a check for $42,401, covering the entire amount of the shortage, with the exception of $332, which was paid by Col. Bennett H. Young, father of the dead official.

Sold Trotting Filly For $2,000.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 7.—C. W. Williams, the noted trotting horse man, has sold to Secretary Ballinger, of the Galesburg (Ill.) trotting track, a yearling filly by Allerton, 2:00¼, dam Palo Alto Belle, by Electioneer. Price $2,000.

Jeff Evans Pardoned.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 7.—Gov. Beckham pardoned Jeff Evans, of Ballard county. Evans was sentenced to serve two years for killing John Sullivan, who betrayed Evans' daughter and refused to marry her.

PRINCE HENRY will not be in Louisville long enough to sample one of Kentucky's principal productions.

THE legislature is now at the the halfway place, and very little has been done, but it may make up for lost time, yet.

LEXINGTON is going to wine and dine the General Assembly, but the affair is to have no bearing on the State Capitol question. Of course not.

NOT in ten years have mumps been so prevalent in Louisville as they are now. The disease has attacked adults as indiscriminately as it has younger people.

NOTHING has been heard from Col. Bradley since all the post-office patronage in Kentucky was placed at the disposal of Mr. Yerkes. Has Bradley left the State?

IT is not improbable that the refusal of the Ohio legislature to favor election of U. S. Senators by popular vote was inspired by the present U. S. Senators from that State.

THE Legislature pretended to be rearranging the senatorial districts with a population of 55,000, as a basis, but the work shows plainly that they had no basis, whatever.

THE Legislature appears to be getting down to work. Up to within the last week, the law makers had been adjourning two or three days at a time upon any old flimsey excuse.

IT seems that Florence is having a difficult job in the work of inaugurating a new administration. Judge Cason will see that they proceed regularly, if left to him, in instituting the board of officias.

AFTER you read the account of the electric railroad meeting at Carrollton, last week, you can almost imagine that you hear the gong on the electric car as it comes tearing through Boone county enroute to Cincinnati.

ADMIRAL SCHLEY has the Kentucky Legislature on his side, and the public is apparently in line with the Legislature in its indorsement of his Santiago record. What more ought the Admiral want in the way of an indorsement?

THE State Railroad Commission has decided that the Louisville and Nashville Railraad Company has violated both the Constitution and the interstate commerce law in refusing to switch cars of stock to the Central Stock Yards in Louisville.

MANY of the Congressman are beginning to wonder when they will get home. There are fences to be repaired in nearly every congressional district, and the Representatives are anxious to get to work at once. Consequently, a man who is known to be a prophet in the matter of adjournment is listened to with great respect.

THE tobacco raisers of this county are not going to allow the growers in other counties to organize for battle against the trust and they stand out? If there is any good to be accomplished by the organization the Boone county growers ought to be willing to bear their part of the expense, and go into the organization at its inception.

THIS county is getting a pretty good hold on the Kenton county offices. Her sons hold offices over there as follows: Samuel Adams is a member of the legislature; J. S. Anderson and E. H. Baker are justices of the peace; W. A. Crigler is a county commissioner, and Dr. Frank Crigler is county and city physician. It takes considerable assistance from Boone to keep Kenton county affairs in a proper shape.

THE German Foreign Office's practical indorsement of a statement that England, before the outbreak of the Spanish War, initiated a movement to have the Powers oppose the United States' intervention in Cuba as being "unjustifiable," has provoked a denial from high British sources. For the first time a portion of the correspondence between Spain and her Ministers in European [illegible] is made public.

RECENTLY the Anderson County News stated that Lawrenceburg had a citizen who had taken 255,550 drinks of "Old Anderson" in the last thirty-five years, and so many took exceptions to the statement as a personal reference, that the editor has publicly apologized for making an objectional allusion to so many of his neighbors.

THERE is no trouble with either the new or the old system of voting in this State. The trouble lies in the political dishonesty of many of the men who are appointed to conduct elections. When the State is able to have nothing but honest men to receive, count and certify the votes as cast, there will no longer be trouble with any old system, as no law can head off all the rascals.

IN order to meet a growing demand of business houses throughout the country to provide better postal facilities for the payment of minor obligations Senator Mason, of Illinois, has introduced a bill which has for its object the arrangement for and transmission through the mails of stamp certificates to be used in lieu of postage stamps now commonly employed in the payment of mail accounts—the certificates to represent fractional parts of a dollar.

THE bill to submit the capitol removal question to a vote of the people has been reported favorably in the House. It is proposed to move the capital to Lexington. The best thing to do with the removal proposition is to reject it emphatically. Lexington is easier of access, but all who have business at the State capital will continue to find their way thither easily. Not very long in the past it would have been better for Kentucky had her capital not been as easy of access at it is.

REPRESENTATIVE NEWLANDS, of Nevada, of the Ways and Means Committe, who was the author of the resolution annexing Hawaii, has introduced a joint resolution inviting the republic of Cuba to become a part of the United States, first as a Territory and then as a State of the Union, to be called the State of Cuba; also authorizing a 25 per cent reduction of duty on the present crop of Cuban sugar, in consideration of Cuba's granting preferential rates to the United States. The resolutions confine the 25 per cent reduction of duties to the period prior to January 1, 1903.

THE consumers of tobacco about here, so far as interviewed on the subject, say they have never experienced any inconvenience from the paris green growers have used on tobacco. The consumers constitute the class that would be injured by the use of paris green, if anyone, and when they do not object to it, why interfere with the growers in their effort to lessen the labor necessary to produce tobacco, as the price they have received for the weed the past few years, certainly justifies any harmless method they may adopt to reduce to the minimum this labor.

THE Third Assistant Postmaster General Madden gave a hearing to the representative of an Ohio publication whose application for second-class postage rates had been rejected on the ground that through an offer each month of $50 in cash prizes to the subscribers contributing the best articles for publication—the prizes awarded by vote of the subscribers—the paper was in effect circulated at a nominal price. In other words, it was assumed that the prices offered, and not the merits of the paper, would induce the subscriptions. The department has agreed to the entry of the paper on condition that the feature of awarding the prizes by vote of the subscribers be eliminated.

IT looks very much like the legislature will establish a Confederate Home for the maintenance of infirm and dependent Confederate soldiers. The proposition is for the Confederate soldiers who are in good financial condition to raise the funds necessary to buy the required buildings, and out of the State funds $125 is to be allowed, annually, for each beneficiary. The Board of Directors is to be composed of sixteen Confederate soldiers, and are to serve without compensation. The property when purchased is to be deeded to the State. The ranks of these old soldiers are thinning rapidly, and in a few years not many will be left in the Home established through the generosity of the State.

AN enthusiastic meeting was held in Carrollton last Wednesday, to discuss a proposed electric line from Carrollton to Cincinnati) Col. A. S. Berry, of Newport, was present, and made a statement of the possibility of building the road. Engineer E. F. Layman, of Cincinnati, showed the possible cost of an electric road for carrying passengers and freight. An organization was perfected. The road is to run through Carroll, Gallatin, Boone and Kenton counties. Liberal subscriptions were made. M. I. Barker is chairman of the organization. Meetings will be held at once in all the counties through which the proposed road is to pass. The last issue of the Carrollton News, gives this account of the meeting:

"Col. Berry, the tall and stately ex-Congressman from the Sixth came to Carrollton yesterday, and as usual, brought good news and glad tidings. The Colonel had with him Mr. E. C. Layman, a civil engineer, and there was held by far the best and most representative raliroad meeting Carrollton has ever had.

"Col. Berry and Mr. Layman outlined a proposition that was instantly championed by all present. What the Colonel proposes is about as follows: To build an electric road from Milton or Carrollton straight through to Cincinnati, going by way of Ghent, Warsaw, Big Bone, Florence or Burlington, and Ludlow. He stated that he thought the route feasible and it would go through a splendid country. While he wouldn't guarantee that the capitalists would take hold of it, he said enough to convince those present that the money would not be hard to secure.

"Mr. Layman made a talk and explained the preliminary work about the survey, etc., and on being asked the cost of the survey he gave the audience his figures.

In an instant H. Schuerman moved that the amount be raised and started it with a subscription of $100. In a few minutes about $1,200 was raised. The following committee was appointed to look after the matter: M. I. Barker, O. M. Wood, J. A. Donaldson, H. Schuerman and J. E. Grobmyer.

"O. M. Wood and J. A. Donaldson were appointed a committee to solicit other subscriptions. It is proposed to organize in Gallatin and Boone counties and push the work as fast as possible.

It was one of the best meetings—we ought to say by far the best—that we have ever had, and the more one thinks of the project the better it looks and the more feasible it seems.

"Now, it behooves every man along the route, and in this whole section for that matter, to put his shoulder to the wheel and help it along. No better opportunity will ever be afforded and it is almost an absolute necessity if this part of the country don't wish to be left in the lurch and way in the rear of the procession.

"The meeting was gotten up on an hour's notice, and Mr. Barker was greatly pleased at the enthusiastic crowd that gathered in his office. The gentlemen who attended this meeting are sanguine that the road will be constructed, as it has a terminus in a business center in a thickly-populated city.

"Further, other lines from the interior will tap this road. For instance, it will be but a few years until the immense coal deposits of Eastern Kentucky via the Kentucky to the Ohio, and Corrollton, situated at the confluence of these two rivers, will be in a position to furnish cheaper coal than can possibly be floated down the Ohio, thus making Carrollton a distributing point for Eastern Kentucky coal, then lines will be built from Henry and Owen, and especially the one, via. Owenton that taps the Cincinnati Southern at Georgetown."

A New York State Senator has drawn a bill providing for an exposition to be held near Grant's tomb in 1909 to celebrate the discovery of the Hudson river in 1609. If such an exposition is to be held New York City cannot be counted on to put it through. That town will never embark in the exposition business until expositions become paying investments. Only the almighty dollar goes in New York.—C.-J.

ACCORDING to the Express Gazette there were sixteen train robberies last year and twenty-nine in 1900. In the past twelve years 306 trains have been "held up" by robbers and ninety-five persons killed and 105 injured by being shot. In the past two years five train robbers were killed and two wounded, and two passengers and trainmen killed and ten wounded.

SOME if not all the leading Democrats in Grant county are averse to having that county transferred from the Sixth to the Ninth Congressional District, and a strong fight will be made to have it continued in this district. Grant has a Democratic majority of five hundred and more and would make the Ninth District reliably Democratic, but she does not want the change for all that. The Sixth is doing nothing to induce the change, and would be sorry to haveto part company with Grant.

SOME of the enthusiastic friends of The Commoner exagerate the income from the paper while unfriendly critics belittle the paper's success. The fact is that the receipts have exceeded the expenditures sufficiently to insure the success of the enterprise, but not sufficiently to relieve the editor of the necessity of lecturing occasionally. The result is entirely satisfactory, for the lectures enable the editor to come into contact with the people throughout the country and thus better equip himself for editorial work.—The Commoner.

THE city of New York through its charities department, engages quite extensively in agriculture. During the summer of 1901 the official harvest was sixty bushels of unions, forty-one bushels of rhubarb, ninety-six bushels of beans, twenty-five bushels of parsley, forty-one bushels of carrots, two bushels of radishes, 4,743 heads of cabbage, 2,367 heads of lettuce, seventeen bushels of spinach, thirty-five bushels of peas, thirty-five bushels of beets, three bushels of tomatoes, seventeen bushels of leaks, 4,621 ears of corn, 343 squashes and 957 cucumbers.

A BILL has been introduced in the legislature which provides for the annual payment out of the State treasury of the sum of $35,000 to Louisville for premiums at her annual livestock exhibition. The argument infavor of the bill is that the premiums awarded out of this fund will encourage the improvement of the livestock in the State. May be so. But will not the very best grades of stock compete for these premiums and the men who now have national reputations as breeders will pocket the entire $15,000. If the State has so large an amount which it desires to invest in premiums for the encouragement of breeders of livestock, let it be put where it will do most good. Distribute the amount through the State, giving it to local agricultural associations, thus enabling them to increase their premiums, and increase a competition that will ultimately result in the end sought. Place the premiums at points where the masses will receive the benefit of them. Five thousand dollars judicously distributed among the county fairs in the State will bring better results than $30,000 dumped in Louisville for the same purpose. The argument that other States make like donations should not obtain. Other States do a great many things that are not done in Kentucky.

GROUNDHOG winter has no breaks in it.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) Friday is St. Valentine's day.

Claud Carpenter is laid up with a disabled ankle.

Stock in sleighs has been away above par this month.

Heavy ice has been running in the river for about a week.

A good sugar and molasses season is predicted for this spring.

There are rumors of other real estate deals here and hereabouts.

Judge Lassing had his ice-house filled with ten inch ice, Monday.

James Clore is carrying the mail in a Boone County automobile—a sled.

Don't grumble about the cold weather—it will be warm enough before the first day of next September.

Ex-Sheriff Elmer Beall has been rejoicing since last Wednesday morning over the advent of a fine boy at his house.

The young man without a sleigh and string of bells has occupied a back seat a good portion of the time so far this month.

There has been a great deal of fine weather for feeding stock this winter. No food of any consequence has been wasted.

The yellow flag made its appearance in Erlanger, last Thursday, and the smallpox was announced at the home of John Bentler.

Some of the fruit wise say that the snow and sleet have saved the fruit crop for this year. More can be told about that later on.

It has been many years since there was such a protracted period of sleighing as the young people have enjoyed in this good year of our lord.

Geo. C. Rue, of Hathaway, was in yesterday and ordered bills printed for his sale on the 26th inst. See advertisement in another column.

This is the day that the claimants who are not inside the sheep fund money will be given a chance to mend their holts. The fund will pay only a small per cent. this year.

City papers now refer to small-pox as "a contagious disease." Why not call the disease by its name? There would be no danger of causing people to quit visiting the city.

The two fogs in August—two snows the following winter weather theory has been given an awful jolt this winter. There are now about five snows on the ground, and still they come.

Beginning on February 1, 1902, the rates of fare on my 'bus will be 50 cents one way, or 75 cents round trip.

As Cowpeas are becoming one of the crops in this county, beginning with next week the RECORDER will begin furnishing its readers some valuable information in regard to their cultivation, and value as fertilizers.

Judge Lassing adjourned court at Williamstown, Saturday, until Tuesday morning, in order to give the meeting called for Monday to protest against Grant being transferred to the Ninth Congressional District, a full swing.

None of the local dealers in livestock have contracted for any of the coming crop of lambs. The experience with country dealers in the past few years has been such as to make them touch that branch of their business very lightly.

Mr. A. P. Collins, of Richwood, per his son, writes the Recorder under date of the 6th, inst., as follows: "The Walton correspondent reports smallpox at the home of Andy Collins, in the Richwood neighborhood. This is not true."

A big dance out at Albert Conner's was attended by a jolly crowd of Burlingtonites. They went out in a big sled, and returned home about the peep of day. Everybody for miles around was in attendance, and a delightful time was had by all.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this Remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by all Druggists.

It was tried very hard to get up a smallpox scare here in Burlington, last Sunday. All sorts of statements purporting to have been made in regard thereto, by the doctors, were being circulated, when, in fact they had made no such statements. The negro woman who was said to have a sure case of smallpox on Sunday, contradicted the report emphatically, Monday morning, by beginning a big day's washing.

Mr. Thomas, who is working up the Rural Mail Delivery Route, mention of which has heretofore been made, is sanguine that he will obtain enough petitioners to secure the service. Persons who live quite a distance from the route recognise the great convenience of a daily mail, and are signing the petition. He says he has no trouble in convincing persons of the great benefit to be derived from a free delivery of the mail daily.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve

Has world-wide fame for marvellous cures. Cure guaranteed. Only 25c at W. F. Mekim's, Burlington; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

Personal Mentions.

Robert Clore, of Rabbit Hash, was in town yesterday.

Leonard Kite and wife, of Waterloo, were guests at R. S. Cowen's, Sunday.

M. L. Souther, secretary of the local insurance company, was in town, Monday.

A Good many people passed through town yesterday on their way to Elbert Riley's sale.

Supt. Snyder, of Bellevue, was in town, Saturday, attending to the duties of his office.

J. C. Byland, that clever life insurance man who hails from Walton, was in town Friday.

W. J. Alloway, of Petersburg, came up yesterday and spent most of the day in the hub.

S. H. Stephens was in town yesterday, the first time since he returned to his native heath.

James Thompson, the hustling Petersburg trader, was among the visitors in town Friday.

Ezekiel Rice, of the Bellevue neighborhood, was transacting business in Burlington, Monday.

Joseph Birkle stopped in Friday morning on his way to the city. His boys are wrestling with the mumps, and he has to look after the huckster business alone.

Samuel Sederburg, of Taylersport, was among the callers at this office, Monday. He was in excellent spirits, and seemed not disposed to worry if this spell of weather lasts all summer.

Dr. Clore, of Bullittsville, was in town Monday, and reported business in his line as brisk. He had six cases of measles in one room at Elbert House's, and they are recovering, only one case being followed by pneumonia.

Dr. Williamson and Capt Edward Maurer, of Bellevue, were in town Thursday in their sleigh. Ed said that sleigh riding beats steamboating. But that depends on the weather. Along in July, doubtless, he would prefer steamboating.

Quite a number of young people, chaperoned by Mrs. J. M. Lassing, attended the dance at Hubert Brady's, down on Middle creek, last Wednesday night. They made the trip in a large sled, and had an immense amount of fun going and coming, and while at the dance.

J. Sleet Hume, from down on raging Mudlick, was in town last Thursday, and was reinstalled as deputy county clerk. Sleet says he wants to hold that office until every hair on top of his head turns gray. He was in his usually happy mood, and reported everything right side up with care in his neighborhood.

Tony Bentler, James Duncan and Charles Westbay spent last Thursday with Kirb Tanner. Sevenup was the game at which they amused themselves all day, Duncan and Westbay being largely the winners. At dinner the boys demonstrated to Mrs. Tanner that the excellent spread she prepared for them in the best of culinary art, was appreciated greatly, and they do say Charley consumed six large plates of soup.

The tobacco growers in the counties below this are certainly determined in their efforts to organize against the trusts, as is plainly shown by the very successful meetings held in Henry, Carroll and Gallatin counties in the last two weeks. Several plans have been suggested, but at a general convention a plan will be adopted. The growers in the counties mentioned deserve the co-operation of the growers in this county, and if they propose to lend a helping hand it is time they were up and doing.

I have appointed the following persons to receive and receipt for assessments made by the Boone County Farmers' Mutual Fire Insurance Co.: Petersburg, Solon Early; Big Bone, Hayes Miller; Verona, J. N. Dickerson; Walton; T. F. Curley; Union, Rachal & Norman; Burlington, Miss Olga Kirkpatrick; Grant P. O., Michael Corbin; Waterloo, J. W. Kite; Hamilton, Thomas Huff; Beaverlick, John S. Taylor, T. J. Hughes; Richwood, Ben Bedinger; Gunpowder, W. H. Surface; Crescent, Perry Dixon; Hamburg, Jerry Quigley; Constance, Robert Hood; Hebron, Chester Davis; Bullittsville, Wm. Watts; Idlewild, W. D. Cropper.
MALCHUS SOUTHER, Secretary.

The Rev. Irl R. Hick's Almanac.

The splendid book of 200 pages is not only a work of art of the highest order, but it is the most complete and valuable book on Astronomy and Meteorology for 1902 to be found in the world. No wonder the first edition of one hundred thousand was about exhausted by the end of January. The bible excepted, no other book can be found in so many American homes. The millions have proven its value and will not be without it. The publishers will supply this book for a month or two for the regular price, with the increased postage added. Send 30 cents to Word and Works Publishing Company, 2201 Locust Street, St. Louis, Mo., and this splendid book will be mailed to you prepaid. Do not pass the year without it in your office or home.

Last Thursday's Enquirer contained the following complimentary notice of Dr. Frank Crigler, son of W. A. Crigler, and a brother of Mrs. George H. Gordon, of this neighborhood: "From a farmer boy to the position of County Physician of Kenton county and the city of Ludlow, is the stride made by Dr. Frank D. Crigler, and his success is due to strict application to business and his kind and affable treatment to all. Dr. Crigler was born at Hebron, Boone county, 39 years ago. He received his early education in the country school near Hebron, and attended this Wittenburg college, at Springfield, Ohio, and while there, by performing various chores, succeeded in raising funds to attend the Medical College in Cincinnati. Dr. Crigler was a member of the Board of Health of Cincinnati for three years, after which he came to Ludlow and built up a lucrative practice. He has been city and county, physician for the last eight years. He is a member of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Ludlow, and has financial interests in several large enterprises in the West."

By diligence and perseverance Dr. Jefferson D. Snyder, of Ludlow, arose from an obscure farmer lad to one of Ludlow's leading business men. Dr. Snyder was born at Hebron, Ky., 40 years ago, and began life as a conductor on the old Vine-street mule car line in Cincinnati. Realizing that the chances for achieving a position of prominence in the street car business were small he entered the drugstore of Dr. Samuel Carpenter. He received his diploma as a pharmacist from the State Board of Pharmacy in 1886, and began business in the city of West Covington, but having a chance to engage his trade Dr. Snyder entered into partnership with M. Clore, and opened a well-equipped drugstore in Odd Fellows' Block in Ludlow. Dr. Snyder is a Director of the First National Bank of Ludlow, and has financial interests in other local enterprises.—Monday's Enquirer.

Rev. I. B. Grandy, a former resident of Rising Sun, was stricken with paralysis at his home in Indianapolis last week, his right side being paralyzed. Word received here Wednesday stated that he was improving.—Mr. Omar D. Perkins died at the National Military Home, Leavenworth, Kansas, Friday, Jan. 31, of pneumonia after a week's illness. He was a brother of Mr. J. N. Perkins, of this city, and was born in Boone county, Ky., 57 years ago. He was a member of the 55th Ky. Vol. Infantry during the war of 1861-5. About twelve years ago he went to Kansas, where he engaged in the saddle and harness business. For the past few years he made his home at the National Military Home. Many friends in Boone and Ohio counties will regret to learn of his death.—Rising Sun Local.

In a letter from A. B. Chittenden, at one time a citizen of Normansville, this county, but now a citizen of Joy, Livingston county, this State, to the RECORDER, he writes: "I miss old Harmony lodge. The nearest lodge to me in Kentucky is 50 miles distant. We now have on the ground the largest sleet ever known in this part of the county, according to Uncle Jerry Ferrell, who is 86 years old. The ice on the ground is 4 inches thick, and thousands of dollars worth of timber is destroyed and orchards are broken all to smash, and there is scarcely a sound fruit tree standing. Many of our farmers are out of food for their stock, and none can be obtained before this sleet goes off."

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1896 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was soon cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Norwood, N. Y. For sale by all Druggists.

For rent—We will, on Feb. 15, 1902, at 2 o'clock p. m., on the premises, rent to the highest bidder House, stable and other buildings and 22 acres of land (known as the dower of Mrs. Harriet Hafer, dec'd.) on the North Bend road, ¾ of a mile north of Hebron, Ky. Part of the land is in grass and part is to be plowed, 12 or 15 acres. Fruit and plenty of water on place. Terms made known on day of renting.

TO ST. VALENTINE

VALENTINE! Saint Valentine!
A pilgrim to thy holy shrine,
Behold I come!
Footsore, and very heavy-laden
Because of love for one small maiden
My lips are dumb.

O Valentine! Saint Valentine!
Thou know'st this little maid of mine,
This dainty sweet,
So pure and fair that when she passes
Our gray old world grows green with grasses
Beneath her feet;

That every where her dear face shows
The west wind takes it for a rose
Just newly born.
O grant, sweet Saint, that to her knowing
But fragrance soft and bloom be showing,
Give me the thorn!

Oh, Phyllis fair! Oh, Phyllis young!
I would mine were a poet's tongue
That I might sue:
That I might sing in golden numbers—
To wake your heart from out its slumbers—
My love for you.

Yet—no, dear heart! The years will bring
A sweeter song than I could sing;
So slumber on.
You will awaken to discover—
When he shall come—that happy lover,
And I am gone.

HOW THE SKIP TWINS ROBBED THE MAIL

By Minnie L. Upton

THE Meigs stage was late that day. A dismal February thaw had brought the good sleighing of the preceding weeks to an untimely end, and the gray clouds seemed to be weeping over the calamity, thereby augmenting its dolorousness, as undue liquid lamentation has a way of doing. The old green and yellow stage "body" had been transferred from the runners on which it had glided so gayly over the smooth white road to the summer "running gear" with broad-tired chocolate-colored wheels that labored along with a subdued rattle and asthmatic creaks, throwing such profuse splotches and streaks of mud over the dingy panels and cracked windows that even the steady downpour was unequal to washing them.

By the way, the unusual bulginess of the old mail bag may have had something to do with a certain pleasant twinkle in the old stage driver's gray eyes, and the frequent whistled snatches of "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "Black-Eyed Susan" with which he shortened the tedious way and helped himself to ignore the small but persistent rivulet that was trickling down his back through the aperture in the rear of his tarpaulin's brim.

I cannot say that the state of the mail bag was not responsible also for the pathetically hilarious flourish with which Romulus and Remus (familiarly known as "Rom" and "Reem"), the wiry veterans who had drawn the old stage for 14 years, took the sharp ascent from the main road and drew up before the unpainted building that was village store and post office combined.

Caleb Skipp, selectman, storekeeper and postmaster, came out in the latter capacity with a friendly salute.

"Keep yer settin', Elb! I'll take out the mails. Git home an' intew dry duds quick az ye ken. Sairy'll be on pins an' needles till ye dew! Sho, now" (lifting the mail bag); "heavy, ain't it?"

"Thank'ee, Cale. Heavy? Of course! Thirteenth o' Febewary, ye know. Young folks will be young folks—human natur' about the same as 'twas 40 year ago."

"Jes' so! Dorry's been talkin' val'ntines all day."

"Guess she won't be disapp'intid, whoever else is," responded the old stage driver, with a gallant touch of his tarpaulin in the direction of Dorry Skipp, whose rosy face just then appeared in the doorway. "G'lang, Rom! Git, Reem!" and with prodigious splash and clatter the stage disappeared around Wilkins' Bend."

A goodly number of the village young folk, well protected with waterproofs, rubber coats and rubber boots, were already waiting for their mail around the rusty box stove.

Owing to the one delivery a day, Meigs valentines always arrive on the afternoon of the 13th; for it would, of course, be too much to expect that the Meigs boys and girls could wait until the last part of the day itself.

At last, amid much laughter and good-natured teasing, the merry group dispersed and no reenforcements appeared, nor would they until later in the evening; for the Meigs supper hour had come, and of course the postmaster and his family wished to spend it undisturbed, as well as other people. Mrs. Skipp was distributing the remnant of mail; and Dick and Dorry, "the Skipp twins," occupied the long wooden settee and talked alternately about skating and valentines—valentines in general and valentines in particular.

"Wall, new!" suddenly ejaculated Mr. Skipp from behind the tiers of post office boxes. "Ef here ain't a letter for old Miss Jerushy Dunlop! Why—why," fingering it gingerly, "I b'leeve it's a valentine! I am beat!"

Dorry skipped over to the little window. "Let me see it, father! Oh!" with two wrinkles coming on her smooth forehead. "It's a 'comic!' Some mean boy has sent it. Why, it isn't sealed! See! Dick, you can see the picture right through the thin old envelope! It's horrid—a hideous old woman! Aunt Jerusha Dunlop does not look like that. It's a mean shame! Look, father!"

"Some 'smart Alec' sent it, I 'spose," growled the postmaster, with as much gruffness as he possessed.

Chivalrous Dick's face had grown very red.

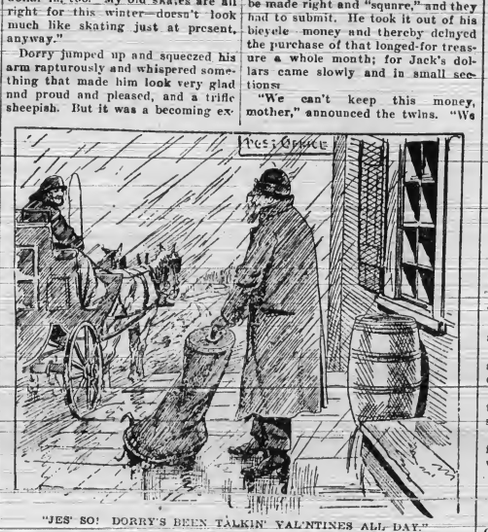
"That's Jack Stacey's writing. I know it. He's been to the city today, and mailed it from there. I wouldn't have thought it of Jack. It shan't go any further," with an impulsive movement.

Dorry caught his hand, her eyes sparkling. "Stop, Dick; you mustn't tear it! Father, mayn't we rob the mail?"

"Dorothea Skipp!"

"Oh, Father Skipp, don't look at me that way—just let me rise to explain. Poor Miss Jerushy is awfully sensitive, even if she is so queer and does keep her pet bantams in the kitchen. And she feels so friendless and forlorn, and—and I've heard mother say she was real pretty once. She feels dreadfully about her lameness and her crooked back; and, just think, they came from rescuing Jack Stacey's own aunt from a burning house! How can Jack be so contemptible? Of course there are silly verses on the old thing—"

"Stop and take breath, Dorry," advised Dick, quizzically.



"I don't need to when I'm so indignant," responded she. "Now, I have a pretty valentine I was going to send to Jack; and, father, I want you to let me take out that thing and burn it up, and put mine in instead, please!"

The postmaster meditated. "It ain't reg'lar; but—wall, ef yer ma says so, ye can du it. Ef—"

Dorry was half way up the stairs. In a few moments she came down beaming. "She says she thinks 'twould be 'perfectly proper,'" was her triumphant announcement, "and—and I'm going to put in my dollar that Uncle John gave me. I intended to get skates when you get yours, Dick, but my old ones will do very well."

"Dorry, you're a—a—I can't think of anything good enough! I'll put my dollar in, too. My old skates are all right for this winter—doesn't look much like skating just at present, anyway."

Dorry jumped up and squeezed his arm rapturously and whispered something that made him look very glad and proud and pleased, and a trifle sheepish. But it was a becoming expression, and Mr. Skipp growled to himself: "Bless their hearts!" as they clattered up the stairs.

"JES' SO! DORRY'S BEEN TALKIN' VAL'NTINES ALL DAY."

When Miss Jerusha's valentine came down again it looked very much the same outside—but inside! Dick and Dorry smiled every time they looked at each other, and had hard work to keep straight faces when it was handed over to a neighbor who passed Miss Jerushy's rickety little house on his way home.

"I shall tell that snick what we've done, so as not to have any more underhand work, and then I'll never speak to him again," announced Dick, tall with righteous indignation.

When the valentine was given into her worn old hands Miss Jerushy was too much astonished to speak. Such a thing hadn't happened to her for 40 years. She stood looking at it with an utterly bewildered expression till the bearer vanished in the darkness, while the sleet beat against her thin face and settled on her gray hair. She did not feel it.

Jack Stacey was decidedly uncomfortable. He wasn't the sort of boy who does "smart" things as a rule. Some "friend" with a defective sense of humor had slipped the thing into his hand that day; and, struck by a certain unfortunate resemblance between the caricature and Miss Jerushy, he had addressed it to her and mailed it on the spur of the moment. As soon as it was mailed he stopped to think. That was the trouble with Jack. He acted first and thought afterward, which frequently resulted in great discomfort and embarrassment to himself and his friends. About eight o'clock that evening he threw his geography aside, and, going to the kitchen, donned rubber boots and coat.

"Why, Jack, not going out to-night, I hope!" exclaimed his mother.

"Valentines in to-day's mail, mother," laughed Jack. "Can't endure the anxiety any longer. Be right back!"

"Well, do; don't get cold," responded easy-going Mrs. Stacey; and Jack said: "No, mother," and went off whistling. He stopped whistling, however, as soon as he was out of hearing.

"If I can get that before anyone else does, catch me ever doing such a mean trick again," he soliloquized, as he splashed along.

Only Dick was in the office when he arrived. He glanced at the box where Miss Jerushy's infrequent mail was always placed, through the courtesy of the owner. His heart sank. It was gone, then; and by this time the poor old woman had received the cowardly insult.

He pulled himself together and approached the little mail window and asked if there was anything for our folks." Dick passed his mail out silently. If Jack hadn't been so full of his own trouble he must have noticed Dick's dignified, distant manner. But he did not. He walked slowly toward the door and then turned sharply and came back. "Say, Dick," he began, "you never did a plaguey mean thing; and I never supposed that I would; but I have, and I'm going to make a clean breast of it." And he began, but Dick stopped him by taking two long strides and throwing an affectionate arm across his shoulders. "Good for you, Jack! Ain't I glad!" and he told what he and Dorry had done, finishing with: "So it's all right! I intended to tell you, but I expected to feel different while I was doing it. Come down, sis," to Dorry, whom he heard at the head of the stairs. "Jack's all right, and—"

"No," said Jack; "not till I've been and told her, and asked—"

"No, no, no!" interrupted Dorry, "never! That's what we've been trying to save all the time—her feelings, you know. Mother'll agree with me I'll ask her to come down."

Mother Skipp was the confidante of all the boys and girls in the village. She listened thoughtfully, with her hand on Jack's yellow hair.

"No, Jack," she said, at last; "it will be kindest not to tell her."

"Then all I can do is to pay Dorry and Dick their two dollars."

"We shan't take it," said Dorry; and, anyway, the valentine itself really is yours, for I meant it for you, till I thought you were mean."

But Jack was firm. It was the only way, he insisted, that the affair could be made right and "square," and they had to submit. He took it out of his bicycle money and thereby delayed the purchase of that longed-for treasure a whole month; for Jack's dollars came slowly and in small sections.

"We can't keep this money, mother," announced the twins. "We don't feel as though it's ours, after having the pleasure of giving it away."

"Then put it in the 'relief' barrel that the minister's wife is trying to fill," suggested Adviser in Chief Mother Skipp.

So they did; and Dorry put a little note in the envelope: "From two boys and one girl—a thank offering;" "because," she explained, "Dick and I are so thankful Jack isn't mean, and we know he is thankful, too."

Jack had a surprise next morning. When he was passing Miss Jerushy's house who should appear but Miss Jerushy herself, beckoning energetically: "Jack—Jack Stacey, come here!"

Jack turned and walked up the path, politely but reluctantly.

"I want a good look at you—Marcely Wetherell's grandson, out and out—harnsome and open-handed. I could tell ye about what I sh'll git with them two dollars; but I never c'n begin ter tell ye how the bein' remembered warmed my old heart. It's made me ten years younger. Oh, ye needn't look ser suprised an' shreaked. I knew yer handwrite, ye see—saw it in yer copy book yer ma showed me;" and the tremulous old creature gave his head an awkward pat and hobbled into the house.

"I tell you, I felt mean enough," said Jack, in reporting to Mother Skipp. "I didn't deserve it; and I don't deserve such friends as you and Dorry and Dick—but I will." And there was a resolute look in his clear eyes that gave Mother Skipp great hopes for his future.

Out in the granary Dick and Dorry were "talking it over." Dick was saying: "We might have known Jack Stacey wouldn't do a mean thing when he just stopped to think."

"When we were so sure he would, I guess we didn't stop to think," gently responded Dorry.—N. Y. Independent.

USE OF PRIVATE CARS.

A car built for the business man is practically a traveling office. Sleeping quarters are provided for only the man himself, his secretary, stenographer and servants.

More and more private cars are being turned out every year, and where one person had a private car ten years ago there are now ten or twenty who own them or lease them for long terms.

The head of a corporation or other big concern who does much traveling finds a private car a great convenience. He makes the car his office, and where he formerly lost a business day or two in traveling he now loses little time.

The presidents of the railroad companies were the first to have private cars. Then the heads of large concerns saw their possibilities and soon found that they could hardly get along without them. Theatrical stars saw the advertising to be gained by having private cars, and lastly the rich man who wanted comfort and privacy for himself or his family began to use the private cars.

A special car intended more as a vehicle for pleasure than business contains staterooms, a kitchen, and a dining-room. The bedsteads are brass, there is an extension dining-table, and there are armchairs, desk, lounges, cabinets, wardrobes, and all the conveniences and luxuries that can be put in such a vehicle. Such a car may cost from $25,000 to $50,000, and sometimes even more.

PAPER AND ITS ODD USES.

To remove paper pasted on anything, the easiest and best way is to cover it with a damp cloth and wait until the paper is thoroughly moistened. It then comes off readily.

Suppose you had an article which was printed on both sides, and you desired to paste it in your scrapbook. You would paste it between two sheets of stout paper, and, when nearly dry, draw these apart. You will have half of the printed sheet on each, and, by the use of moisture, you can readily detach them.

If you want to pack bottles, china and other breakables, you can make a splendid packing material by taking your paper and covering it with the following mixture: Twenty parts of glue, three parts of treacle and one part of gelatin. Then dust it with finely-powdered cork and you have a packing substance which will prevent all breakages.

If you happen to be short of crockery ware, you can make light, unbreakable cups, bowls and saucers at practically no cost. All you have to do, according to London Answers, is to cut a block of wood to the shape of the vessel. Then take your sheets of paper, wet them well and paste them and mold them around the block. It is necessary first to cover the block with French chalk, so that the vessel can be easily slipped off when dry.

BITS OF ALLEGED WIT.

Everything goes round in a sewing circle.

An infant prodigy at four may be a fool at 40.

Many a well-bred girl discovers that her first cake is dough.

Wall street continues to be the favorite winter watering place.

Don't count your chickens until they are big enough to bluff a cat.

The trouble with the average woman's will is that it has too many codicils.

Adversity may have its uses, but it's the abuse thereof that makes a man sore.

The man who doesn't know right from wrong almost invariably does wrong.

Miss Marion Cunningham, the Popular Young Treasurer of the Young Woman's Club of Emporia, Kans., has This to Say of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Your Vegetable Compound cured me of womb trouble from which I had been a great sufferer for nearly three years. During that time I was very irregular and would often have intense pain in the small of my back, and blinding headaches and severe cramps. For three months I used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and aches and pains are as a past memory, while health and happiness is my daily experience now. You certainly have one grateful friend in Emporia, and I have praised your Vegetable Compound to a large number of my friends. You have my permission to publish my testimonial in connection with my picture. Yours sincerely, MISS MARION CUNNINGHAM, Emporia, Kans."

LIGHT IN THE NIGHT

Words of Comfort for the Gloomy and Suffering.

Text from Which Dr. Talmage Has Drawn His Sermon—How the Evening of the Christian's Life Will Be Brightened.

[Copyright, 1903, by Louis Klopsch. N. Y.]

In this subject Dr. Talmage puts a show of gladness and triumph upon passages of life that are usually thought to be somewhat gloomy; text, Zechariah 14:7: "At evening time it shall be light."

While "night" in all languages is the symbol for gloom and suffering, it is often really cheerful, bright and impressive. I speak not of such nights as come down with no star pouring light from above or silvered wave tossing up light from beneath—murky, hurtling, portentous, but such as you often see when the pomp and magnificence of Heaven turn out on night parade, and it seems as though the song which the morning stars began so long ago were chiming yet among the constellations and the sons of God were shouting for joy. Such nights the sailor blesses from the forecastle, and the trapper on vast prairie, and the belated traveler by the roadside, and the soldier from the tent, earthly hosts gazing upon Heavenly and shepherds guarding their flocks afield, while angel hands above them set the silver bells a-ringing: "Glory to God in the highest and on earth peace; good will toward men."

What a solemn and glorious thing is night in the wilderness! Night among the mountains! Night on the ocean! Fragrant night among tropical groves! Flashing night amid arctic severities! Calm night on Roman campagnal Awful night among the cordilleras! Glorious night mid sea after a tempest! Thank God for the night! The moon and the stars which rule it are lighthouses on the coast toward which I hope we are all sailing, and blind mariners are we if, with so many beaming, burning, flaming glories to guide us, we cannot find our way into the harbor.

My text may well suggest that, as the natural evening is often luminous, so it shall be light in the evening of our sorrows, of old age, of the world's history, of the Christian life. "At eventime it shall be light."

The prophecy will be fulfilled in the evening of Christian sorrow. For a long time it is broad daylight. The sun rides high. Innumerable activities go ahead with a thousand arms, and the pickax struck a mine, and the battery made a discovery, and the investment yielded 20 per cent., and the book came to its twentieth edition, and the farm quadrupled in value, and the sudden fortune hoisted to high position, and the children were praised, and friends without number swarmed into the family hive, and prosperity sang in the music and stepped in the dance and glowed in the wine and ate at the banquet, and all the gods of music and ease and gratification gathered around this Jupiter holding in his hands so many thunderbolts of power. But every sun must set, and the brightest day must have its twilight. Suddenly the sky was overcast. The fountain dried up. The song hushed. The wolf broke into the family fold and carried off the best lamb. A deep howl of woe came crashing through the joyous symphonies. At one rough twang of the hand of disaster the harpstrings all broke. Down went the strong business firm! Away went long established credit! Up flew a flock of calumnies! The new book would not sell! A patent could not be secured for the invention! Stocks sank like lead! The insurance company exploded! "How much," says the sheriff, "will you bid for this piano? How much for this library? How much for this family picture? How much? Will you let it go at less than half price? Going—going—gone!"

Will the grace of God hold one up in such circumstances? What has become of the great multitude of God's children who have been pounded of the flail and crushed under the wheel and trampled under hoof? Did they lie down in the dust, weeping, wailing and gnashing their teeth? Did they when they were afflicted like Job curse God and want to die? When the rod of fatherly chastisement struck them, did they strike back? Because they found one bitter cup on the table of God's supply, did they upset the whole table? Did they kneel down at their empty money vault and say: "All my treasures are gone?" Did they stand by the grave of their dead, saying: "There never will be a resurrection?"

Did they bemoan their thwarted plans and say: "The stocks are down; Would God I were dead?" Did the night of their disaster come upon them moonless, starless, dank and howling, smothering and choking their life out? No, no! At eventide it was light. The swift promises overtook them. The eternal constellations, from their circuit about God's throne, poured down an infinite luster. Under their shining the billows of trouble took on crests and plumes of gold and jasper and amethyst and flames. All the trees of life rustled in the midsummer of God's love. The night blooming assurances of Christ's sympathy filled all the atmosphere with Heaven. The soul at every step seemed to start up from its feet bright winged joys, warbling Heavenward. "It is good that I have been afflicted?" cries David. "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away!" exclaims Job. "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing," says St. Paul. "And God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes!" exclaims John in apocalyptic vision. At eventime it was light. Light from the cross! Light from promises! Light from the throne! Streaming, joyous, outgushing, everlasting light!

Again the text shall find fulfillment in the time of old age. It is a grand thing to be young, to have the sight clear and the hearing acute and the step elastic and all our pulses marching on to the drumming of a stout heart. Midlife and old age will be denied many of us, but youth—we all know what that is. Those wrinkles were not always on your brow; that snow was not always on your head; that brawny muscle did not always bunch your arm; you have not always worn spectacles. Grave and dignified as you now are, you once went coasting down to the hillside or threw off your hat for the race or sent the ball flying sky high. But youth will not always last. It stays only long enough to give us exuberant spirits and broad shoulders for burden carrying and an arm with which to battle our way through difficulties. Life's path, if you follow it long enough, will come under frowning crag and cross trembling causeway. Bent old age, if you let it come naturally! You cannot hide it. You may try to cover the wrinkles, but you cannot cover the wrinkles. If the time has come for you to be old, be not ashamed to be old. The grandest things in all the universe are old—old mountains, old rivers, old seas, old stars and an old eternity. Then do not be ashamed to be old unless you are older than the mountains and older than the stars.

How men and women will lie! They say they are 40, but they are 60. They say they are 20, but they are 30. They say they are 60, but they are 80. Glorious old age if found in the way of righteousness. How beautiful the old age of Jacob, leaning on the top of his staff; of John Quincy Adams, falling with the harness on; of Washington Irving, sitting, pen in hand, amid the scenes himself had made classical; of John Angell James, to the last proclaiming the Gospel to the masses of Birmingham; of Theodore Frelinghuysen, down to feebleness and emaciation devoting his illustrious faculties to the kingdom of God. At eventide it was light!

See that you do honor to the aged. A philosopher stood at the corner of the street day after day, saying to the passerby: "You will be an old man; you will be an old man. You will be an old woman; you will be an old woman." People thought that he was crazy. I do not think that he was. Smooth the way for that mother's feet; they have not many more steps to take. Steady those tottering limbs; they will soon be at rest. Plow not up that face with any more wrinkles; trouble and care have marked it full enough. Thrust no thorn into that old heart; it will soon cease to beat. "The eye that mocketh its father and refuseth to obey its mother the ravens of the valley shall pick it out, and the young eagles shall eat it." The bright morning and hot noonday of life have passed with many. It is four o'clock, five o'clock, six o'clock! The shadows fall longer and thicker and faster. Seven o'clock, eight o'clock! The sun has dipped below the horizon; the warmth has gone out of the air. Nine o'clock, ten o'clock! The heavy dews are falling; the activities of life's day are all hushed; it is time to go to bed. Eleven o'clock, twelve o'clock! The patriarch sleeps the blessed sleep, the cool sleep, the long sleep. Heaven's messengers of light have kindled bonfires of victory all over the heavens. At eventide it is light. Light.

I want to see John Howard when the last prisoner is reformed; I want to see Florence Nightingale when the last saber wound has stopped hurting; I want to see William Penn when the last Indian has been civilized; I want to see John Huss when the last flame of persecution has been extinguished; I want to see John Bunyan after the last pilgrim has come to the gate of the celestial city—above all, I want to see Jesus after the last saint has his throne and has begun to sing his triumph.

You have watched the calmness and the glory of the evening hour. The laborers have come from the field; the heavens are glowing with an indescribable effulgence, as though the sun in departing had forgotten to shut the gate after it. All the beauty of cloud and leaf swims in the lake. For a star in the sky, a star in the water; heaven above and heaven beneath. Not a leaf rustling or a bee humming or a grasshopper chirping. Silence in the meadow, silence among the hills. Thus bright and beautiful shall be the evening of the world. The beats of earthly conflict are cool; the glory of heaven fills all the scene with love, joy and peace. At eventime it is light—light!

Finally, my text shall find fulfillment at the end of the Christian's life. You know how short a winter's day is and how little work you can do. Now, my friends, life is a short winter's day. The sun rises at eight and sets at four. The birth angel and the death angel fly only a little way apart. Baptism and burial are near together. With one hand the mother rocks the cradle and with the other she touches a grave.

I went into the house of one of my parishioners on Thanksgiving day. The little child of the household was bright and glad, and with it I bounded up and down the hall. Christmas day came, and the light of that household had perished. We stood, with black book, reading over the grave, "Ashes to ashes, dust to dust."

But I hurl away this darkness. I cannot have you weep. Thanks be unto God, who giveth us the victory, at eventime it shall be light! I have seen many Christians die. I never saw any of them die in darkness. What if the billows of death do rise above our girdle, who does not love to bathe? What though other lights do go out in the blast, what do we want of them when all the gates of glory swing open before us and from a myriad voices, a myriad harps, a myriad thrones, a myriad palaces there dashes upon us "Hosanna! Hosanna!" "Throw back the shutters and let the sun in," said dying Seaville McCullum, one of my Sabbath school boys. "Throw back the shutters and let the sun in." You can see Paul putting on robes and wings of ascension as he exclaims: "I have fought the good fight! I have finished my course! I have kept the faith!"

Hugh McKail went to one side of the scaffold of martyrdom and cried: "Farewell sun, moon and stars! Farewell all earthly delights!" then went to the other side of the scaffold and cried: "Welcome, God and Father! Welcome, sweet Jesus Christ, the Mediator of the covenant! Welcome, death! Welcome, glory!" A minister of Christ in Philadelphia, dying, said in his last moments: "I move into the light!" They did not go down doubting and fearing and shivering, but their battlecry rang through all the caverns of the sepulcher and was echoed back from all the thrones of heaven: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?"

I saw a beautiful being wandering up and down the earth. She touched the aged, and they became young; she touched the poor, and they became rich. I said: "Who is this beautiful being wandering up and down the earth?" They told me that her name was Death. What a strange thrill of joy when the palsied Christian begins to use his arm again, when the blind Christian begins to see again, when the deaf Christian begins to hear again, when the poor pilgrim puts his feet on such pavement and joins in such company and has a free seat in such a great temple! Hungry men no more to hunger, thirsty men no more to thirst, weeping men no more to weep, dying men no more to die! Gather up all sweet words, all jubilant expressions, all rapturous exclamations; bring them to me, and I will pour upon them this stupendous theme of the soul's disenthrallment! Oh, the joy of the spirit as it shall mount up toward the throne of God, shouting: "Free! Free!" Your eye has gazed upon the garniture of earth and heaven, but eye hath not seen it; your ear has caught harmonies uncounted and indescribable—caught them from harp's trill and bird's carol and waterfall's dash and ocean's doxology—but ear hath not heard it. How did those blessed ones get up into the light? What hammer knocked off their chains? Who gave them wings? Ah, eternity is not long enough to tell it, seraphim have not capacity enough to realize it—the marvels of redeeming love! Let the palms wave; let the crowns glitter; let the anthems ascend; let the trees of Lebanon clap their hands—they cannot tell the half of it. Archangel before the throne, thou failest! Sing on, praise on, ye hosts of the glorified, and if with your scepters you cannot reach it and with your songs you cannot express it then let all the myriads of the saved unite in the exclamation: "Jesus! Jesus! Jesus!"

There will be a password at the gate of heaven. A great multitude come up and knock at the gate. The gatekeeper says, "The password." They say: "We have no password. We were great on earth, and now we come up to be great in heaven." A voice from within answers, "I never knew you." Another group come up to the gate of heaven and knock. The gatekeeper says, "The password." They say: "We have no password. We did a great many noble things on earth. We endowed colleges and took care of the poor." The voice from within says, "I never knew you." Another group come up to the gate of heaven and knock. The gatekeeper says, "The password." They answer: "We were wanderers from God and deserve to die, but we heard the voice of Jesus——" "Aye, aye," says the gatekeeper, "that is the password! Lift up your heads, ye everlasting gates, and let these people come in." They go in and surround the throne, jubilant forever!

Ah, do you wonder that the last hours of the Christian on earth are illuminated by thoughts on the coming glory? Light in the evening. The medicines may be bitter. The pain may be sharp. The parting may be heartrending. Yet light in the evening. As all the stars of the night sink their anchors of pearl in lake and river and sea so the waves of Jordan shall be illuminated with the down flashing of the glory to come. The dying soul looks up at the constellations. "The Lord is my light and my salvation; whom shall I fear?" "The Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall lead them to living fountains of water, and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes."

Close the eyes of the departed one; earth would seem tame to its enchanted vision. Fold the hands; life's work is ended. Veil the face; it has been transfigured.

Mr. Topiady in his dying hour said, "Light." Coming nearer the expiring moment, he exclaimed with illuminated countenance, "Light!" In the last instant of his breathing he lifted up his hands and cried: "Light! Light!"

Thank God for light in the evening!

Graphophone Record of Will.

A wealthy Russian died not long ago and his heirs could find no will. One day a young man having a graphophone in the library, put into it what he supposed to be the record of a song. The words which came forth were those of the missing will in the dead man's voice. The will thus curiously recorded has been submitted to the courts.

BEAUTIFUL WOMEN WHO ENDORSE PERUNA.

Miss Lenore Allen, 407 Dowell Street, San Francisco, Cal., writes:

"I consider Peruna an infallible remedy for catarrhal diseases. For several years I have been troubled with influenza, especially during our rainy season. I used to catch cold so easily that I was afraid to be out when the weather was the least bit inclement, or in the evening air. But since I have used Peruna I have nothing whatever the matter with me.

"I am in perfect health, and find that Peruna acts as a tonic, and seems to throw all sickness and disease out of the body. I go anywhere now and in all kinds of weather, seem to have an iron constitution and enjoy life because I enjoy perfect health." LENORE ALLEN.

Miss Mattie Douglass, 138 Thomas ave., Memphis, Tenn., writes:

"From my early womanhood I have been troubled with occasional headaches. I took different powders and drugs, at times getting temporary relief. One of my friends advised me to try Peruna, which I did. I soon found that my general health improved, and my entire system was toned up.

"I felt a buoyancy of body and lightness of mind I had not known before and my headaches have completely disappeared, and I have enjoyed perfect health for over a year. I gladly endorse Peruna." MATTIE DOUGLASS.

Women from all parts of the United States and Canada are testifying daily to the virtue of Peruna. Only a few of these letters can ever be published. Write for a book of testimonials of the cures Peruna has made.

Peruna Makes Clean, Healthy Mucous Membranes—Catarrhal Diseases Disappear Permanently.

The mucous membrane is to the inside of the body what the skin is to the outside of the body. It lines every organ duct and cavity. Catarrhal inflammation attacking one part is liable to spread to other parts. A neglected cold or slight catarrh is often the cause of lingering and dangerous catarrh.

Women are naturally more susceptible to inclemencies of the weather than men. With them a cold is often the starting point of some severe pelvic derangement, causing much pain and suffering.

Every woman needs a remedy upon which she can rely to keep her system fortified against the trying weather of winter and early spring. If Peruna is taken at the first symptom of a cold it will cure it before it develops into some annoying catarrhal derangement.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

"BREECHES BIBLE" FOUND.

Valuable Old Edition Discovered Among Possessions of Wyoming Residents.

Two valuable Bibles have been discovered in Wyoming among old papers in the last week. One was printed in Germany in 1734, sent to John Vroom, of Rawlins, along with a box of heirlooms from his family's former home in Amsterdam.

The other is a copy of the celebrated "Breeches Bible" found in a case of forgotten books by Judge Alfred Heath, of Saratoga, Wyo. This is an English Bible printed in 1606. It is bound in oak boards, covered with leather and reenforced with heavy brass clamps. The leaves are yellow with age, but the printing and numerous illustrations are still perfectly legible. It contains the Old Testament, the Apocrypha, a table of proper names, the Lord's Prayer, the Commandments and the canticles, all set to music. The feature of the book that makes it valuable is the following verse:

"And they sewed figge tree leaves together and made themselves breeches."

Few copies of this edition are known to be in existence.

Expensive Chords.

It will be a serious matter, says the Chicago Tribune, if that southern railway should be called upon to make good any damage to Mme. Nordica's vocal organs

SALZER'S New 20th Century OATS

TEST YIELD 300 BUS. PER ACRE

CLEAR THE TRACK!

Here's the monarch—nothing like it on earth. Salzer's New 20th Century Oat takes the cake, carries off prizes at the biggest yielder everywhere. The fact is, Salzer's oats are bred to produce. The U. S. Department of Agriculture sent us this seed after 400 samples and blinds tested. Salzer's were the best. How do you like that, Mr. Farmer? Our new 20th Century Oat is bound to completely revolutionize our growing and no earnest farmers to report yields in 1902 running from 200 to 300 bushels per acre. Price is dirt cheap. Be in the swim and buy this variety this spring to sell to your neighbors the coming fall for seed. It will surely pay you.

Salzer's Marvel Wheat—42 bus. per Acre

The only spring wheat on earth that will yield a paying crop north, east, and west and is very much in the Union. We also have the celebrated Macedonian wheat, yielding on our farms, 63 bushels per acre.

SPELTZ

The most marvelous cereal and hay feed on earth, producing from 60 to 80 bushels of grain and 4 tons of rich hay per acre.

VEGETABLE SEEDS

We are the largest growers and our stock of earliest Peas, Beans, Sweet corn and all money making vegetables is enormous. Prices are very low. Onion seed 60 cents and up a pound. Catalogue tells.

For 10c—Worth $10

Our great catalogue contains full description of our Seedless Barley, yielding 100 bushels; our Triple Income Corn, giving 400 bushels; our potatoes, yielding 600 bushels per acre; our Pea mixtures, producing 6 tons of magnificent hay; our Pure Oat, with its 8 tons of hay, and Teosinte with 20 tons [illegible] Salzer's great catalogue, worth $100 to any wide awake gardener or farmer, with 10 farm seed samples—worth $10 is given—is mailed you on receipt of 10c. postage.

[Western Tobacco Journal.]

When the weather, and other conditions are taken into consideration, the market held up fairly well this week. The dangling of the mercury around the zero mark had the effect of making the samples appear rough and hard, and belittling them to no inconsiderable degree. This accounts for the easiness of Tuesday's and Wednesday's sales, on which days the market was far from satisfactory. It picked up Thursday, however, as the weather grew milder, and closed strong on Friday with the best prices of the week.

There was not much variation as to the prices on the different grades, except that there was a generally firmer feeling toward the end of the week, making itself apparent on all the grades. The New Tobacco of quality sold well, the very fancy packages bringing good prices, especially if they showed any decided color. Medium Red Fillers were also a shade better, and sold under sharp bidding. So far there has been very little attention paid to the lower grades under four cents, and this week they were as easy as they have been at any time. These kinds are not even sought after by such rehandlers as are still on the market.

The condition of the Old did not present a very great change. Anything with color sold well, and the Colory Trashes were selling at outside figures throughout the week. As the scarcity of color of the decided kind has shown itself scarce in the New crop, buyers are looking for these kinds in the Old and are bidding keenly for them. This stimulates the market on these kinds. Even the medium to fine grades of Leaf, which certainly have not been selling at advanced prices during the past few months, are showing an increased spirit and bringing better figures. Red Tobacco under the double figure were firm and steady, but not at all changed from what they have been during the past few weeks.

All in all the market held up well, and was strong, in fact, on those days when light and other weather conditions made inspection of samples fair.

Offerings of the New still continue to be comparatively light, this week's shipments being interfered with considerably by the inability of boats to come down the Ohio River. Stripping has also been made almost impossible, all of which things conspire against heavy receipts.

The 786 hhds Old offered averaged $9 06 per hundred pounds, as against $9 17 for the 1,027 hhds for the previous week, and $7 68 for the 384 hhds for the corresponding week of last year. The daily averages were as follows: Tuesday, $8 41, Wednesday, $8 98; Thursday, $9 41; Friday, 9 25.

Fall plowing is in order as soon as the crops are off the land. It is often said that the benefit of fall plowing depends upon the character of the soil and its liability to have the surface washed away during the winter or the spring rains. But it will be beneficial on all lands, as they can be sown to rye, which will furnish some green feed for the cattle in the spring if it is needed, and then may be turned under as manure. It will prevent both washing and leaching of the soil, as it takes up the fertilizing elements in it and returns them as it decays in the spring in a form to be readily available for the following crop. It may not add anything to the fertility, our chemists assert that it does not, but it prevents waste, and it gives that humus or vegetable matter to the soil which is needed to make it porous and friable. There are but few soils where rye will not grow well, growing even on a wet soil if sown early enough to germinate before the fall rains. We like in fall plowing to have the furrow slices set on edge rather than turned over flat, as we know then the action of rain and frost is more powerful in bringing about the desired chemical changes in it, and it also drains off earlier in the spring. —American Cultivator.

A clever English writer has written a book setting forth the possible ideal for what he terms the future "garden city." He proposes an arrangement of a city's various types of activity in concentric circles—the outer circumference being the railroad lined with factories. Then would follow a belt of green, and within that the employ's houses alternate with churches and schools. The circle of retail stores is within these and at the center a beautiful garden surrounded by the public buildings which serve the whole city, like the opera house, the library, the art museum and the city hall. So attractive has this scheme proved that a garden city conference has been formed and its annual sessions have brought together many prominent and forceful people. A few manufacturers have actually made a start toward the "garden city" ideal by taking their factories into the country and building up communities along new lines of topographical arrangement.

When a farmer has some crop that is particularly good the individual specimens being large and of good form and apparently full of vitality, it is advisable to save such specimens for seed. Oftentimes, however, the mistake is made of allowing the seed to remain on the vine until it is overripe. Of course, the seed is not injured in any way, but the loss comes from the majority of it falling to the ground before it can be gathered. A good way of determining the proper condition is to notice when a portion of it begins to fall to the ground and then gather all of it, putting it in some receptacle where the air and sun can reach it and thus ripen it gradually. Cabbage seed, for example, should be gathered a day or two after the pods begin to look red. The stalks should be put on a tight floor in some place where the sun and air have access. Onion seed should be gathered whenever one-third of the seed receptacles have cracked open and these seed heads should be spread in thin layers on a lath frame in a dry and airy loft. Peas and beans may be pulled when about one-third begin to drop and the vines should be placed in some location where they will have the sun and air and on a tight floor where no loss will occur when the seeds begin to drop from the pods. —Indianapolis News.

Had To Conquer or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. The farmers of Owen county organized the Owen County Tobacco Association at a mass meeting in Owenton Monday. This meeting resulted from a resolution passed at a recent meeting of the same nature at Carrollton, and the organization was perfected by the assistance of several prominent Carroll county growers, who are determined that the Burley section shall be organized against the tobacco trust. Organizers were appointed at the Owenton meeting for every precinct in the county, and another meeting called for the second Saturday in February. A similar organization was perfected at Vevay, Ind., on Saturday, and another meeting of growers is to take place at New Castle on Monday, to be followed by a meeting in every county in the Burley section of Kentucky. It looks very much as if the growers were at least in earnest about this matter and will be enabled to make the trust go on auction market for its tobacco and pay a living price for the "weed."—The Weed.

The 500 miles of turnpike roads of Grant county were never in better condition than they are today. They have cost quite a good deal of money, both in the building and the maintainance. The people ought to be proud of them and we are sure they are. If they are not satisfied they ought to travel around a little in the neighboring counties and see in what condition their turnpike roads are kept. A few more years of heavy taxation until our debt is paid and Grant county will indeed be the best county in Kentucky.—Courier.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by W. F. McKim, Burlington, Union Drug Store, Union, J. G. Oelsner, Florence, H. L. Eskew, Walton, O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

A great crowd attended E. L. Riley's sale yesterday, people coming from every direction and from everywhere. At noon a large quantity of soup was consumed by the hungry crowd. Auctioneer Bentler was in good trim, and the prices realized were satisfactory. Horses brought from $10 to $95; corn, 78 cents; sheep, $2 75 to $4 05; calves, $3 50 to $18; catile, $25 to $30 50; hay, $10 to $11; hogs that would weigh about 225 pounds, $12 15 per head.

A friend sends us a postal card saying that the 22d of this month is the day upon which to deaden bushes, etc.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 19, 1902. NO. 18.

A WEEK'S COLLECTION OF PERSONAL AND NEWS ITEMS BY THE RECORDER'S FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENTS

BULLITTSVILLE.—Some think that Miss Mary Gaines will spend vacation in the Berkshire Hills.

Tite many friends of Miss Bernice Duncan regret that she is still ill.

Our bachelor friend, W. C. Watts, has been purchasing a quantity of household furniture, recently.

Mr. Edgar Riley occupied the pulpit at the Christian church, Sunday morning and evening, one addition.

On the 10th inst., the 31st anniversary of the birth of Mr. William Grant and the 45th anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. James T. Grant's marriage were celebrated at the hospitable home of the latter. The forty guests did not realize the inclemency of the weather, so warm was the welcome and so bright the cheer that greeted them. Those present from a distance were, Dr. R. L. and Mrs. Grant, of Texarkana, Texas; Miss Balsseau, of Shreveport, La.; Dr. Edward Grant, of Louisville, and Buford Grant, of Missouri. After an elaborate dinner had been served, Dr. Edward Grant, in a few and appropriate words, welcomed those, who were present, and, in behalf of his brother and sister, extended congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Grant. Dr. J. A. Kirtley, who from boyhood, had been the friend and neighbor of Mr. Wm. Grant and had married Mr and Mrs. Jas. T. Grant, in a touching manner, extended congratulations. Mrs. Owen Gaines, who was bridesmaid at the wedding, was also present. Dr. Robt. L. Grant paid a well merited tribute to his venerable father. It was certainly an enjoyable occasion and one long to be remembered by all who were present.

PLATTSBURG, Feb. 14.—Ed Botts filled his ice-house, Friday.

James Burns has been quite sick for several days.

Jake Cook gave the young people a party last Saturday night.

Albert Acra and family have been quite sick for several days.

Mrs. Medaline Hensley has been quite sick for a week or so.

The farmers are not having very good luck with their lambs.

Miss Pearl Botts was visiting in the Idlewild neighborhood, last week.

Nearly all of Mrs. Geo. Aylor's chickens froze during the cold weather.

Waller Campbell and wife spent last Friday with Woody Sullivan and wife.

Mrs. Joe Acra, of McVille, spent a couple of days, last week, with relatives here.

There is a good deal of excitement in this neighborhood over the appearance of a mad dog. J. E. Botts had one to go mad last week. It would be well for everybody to watch their dogs as this one was gone from Thursday till Saturday, when he was killed. There is no telling how many he bit.

BUFFALO.—The fine sleighing continues, with cold frosty mornings.

Joe Love was hauling hay, last week, from Joe Huey's.

Quite a crowd took dinner with Nace Clements and wife, Sunday.

The remains of A. J. Uts were interred at Hopeful, last Friday.

Rlburn Williamson, of Waterloo, was visiting in this vicinity, last week.

Arch Rouse and wife have moved to S. H. Marshall's place on Gunpowder.

Riley J. Presser was visiting at P. P. Neal's and T. J. Stephen's, Saturday and Sunday.

L. J. Riley, James Riley, wife and daughter all took a sleigh ride to Gunpowder, last Friday.

George Rue and wife have been entertaining relatives and friends for the past week—making farewell calls.

Robert Clements and wife moved into their new house Monday, which is the most charming little place on the ridge.

Measels have visited but one family in this neighborhood, that of Mr. Arnold, and I am glad to report them all about well.

H. T. Huey, our local tobacco buyer, has bought a great deal of the weed in this vicinity, but, very few are done stripping yet.

Cage Stephens, of Woolper Heights, was visiting his father, T. J. Stephens, last Friday. He is delighted with his new home and expects to raise a large crop this year.

Ras Stephens and wife entertained quite a crowd of their relatives and friends with their kind hospitality, last Friday. All those present enjoyed the day very pleasantly.

FLICKERTOWN, Feb. 15.—Mrs. Rhoda Acra and son have been quite poorly.

Doc. Grant and family were visiting in the Bullittsville neighborhood, last week.

We received some interesting and instructive books from Congressman Gooch.

Bob Patterson is in our midst after spending several months in Indiana and Ohio.

Several from here attended a big dance over on Middle creek one night last week.

Henry Deck came very near losing a fine three year old mare last week. She is improving.

Sam Hensley filled his ice house with ice about 9 inches thick, but of a very inferior quality.

Dr. Louis Crisler, of Bullittsville, made a professional trip to this neighborhood, Wednesday.

Ben Hensley spent several days, last week, with Dr. George Smith, of Weisburg, Indiana. He reports the doctor having a large practice and on the high road to fame and fortune. His many friends here are glad to hear of his good fortune.

Henry Deck thought he had learned something new about rabbit hunting when he saw one caught in a hollow tree about forty feet from the ground; but since he saw one caught last week under the ice in the middle of the creek, where the water was 6 feet deep and not a wet hair on it, he says he would not be surprised at anything in the rabbit line in the future.

PEPPERSBURG, Feb. 17.—There are 20 cases of measles in town.

Ben Berkshire will be a candidate for Circuit Clerk.

Ben Berkshire has three cases of pneumonia at his house.

Buford Terrill is quite sick yet at his father's out on the 'pike.

Our mail carrier crosses the river at Lawrenceburg, and walks down on this side.

Arthur Alloway has signed as a pitcher for an Omaha club for the season of 1902.

The marriage of Miss Herma McWethy and Grant Mathews is announced for April.

A Gallatin county gentleman and a Boone county belle, are to be married in a few days.

Albert Hitchfield and Miss White, were married in Lawrenceburg one day last week.

The Louisville Times of the 28th ult. carried good pictures of Rev. Edgar Jones and wife.

Ernest Grant is confined to his house but we hope to see him able to be about again shortly.

The usual number of valentines passed through the office here, and the usual people got them.

Everett Helms is suffering with an abscess on one of his eyes. He has been having a rough time this winter.

Henry Gordon was thrown from his sled while coasting, one day last week, and got his head and one hand badly lacerated.

The heart of W. D. Rector, who lives here, is two inches out of its natural position, and still he has moderately good health.

Bro. Mills took as his subject, Sunday night, "The feuds of Eastern Kentuckey." He had a cousin killed in the recent battle at Middlesboro.

Bros. Cook and Mills have been having a very interesting meeting. Three additions: Ira Lee Thompson, Leonard Hofman and Lyman Christie.

A gentleman by the name of Lancaster, of Lonisville, was here several days last week, trying to induce our shippers to patronize the Louisville market.

A vicious dog belonging to Dr. Tiller attacked Charles Black, the other day, and tore nearly all his clothes off. The authorities ordered the dog killed.

The Cook County Marching Club is scheduled to arrive here this evening on the 6:30 traction car. Mayor Carter Harrison will make a speech from rear platform of the hindmost coach.

A few years before his death, L. F. Jackson, who lived near here, hired a man to put him a well down 220 feet, for which he paid. A short time since word was received here that the well was down only 100 feet, the remaining 120 feet of pipe being bid near by. Investigation showed that Mr. Jackson's well was only 100 feet deep. The balance of the pipe was found.

Dr. Herbert Wilson, of Covington, is visiting friends and relatives in this part of the county. He is a graduate of the Louisville Medical College, and it is said that he is prospecting for a location, and may locate here as a partner of Dr. Grant or as an independent. For the past six months he has been attending physician at a Paducah hospital, which position he received in a few months after graduating. He is a worthy young man, and we hope he will locate among us.

JACOB'S WELL, Feb'ry. 17.—Miss Julia Garnett has been visiting in Hebron several days.

Geo. Barlow and family, and Ezra Blankenbeker and family were the pleasant guests of W. P. Uts and family, last Saturday.

Leslie Barlow, Lonnie Tanner, Lottie Utz, Bessie Houston, Nannie Tanner, Edna Barlow, Iantha Uts, Mary Barlow and Fannie Houston certainly do enjoy coasting, especially when they turn over. Just ask Lonnie Tanner about it.

VERONA, Feb. 17.—Sleighing and coasting are the fads here.

T. W. McClure has moved into the house lately vacated by Perry Rice.

This will be a good spring for maple camps, as there has been a great deal of freezing.

Very little ice has been housed here on account of the inferior quality.

Stock feed is becoming very scarce and farmers are sending to the city and paying high prices for it. They may save their stock through the winter.

The musical rehearsal of the Music Department of the League Institute, Friday, the 14th, was a great success. Miss Grace Rice, of Walton, by the rendition of Mosart's Sonata No. V, won the medal.

James Turner, a pupil of the League Institute, who has been quite ill with pneumonia, is improving.

HATHAWAY, Febru'y. 17.—E. R. Smith is convalescent.

Mad dog is the talk here now.

The ice is 8 inches thick on Gunpowder.

Eady Conley moved over on Gunpowder, last Tuesday.

Ben Allen and wife were guests of B. H. Stephens, last Tuesday.

Samuel Clore has been on the sick list for the past month or so.

Geo. Burris was the guest of Mr. and Mrs. John H. Mason, Friday.

L. H. Stephens was putting the roof on Mrs. Conley's barn, last week.

William Bondurant passed through here, Friday, enroute to Hamilton.

James K. Sebree and family spent last Thursday with Willie Huey and wife at Bellevue.

Since the snow and sleet people have had a good many chances to—get up after falling down. "See."

Mrs. Dr. Ryle and sister-in-law, of Big Bone, were visiting Geo. C. Rue and wife, one day recently.

Robert Rouse and wife, of Gunpowder, were pleasant guests of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Stephens, Friday.

James White and wife, of near the hub, were guests of his parents and the pencil shover, last Wednesday.

Harry Stephens and children spent the day, last Monday, with Mr. and Mrs. Robt. Rouse, of Gunpowder.

John C. White and family and Mrs. G. L. Smith and Cynthia Mason and E. C. Franks and family were royally entertained at the hospitable home of C. B. Mason, last Tuesday.

Richard Thompson, foreman and general manager of R. L. Huey's tobacco shop, received a slight scalp wound, caused by a pole falling upon his head, one day last week.

Addison Huey and family, Mrs. Jno. Green and three sons, Mrs. Geo. L. Smith, Mrs. Cynthia Mason and Mrs. John H. Mason were highly entertained at turkey dinner at R. Lee Huey's, last Thursday.

Dave Williamson had one of his fox hounds to go mad, one day last week. It bit a couple of his chickens and a pig and an other dog. Mr. Williamson discovered the dog was mad and procured his gun and killed it.

Robt. Clements had quite an accident while moving some household goods to his place, last week. He took his sled in the yard by hand loaded it, and thought he could pull it out of the yard by hand, when it got the start of him and run off down the hill breaking some of the articles.

Your correspondent and wife took advantage of the good sleighing and called on Joseph Riddell and family, last Thursday night, where the evening was pleasantly spent discussing the topics of the day. The evening was concluded with a bounteous feast consisting of—hickory nuts and popcorn.

This neighborhood was in a state of excitement, last Tuesday morning, over what some thought to be a mad dog belonging to G. L. Smith. The dog left home, last Sunday, and was running around over the neighborhood, worrying dogs it met and biting all the hogs that it met. It seemed to be friendly with every person and was petted by several. He arrived at home last Tuesday morning and was immediately killed. Several dogs it bit have been killed.

GUNPOWDER, Feb. 17.—Born, to Eric Rouse and wife, on the 11th inst., a little daughter. Mrs. L. H. Busby and wife are the proud parents of a bouncing boy, since the 12th inst.

R. P. Rice and wife, of Florence, were guests of his parents, W. H. Rice and wife, last Sunday.

Bob Houston moved to Hathaway, Monday. He will engage in the mercantile business with Joe Weaver. We hope they will succeed in their enterprise.

Aunt Lizzie Quick was agreeably surprised last Monday afternoon by quite a number of her friends meeting and sawing her a nice lot of wood, for which she authorized me to say she is very thankful to all who attended. And it is but fitting to say that Cecil, the little daughter of Levi Tanner, was the instigator of it. He mounted a horse early Monday morning and visited nearly every one of her neighbors and gave invitations and they all responded. By this noble act we learn that it doesn't take the great and honored men and women of our country to perform deeds that are worthy of note. Little children should share with them the reward and honor when it is deserved.

Noah Tanner, who has a reputation as a first class butcher, had some experience in that line a few days since. He invited Wm. Smith to help him kill a small hog, and as the pigs which they had been accustomed to shoot them with were exhausted, he concluded to catch and stick the hog, which, they did, thinking that the length of the blade of his butcher knife was sufficient to kill any hog. They released the animal and as soon as it realised that it was free, it got up and walked off as if nothing had happened, and as it was a little scared from the rough treatment, the question with them was, how were they to get it again. Joe Weaver came up and suggested that if they would shell some corn it would probaly come up to eat. They followed his advice and succeeded in catching it again, and were careful to hold to it until it was dead. Noah says he will resort to the old way and shoot them with the famous pills in the future.

MOUND FIELD FARM.—W. F. Bradford, of Nashville, Tenn., was visiting his parents at Hebron, last week.

Elzie Harper will soon have fried chicken on his bill of fare.

W. O. Hafer spent Sunday with his cousin, Ora Rouse, of Limaburg.

Holland Goodridge ate eggs with Jordon Beall's folks, last Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Goodridge dined with Thos. Hafer and wife, Sunday.

Thomas Hafer has been fortunate enough to find ice sufficient to fill his ice-house.

Union Frank Gordon has filled his ice house—hauling the ice from Malchus Souther's pond.

Harrison Clore slipped and fell on the ice, one day last week, injuring his side and back badly.

Mrs. Beulah Garnett and daughter, have been visiting her parents for several weeks, at Hebron.

A large per cent. of the fuel burned in this vicinity, this winter, is Boone county coal. It is found in James Kelley's woods.

Mrs. Stevens and her accomplished daughter, Ida, have returned home, after a protracted visit with her daughter, Mrs. Kate Allen.

Two sled loads of youngsters from this neighborhood attended a candy party at Dr. Rouse's in Burlington, last Thursday night.

Doc Mannin shocked the community the other night at the post-office, when he announced that he intended to dispose of his possessions here and move to Alabama in the spring.

The regular services at the Hebron Lutheran church was held, last Sunday, with a large attendance. There will also be services held on the fourth Sunday of the month at 2 p. m.

Our old granger friend, Temp Graves, spent Thursday night last, as the guest of Chester Davis and wife. He was enroute to the city for a consignment of doll babies to distribute among his friends.

Misses Anna Hafer, Grace Bullock, and Neva Hafer with Messrs. Walter Hafer, Lewis Harding, Carl Bradford and James Bullock were handsomely entertained by Miss Pauline Winston (who is visiting at her sister's, Mrs. Stevens) last Friday night.

The Hebron "Haymow Poker Club" met at the residence of Willie Graves, last Thursday night. Five members were taken in and duly initiated. Mrs. Graves served a substantial lunch during the exercises, which went far towards making the meeting pleasant.

Mrs. Wallace Garrison and Mrs. Sallie Belle Hicks were in Covington last week, visiting Miss Anna Rice and Mrs. Buch.

The Ladies of the Presbyterian church are holding weekly prayer meeting, Sunday morning's at eleven o'clock. The brethren are invited to attend.

Miss Nannie Bristow will begin a subscription school in Union, Monday, March 3. The delay in beginning the school, is caused by the large number of pupils who have been vaccinated and thus disabled.

Joe Huey and "Pat" Norman have the fastest span of mules in the county, and the young folks are indebted to them for two delightful sled rides, and to Mrs. Omer Cleek and Mrs. Add Huey for their charming hospitality. They certainly know how to make young people enjoy an evening.

FLORENCE, Feb. 17.—Miss Mae Aydiotte, of Richwood, has been the guest of her aunt, Miss Kate Aydelotte for two weeks.

James Hickey is visiting friends in Maysville, this week.

Nute Long has just recovered from a light case of chicken-pox.

Miss Alpha Hance, of Big Bone, is the guest of her sister, Mrs. Carl Price.

Silver Riggs was the guest of his cousin Miss Nancy Latham, Wednesday.

Mrs. Francis Price spent a few days last week with her grandson, Carl, on Price Pike.

J. P. Tanner and wife spent Saturday and Sunday with Mrs. S. F. Powers in Verona.

James R. Rice has returned home after a short visit with his grandparents in Gunpowder.

Several from here attended the sale of Mrs. Albert Williams, of Banklick, last Monday, and report a large crowd, and that most everything brought a fair price.

James Glass, who was paralyzed a few weeks ag), suffered another stroke this week, and is not expected to live. Dr. Metcalf, of Independence, is the attending physician.

Will Norman, of Gunpowder, left Tuesday for Liberty, Indiana, where he hopes to secure a position. Will was one of our most popular young men, and will be missed by a host of friends, whom we join in wishing him the best success.

Our friend, Jerry Dixon, now at Koko, Florida, writes that there is no place on earth so charming as the Flowery South, (of course, always excepting Crescent) and among other things, he says that he manages to devour two dozen oranges every day. Being a desciple of Epicurus, we would enjoy being with Jerry, for his remarks about oranges would give an appetite to a mile-post.

Your Richwood correspondent says that it takes a religious man to haul corn in a wagon on a hill side during the present blockade of ice, with no swearing. That may be true, but it takes an immaculate optimist to carry in a back log across an ice covered porch with out using some tall, blue brassbound language, when the log insists upon going in every direction, but the one it should.

Mrs. Mary J. Carpenter, after an illness of several years, died Sunday, morning, February 9th, in the 68th year of her age. Mrs. Carpenter leaves a son, H. Carpenter, to mourn her death. The funeral of the deceased took place Monday, at 10 o'clock. The services were conducted by Rev. Slater after which the remains were interred in the Hopeful cemetery. Mrs. Carpenter was a member of the Lutheran church, a woman of fine personalities and was loved by all who knew her. She bore her affliction with a sweet, patient spirit that had always characterized her life, and when the Angel of Death summoned her, she yielded her unsullied spirit with a resignation born of a love and faith in Him Whose follower she had been for many years. To the stricken family and relatives we extend our deepest sympathy.

Miss Ora Rouse, who has been spending some time with her aunt at Antwerp, Ohio, is at home.

The residence of Mrs. Frances Clutterbuck, near here, was destroyed by fire, on the 12th inst. The family was awakened by the smoke about 12.

WALTON, Feb. 17.—"The Constant Four of the Bachelor Club" complimented the Mystic Seven with a matinee party on the 15th inst. In the procession were Dr. B. F. Metcalfe, Dr. C. L. Metcalfe, Dr. J. F. Cleek and Dr. Henry Eskew, who gave a charming theater party in honor of the O. F. F. Club, Saturday, at Robinson's. The event was one of the most interesting and enjoyable social functions of the season. The excess in the number of the ladies was all right, as it gave an opportunity for the gentlemen to make themselves useful as well as ornamental.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. B. Powers gave a party on Friday, in honor of their daughter, Mabel, to her many friends, and the following responded to invitations: Lula Hawkins, Harry Houston, Carrie and Hallie Watson, Leslie Richard and Charles Jones, Blanche Dixon, Gladys Wilson, Charley Verable, Lula and Eva Jones, Harry Watson, Earl and Clifford Rouse, Virgie and Roy Cluster, Myrtle Murphy, Sallie Yarnell, Presley Adams, Kathe Hume, Robert Coffman, Grace Sullivan, Raymond Roberts and brother Stanley Dixon, Clifton Botts, Wesley Murphy, Emerson Crisler, Clifford Sanders, Dannie Blackburn, Arvey Florence, Clay Holder, Gerald Rouse and Mesdames Roberts and Coffman. It was a pleasant occasion that will long be remembered by the young people.

Miss Effie J. Lermond expects to visit relatives in Paris, this week.

Some wise man has said, "The wicked stand on slippery places"—more than I can do, so I stay at home.

Miss Mabel Bagby, the accomplished and interesting daughter of Dr. David M. Bagby, will visit relatives in Washington, this week.

RABBIT HASH, Feb. 17.—Dr. Hopkins sold his house and lot to Mrs. R. P. Berkshire, for $1500.

Your reporter spent Sunday in Bellevue.

C. H. Acra and brother, Andrew, of Grant, were in our burg Saturday.

John Hodges and wife have moved in with B. R. Stephens, for whom they keep house.

Ryle & Marksbury have prized 15 hogsheads of tobacco during the cold weather. Tobacco has been in very good fix for prizing, considering the cold weather. Those who have tobacco to strip, however, say the tobacco is too dry for that. The highest price paid for tobacco here was 7 cents, paid Hubert Ryle.

Miss Mame Vanness and Charles Dolph were married, Wednesday, February 12th, at the home of the bride's father, N. E. Vanness, by Rev. Cook. A number of the bride's relatives and friends witnessed the ceremony and partook of the usual supply of good things. The bride was attired in white cassimere with trimmings of satin and overlace. Miss Sallie Dolph, the bridesmaid, wore white bedford cord with trimmings of satin and feather edge applique. The groom and his best man wore the conventional black. They received numerous valuable presents.

RICHWOOD.—John Clarkson has moved.

Mrs. Amanda Carpenter is on the sick list.

Mrs. Fannie Lipp is better after a few days illness.

Walter Grubbs had a cow to fall and break her neck.

Miss Bessie Snow, of Dry Ridge, is visiting Robert Snow.

D. E Castleman purchased N. V. Marshall's place.

Mrs. M. L. Tanner was visiting at M. Grubb's, Sunday.

Mrs. Adna Robinson was visiting friends here, last week.

Coal is getting scarce here again, as is stock water and feed.

Miss Mustaeier, of Hamilton, Ohio, is visiting John Tanner.

Lonnie Robinson has returned to his home in Cincinnati.

No church at Mt. Zion, Sunday, on account of the small-pox scare.

Rev. Meaus, pastor of Mt. Zion church, is quite sick at Erlanger.

Mrs. Sallie A. Dobbins, who was seriously injured by a fall, is some better.

Wm. Woodward and family were guests at John R. Carpenter's, Sunday.

Wayne Hearne has been allowed to be with the rest of the family for over a week.

Mrs. John Harvey, who has been seriously ill of measles and pneumonia, is some better.

Miss Mamie McCarty is keeping house for section boss, McCarty, whose wife died recently.

Kenneth, son of Edward Stephens, who was taken suddenly sick, Saturday, is some better.

Some of our light fingered friends, who take everything that is loose, do not take the smallpox.

All patients are well of small pox, the worst case, Walter Robinson, is able to go about his room.

Wm. and Jeff Carpenter and Harmon Hearne filled their houses with ice off of M. Grubb's pond, last week.

Our neighbors need not fear us any longer, as the smallpox patients are mingling with their families.

James Snow, of Dry Ridge, is living with his grandfather, Samuel Dobbins, and attending school in Cincinnati.

Mail and passengers were delayed by the wrecks on the Southern, but the tracks are now clear and trains are running on schedule time.

Eli Carpenter will occupy the house on the corner of Lexington and Louisville Avenue, and Cary Carpenter will move out on Lexington avenue.

Saturday's Enquirer has an account of a child of Sarah Gaines, colored, falling in a kettle of boiling fluid, but we can learn of no such event happening here.

State Master Walcott and State Overseer Tanner and Miss Ella Tanner and Harry Wilson, of Golden Grange, assisted Excelsior Grange initiate four candidates, last Saturday.

The pike company should be compelled to remove the snow off of their road or throw open the gates, as we have not seen their pike for a month, and do not wear them out.

The many friends of John Robinson and Miss Stella Northcutt, formerly of this place, but now of Cincinnati, will be surprised to hear of their marriage last Wednesday in Covington.

On account of smallpox here parties came to an abrupt conclusion. The disease was in a very light form, as there were over 30 cases and none fatal, and only one was compelled to take his bed: Many cases of vaccination have been worse than the disease.

Mr. Tangeman, owner of Kensington lake, charges persons $3 for ice to fill their ice-houses. It is needless to say he does not supply many, so the will do the same for the good people. Ice barons are badgering the summer with cost showing $905 when ice is 10 inches thick.

Washington As An Athlete

COULD PITCH AN IRON BAR FARTHER THAN ANY OTHER MAN OF HIS TIME.

WASHINGTON was the champion of athletic games, and the power of his hand and arm was displayed in several memorable instances. He flung a stone across the Rappahannock, and in 1772, when he was 40 years of age, he could pitch an iron bar further than any man of his time. The story of his throwing a silver dollar across the Potomac lacks actual confirmation, and it must have surely been a feat of later years, as the silver dollar was less common then than now. It might have been a Spanish or Mexican dollar. The explanation that a dollar went further in those days than these is almost as old as the story.

Among the amusing stories of our first president told in minor history and in legendary lore are those which endow him with miraculous powers of endurance, a giant's stature and hands of such size that none other ever equaled him, they being of gigantic dimensions. A pretty story of his first wooing, at the early age of 17, writes M. L. Rayne, in the Chicago Times-Herald, introduces his hand with dramatic effect.

The time was the year of grace 1778, and the place was Mount Vernon, a beautiful romantic site in Fairfax county, Virginia, on the right bank of the Potomac, and within 15 miles of Washington, D. C., as it now stands.

There it was that a small boy in roundabout and knickerbockers saw a gay cavalier exercising a pair of saddle horses, while he talked in the sylvan solitude, believing himself alone.

"Will you ride with me, Miss Mary? Miss Mary, will you ride with me? May I have the honor of your company for a ride this afternoon? Sweet Mistress Mary, will you accept me for your gallant to ride at your stirrup. Peace, Queen Bess, or I'll larrup you with the whip! Whoa, jade! Sweet Mistress Mary, I am George Washington, at your command."

The small boy of that day was no improvement on his prototype of this. He answered in a flutelike voice with a mocking cadence:

"Marry now, sweet Mistress Mary, may I ride with you, or will you ride with me, or go alone at your own sweet will? Ha! Ha! Ho!"

The youngster laughed wickedly at the discomfiture of the youthful equestrian, who could not leave his horses to administer punishment, but as he was the small brother of "Sweet Mary Gerrish" he accepted the bribe of an English deerhound to inform his sister that George Washington had come with a fine horse and sidesaddle to ask her to ride.

At that period George was 17 years old, and on this memorable ride the father of our country proposed after this fashion:

"Look at the hand, Miss Mary. It is yours!"

Miss Mary, who was several years older than her lovesick swain, gave a merry laugh.

"Why, what in the world would I do with that hand, Master Washington? I have two hands of my own!"

When he made his meaning clearer she informed him gently that she was already engaged to that Maj. Trenholm who afterward was arrested as a traitor, pardoned by Gen. Washington and sent back to England in a sloop-of-war. Washington did this at the solicitation of that "sweet Mistress Mary," and the mammoth hand she had refused and ridiculed received her parting kiss as a benediction when she thanked him and bade him farewell to follow her husband to his own country.

When LaFayette visited Mount Vernon for the last time he said to Mr. Custis, the stepson of Washington, while recalling a former visit:

"You were then holding by a single finger of the good general's remarkable hand, which was all that you could do, my dear sir, at that time."

We are told of that wonderful hand that if a cast of it could have been preserved to be exhibited in these days of physical degeneracy it would be said to belong to a being of a fabulous age. His unusual size was not, however, a distinction of the age in which he lived, but, taken together with his breadth of vision, his qualities as a leader and his executive ability, it made him in all requirements a great man. Napoleon I. was a pygmy when compared to Washington, but he greatly admired the man who could so successfully administer national affairs through a terrible crisis to a safe conclusion, and as he lamented his own small stature did he in proportion admire Washington's. Whenever he met one of our countrymen abroad he was certain to ask: "How is the greatest American, Washington?"

THE FAITH OF WASHINGTON

Not Only a Believer in Prayer, But a Man of Prayer.

Washington was reverent of everything that was sacred. The impression that the profane use of the name of God made upon him is shown by this order, issued while he was commander in chief of the army:

Headquarters, Moor's House
West Point, July 28, 1778.

Many and pointed orders have been issued against the unmeaning and abominable custom of swearing, notwithstanding which, with much regret the general observes that it prevails, if possible, more than ever; his feelings are continually wounded by the oaths and imprecations of the soldiers whenever he is in hearing of them. The name of the Being from whose bountiful goodness we are permitted to exist and enjoy the comforts of life is incessantly imprecated and profaned in a manner as wanton as it is shocking.

For the sake, therefore, of religion, decency, and order, the general hopes and trusts that officers of every rank will use their influence and authority to check a vice which is as unprofitable as it is wicked and shameful.

Words that ring as true as when they were uttered more than a hundred years ago.

Washington was not only a believer in prayer, but a man of prayer. Many [illegible] of this are related. How on [illegible] he sought shelter from a [illegible] the night at a house where [illegible] known, and where, owing to [illegible] the war, he was received [illegible] and where, after retiring to his room, the woman heard him in prayer, she exclaimed to her husband: "Now I know that he is a good man, and we are safe." The story of the sufferings of the little American army through that darksome winter at Valley Forge will be told as long as our history endures. And as part of it will endure the oft-told incident of how as the good old Quaker owner of the house Washington occupied as headquarters was out alone one day he was startled by hearing a solemn voice. Going toward it he saw a horse tied to a sapling tree, and then, half hidden by a thicket of underbrush, Washington himself on his knees in prayer, his cheeks wet with his tears, as solitary and apart he prayed for help and guidance in that hour of extremity. It is not strange that good Mr. Potts should have been greatly moved by the sight, as hurrying home, with tears in his own eyes, he told his wife of what he had seen, adding: "If there is any man on earth that the Lord will listen to it is George Washington; and I feel a presentiment that under such a commander there is no doubt but in the end we will establish our independence, and that God in His providence hath willed it so."—Adele E. Thompson, in Chicago Advance

WASHINGTON THE UNIFIER.

He Showed the Thirteen Colonies the Pathway to National Life—The Ideal American.

It seems no wonder at all, that, after six years of terrible political distress, under the articles of confederation, Washington should be called to preside at the constitutional convention in Philadelphia. Characteristically, Washington, when summoned, was in western Virginia seeking how he might open up his lines of communication and natural highways by which the east and the west could be bound together, and the way made clear for that great procession westward of our advancing race which he foresaw. He was the great balance-wheel of the Philadelphia assembly of 1787, when sectional interests threatened disruption. He was the anchor of the ship of state when storms arose.

Made president, says the Sunday School Times, he, under God, showed us the true pathway of national life. It is difficult to realize the division, the weakness, the lack of coherence, in the country and the government, over a century ago. We were a "backwoods nation," between the mountains and the sea. The states were jealous of the each other and of the central government. Parties, such as they were, had inherited all the viciousness of the old organizations in Great Britain. The people were not welded together. One set wanted to be pro-French and the other pro-British.

When "Citizen Genet" came over to get men, ships, and money, and also to play, for selfish purposes, upon the gratitude which our fathers felt for French aid in the revolution, Washington took the right stand of neutrality. He showed that we were not to be hyphenated Americans—as the manner of some is, even in this day. He taught that the true patriot should be, not Irish or Dutch or Italian or Franco or British-Americans, but Americans without adjectives or politicians' or printers' expedients. To Patrick Henry, Washington wrote: "I want an American character, that the powers of Europe may be convinced that we act for ourselves, and not for others." He wrote again: "My ardent desire is to keep the United States free from political connection with every other country, to see them independent of all, and under the influence of none."

No wonder that Washington left money to establish a national university, for he wrote: "It has always been a source of regret to me to see the youth of these United States sent to foreign countries for the purposes of education, often before their minds are formed."

Thus this wise and great man, who foresaw our national future, gave us, under God, the true principles of unity. Our fathers listened to his voice, pondered, took "sober second thought," and decided aright and happily for themselves and us. Instead of scattering and degenerating, our country began to consolidate and grow. The nation, obeying the true instinct of development, began to expand toward the west. A great stream of population moved over the Alleghenies and to the Pacific. Now we look farther, yet let us remember.

It is good to notice, in the latest and scholarly "Washington the Soldier," by Gen. Henry B. Carrington, of the United States regular army, that the baseless legend of the commander in chief's profanity at Monmouth is effectually disproved. We may be ever grateful to God for the leader He gave us. Greater even than Washington the engineer, soldier, statesman, or sage, was Washington the American, the unifier.

The Pillars of Happiness.

Of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports. In vain would that man claim the tribute of patriotism who should labor to subvert these great pillars of human happiness—these firmest props of the duties of men and citizens. The mere politician, equally with the pious man, ought to respect and cherish them. —Washington, in His Farewell Address.

Only a Few Left.

Cumso—The recurrence of Washington's birthday reminds us that the United States has attained to a respectable old age.

Cawker—Yes, indeed. Time flies. I don't suppose that more than 40 of Washington's nurses, or 60 of his body servants, are alive now.—Town Topics.

PERNICIOUS ACTIVITY.

The Would-Be Foolkiller Was Too Fertile of Ideas to Suit the Kindly Emperor.

There was once a kindly Emperor, who ruled over a kingdom not far from the land of Somewhere; no near, indeed, that it reflected all the possibilities—and the impossibilites—of the land of Somewhere.

And a certain man, who wanted to be a Foolkiller, applied to the Emperor for a job, says Puck.

Not having any pull at court and being unacquainted even with Morgan and his crew of merry men, he was obliged to apply in person.

"Your Majesty," he began, "it is bad taste in me, I know, to begin by throwing wet blankets over the present incumbent, who draws the Foolkiller's salary, but he isn't up to his job. He sits around and smokes cigarettes most of the time, and has no realising sense of what is going on. Anthony Comstock and Benjamin Tillman passed his pavilion yesterday and he let them go by the royal pound without the slightest effort at capture. Now, just to show that I am an expert, let me lay out a line of work that ought to be done—right Here and Now."

"You mean," said the Emperor, "to call my attention to certain things that exist."

"Precisely!" said the applicant for the new job. "When I look around me and think of the work to be done, it makes me quiver and ache. The first thing I would do would be to get a line on all the historical novelists in the kingdom. I'd put 'em on a raft and set 'em adrift. Then I'd go for the automobilists. I'd get a train of automobiles, put 'em all in it, and start it out of the kingdom at 80 miles an hour. Maybe I wouldn't have fun with them! But, here, look at this list!"

The Emperor put on his glasses and scanned the list, which was as follows:

The Society Push—all of 'em to a man and woman.
The foreign lecturer.
The woman who has fads.
The young girl who reads novels.
The clergyman who cries "war!"
Senators and congressmen.
After dinner speakers.
Authors who read their own works.
Multimillionaires.
Trolley car motormen and conductors.
Doctors who operate.
And there are others.

The Emperor folded up the paper, showed his teeth grimly, and ordered the royal bouncer to get ready for work.

"If my present Foolkiller," he remarked, with a sinister smile, "wasn't so all-fired lazy, I'd have him operate on you! What do you want to do? —depopulate my whole kingdom?"

HE KNEW HER ALL RIGHT.

Because One of Her Kind Had Brightened His Life During the Ice Cream Season.

The dexterous manipulator of a soda fountain and the cashier at a restaurant making a specialty of after-theater suppers were exchanging confidences, writes W. G. Jackson, in the Salt Lake Herald.

"She is unlike other girls, so natural and sincere," explained the cashier.

"Looks at you out of the depths of her soulful eyes when she talks to you, doesn't she?" queried the soda artist.

"Exactly."

"Sings, doesn't she?"

"Yes."

"Favorite song is 'Oh, Promise Me.'"

"That's it."

"And when she sings it her soul seems to fly out on the wings of song and soar among the heavens?"

"Yes, yes," said the cashier, "but how do you know? Are you acquainted with her?"

"Well, I can't say exactly, but all last summer I was tied up with a soulful creature of that class who drifted out of my life just as the ice cream season was waning and the oyster-eating days had come in upon us, and I thought maybe she had drifted into yours."

Then it was that the cashier at the restaurant remembered that it was in the first of the series of months containing the letter "r" that his path and that of his fair maid had become entwined, and a great and heavy thoughtfulness came upon him.

Where to Guard Yourself.

Endeavor to ascertain what is that particular defect of temper into which you are the most liable to fall, and make a point of setting a strong guard over yourself in that particular. Let this idea be kept ever present in your mind: "At some weak part of my nature all the miseries of life may enter." This will probably be found a hard service, but the necessity of the case obliges you to render it. You have the choice of but two things—you must be incessantly vigilant and self-denying here, or suffer every delight to be torn from you.—Success.

Orange Sauce (Sweet).

Moisten two tablespoonfuls of cornstarch with a little cold water; pour over three-fourths of a cupful of boiling water; add two tablespoonfuls of sugar and cook until clear. Keep hot over boiling water if it cannot be served at once. Add the juice and grated rind of one orange and just before serving stir in the beaten whites of two eggs. —Washington Star.

Performance of Duty.

Delia—Av coorse, ma'am. Shure, ye wouldn't have me resist an officer, would ye?—Philadelphia Press.

NO EXCUSE FOR ROBBERY.

Prosperity Under Protection May Be Able to Stand It But It Is Not Justified.

Some of Speaker Henderson's constituents who presumed to think that the Dingley tariff was not the most perfect work ever struck off by the brain of man have been fittingly rebuked by that statesman. Gen. Henderson warns them that any attempt at revision will open up the whole field and "thus put a serious check on the business of the country." "The moment the country understands that there is to be a revision of the tariff," he continued, "jobbers will suspend large purchases, hoping to buy at lower prices. This will compel the manufacturer to reduce his business, and this will compel a reduction of the pay rolls, and serious business calamity might ensue."

When times are hard the tariff cannot be reduced; because it follows, according to the best republican logic, that the industrial stagnation is caused by too little tariff. When times are good the tariff cannot be reduced, because that would bring about hard times. Therefore, the tariff may not be reduced at all. The thing to do is to keep increasing it. One can readily understand how the business of the country would go to the demnition bowwows if congress undertook, for example, to reduce the duties on some of the trust-made articles that are sold abroad at a profit of 20 to 30 per cent. less than they are sold for at home. One can picture to himself all the steel plants closed down and the men out of employment, and a general suspension of industry, because nobody would drive a nail while congress was making a new steel schedule. And all other industries would suspend operations out of sympathy, says the Indianapolis News (ind.).

Twenty-four hours before Gen. Henderson's alarm was sounded another of Iowa's public men—Senator Dolliver—informed the members of the legislature that, "with many industries the rates of duty which in 1897 were regarded as reasonable, have become unnecessary and in many cases even absurd." In many cases these duties "have been turned as a weapon of offense against the America market." In the opinion of Senator Dolliver these defects ought to be remedied, and we venture the assertion that the senator is more closely in touch with the sentiment of his state on that question than is the speaker of the house. And in that case the sentiment of Iowa might be taken as representative of the sentiment of the whole country as a whole. While a prosperous consumer can probably stand it to be robbed his prosperity does not justify the robbery.

Trust Against Trust.

Here are two news items of indicative interest:

1. The steel manufacturers of Great Britain are organising a trust to fight the American one.

2. The tobacco manufacturers of Great Britain are organizing a trust to fight the American combine.

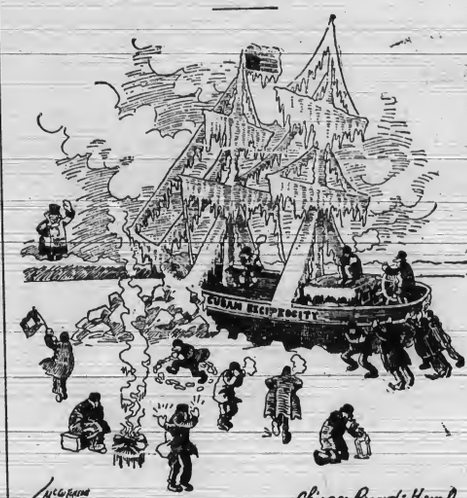
Combinations in restraint of competition in trade are forbidden by the laws of England as well as by our own.

Will the British trusts be as successful as our own in verifying Daniel O'Connell's famous saying that "you can drive a coach and four through an act of parliament?"—N. Y. World.

——President Roosevelt owes it to himself and the country to manifest his determination upon fair play and humane dealing toward Cuba by exerting his utmost influence in behalf of a sufficient reduction of tariff duties on Cuban products to avert the disasters now threatening that island. The high protectionists in the Fifty-seventh congress have made this action imperative on the president's part. Either he must now accept their distinct and most insolent challenge to test of strength or he must confess that when matters come to so formidable an issue he fears to oppose the policies of that element in his party.—St. Louis Republic.

COME OUT OPENLY.

How President Roosevelt Can Make Certain the Fulfillment of National Promises.



President Roosevelt has so fine an opportunity for a test of strength between himself and the high-protectionist clique in the Fifty-seventh congress that the people of this country will not allow themselves to believe that the president's courage and sense of justice will fail him at such a time, says the St. Louis Republic.

On the issue of a tariff reduction of Cuban products sufficient to save Cuba from agricultural and commercial ruin the protectionists in congress are now boldly defying the president and public sentiment alike. Their game is to compel Cuba to choose between starvation and annexation. They are playing the game to a ruthless finish.

The high-tariff republicans of the house ways and means committee, in refusing to bring in a bill for the relief of Cuba, have apparently strained the patience of the American people beyond the point of endurance. The conviction has become fixed in the public mind that these representatives are resolved upon accomplishing the annexation of Cuba by the foulest of means, the breaking of our own solemn pledge to a weaker people. The American people will not indorse the policy. They turn to their president in such a crisis. They are besieging Mr. Roosevelt in behalf of Cuba and of our national honor. They entreat him that Cuba shall be humanely dealt with.

And the president can make certain the fulfillment of our national promise to Cuba if he is so minded. He can throw down the gauntlet to the high tariff republicans in the Fifty-seventh congress, demanding a 50 per cent. tariff reduction on Cuban products. An almost unanimous American sentiment will support the president in such a stand. The high tariff plotters against a helpless little people and the good name of the United States government will not dare to consummate their conspiracy if President Roosevelt thus defies them and brings the fight into the open. The American people ask the president to do this. The president's known convictions urge him as well to such a course. The only question now is that of the president's courage. And if his courage fails Mr. Roosevelt in such a crisis, the American people have made so mistaken an estimate of his character that the consequent rendjustment will amount almost to a tragedy.

THE GLORY OF GOD.

Each One Should Work Faithfully in His Appointed Place.

Dr. Talmage Proclaims the Importance of Religion in the Ordinary Affairs of Life—God's Common Blessings.

[Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.]

In this discourse Dr. Talmage advises us to do our best in the spheres where we are placed and not to wait to serve God in resounding position; text, 1 Corinthians, 10:31: "Whether, therefore, ye eat or drink or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God."

When the apostle in this text sets forth the idea that so common an action as the taking of food and drink is to be conducted to the glory of God, he proclaims the importance of religion in the ordinary affairs of our life. In all ages of the world there has been a tendency to set apart certain days, places and occasions for worship, and to think those were the chief realms in which religion was to act. Now, holy days and holy places have their importance. They give opportunity for special performance of Christian duty and for regaling the religious appetite, but they cannot take the place of continuous exercise of faith and prayer. In other words a man cannot be so much of a Christian on Sunday that he can afford to be a worldling all the rest of the week. If a steamer put out for Southampton and goes one day in that direction and the other six days in other directions, how long before the steamer will get to Southampton? It will never get there. And though a man may seem to be voyaging Heavenward during the holy Sabbath day, if during the following six days of the week he is going toward the world and toward the flesh and toward the devil how long will it take him to reach the peaceful harbor of Heaven? You cannot eat so much at the Sabbath banquet that you can afford religious abstinence the other six days. Heroism and princely behavior on great occasions are no apology for lack of right demeanor in circumstances insignificant and inconspicuous. The genuine Christian life is not spasmodic; does not go by fits and starts. It toils on through heat and cold, up steep mountains and along dangerous declivities, its eye on the everlasting hills crowned with the castles of the blessed. I propose to plead for no everyday religion.

In the first place we want to bring the religion of Christ into our conversation. When a dam breaks and two or three villages are overwhelmed or an earthquake in South America swallows a whole city, then people begin to talk about the uncertainty of life, and they imagine that they are engaged in positively religious conversation. No. You may talk about these things and have no grace of God at all in your heart. We ought every day to be talking religion. If there is anything grand about it, anything beautiful about it, anything important about it, we ought to be continuously discussing. I have noticed that men just in proportion as their Christian experience is shallow, talk about funerals and graveyards and tombstones and deathbeds. The real, genuine Christian man talks chiefly about this life and the great eternity beyond and not so much about the insignificant pass between these two residences. And yet how few circles there are where the religion of Jesus Christ is welcome. Go into a circle even of Christian people where they are full of joy and hilarity, and talk about Christ or Heaven and everything is immediately silenced, as on a summer day when the forests are full of life, chatter, chirrup and carol—a mighty chorus of bird harmony, every tree branch an orchestra—if a hawk appears in the sky, every voice stops and forests are still. Just so I have seen a lively religious circle silenced on the appearance of anything like religious conversation. No one had anything to say save perhaps some old patriarch in the corner of the room, who really thinks that something ought to be said under the circumstances; so he puts one foot over the other and heaves a long sigh and says: "Oh, yes; that's so, that's so!"

My friends, the religion of Jesus Christ is something to talk about with a glad heart. It is brighter than the waters; it is more cheerful than the sunshine. Do not go around groaning about your religion when you ought to be singing it or talking it in cheerful tones of voice. How often it is that we find men whose lives are utterly inconsistent who attempt to talk religion and always make a failure of it! My friends, we must live religion, or we cannot talk it. If a man is cranky and cross and uncongenial and hard in his dealings and then begins to talk about Christ and heaven, everybody is repelled by it. Yet I have heard such men say in whining tones: "We are miserable sinners." "The Lord bless you." "The Lord have mercy on you," their conversation interlarded with such expressions, which mean nothing but canting, and canting is the worst form of hypocrisy. If we have really felt the religion of Christ in our hearts, let us talk it, and talk it with an illuminated countenance, remembering that when two Christian people talk God gives special attention and writes down what they say; Malachi 3:16: "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another, and the Lord hearkened and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written."

Again, I remark, we must bring the religion of Christ into our employments. "Oh," you say, "that is very well if a man handle large sums of money or if he have so extensive traffic, but in the humble work in life that I am called to the sphere is too small for the action of such grand, heavenly principles." Who told you so? Do you not know that God watches the faded leaf on the brook's surface as certainly as he does the path of a blazing sun? And the moss that creeps up the side of the rock makes as much impression upon God's mind as the waving tops of Oregon pine and Lebanon's cedar, and the alder, crackling under the cow's hoof, sounds as loud in God's ear as the soap of a world's conflagration. When you have anything to do in life, however humble it may seem to be, God is always there to help you to do it. If your work is that of a fisherman, then God will help you, as he helped Simon when he dragged Gennesaret. If your work is drawing water then He will help you, as when He talked at the well curb to the Samaritan woman. If you are engaged in the custom house, He will lead you, as He led Matthew sitting at the receipt of customs. A religion that is not good in one place is not worth anything in another place. The man who has only a day's wages in his pocket as certainly needs the guidance of religion as he who gathers the keys of a bank and could abscond with a hundred thousand dollars.

I think that the church of God and the Sabbath are only an armory where we are to get weapons. When war comes, if a man wants to fight for his country, he does not go to Troy or Springfield to do battling, but he goes there for swords and muskets. I look upon the church of Christ and the Sabbath day as only the place and time where and when we are to get armed for Christian conflict, but the battlefield is on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "St. Martin's" and "Lenox" and "Old Hundredth" do not amount to anything unless they sing all the week. A sermon is useless unless we can take it with us behind the plow and the counter. The Sabbath day is worthless if it last only 24 hours.

There are many Christians who say: "We are willing to serve God, but we do not want to do it in these spheres about which we are talking, and it seems so insipid and monotonous. If we had some great occasion, if we had lived in the time of Luther, if we had been Paul's traveling companion, if we could serve God on a great scale, we would do it, but we can't in this everyday life." I admit that a great deal of the romance and knight errantry of life have disappeared before the advance of this practical age. The ancient temples of Rouen have been changed into storehouses and smithies. The residences of poets and princes have been turned into brokers' shops. The classic mansion of Ashland has been cut up into walking sticks. The groves where the poets said the gods dwelt have been carted out for firewood. The muses that we used to read about have disappeared before the immigrant's ax and the trapper's gun, and the man who is waiting for a life bewitched with wonders will never find it. There is, however, a field of endurance and great achievement, but it is in everyday life. There are Alps to scale, there are Hellesponts to swim, there are fires to brave, but they are all around us now. This is the hardest kind of martyrdom to bear.

Again, we need to bring the religion of Christ into our commonest trials. For severe losses, for bereavement, for trouble that shocks like an earthquake and that blasts like a storm, we prescribe religious consolation; but, business man, for the small annoyances of last week how much of the grace of God did you apply? "Oh," you say, "these trials are too small for such application." My brother, they are shaping your character, they are sourcing your temper, they are wearing out your patience and they are sunking you less and less a man. I go into a sculptor's studio and see him shaping a statue. He has a chisel in one hand and a mallet in the other, and he gives a very gentle stroke—click, click, click! I say: "Why don't you strike harder?" "Oh," he replies, "that would shatter the statue. I can't do it that way. I must do it this way." So he works on and after awhile the features come out, and everybody that enters the studio is charmed and fascinated. Well, God has your soul under process of development, and it is the little annoyances and vexations of life that are chiseling out your immortal nature. It is click, click, click! I wonder why some great providence does not come and with one stroke prepare you for Heaven. Ah, no. God says that is not the way. If you let me keep on by strokes of little annoyances, little sorrows, little vexations, until at last you shall be a glad spectacle for angels and for men. You know that a large fortune may be spent in small change, and a vast amount of moral character may go away in small depletions. It is the little troubles of life that are having more effect upon you than the great ones. A swarm of locusts will kill a grainfield sooner than the incursion of three or four cattle. You say: "Since I lost my child, since I lost my property, I have been a different man." But you do not recognize the architecture of little annoyances that are sewing, digging, cutting, shaping, splitting and interjoining your moral qualities. Rats may sink a ship. One lucifer match may send destruction through a block of storehouses. Catherine de' Medici got her death from smelling a poisonous rose. Columbus, by stopping and asking for a piece of bread and drink of water at a Franciscan convent, was led to the discovery of the new world. And there is an intimate connection between trifles and immensities, between nothings and everythings.

Now, be careful to let none of those annoyances go through your soul unarraigned. Compel them to administer to your spiritual wealth. The scratch of a sixpenny nail sometimes produces lockjaw, and the clip of a most infinitesimal annoyance may damage you forever. Do not let any annoyance or perplexity come across your soul without its making you better.

Again, we must bring the religion of Christ in to our commonest blessings. When the autumn comes and the harvests are in and the governors make proclamations, we assemble in churches and we are very thankful. But every day ought to be a thanksgiving day. We do not recognize the common mercies of life. We have to see a blind man led by his dog before we begin to bethink ourselves of what a grand thing it is to have undimmed eyesight. We have to see some wounded man hobbling on his crutch or with his empty coat sleeve pinned up before we learn to think what a grand thing God did for us when He gave us healthy use of our limbs. We are so stupid that nothing but the misfortunes of others can rouse us up to our blessings. As the ox grazes in the pasture up to its eye in clover, yet never thinking who makes the clover, and as the bird picks up the worm from the furrow, not knowing that it is God who makes everything, from the animacule in the sod to the seraph on the throne, so we go on eating, drinking and enjoying, but never thanking, or seldom thanking, or, if thanking at all, with only half a heart.

I compared our indifference to the brute, but perhaps I wronged the brute. I do not know but that, among its other instincts, it may have an instinct by which it recognizes the Divine hand that feeds it. I do not know but that God is, through it, holding communication with what we call "irrational creation." The cow that stands under the willow by the watercourse chewing its cud looks very thankful, and who can tell how much a bird means by its song? The aroma of the flowers smells like incense, and the mist arising from the river looks like the smoke of a morning sacrifice. Oh, that we were as responsive! Yet who thanks God for the water that Gushes up in the well, and that foams in the cascade, and that laughs over the rocks and that patters in the showers, and that claps its hands in the sea? Who thanks God for the air, the fountain of life, the bridge of sunbeams, the path of sound, the great fan on a hot summer's day? Who thanks God for this wonderful physical organism, this sweep of the vision, this chime of harmony struck into the ear, this soft tread of a myriad delights over the nervous tissue, this rolling of the crimson tide through the artery and vein, this drumming of the heart on our march to immortality. We take all these things as a matter of course.

But suppose God should withdraw these common blessings! Your body would become an inquisition of torture, the cloud would refuse rain, every green thing would crumple up, and the earth would crack open under your feet. The air would cease its healthful circulation, pestilence would swoop, and every house would become a place of skulls. Streams would first swim with vermin and then dry up, and thirst and hunger and anguish and despair would lift their scepters. Oh compare such a life as this that with the life you live with your families! Is it not time that with every word of our lips and with every action of our life we began to acknowledge these every-day mercies? "Whether ye eat or drink or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God." Do I address a man or a woman who has not rendered to God one single offering of thanks? I was preaching on Thanksgiving day and announced my text—"Oh, give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good and His mercy endureth forever," I do not know whether there was any blessing on the sermon or not, but the text went straight to a young man's heart. He said to himself as I read the text: "Oh, give thanks unto the Lord, for He is good"— Why, I have never rendered Him any thanks! Oh, what an ingrate I have been!" Can it be, my brother, that you have been fed by the good hand of God all these days, that you have had clothing and shelter and all the beneficent surroundings, and yet have never offered your heart to God? Oh, let a sense of the Divine goodness shown in your every day blessings melt your heart, and if you have never before uttered an earnest note of thanksgiving let it be this day which shall hear your song! What I say to one I say to all. Take this practical religion I have recommended into your everyday life. Make every day a Sabbath and every meal a sacrament and every room you enter a holy of holies. We all have work to do; let us be willing to do it. We all have sorrows to bear; let us cheerfully bear them. We all have battles to fight; let us courageously fight them. If you want to die right, you must live right. Negligence and indolence will win the hiss of everlasting scorn, while faithfulness will scatter its garlands and wave its scepter and sit upon its throne long after this earth has put on ashes and eternal ages have gun their march. You go home today and attend to your little sphere of duties. I will go home and attend to my little sphere of duties. Every one in his own place. So our every step in life shall be a triumphal march and the humblest footstool on which we are called to sit will be a conqueror's throne.

A Great Success.

The new underground electric railway of Paris has proved such a great success that extensions of the system are contemplated.

BRILLIANT COURT SCENES.

Splendor of the Coronation Foreshadowed By Elaborate Plans for Opening of Parliament.

The return of the king and queen to Marlborough house for the opening of parliament marks the beginning of the festivities of the coronation year. The king's council and cabinet meeting were formalities required for putting the finishing touches on the address from the throne and for the arrangements for the military and parliamentary pageants. The ceremonial last February will be repeated, with more pages, equerries, horses, carriages and color. Lord Salisbury, in stead of carrying the sword of state, as he would be forced to do if he were foreign secretary, is favored by tradition and will stand at the left of the king, as lord of the privy seal, with the lord chancellor at the king's right hand, and this portion of the tableau will be a parable of the dependence of the medieval monarchy upon the two officials whose seals were indispensable for authenticating any royal decree. The duke of Devonshire will either carry the imperial crown or the sword of state. The marquis of Winchester will bear the cup of maintenance and Lord Wolseley will be the gold stick. The college of heralds will bring into the picture every figure that belongs there by virtue of ancient tradition.

MONEY ORDERS POPULAR.

Great Increase in the Business Done at the New York City Post-Office Last Year.

Joseph Elliott, the superintendent of the money order department of the general post office at New York, has just handed to Postmaster Van Cott the annual statement of his department for the year just ended. It shows that 3,512,527 domestic money orders were paid, amounting to $22,295,511; an increase in number of 485,546, or 16 per cent., and in amount $4,256,531, or 25 per cent. over the year 1900. Of international money orders there were paid in 1901 90,386, the amount paid being $1,160,422. The domestic money orders issued and fees received were: Number, 112,528; fees received, $1,394,947, an increase over 1900 in number of 8,454, and in amount of fees of $92,079. Of international money orders there were issued in 1901 27,302, the amount of the fees received being $483,348, an increase in number issued of 1,633, and in amount of fees received of $19,339 over 1900.

Crucifix in Marquette's.

Evidence was found the other day that proves almost beyond a doubt that the crucifix found at Frankfort, Mich., last summer by workmen excavating for the foundation for the Ann Arbor summer hotel there was the property of Father Marquette, the famous Indian missionary. Its possession has been disputed since its finding, but it has now been turned over to the Ann Arbor Railroad company. The rust was cleaned from its pedestal and the date 1664 was found on one side, while on the opposite side was found the inscription "M. & C. Quesne." Marquette left Quebec for upper Michigan in 1668 and was buried at Frankfort.

London to Have American Exhibit.

At a meeting of 40 American business men located in London it was decided to support the American exhibition at the Crystal palace at Sydenham next summer. It was also resolved to send memorials to the governors of the various states of the United States, asking for their cooperation. Subcommittees were appointed on various matters in connection with the exposition.

GOVERNOR OF OREGON

Uses Pe-ru-na For Colds in His Family and Grip.

CAPITOL BUILDING, SALEM, OREGON.

A Letter From the Executive Office of Oregon.

Pe-ru-na is known from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Letters of congratulation and commendation testifying to the merits of Pe-ru-na as a catarrh remedy are pouring in from every State in the Union. Dr. Hartman is receiving hundreds of such letters daily. All classes write these letters, from the highest to the lowest.

The outdoor laborer, the indoor artisan, the clerk, the editor, the statesman, the preacher all agree that Pe-ru-na is the catarrh remedy of the age. The stage and rostrum, recognizing catarrh as their greatest enemy, are especially enthusiastic in their praise and testimony.

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Pe-ru-na is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Pe-ru-na not only cures catarrh, but prevents. Every household should be supplied with this great remedy for coughs, colds and so forth.

The Governor of Oregon is an ardent admirer of Pe-ru-na. He keeps it continually in the house. In a recent letter to Dr. Hartman he says:

STATE OF OREGON,
EXECUTIVE DEPARTMENT,
SALEM, May 9, 1898.

The Pe-ru-na Medicine Co., Columbus, O.:

Dear Sirs—I have had occasion to use your Pe-ru-na medicine in my family for colds, and it proved to be an excellent remedy. I have not had occasion to use it for other ailments.

Yours very truly, W. M. Lord.

It will be noticed that the Governor says he has not had occasion to use Pe-ru-na for other ailments. The reason for this is, most other ailments begin with a cold. Using Pe-ru-na to promptly cure colds, he protects his family against other ailments. This is exactly what every other family in the United States should do. Keep Pe-ru-na in the house. Use it for coughs, colds, la grippe, and other climatic affections of winter, and there will be no other ailments in the house. Such families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book, entitled "Winter Catarrh." Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Patriotic Blood.

Out in Cincinnati there is an Irishman who, like many other good Irishmen, is firm in his loyalty to his native land. One morning not long ago he was at work near the top of a telegraph pole, painting it a bright green, when the paint slipped and splashed on the sidewalk. A few minutes later another Irishman came along. He looked at the paint, then at his countryman on the ladder, coming down the pole, and inquired, in an anxiety on his tone: "Doherty, Doherty, how ye had a bimorrage?"—Youth's Companion.

Seemed to Need It More.

"What are you doing here?" said the woman to the tramp that had got over the wall just in time to escape the bulldog.

"Madam," he said, with dignity, "I did intend to request somethin' to eat, but all I ask now is that, in the interest of humanity, you'll feed that dog."—Stray Stories.

Busy on More Important Details.

Alphonse—Gwendolyn, why are you so cruel as to keep me waiting for an answer? It is now ten minutes since I asked you to be my wife.

Gwendolyn—Oh, pardon me, I forgot. I was simply choosing my bridesmaids.—Stray Stories.

Got Them All at Once.

Sue Brette—I see it stated that if the eggs were equally divided among the inhabitants of the country, each human being would get 141.

Foote Light—Gracious me! I got that many one night while on our tour out west!—Yonkers Statesman.

If you keep both hands busy in patting yourself on the back, and your rival uses his in honest work, he will soon get ahead of you.—Atchison Globe.

Everyone is accused of eating too much, as a joke. But it's no joke.—Atchison Globe.

LONDON VERDICT IS St. Jacobs Oil

If when you have Rheumatism, Gout, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Sciatica you immediately apply that sovereign remedy, St. Jacobs Oil, which positively cures the worst of these cases, it acts like magic. It penetrates instantly to the very seat of the disease, and removes the cause at once.

MR. HENRY JOHN BARLOW, of 4, Staples Inn Buildings, Holborn Bars, W.C., said—I had rheumatism in my feet and legs, which became so bad that I was hardly able to walk. St. Jacobs Oil removed all pain, and completely cured me.

MRS. WOLFSBERGER, matron of Moor Street Home for Poor, Crippled, and Orphan Boys, 37, Queen Street, Soho, said—I find that St. Jacobs Oil has been used in the Home, and is powerful in relieving neuralgia and general rheumatism.

MR. CHARLES CARTWRIGHT, of No. 1, Alfred Place, Bedford Square, W. C., said:—Having for years been a great sufferer from Rheumatism in my limbs, I used St. Jacobs Oil, which cured me directly, after other remedies had signally failed."

The above are only three out of the thousands of cases which have been permanently cured of rheumatism by the timely use of St. Jacobs Oil; therefore if you suffer bodily pain, and do not immediately apply St. Jacobs Oil.

LOUISVILLE, not to be outdone by Lexington in dispensing hospitality, will entertain the legislators also.

A BOSTON man was fined $20 in the Police Court for using an old United States flag as a waste bag in his business office.

WITH a traction line across the southern section of the county, and a gold mine in the northern part, Boone will come to the front in great shape.

THE River and Harbor Committee of the House has reached a definite understanding that the river and harbor bill to be reported this session shall be kept down to about $60,000,000.

IF the effects of last year's drought ceased with this winter, it would not pinch the people so badly, but the inconvenience will continue until another crop is raised to supply the deficiency.

CONGRESSMAN GOOCH, of this district, will probably be selected as the Kentucky member of the Democratic Congressional Committee, succeeding former Congressman Turner, of Louisville.

"In the time of peace prepare for war," is an adage that Shelbyville, this State, is observing, and has called on the War Department at Washington for guns to be put in position on her walls.

WHEN Colonel Berry starts after anything he means business and his activity in behalf of the Carrollton and Covington electric road is another evidence of his well earned reputation as a hustler.

RURAL free delivery of mail is taking like wild-fire the country over, and about all the business some of the Congressmen are looking after is the establishing of rural mail routes in their districts.

IT looks very much like the voters of this State will be called upon to decide for or against an amendment to the constitution permitting a vote upon the final location of the State capital either at Louisville, Lexington or Frankfort.

THE proposition to tax the State to the amount of $15,000 annually for the benefit of Louisville is not generally approved. A bill providing for an amendment to the constitution allowing the people to vote on the proposition is in order.

Boone county reports a find of gold in the hills of Gunpowder Creek—Williamstown Courier.

The Courier was never worse mistaken. The Boone county gold fields are as remote from the Gunpowder hills as possible, to be in Boone county.

ONE thing noticeable about the numerous appropriation measures introduced in the legislature is that each carries good salaried jobs for somebody. In some instances the salaries will amount to almost as large an amount in the aggregate as the appropriation.

THE proposition to return to the old system of voting in this State is causing considerable discussion, and is not a party question as each of the political parties is divided on it. There are arguments on either side of the proposition, that are hard to meet.

THE ruling of the Postoffice Department that no more fourth-class postmasters are to be removed save for cause, has created consternation among a class of Congressmen whose elections depend on the number of politicians they can land in these small offices.

THE United States Circuit Court of Appeals at St. Louis has rendered a decision that will release about 200 men from Federal prisons. The court holds that regular army officers are not competent to sit in courts-martial for the trial of officers and soldiers in the volunteer service.

EVERY few days a new entry in the race for the Democratic Gubernatorial nomination is heard of and each section of the State will be well represented in the contest. Stick a pin here: The candidate that goes under the wire in advance of R. J. Breckinridge will be the nominee.

THE Connecticut constitutional convention has before it a proposition for woman's suffrage, another for minority representation, a third for a radical civil service clause and a fourth making a member of the legislature ineligible to any other elective or to any appointive office.

COL. BRADLEY, who has been knocked cold as an iron wedge, on a zero morning, in the matter of Kentucky patronage, still hopes to succeed in landing his brother-in-law, Collier, in some fat government job. Doubtless the Colonel thinks Yerkes has secured a pair of pants large enough for him.

IF it will cost the State $5,000,000 to move the capitol from Frankfort, as Representative Colson claims it will, it would better be left where it is. There has been no request on the part of any considerable portion of the people for the removal, but, on the other hand, only a few years ago they ratified the constitution which located the capitol at Frankfort.

GOV. BECKHAM pardoned before trial Edward and Tolbert Garrard, Daniel Woods and John Lucas, under indictment in Clay county for the murder of D. T. Holland. The pardons were strongly urged by Judges Dishman and Tinsley, and by law-abiding citizens of the mountains on the ground that conviction was impossible, and that trials would probably bring about more trouble between the factions.

A BREEDER of the Polled Angus cattle in Central Iowa said the other day that he can produce on his farm one year with another a twelve hundred pound Angus steer for each four acres of his farm. This finished steer is worth one year with another about $80, which gives him an income of $20 per acre for his land. It should be said that the use of the farm for this purpose has brought the soil up to a most productive condition.

THE prohibitionists of Georgia say that outside of four cities in that state, of which Atlanta is the chief, there is no "wet" territory in Georgia. Actually there are now twenty-eight counties in Georgia in which the sale of liquor is lawful exclusive of twenty-two counties in which the South Carolina dispensary system has been adopted. There are 137 counties in the state of Georgia, and in eighty-seven of these absolute prohibition exists.

THE Postoffice appropriation bill has been completed by the House Committee on Postoffices and Post Roads. It carries $137,916,598, an increase of $14,133,910 over the current appropriation, and of $3,185,022 over the estimates. The largest item is $41,250,000 for railway transportation of mails. The rural free delivery service gets an increase of $1,250,000 making the total $7,529,000, and provision is made to place the rural carriers under a contract system, instead of salaries as at present.

THE Senate Committee on Appropriations unanimously decided to report favorably the Cox World's Fair Bill. It appropriates $100,000 for a Kentucky building and exhibits. It provides for a Board of Control, to consist of three Democrats and two Republicans, to be appointed by the Governor. The members are to receive $5 a day each while in actual service, but the amount is not to exceed $1,200 a year each. There is to be a Woman's Committee of three members, who shall receive $5 a day each, but no one woman member is to receive more than $1,000 for entire services from the beginning to the end of her term of office.

The members of the Legislature were given a banquet in Lexington, at the Phoenix Hotel. The banquet cost $7 a plate, and the purpose of it was to get the members to vote for Lexington as the location for the Capital. The Herald roasts the banquet, and says it required 1½ hours to serve the last course. If banquets will get the majority of the votes of the Legislature for the location of the Capital, we would suggest that the Legislature be invited to Georgetown and banquetted by the Elks. Georgetown would then get the Capital, for if there is anything an Elk can do, it is to banquet.—Georgetown News.

According to the charge of the News, Lexington does not entertain much of an opinion of the Kentucky law-makers now assembled at Frankfort, else it would not have attempted to bribe them with a seven-dollar-a-plate dinner.

THE retention of Grant county in this Congressional District is mainly due to the efforts of Judge Westover, of Williamstown. The minute he learned that it was proposed to transfer Grant to the Ninth Congressional District he was up and doing, and in a few hours he had all Grant county in an uproarous protest against the proposition, and in twenty four hours the citizens were organized into one solid body of protesters. The Judge knew the pulse of his people well.

THE management of the Frankfort penitentiary is to be investigated under a series of anonymous charges embracing accusations of nearly all manner of short-comings. The charges were made by a Republican hoping the Democrats would refuse to allow investigation, after which capital for political purpose could be manufactured, but be it said to the credit of the Demmies they were not caught napping, but were willing to have the investigation, and should any of the numerous charges be sustained the guitly par'— or parties will be called to account.

THE good people of the Big Bone and Union, neighborhoods are very much interested in the proposed electric road from Carrollton to Covington, and they should be, for if the road is built there is no doubt but what it will pass through each of these localities, and be of an untold value to them. It would bring Big Bone to the front as one of the most popular health resorts in the country, and greatly enhance the value of lands for miles around that historic but comparatively unknown section. The people in these localities should hold out every inducement possible to the capitalists who have the construction of the road under consideration, and deal liberally with them in the matter of right of way through their lands. Don't think that because the road is coming your way you ought to have a large compensation in the way of damages, because it will not damage you to the extent of one penny, but on the contrary, will enhance, greatly, the value of every foot of realestate you own. The section of country traversed by the proposed road could not be given any improvement that would be more valuable. Wake up and go after it, people.

THE members of the rivers and harbors committee show a disposition to shy at the magnitude of the projects now before them for the improvement of the Ohio river. The latest project is embodied in the report of Captain Sibert, of the Corps of Engineers. This project is for continuing the improvement of the Ohio by the construction of locks and dams from a point near Marietta to the Indiana line. Captain Siber's report on his survey of this stretch of the stream shows that 20 locks and dams will be required to insure a six foot depth at low water. These 20 locks and dams will cost to construct about $20,000,000, according to Captain Sibert's estimates. But it has been the experience of the committee in the past that the engineer's estimates of proposed improvements almost invariably turn out to be too low. If this should not prove to be the case in this instance, members of the committee figured out that by the time the proposed improvements below Marietta had been completed as well as the improvements above that point, to which the Government is already committed, the total expenditures for improving the navigation of the Ohio would reach the enormous total of $60,000,000. Contemplation of these figures made most of the members of the committee nervous.

Congressman Wheeler made an uncalled for break in the House one day last week.

THE Fayette Investment Company, of Lexington, has made an assignment. It had to go out of business as a result of the recent fraud orders of the postoffice department.

Notice has been posted at Wheatland, near Vincennes, Ind., threatening the burning of the property of any man who employs a negro after March 1 or "harbors, leases or rents to" any negro. There is a settlement of negroes at Wheatland.

THE local option people in the legislature, seeing that the committee on religion and morals in the Senate, was disposed to let the local option bill sleep itself to death in the committee, forced the bill out of the hands of the committee, and had it placed in the orders of the day.

Don't criticise our prices until you have investigated. We wish a trial.
ESKEW'S, Walton, Ky.

COL. A. S. BERRY, who is pushing the scheme to build a traction road from Carrollton to Covington, is anxious that meetings be held at early dates, in Burlington and Union, when the matter will be laid before the people of this county, and fully discussed. The Colonel has attended two enthusiastic meetings, recently, one at Carrollton, the other at Warsaw, where he received every assurance of the hearty cooperation on the part of the people of Gallatin and Carroll counties. Let the people of this county turnout in force to the meetings when the days for which they are called come around.

THE Western Argus, published at Frankfort, has evidently reversed its first opinion of the General Assembly. In its last issue it says:

"Over half the time alloted to the present Legislature has passed and it may be said that nothing of general importance has been considered by either branch of the Assembly. The present Assembly will go out of existence March 18, and if the remaining days do not bring forth any better fruit than has already been paid for by the tax-payers of the Commonwealth it may be recorded as the worst that ever convened. At present there are ninety odd bills in the orders of the day in the House of Representatives, and special orders galore. Over two-thirds of these bills were a waste of time to read, and a dead expense to the State to have printed. Those that are of any importance are so far down in the pile that it will be many weeks before they can be reached, and then, if they are passed in that branch, by the time they reach the orders of the day in the Senate it will take the clerks and all the pages about a month to find them for those interested.

The report to be filed by the House Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce recommending the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Corliss providing for Government ownership of a Pacific cable says that the United States, by the annexation of Hawaii and the acquisition of the Philippines and other islands through the ratification of the Paris treaty, assumed the responsibility of maintaining peace in the Pacific Ocean. This obligation, the report says, was deliberately undertaken by this country and approved by the united voice of the people.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) Messenger. For sale by all Druggists.

Tobacco growers convention, Saturday, March 1, at 10 a.m.

NOTICE, TOBACCO GROWERS!

Tobacco growers of Boone County, Kentucky, are requested to meet at Burlington, Kentucky, Saturday, March 1st, 1902, at 10 o'clock a. m., to organize against the encroachments of the tobacco trust, and to appoint seven delegates to attend a convention to be held at Carrollton, Kentucky, Tuesday, March 4th, 1902, to incorporate into an association protective of the interests of the tobacco growers. Every tobacco grower is interested in this matter as it will mean an advance in prices and a protection of their interests which cannot be obtained in any other manner. Henry, Owen, Carroll, Trimble, Gallatin and Oldham counties, Ky., and Switzerland county, Indiana, have formed organizations, and Gallatin county members have been delegated to come to Boone county and help put it in line. It is to your interest to attend.

In order to fill your precriptions we have reduced the price so that you can find no excuse for patronizing the physician that prescribes. Eskew, Walton, Ky.

ENTERTAINMENT

—BY—

Will Smith Ransom,

Union Baptist Church,

UNION, KY.,

Saturday Night, Feb. 22.

Monodramatic Reading of the Comedy of David Garrick. Mr. Ransom always entertains and instructs.

This entertainment is under the auspices of the Ladies of the Aid Society. Everybody invited.

James Clore has for sale yet, a lot of nice shelled corn. Price, 80 cents per bushel.

T. J. Clore & Son, of Bellevue, restocked several larders in Burlington, last Friday with meat and lard.

In the last few weeks several communications have been received at this office too late to be put in type.

The oldest inhabitant can not recall a winter when there was as long a period of sleighing as has been enjoyed this winter.

Ladies of the "Aid Society" will be pleased to have your presence at their entertainment at the Union Baptist church, next Saturday night.

Sheriff B. B. Allphin says he is willing to give one-half of his 250 acre farm down on Mudlick, to have the electric road come within one mile of it.

Ward Coleman, colored, who has been holding a position in Cincinnati for three months came home, last Monday. His colored friends gave him an ovation.

To-day is the sale of the personal estate of the late George Anderson, of Pt. Pleasant neighborhood. Also the sale of W. W. Botts, of the Bellevue neighborhood.

The burning of the dairy house of Joseph Scott, near Florence, caused him $200 or $300 loss. His churn and some other articles were saved. The fire resulted from a defective flue.

A hound belonging to James Botts, of the Plattsburg neighborhood, went mad a few days ago, and as a result William and James Botts killed all their fox hounds, twelve in number.

There was a terrible smashup of freight trains on the Q. and C. near Crittenden, last Sunday. Every man of the two crews, except Ottis Acra, who jumped, was badly hurt, one being killed outright. Freight cars were piled up on and along the track, suspending traffic all day.

A flue at John Kirkpatrick's residence burned out last Friday night about 6 o'clock, and at first caused considerable excitement. It being thought the house was burning. The alarm was given and the "bucket brigade" was on its way to the scene when the "fire-out" bell tapped.

Tuesday's sales were of the usual limited amount for that day. There seemed to be great interest showing in the higher grades of good Old Tobacco and some very fine prices were realized. The new crop did not show any change over the close of the previous week.—Western Tobacco Journal.

"I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for a number of years and have no hesitancy in saying that it is the best remedy for coughs, colds and croup I have ever used in my family. I have not words to express my confidence in this Remedy.—Mrs. J. A. Moore, North Star, Mich. For sale by all Druggists.

Jailer Adams furnishes the Recorder with the following jail statistics: From January 1, 1895 to and including December 31, 1901, there were 30 persons in the jail. Of that number 21 were white and 9 colored. Four of them went to the penitentiary, 2 to the asylum and the remainder went free.

Dropped in at N. E. Riddell's law office, last Friday, and found it a network of wires, interspersed with telephone boxes. He and Otto Crisler, our local electrician, had been working on a plan of running a four wire line with only three wires, and the tests they were making showed that such a system would be a success.

Corn was never so scarce in Grant county as it is to day. The majority of the farmers of the county will be buying corn in the next twenty days. Corn in the local market is retailing at $1.00 per bushel. It is like feeding money to feed corn just now but stock can only be kept alive this vigorous weather with plenty of heat producing food and corn is the best in the world for that purpose.—Williamstown Courier.

Working Overtime.

Eight hour laws are ignored by those tireless little workers—Dr. King's New Life Pills. Millions are always at work night and day, curing Indigestion, Biliousness, Constipation, Sick Headache and all Stomach, Liver and Bowel troubles. Easy, pleasant, safe, sure. Only 25c at W. F. McKim's, Burlington; Union Drug Store, Union; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; H. L. Eskew's, Walton; O. N. Grant's, Bellevue.

The residence of the widow of the late R. J. Clutterbuck, in Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, burned one night last week, the fire being discovered about midnight. Very little of the contents of the house were saved. Mrs. Clutterbuck thinks the fire originated in a pantry, as there was where she first discovered it. The building was an old land mark, and was a log structure weatherboarded and ceiled. The house and furniture were insured in the Boone county company for $700.

Bucklen's Arnica Salve

Has world-wide fame for marvellous cures. It surpasses any other salve, lotion, ointment or balm for Cuts, Corns, Burns, Boils, Sores, Felons, Ulcers, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Fever Sores, Chapped Hands, Skin Eruptions; Infallible for Piles. Cure guaranteed. Only 25c at W. F. Mckim's, Burlington; J. G. Oelsner's, Florence; Union Drug Store, Union; H. L. Eskew, Walton; O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

Thursday afternoon, there was a very enthusiastic meeting held at the court house in the interest of the promotion of the building of an electric line of railroad from Milton, Trimble county, to Covington or Cincinnati. The meeting was called to order by Robert Wood, our popular County Attorney, who introduced Ex-Congressman Albert S. Berry, of Newport, who came by special invitation to assist in getting the enterprise started. The subscription papers will be in the hands of the committee so that anyone can subscribe to them. Gallatin county ought to raise $500 without delay. It is the best chance this section has ever had to get a railroad without any great outlay, and it would mean thousands of dollars to the material advancement and prosperity of this quarter.—Warsaw Independent.

Last Friday evening witnessed a gay party given by the younger set of young people by Miss Callie Lee Clore, at her home near Hebron. Miss Callie is a jolly little youth of 14, and entertained her little group of friends in a charming manner. After spending some time at various games the guests retired to the kitchen, where quite a while was devoted to the ever pleasant pastime of pulling candy. Returning to the parlor they were again amused until the wee sma' hours told them that all children should be at home. Those present were Misses Martha Reeves, Lizzie Clore, Olive Brown, Eva Aylor, Ola and Flora Dye, Messrs. Mike Clore, Henry Brown, Emmet Riddell, Henry Beall, Clifford, Claud and Lowell Tanner.

Gold in Lincoln County.

Walton, Ky., Feb. 2, 1902.

To the Editor of the Recorder:

Dear Sir—Inclosed please find sample of Lincoln county, Ky., "gold," which was sent to me by Mr. C. L. Hensley, a farmer near Ringsville, but formerly from Boone county., with the request that after I examined it I would forward it to the RECORDER, with the explanation of from where it came, and by whom sent, which I take pleasure in doing. As I have a small farm there, I wish it might prove the "real stuff."

Yours truly, J. G. CRISLER.

The sack has been duly received at this office, and the sample seems to be a rich one. The RECORDER hopes the mine will prove a bonanza to both Mr. Hensley and Mr. Crisler.

ON THE ROAD SIDE

Henry Osborn Found Almost Frozen To Death.

About 6:30 o'clock last Thursday morning, Hubert Beemon, who lives on the pike about midway between Burlington and Florence, found Henry (Mucks) Osborn, colored, on the side, lying in a fence corner on the road side near Jacob Rouse's, this side of Limaburg. Osborn was frozen until he was unconscious and helpless. Calling Ben Vaughn, who chanced not to be far off, to his assistance, Osborn was loaded into Mr. Beemon's buggy and brought on home, when medical aid was summoned. At first it was thought the man was frozen beyond recovery, but late in the afternoon he began coming around, and, although considerably disfigured, he is still in the ring. On Wednesday afternoon Osborn took a drove of sheep to Erlanger for Jas. A. Duncan, and after loading them it is supposed he filled up on whisky, which he denies, and started home, which trip he was making very slowly as he was seen by different persons, the last one of whom saw him about 11 o'clock about one and a half miles from where he was found in the morning. Osborn says he saw two or three Burlington teams pass him before daylight, but he was unable to call them, and he lay on the ice and snow until Mr. Beemon found him.

Col. Berry's Letter.

The following letter from Col. A. S. Berry is on a very important subject, and explains itself:

My Dear Sir:—I wrote Judge Lassing, also Mr. B. W. Adams and several other in regard to a meeting in your county to consider the proposition of an Electric R. R., from Carrollton to Cincinnati, along the valley of the Ohio, and thence leaving the valley at Sugar Creek or Big Bone, through your county to Erlanger. I would like such a meeting called at an early day—say next Thursday, inviting all who feel an interest in such movement to attend.

We had a fine meeting in Carrollton last week and a very good one at Warsaw today, in the two counties about $2,000 have been raised. The money to be used in putting the same on paper, with a fair prospectus of the possibilities and advantages of the same, &c. I wish you would, with others, take some interest in getting up this meeting. It would infuse new life into your county. I would be glad to attend and give my views on the subject. My impression is the money can be secured from capitalists out of the State for its construction; I would be pleased to hear from you on the subject. The route will be fixed by the engineers. I think the meeting should be held in your town and possibly one at Union, but will leave that to your judgment.

I am very truly yours,

A. S. BERRY.

Mr. Wheeler Got Rid of His Rheumatism.

"During the winter of 1896 I was so lame in my joints, in fact all over my body, that I could hardly hobble around, when I bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm. From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Norwood, N. Y. For sale by all Druggists.

It is remarkable what peculiar antics some right active people can cut on an icy pavement at short notice sometimes on short notice.

Personal Mentions.

Mr. Mary Carpenter and son, Claude, are getting better.

Atty. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, was transacting business at the court house Monday.

Mr. James A. Smith, the Gunpowder orator, made the RECORDER a pleasant call Monday.

Geo. Kreyleich and wife, of Idlewild neighborhood, were calling in Burlington, Monday.

Miss Jessie Gordon returned home Sunday from a two weeks visit with her grand-parents near Hebron.

William Kirkpatrick, of Limaburg neighborhood, got his feet frosted while moving to his new home, one day last week.

D. Beall, of Hebron, has sojourned in Burlington considerably this month, looking closely after the welfare of his grandson No. 2.

Elza Harper, of Hebron, was in town, one day last week. According to Elza last summer's drought is bearing down heavily on him.

A. O. Hall has had his pension increased from $8 to $12 per month, and the increase carries several months' back pay with it.

Rev. Pollitt and wife were guests at Judge Riddell's, Sunday. He preached for the M. E. congregation Saturday night and Sunday.

C. K. Whitson, one of Verona's hustling young business men, was in town one day last week, and qualified as deputy county clerk.

A Hebron sleighing party came over to Dr. Rouse's one evening last week, where they enjoyed themselves pulling candy for several hours.

Mrs. O. P. Conner was with her daughter, Mrs McAtee, of Ludlow, for several days, she and her little daughter both having had measles.

Commodore Benjamine Wilson and Dr. Hopkins, of Rabbit Hash, were in town Friday. The former obligated anew as one of County Clerk Adam's rural cabinet.

J. S. Surface, of Gunpowder, is an agent for the History of the Boone Co. Charge, published by Rev. Lentz, and he will be glad to furnish you a copy, if you desire it.

Bert Rouse was in town Saturday riding in his goose neck (not rubber-neck) cutter, and the bells he had on his steed made as much noise as the steam whistle on a coffee-mill.

Prof. L. H. Voshell, of Union, was in town Monday. The people in this part of the county are enthusiastic over the prospects of a traction road passing through their neighborhood.

Mr. Pericles Grubbs and sister, Miss Joe, of Taylorsport, were guests at Dr. Rouse's Sunday. They sang for the Christian Endeavor that afternoon, and the audience was delighted with their music.

Jas. A. Huey and wife, of Union, were guests of County Attorney Castleman and wife on Wednesday of last week. Mr. Huey's handsome cutter was drawn by a very fancy young animal, the kind for which he is famous.

A Clay Center, Kansas paper says of the ex-Burlingtonian, C. C. Coleman:

"Mr. C. C. Coleman, who is now in the running for the nomination for Attorney General, was born in Boone county, Kentucky, about 48 years ago, and after such education as comes to boys whose parents are in moderate circumstances, came west. Clay Center caught his fancy and at nineteen he commenced right here to hustle for himself, without friends or influence other than those naturally attaching to a strong personality, chuck full of magnetism, earnestness and ability. Of course he taught school, as do nearly all young men who wish to utilize brain as well as muscle when "broke" and brought up against the pitiless proposition of making an honest living. A year or so of this, a couple of years of law reading, admission to the bar, marriage, a few years of drudgery as deputy register of deeds while waiting for clients, then four years at the law end of a big real estate firm, where he learned land law to a comparative finish and incidently learned also a few of the primary arts of speculation—managed to keep Mr. Coleman plenty busy until 1885, when he took a large part of his cash surplus, bought a magnificent law library, cut loose from the narrow confines of land and loan practice and commenced business for himself.

"Then followed years of watching, waiting, working, worrying maybe, until success, honors, position, became manifest. In the meantime he served his county well as county attorney won some big cases, lost others, reached the highest state position in masonry, did other creditable things, always a splendid citizen, liberal, public spirited, trusted, loyal to city, county and state, through all manner of good and evil repute. Now right in the line of his chosen profession he seeks more honorable preferment, with every man, woman and child in his home county close behind him to give encouragement to an enlarged ambition. Every one of them would note with pleasure his advancement, because he has earned success through hard knocks and is abundantly qualified in all the requisites for the larger life. When a man's neighbors for miles and miles around, after years of test, give sanction, he is all right and will do to tie to. Mr. Coleman is an all around lawyer, schooled in the varied practice of all the courts from low to high. Such a man is necessarily well equipped. The country does not develope specialists but rounds out and completes its graduates until they are ready for emergency at any turn in the proceedings. Them, too, this man, is a good fellow, with a laugh, that is infectious. He enjoys life, is a fine campaigner, understands state politics, has grace, ease and dignity at command. No man or set of men on the face of the earth could control him in any direction other than that which his judgment dictated, and his judgment would be as cool and self-restrained in storm as in sunshine.

"Clay county and the Fifth district will put its seal of unqualified commendation on Coleman from start to finish."

Schley and Santiago

BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.

The Intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, who was aboard the U. S. S. Brooklyn during the action and throughout the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the Author during the fight.

The Most Sensational Book of the Day.

The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet, TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear-Admiral Schley.

"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrograde Movement;" the "Loop;" the "Coaling Problem," and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said:—"Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed just as much courage to fly about taking photographs as it did to work the guns."

THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

No subject has ever been before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the full particulars of the Heros of Santiago. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitnesses saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Outfit and books now ready. Send seven 2-cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY.

Price $1.50, $1.75, $2.25, $2.75, according to style of binding desired.

A NEW DEPARTURE.

Important Ruling by Postmaster General Payne.

Hereafter Fourth-Class Postmasters Will Be Removed From Office For Cause Only—Decision By the Postal Department.

Washington, Feb. 15.—An official statement of the new policy that hereafter will govern appointments of fourth class postmasters was made by Postmaster General Payne, who said:

"The policy of the administration is not to make removals of fourth class postmasters without cause. The removal of an officer is a proposition entirely different from the naming of a successor at the expiration of a postmaster's commission. It is, therefore, desired that removals be not made except for some good reason, which affects the service, or the request of a senator or representative indorsing the petition for such a change made by patrons of the office in question. In some sections of the country, notably in the south, not represented by republican representatives in congress, the demands for changes in fourth class post offices are made, not for the good of the service, or for any proper purpose but to subserve the interests of rival factions. The administration does not believe that the officers of the government should be used to subserve the interests of any petty faction in states where there is hardly a semblance of organization in the party. To prevent this abuse it is necessary to discourage these arbitrary removals. No order on this subject, however, has been issued.

ANOTHER HUNTING TRIP.

Ex-President Cleveland and Party Goes to Currick Sound.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 15.—Ex-President Cleveland, accompanied by Van Dyke, of Princeton university, and a party of friends, arrived here on the steamer Pennsylvania on their way to the Back Bay Gunning club for a two week's duck hunt. They were met at the wharf by Joseph Seelinger, of Norfolk, president of the club, and driven to the Norfolk and Southern depot, where they took the train for Currick Sound. The ex-president looked the picture of health.

A TERRIBLE MISTAKE.

Eleven Men, Three of Whom Will Die, Injured in a Pennsylvania Mine.

Pottsville, Pa., Feb. 14.—Eleven men, three of whom may die, were injured at the Boston North colliery, St. Nicholas, Thursday, in being hoisted by mistake up to the dumping chute. The men on the way to work got into a "gunboat" to descend the slope into the mine. They gave the signal to be lowered, but by mistake the engineer started the machinery the wrong way and the car with its human freight started up the trestled slope to the dumping chute. The men were rapidly hoisted to what seemed like certain death. They clung to the sides of the car as it neared the top of the plane and went over the knuckle, but were unable to hold out when the "gunboat" was turned on an angle of 90 degrees. They went tumbling down the chute, and were terribly cut and bruised. The engineer, Wm. Bevan, can not be found.

THE CRUISER OLYMPIA.

The Historic Vessel Arrives in the Port of New York.

New York, Feb. 14.—The United States protected cruiser Olympia, Capt. Henry W. Lyon commanding, came into the harbor Thursday from Boston and dropped anchor off Tompkinsville, S. I., about 1 o'clock. The Olympia comes here to participate in the naval reception of Prince Henry, of Prussia, after which she will proceed south to become the flagship of Rr. Adm. F. J. Higginson, commanding the North Atlantic squadron, now in West Indian waters. The Olympia, the famous flagship of Adm. Dewey in the Manila fight, has been at the Charlestown navy yard at Boston for two years, in which time she has been completely refitted, overhauled and modernized at a total cost of $400,000. The vessel was placed in commission on January 25 and left Boston for this port February 11.

A COMPANY OF MILLIONAIRES.

Articles of Incorporation of the Philippine Exploration Co. Filed.

San Francisco, Feb. 14.—Articles of incorporation of the Philippine Exploration Co. were filed Thursday with a capital stock of $500,000, of which $180,000 had been subscribed. It is stated that the incorporation is merely preliminary to the formation of a company of millionaires with a capital of $250,000,000. The principal objects of the concern will be to colonize the island of Mindanao, the largest of the Philippine group, build trading posts, acquire lands for agricultural and mining purposes, build railroads, erect sugar and other manufactories, construct water works and to inaugurate a steamship line between San Francisco and the island.

FIRE IN A Y. M. C. A. BUILDING.

Thirty Boys on the Top Floor Escaped Down the Ladders.

Geneva, N. Y., Feb. 14.—Geneva suffered a $100,000 fire Thuraday night. It broke out in the Y. M. C. A. building at 6 o'clock and in ten minutes that four story structure was a mass of flames. Thirty boys in the gymnasium on the top floor escaped down the ladders in their gymnasium suits. Two young women employed by M. H. Hammon & Co., nurserymen, escaped on the roof to the next building. Offers to aid came in from 30 miles distant, the various village departments being able to see the flames or their reflection.

SMALLPOX AT DES MOINES.

Churches and Theaters Closed and Public Gatherings Prohibited.

Des Moines, Ia., Feb. 14.—The city council of Des Moines Thursday decided to close all churches, theaters, and to prohibit all public gatherings until the smallpox epidemic shall have abated. The decision will put a stop to the bitter congressional campaign which is raging in this district between Judge Prouty and Congressman Hull, as well as the municipal campaign.

Charged With Arson.

Utica, N. Y., Feb. 14.—David Thompson, custodian of the Columbia Street theater, this city, was arrested Thursday evening charged with having set fire to the Maennerchor building in which the theater was located and which was destroyed by fire Wednesday morning, causing a loss of $50,000 and the death of one man. Considerable mystery surrounds the case.

Found Guilty of Fraud.

Norfolk, Va., Feb. 14.—Samuel Davidson, a city councilman; Joseph Smith and Richard Jones, the latter a Negro, were found guilty of fraud while acting as election judges in the Fourth ward here last November, and Thursday were sentenced to three months in jail and fined $200 each. They appealed.

May Raise Paper Prices.

New York, Feb. 14.—The 25th annual meeting of the American Paper and Pulp association began at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel. It was reported that if the prices of raw material continued to advance the price of paper would be forced up.

Letter From the Prince to Dewey.

Washington, Feb. 14.—It is said that a lengthy letter has been forwarded to Adm. George Dewey, by Prince Henry of Prussia, by a warm personal friend, which was sent by the prince from Berlin.

THE AIRSHIP WRECKED

Dirigible Balloon Collapsed While Over Monaco Bay.

Fearing An Explosion of the Oil the Professor Ripped the Case and the Machine Dropped to the Bay Below.

Monaco, Feb. 15.—Santos-Dumont's dirigible balloon collapsed at sea. Santos Dumont was rescued unhurt.

The accident was due to the balloon not being fully inflated.

A number of steam yachts and launches, including the prince of Monaco's yacht, Princess Alice, and a launch belonging to Eugene Higgins, with parties on board, were cruising about the bay with the intention of following the balloon. Cheers greeted Santos-Dumont as his airship rose and its head pointed for the middle of the bay. It was soon noticed, however, that instead of maintaining its usual equilibrium, the balloon rose and pitched in a way that created considerable anxiety among the spectators. At the same time a squall burst from Tete de Chien and Santos-Dumont tilted the hold of his balloon upwards in order to disengage the guide rope. But in so doing the ballast shifted and the oil used to run the motor began to spread. Fearing an explosion the inventor pulled the emergency cord. This ripped the envelope of the balloon which at once began rapidly to descend. Santos-Dumont did not lose his head. He could easily be seen from the shore watching the various parts of the airship.

In the meanwhile the steam launches in the bay were making toward the spot where it was supposed the balloon would fall. The first to approach was the Princess Alice, and those on board seized the balloon's guide rope, which somehow had become disentangled. At the moment this was done a sharp crackling sound made by the motor could be heard and the screw was seen again to revolve. The balloon, which was then almost in the sea, rose slowly for a few moments, but the motor stopped again and the airship descended a second time until Santos-Dumont was immersed up to his arm pits in the water. At five minutes of 3 the end of the balloon burst and the prince of Monaco, who was on board the launch, then gave orders to rescue Santos-Dumont from his perilous position. The launch came alongside the half deflated balloon of the airship which threatened at any moment to smother Santos-Dumont. The latter was half pulled and half clambered over the gunwale into the boat.

With the sea water dripping from his clothes and looking like a wet rat the inventor stood in the bows of the launch shouting directions for the salvage of his airship. It was impossible to save more than the silk envelope. The motor had to be left to its fate and it sank.

DIED IN THE PRISON HOSPITAL.

Typhoid Fever Carried Off a Life Prisoner in the Michigan Pen.

Jackson, Mich., Feb. 15.—Elmer Quimby, aged 38, who was sentenced for life to the state penitentiary here from Ithaca Gratiot county, because he had caused the death of his children by poison last May, died in the prison hospital. He had been ill with typhoid fever. His wife is now serving a sentence in the house of correction in Detroit for participating in the crime. Quimby died claiming his wife poisoned the children.

THE MEXICAN WEAVEL.

About 240,000 Bales of Texas Cotton Destroyed by the Pest.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Representative Burleson, of Texas, stated to the house committee on agriculture that 240,000 bales of Texas cotton, valued at $10,000,000, were destroyed last year by the Mexican weavel. The committee inserted a $20,000 item in the agricultural appropriation to be available to eradicate the pest.

Culmination of a Feud.

St. Louis, Feb. 15.—Willie Ledger, 16 years of age, was shot and killed by Fretwell Shock, a 10-year-old boy. The killing was the culmination of a feud that has long existed between two factions composed of boys. The boys of both factions are the sons of well to do parents.

No Memorial Services.

Havana, Feb. 15.—No memorial services were held here Saturday for the dead of the Maine. No work has been done under the contract made a year ago to remove the wreck of the Maine, which to-day remains in the same position and is a menace to shipping.

Business Failures.

New York, Feb. 15.—Business failures in the United States for the week number 265, as against 247 last week, 226 in this week last year, 199 in 1900, 150 in 1899, and 269 in 1896. Canadian failures number 25, as against 29 last week.

Switchmen's Strike Ended.

Missoula, Mont., Feb. 15.—The switchmen's strike on the Northern Pacific, which has been on since Sunday last, was settled by the acceptance by the division superintendent of every condition named by the strikers in the overtures for an adjustment.

New Judicial District in Texas.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The bill creating a new United States judicial district in Texas with an additional United States district judge was favorably acted upon by the house judiciary committee.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senate—Throughout nearly the entire session of the senate Monday the Philippine tariff bill was under consideration. Mr. Turner (Wash.) concluded his speech begun last Friday on the legal and constitutional phases of the Philippine question. A bill was introduced by Senator Cullom giving to the Spanish claims committee the same power to compel the attendance of claimants and witnesses and to require the production of papers that is exercised by circuit and district courts. Authority is conferred on the commission to punish for contempt.

House—General debate on the oleomargarine bill was closed Monday. The friends of the bill have decided to offer an amendment to make the ten cent tax apply to oleomargarine in imitation of butter "of any shade of yellow."

Washington, Feb. 12.—Senate—A stirring debate on the general Philippine question was precipitated in the senate late Tuesday, the principal participants being Mr. Platt (Ct.) and Mr. Hoar (Mass.). Mr. Teller (Col.) had concluded for the day his argument against the enactment of the pending Philippine tariff bill. Early in the day the senate passed a joint resolution submitting a constitutional amendment changing the time of presidential inaugurations and the termination and commencement of congresses from the 4th of March to the last Thursday in April. The senate agreed to a conference on the pension appropriation bill.

House—The voting on amendments to the oleomargarine bill Tuesday indicated a considerable change of sentiment since last congress, when the bill had 106 majority. While passage of the bill is not endangered, it is not likely that the majority Wednesday, when the final vote is taken, will exceed 30. In committee of the whole two important amendments were adopted, one providing that nothing in the act should be construed to prevent the manufacture and sale of oleomargarine in any state for consumption entirely within such state, and the other to provide for the inspection and branding of renovated or process butter. Bills introduced: To provide for the selection of a site for a United States naval station and dry dock on or near Sabine Pass, or the Neches or Sabine river, Texas; requiring the payment of two per cent. interest on government funds in national banks.

Washington, Feb. 13.—Senate—With the exception of a sharp clash between Mr. Lodge and Mr. Patterson over the matter of admission of representatives of the press to the investigation which the Philippine committee is conducting, the discussion of the Philippine tariff bill in the senate Wednesday was quiet.

House—The house passed the oleomargarine bill. There was no division on the final passage, the real test of strength having been made on a motion to recommit, which was defeated by a majority vote of 34. The provision to require the inspection and branding of renovated butter, which was adopted in committee of the whole Tuesday, was rotated on an aye and nay vote. War claims occupied the attention of the house after the passage of the oleomargarine bill and the day was made notable for the passage of the first bill for the payments of claims of United States citizens arising out of the Spanish war. It carried something over $55,000 for the payment of 202 claims for property taken within the United States for the use of the army. An omnibus bill carrying claims aggregating $2,114,552 for stores and supplies taken from loyal citizens during the civil war also was passed.

Washington, Feb. 14.—Senate—While no definite agreement has been reached a vote on the Philippine tariff bill in the senate seems to be in sight. It appears likely, judging from a discussion of the subject late in the day's session, that the vote may be had next week, although the matter yet is involved in some uncertainty.

House—The house unanimously adopted a resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution of the United States for the election of senators by direct popular vote. There was no demand for time to debate the question. This is the fourth time the house has adopted a similar resolution. Bills passed: To provide for the payment of the claims of confederate officers and soldiers whose horses, side arms and baggage were taken from them by union soldiers contrary to the terms of the surrender of Lee's and Johnson's armies. The amount to be paid under the bill was limited to $50,000; to confer on the Spanish claims commission authority to send for persons and papers and to punish for contempt.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Senate—The bill creating a permanent census office was under consideration Friday for a time, but was not disposed of finally. After the passage of a large number of private pension bills, the senate eulogized the life and character of the late Representative Brosius (Pa.).

House—During the day 125 private pension bills were passed in 37 minutes. House adjourned until Monday. The monotony of a private pension day of the house was enlivened by a sensational speech from Mr. Wheeler (Ky.) in denunciation of what he denominated "flunkeyism" to foreign countries. He took the recent statements emanating from continental cabinets regarding the attitude of Great Britain during the Spanish war as a text for a wholesale attack upon the trend of our recent diplomacy.

Marine Hospitals.

Washington, Feb. 15.—Bills establishing marine hospitals at Pittsburg and at Savannah, Ga., were ordered favorably reported by the house committee on commerce.

THE BRITISH IN A TRAP.

Deadly Fire Poured Into a Company of Mounted Infantry.

The British Were All Fresh From Home and Unused to the Boer Tactics—Maj. Dowell Was Among the Killed.

Pretoria, Feb. 17.—One hundred and fifty mounted infantrymen, while patrolling the Klip river, south of Johannesburg, February 12, surrounded a farm house where they suspected Boers were in hiding. A single Boer broke away from the house and the British started to pursue him. The Boer climbed a kopje, the British following. Immediately a heavy fire was opened upon them from three sides. The British found themselves in a trap and in a position where they were unable to make any defense. Eight of the British officers made a gallant effort and defended the ridge with carbines and revolvers until they were overpowered. The British had two officers and ten men killed and several officers and 40 men wounded before the force was able to fall back under cover of the block house.

London, Feb. 17.—According to special dispatches from Pretoria the mounted infantrymen who were trapped at Klip river were all fresh from home and unused to Boer tactics. The bulk of the casualties occurred during the retreat of the British. The killed included Maj. Dowell, the commander of the force.

Lord Kitchener, in addition to reporting the Klip river affair, says: "A party from the South African constabulary line on the Waterval river encountered, February 10, a superior force of the enemy near Vantonderbek and was driven back with loss."

Durban, Feb. 17.—Mrs. DeWet, in an interview held at the Maritzburg concentration camp, said that two of her sons were still fighting with their father. She regretted that the government had not permitted her to communicate with her husband, and said she was certain he would never surrender. Mrs. DeWet declared she would rather see her husband die than submit.

IN BATANGAS PROVINCE.

Gen. Bell Has Practically Cleaned Up the Insurrection There.

Manila, Feb. 17.—Gen. J. Franklin Bell has practically cleaned up the insurrection in Batangas province, the troops under his command having made a clean sweep of the district. It is not believed that all the insurgent arms have been captured or surrendered, but that a number of them have been taken by the insurgents to other provinces or safely hidden. The increase of robber bands in the provinces of Tayabas and Cavite show the effects of the drastic measures in Batangas and Laguna provinces. Gen. Bell says the people of these latter provinces never realized the terrors of war until they personally experienced its hardships, owing to the closing of the ports and the concentration of the natives in the towns.

Gen. Bell believes that the insurgent leader Malvar is becoming exceedingly unpopular with the Filipinos, and that when the natives cease to fear his vengeance, many will be found willing to betray him.

What has been said of Batangas province applies almost equally to Laguna.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.

Three Thousand Horses Purchased For Use in the British Army.

Salt Lake, Utah, Feb. 17.—Three thousand western horses, known as Cayuses, gathered from the ranges of the inter-mountain states, are to be shipped to South Africa for use in the British army. The animals were purchased by agents of the British army who had been scouring the country for weeks and have been concentrated in corrals in this city and Grand Junction, Col.

THE ANTARTIC EXPLORER.

Chas. E. Borchgrevink Reached Within About 800 Miles of the South Pole.

New York, Feb. 17.—Chas. E. Borchgrevink, the antarctic explorer, arrived in New York Sunday on the steamship Etruria. Sunday night he told in an interview of how in 1899 he and a party of scientists had reached the 78th degree, 50 minutes south latitude, about 800 miles from the south pole, and the most extreme southern point that any man has ever reached.

Business Portion Partially Burned.

Nashville, Tenn., Feb. 17.—About two-thirds of the business portion of Woodbury, Cannon county, burned Sunday night, the loss being estimated from $50,000 to $75,000. The fire forced the long distance telephone operators to move out and the details are meager.

Boston, Feb. 17.—The first annual memorial service here for those who lost their lives on the battleship Maine in Havana harbor was held in Faunell hall Sunday under the the direction of the League of Spanish war veterans.

THE PACIFIC CABLE.

The House Committee Advises Its Construction.

Washington, Feb. 17.—The report filed Monday by the house committee on inter-state and foreign commerce recommending the passage of the bill introduced by Representative Corliss providing for government ownership of a Pacific cable says that the United States, by the annexation of Hawaii and the acquisition of the Philippines and other islands through the ratification of the Paris treaty, assumed the responsibility of maintaining peace in the Pacific ocean. This obligation, the report says, was deliberately undertaken by this country, and approved by the united voice of the people. It adds:

"The future peace and prosperity of these islands will largely depend upon the facilities extended by our government for the advancement and enlightenment of the people there. If we are to continue in control of these islands, the people must be made to understand the character and purpose of our government, and to feel the benefits of enlightened civilization and American liberty. This can be accomplished through the medium of cable communication. The advancement of our own people and the benefit of rapid communication through the telephone, telegraph and railway lines, illustrate the advantages and the progress that may be achieved through cable messages.

"England for 50 years has been constantly acquiring by purchase and construction cable communication with her vast possessions, until she has expended upwards of $100,000,000 for this purpose, and operates her own cables connecting her colonies. England is now constructing a Pacific cable from Vancouver to Australia at a cost of nearly $9,000,000, and in order to give her tradesmen and manufacturers the benefit of this communication at the least possible expense, has fixed a rate of two shillings, or 50 cents, per word for cable messages from Vancouver to New Zealand.

"It, therefore, contend that the Pacific cable should be owned, controlled and operated by the government of the United States. It should be made by an American manufacturer, laid by an American ship under the American flag and operated at actual cost for the dissemination of knowledge, the proper direction of our army and navy, and the advancement of our trade and commerce in the Pacific. The transmission of communication should be held by the state.

Gen. Greely, chief of the signal service of the war department, who has charge of the telegraphic lines owned by the government and who has given the subject careful consideration and constructed several hundred miles of cable under the control of the war department, the report says, estimates the entire cost of a Pacific cable, including ships and all possible contingencies, at $10,000,000, and places the annual expense at $525,000. His judgment is confirmed by the opinion of Rr. Adm. R. B. Bradford, chief of the bureau of equipment of the navy.

A MINIATURE MINT.

A Ten-Year-Old Boy Arrested Charged With Counterfeiting.

Birmingham, Ala., Feb. 17.—On a charge of counterfeiting the police have arrested Ernest Matthews, a 10-year-old boy. He and ten companions are alleged to have received instructions from an old man and established a miniature mint near the North Birmingham iron furnace where they manufactured spurious silver quarters from crude molds. Several of the coins were successfully passed on merchants of the city. Secret service men are working on the case and more arrests are expected. The coins are made of lead and pewter.

Woman Terribly Burned.

Rome, Ga., Feb. 17.—Estelle Swann, the young white woman found in a burning cabin near Rome, is in the hospital here with injuries which it is thought will prove fatal. W. D. Barnes, who claims to be the husband of the woman, is in jail charged with attempting to murder her and afterward burn her body. He says the woman's clothing caught from a fire in the grate. Miss Swann declares Barnes is not her husband.

Wife Murder and Suicide.

Helena, Mont., Feb. 17.—Harold M. Cole, a prominent citizen, connected with the American Smelting and Refining Co., shot his wife and committed suicide Sunday night. Mrs. Cole is a young and handsome woman. The theory is that the husband found some correspondence belonging to his wife, that there was a quarrel and then the tragedy.

KILLED BY SAVAGES.

Part of a French Scientific Party Attacked by Cannibals.

The Remainder of the Mission Came Up, Opened Fire on the Cannibals and Put Them to Flight, Killing 32.

Paris, Feb. 17.—La Patrie publishes a letter received from M. Rouyer, a survivor of the massacre of a French scientific mission by cannibals at Sileraka, New Guinea, January 1.

M. Rouyer relates that the yacht Salvatti, with the mission on board, had anchored off the coast of New Guinea and that several of the explorers landed. After an apparently friendly reception from the natives the latter treacherously attacked them during the night, murdering 25 of the party, including Baron Villars, Count DeSaint Remy and Mm. Hagenbeck and Vries and wounding 33, including the writer of the letter, M. Rouyer, the chief of the mission, and another Frenchman named Reimer.

M. Rouyer writes: "We were all sleeping peacefully when there was a great uproar and we were attacked by hundreds of natives carrying torches. Several of us were felled to the ground with clubs, hatchets and spears. Others were overpowered, carried away and bound to trees. I was among this number. I received a blow on the head from a club and fainted. When I recovered consciousness at 5 o'clock in the morning I found myself tied hand and foot and surrounded by savages, who, believing me to be dead, were keeping me for themselves. I saw the body of Baron Villars near me, bound to a tree. His body was naked, his head had been split open, his eyes had been gouged out and his groin was horribly mutilated. The Count DeSaint Remy had been decapitated and his head stuck on the end of a spear as a trophy. M. Hagenbock was spitted on a bamboo and was being roasted over a fire. The savages were about to cut him up. I waited my fate. I was afraid to move. My head hurt me dreadfully. All around me the ground was strewn with corpses. Suddenly a great clamor arose, followed by a fusillade. I opened my eyes and saw Dr. Foriter and the remainder of the mission from the yacht firing on the cannibals. I shouted and the rescuers ran to me and cut the bonds which bound me to the tree. The cannibals fled, leaving 32 dead. The clothes of M. Veyes were found, but his body was missing. He had evidently been devoured by the savages during the night."

THE LIBERAL TROOPS.

Castro's Forces Repulsed Them Twice at Agua Dulce.

Panama, Feb. 17.—A government soldier who was a prisoner in the camp of the liberal general, Herrera, made his escape and arrived here. He reports that last week an Indian chief named Lorenzo attacked the government forces under the command of Gen. Castro, at Agua Dulce, and was defeated. Reinforced by 800 men sent by Gen. Herrera, Lorenzo made another attack on Castro's forces and was again repulsed. The government gunboat steamed from here Sunday morning on the lookout for the Nicaraguan gunboat Momotombo, which is believed to be bringing coal, provisions and ammunition to the liberals.

ON HIS WEDDING TOUR.

Edward McFarland, Leading Resident of Hawaii, Dies in Chicago.

Chicago, Feb. 17.—Edward McFarland, a leading resident of Hawaii and proprietor of the Royal Hawaiian hotel, died Sunday at the Auditorium hotel from acute pneumonia. Mr. McFarland was married but two weeks ago to Miss Florence Ballinger, of San Francisco. The couple were en route to New York on their wedding tour when Mr. McFarland contracted a severe cold which developed into pneumonia. The body will be taken to San Francisco for burial.

The Transport Wright.

Manila, Feb. 17.—The United States transport Wright, which sank in 15 feet of water November 28 last, by striking an uncharted rock at the entrance of San Jacinto harbor and which was successfully raised this month, has arrived at Cavite in tow of the gunboat Wompatuck. The Wright has six holes in her bottom which have been temporarily patched. She will be dry-docked immediately.

Four Lives Lost in a Collision.

Marshalltown, Ia., Feb. 17.—Four lives were lost in a head-on collision on the Iowa Central one mile north of Gifford Snuday, a light engine, northbound, crashing into a passenger train. A number of passengers were slightly injured. Engineer Frew, of the light engine, should have cleared the passenger train at Gifford, but for some reason did not do so.

Evangelist Needham Dies Suddenly.

Philadelphia, Feb. 17.—Rev. George Carter Needham, the noted evangelist, died suddenly of neuralgia of the heart at his home at Narberth, a suburb of this city. He returned last week from a three week's evangelistic campaign through Tennessee.

Queen to Sign Treaty.

Madrid, Feb. 17.—The queen regent signed the treaty of friendship with the United States Monday. Gen. Weyler, the minister of war, will submit to the cortes a proposal to reduce the Spanish army by four army corps.

SEVEN MEN KILLED.

Huge Boulder Crashes Into a Caboose Car.

Little Rock, Ark., Feb. 15.—Seven men were killed and at least 14 were seriously injured by a huge boulder, weighing 15 tons, crashing into the caboose of a work train on the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf railroad, 20 miles west of Little Rock. The work train was headed west, the engine pushing six cars and a caboose. It was in charge of Conductor J. R. Gamble, Engineer Nazor and Fireman W. H. Evans. As the train was passing under the high bluffs bordering the river two miles west of Little Maumelle, the crew saw a heavy rock rolling down the steep declivity, having been detached from the hillside by the rains. The train was going slowly, but was almost upon the rock when it struck the track. Engineer Nazor reversed his engine at once, but the train struck it with almost full force. The caboose was at the head of the train and was shivered into splinters. Most of the men who were killed and injured were in the caboose. There was a crew of 54 men, white and colored. Just back of the caboose were three cars of sand and many of the men were buried underneath the sand, which was thrown forward by the terrific impact. Six men are known to have been killed outright. Three were left on the scene and three were brought to Little Rock on the train that was dispatched to the scene as soon as the news could be sent to the city. Fifteen injured were brought to Little Rock and are now at St. Vincent's infirmary. One of the most desperately injured died on the way to the hospital from the depot.

It is believed there are others killed or buried under the sand at the scene of the wreck, as there are several missing, and as yet unaccounted for. A crew of workmen are clearing the wreck and looking for the bodies.

If the engineer had not stopped the train when he did the entire train must have been hurled down the embankment and all on board killed.

Conductor Gamble had a close call. Two trucks passed over him but he stooped down and the first did not touch him. The second passed over his foot, crushing it so badly that it may have to be amputated.

IMPROVING RAPIDLY.

Theodore Roosevelt, Jr., Partakes of Solid Food—May Sit Up Monday.

Groton, Mass., Feb. 15.—Theodore Roosevelt, jr., has improved very rapidly and for the first time since his illness he partook of solid food, meat being included in the diet. The Gammel and Potter boys also partook of meat. The boys rested comfortably all day. Dr. Shattuck, of Boston, has discontinued his visits, leaving Dr. Warren, of Groton, in charge. Dr. Jewett, of Boston, spends his time at the infirmary, carrying out the orders of Dr. Warren. At each taking of the chart, the respiration, pulse and temperature of the patients were normal and from all appearances the convalescence was uninterrupted. It is hoped that the boys will be able to sit up by Monday. Young Roosevelt's lungs are rapidly clearing with the possibility of resolution being completed in a very few days. All the out of town newspaper correspondents here left Groton.

Rome, Feb. 15.—The pope has sent his congratulations to President Roosevelt on the improved condition of young Roosevelt.

At 4:15 p. m. Thursday the president, accompanied by Mr. Cortelyou Mr. Barnes, the executive clerk; Principal Peabody, of the school, and two secret service officers, left in a carriage for Groton Station. A special train was in readiness.

Washington, Feb. 14.—President Roosevelt and party reached the national capital Friday forenoon.

THE CREW WAS SAVED.

The Schooner Osprey Wrecked on a Reef Off Cape San Blas.

Pensacola, Fla., Feb. 15.—The schooner Osprey, owned by F. E. Saunders & Co., of this port, is a total wreck on a reef ten miles off Cape San Blas. The crew of six men were picked up by the Weiskettle, of the same company, and much of the property of the vessel was saved. News has been received that the schooner Contest, one of the finest of the Saunders & Co.'s vessels, which sunk at Triangle reef, near Vera Cruz, was a total loss. The crew are safe and are being cared for by the United States consul.

Third Pair of Twins.

Wheeling, W. Va., Feb. 15.—The home of John D. Marsh, dairyman of this city, has been blessed by the arrival of a third pair of twins—boys. The other children, two boys and two girls, are living and are healthy.

Contemptuous Use of the Flag.

Boston, Feb. 15.—For using an old United States flag as a bag in his business of collecting rags, Meyer Ratzman was fined $20 in the municipal court, the charge being "contemptuous use of the United States flag."

No Truth in the Report.

Belgrade, Servia, Feb. 15.—There is no truth in the report circulated by a news agency in the United States that two soldiers of King Alexander's body guard, while on duty outside his apartments, were recently chloroformed and killed.

Theater Named by Popular Vote.

Jackson, Tenn., Feb. 15.—The new theater recently erected here will be named the Marlowe. The selection of the name was made by popular vote, and of the 6,000 votes cast Miss Julia Marlowe received over 4,000.

STATE NEWS HAPPENINGS.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

Doings of the Kentucky Legislature at Frankfort.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 10.—The house committee on constitutional amendments reported favorably Mr. Parker's bill submitting to popular vote a constitutional amendment proposing to remove the state capital to Lexington. Mr. Barton's joint resolution urging Kentucky members of congress to support all bills for the improvement of Licking river was unanimously adopted. The remainder of the sessions in both houses was devoted to routine matters. Only a bare quorum was present.

Frankfort, Feb. 11.—Senate—Bills introduced Monday: To amend section 4443, Kentucky Statutes, by providing that school district taxes must be collected from delinquents in 20 days from the time set out in the notices by the trustees for the sale of the property; creating Beckham county out of parts of Carter, Lewis and Elliott, and Olive Hill will be the county seat; to regulate investment and deventure companies by requiring them to set aside a surplus and keep it in the hands of the state treasurer, and by other restrictions to protect the investors.

House—A message was received from the governor, announcing his approval of the resolution passed by the legislature, indorsing the election of United States senators by the people. The Newcomb bill, amending the law relating to the dower rights of women, by giving courts discretion in the sale of dower property, was passed by 42 to 20. The Parker bill, providing for submitting a constitutional amendment permitting the removal of the state capital to Lexington, to a vote of the people, was made a special order for Wednesday at 10:30 o'clock.

Frankfort, Feb. 13.—Senate—The session of the senate was brief. Among the bills offered was one by Mr. Flemming placing Latonia, Kenton county, in the fifth class. John H. Westover and other Grant county politicians have secured enough members of the congressional redistricting committee to vote against taking Grant county out of the Sixth and placing it in the Ninth congressional district.

House—The lower house adopted a bill by Mr. Barton, of Pendleton county, to submit to the people, at the election of November, 1903, the question of removing the state capital to either Louisville or Lexington. The action is by no means final, and a compromise is being talked of between the factions which may yet result in a compromise bill carrying an appropriation to build a capital here.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 14.—When the house convened Thursday the Reniker bill to repeal the McCain tobacco law was taken up. The law prevents the warehouse men from charging commissions to farmers for sales, and regulates regulations. Thornton, of Owen, urged the defeat of the repeal bill. He said the law was a protection to farmers, and its repeal would ruin them. The McCain law was discussed pro and con until 12:30. Clark's amendment to strike out the emergency clause of the anti-McCain law bill was adopted. The bill was then put on its passage, and passed by 63 to 22, and a motion to reconsider was tabled. On motion of Mr. Renick, of Clark, the house adjourned at 12:40 o'clock out of respect to Joseph Blackburn, jr., who died here Wednesday.

Frankfort, Feb. 15.—Senate—The senate passed a bill giving interurban electric railway companies all the rights and privileges of steam railroad companies. The general assembly did little Friday but receive a goodly number of new bills to be added to the 600 already introduced. The session is more than half gone and but few of the later ones have any chance to become law.

House—The house passed the Thompson bill giving councils of fourth class cities absolute power in fixing boundaries of their cities. Bills introduced: Legalizing "slave times" marriages of Negroes to make children legitimate; making it unlawful to point deadly weapon at another; requiring vestibules for street cars after November 1, 1902; making all turnpikes in the state free roads; allowing adjutant general to organize naval militia so as to get government appropriation; to prevent the sale of blended whisky; requiring railroad companies to furnish one cuspidor for each seat on passenger trains.

Jo Blackburn, Jr., Dead.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 13.—Jo Blackburn, jr., son of United States Senator Jo C. S. Blackburn, died Wednesday morning with a complication of diseases. He died at the home of Col. Eph Lillard, warden of the state penitentiary, where he had been ill for several weeks. The deceased was 35 years of age and unmarried. He had been in official position in Washington. The remains will be interred in the state cemetery.

Refused Franchise.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 13.—Mr. Harold C. Beatty, secretary of the Blue Grass Traction Co., stated Wednesday night that Versailles would be left out of the system, because the city council refused a franchise or to permit them to enter the city. Midway may be selected.

Prof. Baldwin Arrested.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—Prof. Baldwin, arrested at Chillicothe, O., is wanted here on a warrant charging him with a felony. He disappeared from here December 15. He is charged with the theft of $800, stolen while acting as a spirit medium.

Four Men Pardoned.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 15.—Gov. Beckham Friday afternoon pardoned before trial Edward and Talbott Garrard, Daniel Wood and John Lucas, indicted for the murder of D. T. Holland, in Clay county, December 3, 1900.

BATTLE IN THE STREETS.

Two Men Mortally Wounded at Richmond By Well-Aimed Shots.

Richmond, Ky., Feb. 14.—A sensational pitched battle occurred in the streets here Thursday between James Estill, Leslie Estill and Shelton Chambers, as the result of which Leslie Estill and Chambers will die. Chambers was twice wounded, once in the abdomen and once in the breast. Leslie Estill received three of the balls from Chambers' revolver. James Estill came out of the fight without a scratch.

The men were drinking and quarreled about a trivial matter. Revolvers were drawn and 15 shots were fired. The affair created intense excitement. In spite of the fact that the fight occurred in the open street, no passersby were hit by wild bullets.

A TRAIL OF BLOOD.

The Stains on the Snow Led to the Hollow Where the Woman Froze.

Hopkinsville, Ky., Feb. 14.—Mrs. Cornelia Cluck, wife of Jacob Cluck, a planter, living near Hawkins, was found frozen to death in a hollow, five miles from here. Her mind had become affected from long illness, and during the absence of her attendant from the room at night she stole from the house in her night clothes. After diligent search in every direction she was finally found by following a trail of blood made by her naked feet, which were terribly lacerated from walking over rough, icy ground. Her husband is reported to be almost crazy with grief.

Hospital Attendants Strike.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 15.—Twenty-three male attendants at the Eastern Kentucky insane asylum, in this city, went on a strike Friday. They had made objections to Dr. Redwine, the superintendent, to the continued employment at the asylum of a fellow attendant, charging that he was a "tale bearer." The asylum commissioners met in special session late Friday night to consider the strike, and the offending attendant was discharged. The strikers returned to their posts.

Train Collided With a Wagon.

Owensboro, Ky., Feb. 15.—A passenger train on the Louisville, Henderson & St. Louis railroad Friday afternoon collided with a wagon containing James Warren, a farmer, and his son at the Henderson road crossing, west of the city. The young man was injured so that he died in a few minutes, and the father can not recover. Both of the horses were killed. The wagon was knocked 30 feet from the track.

New Baseball Park In Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 13.—Geo. Tebeau is going ahead with his plans for his Louisville American Association Baseball club. In company with an architect Teheau visited the grounds at Seventh and Kentucky streets, where he proposes to build a new ball park that will have the advantage of being comparatively close to the business center of Louisville.

Life Had Lost Its Charm.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 15.—J. A. Johnson, a printer employed for the past seven months at the Horace E. Hopkins establishment on Chestnut street, Jeffersonville, a Christian, scoffed at, as he claimed, by one near and dear to him, because he joined church, concluded that life had lost its charm and ended all by swallowing ten cents' worth of morphine.

Will Welcome Prince Henry.

Washington, Feb. 15.—The following Kentucky postmasters were appointed Friday: Little Cypress, Marshall county, Amanda J. Story; Melville, Knott county, Frances Pigman; Schultz, Greenup county, Edward Kelbler.

Used Revolver to Collect Bill.

Mayking, Ky., Feb. 14.—Near White Forge, east of here, in Virginia, Jack Morris, aged 31, was shot and fatally wounded by George Hawkins, aged 40, a wealthy merchant, because he (Morris) refused to settle an old account which was past due.

Legislature Invited to Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 13.—The general assembly of Kentucky will be invited by the Commercial club to come to Louisville on the eve of Washington's birthday and be its guest at an entertainment in their honor.

Thousands of tons of hay from the Northern and Western States are each year marketed in the South. Many of the Southern farmers and planters still hold to the methods of thirty years ago, growing a main crop of cotton, cane or tobacco, and buying meat products and forage instead of producing these on the home estate. This is no longer profitable because of the low prices to which the staple crops have fallen, and there is no valid excuse for the continuance of this practice. The South has as great an abundance of grasses and leguminous forage plants as any other section. While red clover and timothy can not be depended on, there are other hay crops just as reliable for the South as these excellent grasses are for the North. There is perhaps greater need for the cultivation of leguminous crops in the South than in the North. The soils are more liable to the rapid exhaustion of the available plant foods, because the leaching of soluble salts goes on all the year. Following the prodigal methods of the past, the farmer depends on annual applications of commercial fertilizers to repair the waste. Soils can be most profitable built up by increasing the amount of organic matter in them, and the quickest and cheapest way of doing this is by growing leguminous forage crops and feeding them on the estate, returning all the manure to the land. Alfalfa, cowpeas, velvet bean, Florida beggar-weed, melilotus Japan clover, and winter and hairy vetches may all be grown. These forage crops supplemented by cotton-seed meal and hulls will provide the best forage for work stock cattle, sheep, and swine, enriching the plantations and the planter, adding nitrogen and humus to the soil, replacing the more expensive commercial fertilizers and providing hay as good as any that can be bought in any market.

The cowpea is to the South what alfalfa is to the West and red clover to the North—a forage plant well adapted to the needs of the region. The cowpea has been cultivated in the South for at least one hundred and fifty years. It was probably first introduced on plantations in South Carolina, the seed having been brought from India or China. From this original introduction and from subsequent importations its cultivation has spread to almost every farm and plantation in the Southern States.

Cowpeas are in their relationship and habit of growth really beans and not peas, as the name would indicate. They are annuals, belonging to the genus Vigna, the members of which are largely represented in South Africa, and are closely related to the lablab, lima, and haricot beans of our gardens, as well as to numerous cultivated or half-wild garden sorts common in tropical Asia and America, but little known to us.

There are a very large number of named varieties of this forage plant. New forms are constantly arising, due to variations in the habit of growth, color of leaf, stem, and pod and the shape and color of the seed. Variations from any chosen type are constantly appearing, and as one or another of these sports or forms gains sufficient local reputation a new name is applied, and sooner or later the supposed new variety is placed upon the market. In this way one variety of cowpea may be cultivated in a dozen different localities under as many names, or a dozen different peas may bear the same name.

Cowpeas occur in every gradation of habit, from a compact, stocky, upright bush having single stems a foot high with very short lateral branches, to those with trailing runners growing as flat upon the ground as sweet-potato or melon vines, the prostrate stems 15 to 20 feet in length. The pods vary from 4 to 16 inches in length, and the peas are of every imaginable shade of white, yellow, green, pink, gray, brown, red, purple, and black, of solid colors or variously mottled and speckled, and of varying sizes and forms, from large kidney-shaped to little round ones smaller than the garden pea. There is a like variation in the length of time the different forms require to ripen seed, some requiring eight or nine months, a few ripening in sixty days from the time of planting.

There seems to be a somewhat constant relation between the time required for attaining maturity and the habit of growth. The bush varieties ripen in a shorter season than the trailers, but a bush variety taken from Tennessee or Virginia will, in the course of a few seasons, assume the trailing habit, and lengthen out its period of growth, when removed to the Gulf States. Also, a runner or creeper requiring six to eight months for reaching maturity in Louisiana will if planted each year a hundred miles further north, gradually accommodate itself to the shorter season and at the same time shorthen its running, approaching more and more to the upright or "bush" habit of growth. No definite line of separation can be drawn between bush peas, trailers, and runners. The best varietal character is probably the color of the seed. It is quite probable that more than one species is in cultivation. The "red" and "black" varieties are closely allied, the round "lady" peas form a separate group; the large "black eyed" and "purple-eyed" are typical of another, and the variously mottled and speckled "whip-poorwills" are only a degree removed from the solid colored yellow, pinkish, and light brown ones, and together would naturally be taken to constitute one species or variety. The black peas pass through various shades of red before maturity. The red varieties sometimes carry their change of color in ripening so far that they can not be distinguished from the black. The "black-eye" and "purple-eye" are of the same ground color, differing only in the color of the ring surrounding the eye. The various "crowders," yellow and white, the whip-poor-will, clay, and "yellow-eye" forms have numerous crosses and so-called hybrids in which the fundamental yellows and brows form varying mixtures.

Had To Conquer or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in Consumption. Pneumonia, La-Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs Colds, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by W. F. McKim, Burlington, Union Drug Store, Union, J. G. HOUSEWORK

Too much housework wrecks women's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, leucorrhœa and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter:

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901.
I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting stouter than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. MRS. RICHARD JONES.

BOONE COUNTY RECORDER.

VOL. XXVII. BURLINGTON, KENTUCKY, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 26, 1902. NO. 19.

A WEEK'S GOLLEGTION OF PERSONAL AND NEWS ITEMS BY THE RECORDER'S FAITHFUL CORRESPONDENTS

UNION, Feb. 24.—B. L. Norman was quite sick several days, last week.

Joe Weaver, of Hathaway, was in town, Saturday.

Mrs. S. O. Hicks entertained with a dinner, last Tuesday.

Miss Alma Bristow spent Sunday with Miss Edna Knisley.

Mrs. Charles Allen has been visiting relatives in Erlanger, the past week.

Sallie Belle Hicks spent Saturday night and Sunday with Mrs. Vosholl.

Mrs. John Garrison entertained Mr. Will Smith Ransom during his stay here.

W. C. Gaines, of Bullittsville, was a guest at the "Voshell House," Saturday night.

Miss Marietta Riley will begin a spring term of school at Pleasant Ridge next Monday.

Nannie Burkett came home Saturday, from Cincinnati, quite sick—pneumonia is feared.

Ed Newman has moved to Indiana. His brother, Martin, will move into the house he vacated.

Lou Clarkson and wife were included in the dinner party given by Mrs. W. N. Surface, Sunday.

Mrs. Abe Rice, of Covington, is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Baker, near this place.

Misses Bess Talbott and Lottie Williams were guests of Mrs. J. W. Williams, Saturday and Sunday.

Arthur Adams had his foot mashed in the Pan-Handle yards, Cincinnati, and is at home for a short time.

Eph Norman, Sydney and Lizzie Rouse were badly hurt while coasting near Guupowder, last Wednesday.

Misses Alva and Madge Williams spent a few days, last week, with their aunt, Miss Bessie Talbott, of Florence.

Mrs. W. M. Rachal and children, and Misses Lillian Corbin and Nannie Bristow dined with Mrs. M. C. Norman, last Thursday.

The lecture by Will Smith Ransom, Saturday night, was excellent. He possesses dramatic and oratorical powers to a wonderful extent.

Mesdames Rachal Rice and Martha Bristow spent Sunday in Erlanger, the guests of their brother, Cumberland Wilson, who is very ill.

We have just received a letter from Mrs. Broadnax from Clifton Springs, N. Y., saying Mr. Broadnax is improving and will soon be at his post of duty again.

Wednesday the 19th inst., being the birthday of W. M. Rachal, his wife gave him a very pleasant surprise by inviting a number of his friends and companions of his youthful days. The evening was spent in playing Crokonois and Parchesi, diversified by conversation. Refreshments consisting of sherbert, chocolate and cake were served by the hostess in her own pleasant manner. Not until a late hour did the guests seek their homes and all expressed their pleasure in the renewing of old friendship.

The Pomona Grange met with Golden Grange, last Saturday, and, all day. Grangers and their work were much in evidence in Union. Big Bone, Greenwood, Point Pleasant, Mount Pleasant, Bellevue, Kenton and Golden Granges were represented, and a day of much pleasure and benefit was spent. A bountiful dinner was served by the ladies of Golden Grange. After the noon hour, the 5th degree was conferred upon a class of seven. A literary program was rendered during the lecture hour, of unusual merit; several members of Greenwood Grange took part in the program, reflecting credit upon the Order of P. of H. Special mention must be made of the exquisite solos, "The Holy City," and "O, Promise Me," sang by Mrs. Mabel Sayre. The next meeting will be held with Excelsior Grange, Saturday, March 29.

The deceased was one of the oldest members of the Kentucky bar, and one of the oldest Masons in the State. He was born Dec. 14, 1815, in Genesee County, N. Y. and came to Kentucky in 1837. He taught school in Burlington soon after he came to this State, and was a popular attorney at the Boone county bar as long as he was engaged in active practice. Governor Fisk was elected City Attorney of Covington in 1850, and served until 1856, when he was elected to the State Senate, where he served until 1864, when he retired from politics.

He was a strong Republican and a Union man when it took courage to proclaim such tenets in Kentucky. In 1861 he introduced a measure in the Legislature, which resulted in the first American flag being hoisted to the breeze on the State House flagstaff.

In 1861 also, upon the death of the Lieutenant Governor, he was chosen by the Senate as its Speaker. As a lawyer, the dead man ranked as one of the best in this part of the country. He leaves a widow aged 81 years of age and several children.

STRUGGLE OF LIFE.

Words of Inspiration in the Sermon of Dr. Talmage.

He Shows Us That We Have Many Celestial Sympathizers in Our Fight with the Lions of Today.

(Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

This discourse of Dr. Talmage is full of inspiring thoughts for those who find life a struggle and shows that we have many celestial sympathizers; texts, Hebrews 12:1: "Seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses;" I Corinthians 15:32: "I have fought with beasts at Ephesus."

Crossing the Alps by the Mont Cenis pass or through the Mont Cenis tunnel, you are in a few hours set down at Verona, Italy, and in a few minutes begin examining one of the grandest ruins of the world, the Amphitheater. The whole building sweeps around you in a circle. You stand in the arena where the combat was once fought or the race run, and on all sides the seats rise, tier above tier, until you count 40 elevations, or galleries, as I shall see fit to call them, in which sat the senators, the kings and the 25,000 excited spectators. At the sides of the arena and under the galleries are the cages in which the lions and tigers are kept without food until, frenzied with hunger and thirst, they are let out upon some poor victim, who, with his sword and alone, is condemned to meet them. I think that Paul himself once stood in such a place and that it was not only figuratively, but literally, that he had "fought with beasts at Ephesus."

The gala day has come. From all the world the people are pouring into Verona. Men, women and children, orators and senators, great men and small, thousands upon thousands come, until the first gallery is full, and the second, the third, the fourth, the fifth—all the way up to the twentieth, all the way up to the thirtieth, all the way up to the fortieth. Every place is filled. Immensity of audience sweeping the great circle. Silence. The time for the contest has come. A Roman official leads forth the victim into the arena. Let him get his sword with firm grip into his right hand. The 25,000 sit breathlessly watching. I hear the door at the side of the arena creak open. Out plunges the half-starved lion, his tongue athirst for blood, and with a roar that brings all the galleries to their feet he rushes against the sword of the combatant. Do you know how strong a stroke a man will strike when his life depends upon the first thrust of his blade? The wild beast, lame and bleeding, slinks back toward the side of the arena; then rallying his wasted strength he comes up with fiercer eye and more terrible roar than ever, only to be driven back with a fatal wound, while the combatant comes in with stroke after stroke until the monster is dead at his feet, and the 25,000 clap their hands and utter a shout that makes the city tremble.

Sometimes the audience came to see a race; sometimes to see gladiators fight each other, until the people, compassionate for the fallen, turned their thumbs up as an appeal that the vanquished be spared, and sometimes the combat was with wild beasts.

To one of the Roman amphitheatrical audiences of 100,000 people Paul refers when he says: "We are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses." The direct reference in the last passage is made to a race; but elsewhere having discussed that, I take now Paul's favorite idea of the Christian life as a combat.

The fact is that every Christian man has a lion to fight. Yours is a bad temper. The gates of the arena have been opened, and this tiger has come out to destroy your soul. It has lacerated you with many a wound. You have been thrown by it time and again, but in the strength of God you have arisen to drive it back. I verily believe you will conquer. I think that the temptation is getting weaker and weaker. You have given it so many wounds that the prospect is that it will die, and you shall be victor, through Christ. Courage, brother! Do not let the sands of the arena drink the blood of your soul!

Your lion is the passion for strong drink. You may have contended against it for 20 years; but it is strong of body and thirsty of tongue. You have tried to fight it back with broken bottle or empty wine flask. Nay, that is not the weapon. With one horrible roar he will seize thee by the throat and rend thee limb from limb. Take this weapon, sharp and keen—reach up and get it from God's armory—the sword of the Spirit. With that thou mayest drive him back and conquer!

But why specify when every man and woman has a lion to fight? If there be one here who has no besetting sin, let him speak out, for him have I offended. If you have not fought the lion, it is because you have let the lion eat you up. This very moment the contest goes on. The Trajan celebration, where 10,000 gladiators fought and 11,000 wild beasts were slain, was not so terrific a struggle as that which at this moment goes on in many a soul. The combat was for the life of the body; this is for the life of the soul. That was with wild beasts from the jungle; this is with the roaring lion of hell.

Men think, when the contend against an evil habit, that they have to fight it all alone. No! They stand in the center of an immense circle of sympathy. Paul had been reciting the names of Abel, Enoch, Noah, Abraham, Sarah, Isaac, Joseph, Gideon and Barak and then says: "Being compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses."

Before I get through I will show you that you fight in an arena, around which circle, in galleries above each other, all the kindling eyes and all the sympathetic hearts of the ages, and at every victory gained there comes down the thundering applause of a great multitude that no man can number. "Being compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses."

On the first elevation of the ancient amphitheater, on the day of a celebration, sat Tiberius or Augustus or the reigning king. So in the great arena of spectators that watch our struggles and in the first divine gallery, as I shall call it, sits our King, one Jesus. On his head are many crowns. The Roman emperor got his place by cold-blooded conquests, but our King hath come to His place by the broken hearts healed and the tears wiped away and the souls redeemed. The Roman emperor sat, with folded arms, indifferent as to whether the swordsman or the lion beat, but our King's sympathies are all with us—nay, unheard of condescension! I see Him come down from the gallery into the arena to help us in the fight, shouting until all up and down His voice is heard: "Fear not! I will help thee! I will strengthen thee by the right hand of My power!"

They gave to the men in the arena in the olden time food to thicken their blood, so that it would flow slowly and that for a longer time the people might gloat over the scene. But our King has no pleasure in our wounds, for we are bone of His bone, flesh of His flesh, blood of His blood.

Once in the ancient amphitheater a lion with one paw caught the combatant's sword and with his other paw caught his shield. The man took his knife from his girdle and slew the beast. The king, sitting in the gallery, said: "That was not fair. The lion must be slain by a sword." Other lions were turned out, and the poor victim fell. You cry: "Shame! shame!" at such meanness. But the King in this case is our brother, and He will see that we have fair play. He will forbid the rushing out of more lions than we can meet. He will not suffer us to be tempted above that we are able. Thank God! The King is in the gallery! His eyes are on us. His heart is with us. His hand will deliver us. "Blessed are they who put their trust in Him."

I look again, and I see the angelic gallery. There they are—the angel that swung the sword at the gate of Eden, the same that Ezekiel saw upholding the throne of God, and from which I look away, for the splendor is insufferable. Here are the guardian angels. That one watched a patriarch; this one protected a child; that one has been pulling a soul out of temptation! All these are messengers of light! Those drove the Spanish armada on the rocks. This turned Sennacherib's living host into a heap of 185,000 corpses. Those yonder chanted the Christmas carol over Bethlehem until the giant awoke the shepherds. These at creation stood in the balcony of Heaven and serenaded the new-born world wrapped in swaddling clothes of light. And there, holier and mightier than all, is Michael, the archangel. To command an earthly host gives dignity, but this one is leader of the 20,000 chariots of God and of the 10,000 times 10,000 angels. I think God gives command to the archangel, and the archangel to the seraphim, and the seraphim to the cherubim, until all the inner orders of Heaven hear the command and go forth on the high behest.

Now, bring on your lions! Who can fear? All the spectators in the angelic gallery are our friends. "He shall give His angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways. They shall bear thee up in their hands lest thou dash thy foot against a stone. Thou shalt tread upon the lion and adder; the young lion and the dragon shalt thou trample under foot."

Though the arena be crowded with temptations, we shall, with the angelic help, strike them down in the name of our God and leap on their fallen carcasses! O heading throng of bright angelic faces and swift wings and lightning foot, I hail you today from the dust and struggle of the arena!

I look again, and I see the gallery of the martyrs. Who is that? Hugh Latimer, sure enough! He would not apologize for the truth he preached, and so he died, the night before swinging from the bedpost in perfect glee at the thought of emancipation. Who is that army of 6,666? They are the Theban legion who died for the faith. Here is a larger host in magnificent array, 834,000, who perished for Christ in the persecutions of Diocletian. Yonder is a family group, Felicitas of Rome and her children. While they were dying for the faith she stood encouraging them. One son was whipped to death by thorns; another was flung from a rock; an other was beheaded. At last the mother became a martyr. There they are together, a family group in heaven! Yonder is John Bradford, who said in the fire: "We shall have a merry supper with the Lord to-night!" Yonder is Henry Voes, who exclaimed as he died: "If I had ten heads, they should all fall off for Christ!" The great throng of the martyrs! They had hot lead poured down their throats; horses were fastened to their hands and other horses to their feet, and thus they were pulled apart; they had their tongues pulled out by red-hot pinchers; they were sewed up in the skins of animals and then thrown to the dogs; they were daubed with combustibles and set on fire! If all the martyrs' stakes that have been kindled could be set at proper distances, they would make the midnight all the world over bright as noonday! And now they sit yonder in the martyrs' gallery. For them the fires of persecution have gone out; the swords are sheathed and the mob hushed. Now they watch us with an all observing sympathy. They know all the pain, all the hardship, all the anguish, all the injustice, all the privation. They cannot keep still. They cry: "Courage! The fire will not consume; the floods cannot drown; the lions cannot devour. Courage down there in the arena!"

I look again, and I see another gallery that of eminent Christians. What strikes me strangely is the mixing in companionship of those who on earth could not agree. There is Albert Barnes and around him the presbytery who tried him for heterodoxy! Yonder are Lyman Beecher and the church court that denounced him! Stranger than all, there are John Calvin and James Arminius! Who would have thought that they would sit so lovingly together? There are George Whitefield and the ministers who would not let him come into their pulpits because they thought him a fanatic. There are the sweet singers Toplady, Montgomery, Charles Wesley, Isaac Watts and Mrs. Sigourney. If heaven had had no music before they went up, they would have started the singing. And there the band of missionaries—David Abeel, talking of China redeemed; and John Scudder, of India saved; and David Brainerd, of the aborigines evangelized; and Mrs. Adoniram Judson, whose prayers for Burma took heaven by violence! All these Christians are looking into the arena. Our struggle is nothing to theirs! Do we in Christ's cause suffer from the cold? They walked Greenland's icy mountains. Do we suffer from the heat? They sweltered in tropics. Do we get fatigued? They fainted, with none to cure for them but cannibals. Are we persecuted? They were unathematized. And as they look from their gallery and see us falter in the presence of the lions I seem to hear Isaac Watts addressing us in his old hymn, only a little changed:

Must you be carried to the skies
On flowery beds of ease
While others fought to win the prize
Or sailed through bloody seas?

Toplady shouts in his old hymn:

Your harps, ye trembling saints,
Down from the willows take;
Loud to the praise of love divine
Bid every string awake.

While Charles Wesley, the Methodist, breaks forth in words a little varied:

A charge to keep you have,
A God to glorify,
A never dying soul to save
And fit it for the sky!

I look again, and I see the gallery of our departed. Many of those in the other galleries we have heard of, but these we know. Oh, how familiar their faces! They sat at our tables, and we walked to the house of God in company. Have they forgotten us? Those fathers and mothers started us on the road of life. Are they careless as to what becomes of us? And those children—do they look with stolid indifference as to whether we win or lose this battle of life? They remember the day they left us. They remember the agony of the last farewell. Though years in Heaven, they know our faces. They remember our sorrows. They speak our names. They watch this fight for Heaven. Nay, I see them rise up and lean over and wave before us their recognition and encouragement. That gallery is not full. They are keeping places for us. After we have slain the lion they expect the King to call us, saying: "Come up higher!" Between the hot struggles in the arena I wipe the sweat from my brow and stand on tiptoe, reaching up my right hand to clasp theirs in rapturous handshaking, while their voices come ringing down from the gallery, crying: "Be thou faithful unto death, and you shall have a crown!"

But here I pause, overwhelmed with the majesty and the joy of the scene! Gallery of the King! Gallery of angels! Gallery of prophets and apostles! Gallery of martyrs! Gallery of saints! Gallery of friends and kindred! O majestic circles of light and love! Throngs, throngs, throngs! How shall we stand the gaze of the universe? Myriads of eyes beaming on us! Myriads of hearts beating in sympathy for us! How shall we ever dare to sin again? How shall we ever become discouraged again? How shall we ever feel lonely again? With God for us and angels for us and prophets and apostles for us and the great souls of the ages for us and our glorified kindred for us—shall we give up the fight and die? No, Son of God, who didst die to save us! No, ye angels, whose wings are spread forth to shelter us! No, ye prophets and apostles, whose warnings startle us! No, ye loved ones, whose arms are outstretched to receive us! No; we will never surrender!

Sure I must fight if I would reign.
Be faithful to my Lord,
And bear the cross, endure the pain,
Supported by thy word.

Thy saints in all this glorious war
Shall conquer though they die;
They see the triumph from afar
And seize it with their eye.

When that illustrious day shall rise
And all thine armies shine
In robes of victory through the skies,
The glory shall be thine.

My hearers, shall we die in the arena or rise to join our friends in the gallery? Through Christ we may come off more than conquerors. A soldier dying in the hospital rose up in bed the last moment and cried: "Here, here!" His attendants put him back on his pillow and asked him why he shouted "Here!" "Oh, I heard the roll call of Heaven, and I was only answering to my name!" I wonder whether after this battle of this life is over our names will be called in the muster roll of the redeemed and glorified and, with the joy of Heaven breaking upon our souls, shall cry: "Here, here!"

IN THE PHILIPPINES.

Determined Hostility to American Rule Calls for a Change in Our Policy.

One cannot escape the weight and drift of Gov. Taft's testimony before the senate committee, which is that there is a state of persistent hostility in the Philippines, that it will be a long time in passing, and that thus far it has caused us great expense, great sacrifice of life, and, as the governor admitted, has led to some cases of retaliation that are a reproach to us. We have no doubt that what Gov. Taft calls "these infractions of propriety" have been committed in defiance of direct orders. There would be no such things happening between two civilized peoples, but with an inferior oriental race engaged in a guerilla warfare against conquerors, the temptation to treat captives harshly is very strong.

The governor is plainly out of patience with some phases of the situation, for he thinks it is a crime against the Filipino that a state of war should continue, and says they have worn out the right to any treatment but that which is severe, within the laws of war. This will hardly do. We have entered the Philippines as conquerors. There has been no growth of our civilization there from colonists establishing trade and having normal relations. We have come bodily from the outside, imposed ourselves on the situation, and that we should be met by guerilla warfare is the most natural thing in the world. It is a thing that occurs in the history of every people. If we are determined to conquer the Philippines, we must have patience and keep at th work. The testimony of others accords with the drift of Gov. Taft's statement that it is a large work. Stephen Bonsal, a well-known writer for the press, expresses in the New York Herald, after spending some months in the Philippines, the opinion that civil government in the Philippines is a failure, and that its seeming triumphs are those of misguided optimism. It might not be too long a stretch of vision to see something like this between the lines of Gov. Taft's statement.

While Gov. Taft's work has been wise, patient and sincere, Mr. Bonsal holds that the Filipinos are solidly against American supremacy in any shape or form, and, to use his own words, "if we do not wish to govern them rigidly and by force for 10, 20 or 30 years, we had better hit upon a scheme of scuttle, saving appearances as much as possible." He reinforces his view by reference to numerous instances where friendly Filipinos and those who hold high offices have been found guilty of smuggling arms and ammunition for the insurgents. He calls attention also to the fact that the constabulary is composed in large measure of the insurgents who have come in not because they are convinced that our government is good, but because they have learned that it is better to carry an American rifle with a salary than to stand up against an American firing line. But they are brothers in blood and sentiment with the insurgents in the field, and they will show it whenever they get opportunity.

It may be added, says the Indianapolis News, that private information, that is, information from men who have been in the Philippines quite as long as Gov. Taft, harmonizes with Mr. Bonsal's. These men report that the Filipinos are determined in their hostility to American rule, that they have in their hearts no feeling of submission, and that if we hold the islands we have got to hold them by force. And a generation at least must pass away before we can have the semblance of civil government. Of course, we ought to be able to discuss this subject without passion. If we are honest we want to find out the actual condition in the Philippines that we may know what is best to do. To this end we must allow freedom of speech and must gather testimony wherever we can. We are big enough and strong enough to be able to change our policy without any imputations of cowardice or inconsistency. We do not have to do a thing to keep up appearances. We are too great and strong for that, and we ought to be too great and strong to do anything but justice.

POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

——God created the continent, filled the mountains with mineral treasure, made the valleys fruitful and the climate salubrious. It is a wonderful country and wonderfully blessed. But there are those among us who forget God and only remember Dingley.—Philadelphia Record.

——It might be accepted as a sound proposition that a tariff against the Philippines is right or wrong, and that it cannot be made right by imposing only a part of the Dingley duties. It would not save the burglar from punishment if he left half of his booty on the piano in the parlor.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

——The American people feel that they are being heavily taxed, through the tariff, for the benefit of the steel trust and similar combinations, and in their opinion they are not only entitled to be exempt from any increase of prices, but should reap the benefit of any and all reductions which may be made for the foreign trade.—Albany Argus.

——Cuba is wholly dependent upon us. We not only set her free and made ourselves her responsible guardian and protector, but we have by statute, which we made her accept, denied her the privilege of seeking elsewhere the trade advantages which we hold. She cannot make a treaty without our approval. The moral obligations involved in this relation would be scarcely respected by a Pawnee or a Matabele.—N. Y. Times.

DINGLEY LAW'S NEW USE.

As Administered by the Germans Against American Products Will Be Bad.

The duties on certain American products contained in the tariff bill submitted to the German reichstag seemed quite high to the Americans who would like to find a market for their products in Germany. They looked on these proposed duties of $8.36 per 220 pounds on hams, of $7.14 per 220 pounds on bacon and of 15 per cent. ad valorem on cattle as almost prohibitory. But these duties, high as they may seem, are lower than those which may be imposed.

The tariff committee of the reichstag has accepted an amendment to the pending bill to the effect that in the absence of treaty stipulations the same rate of duty shall be applied to foreign products as is imposed in the country in which they originate on similar German products. Thus in the absence of treaty stipulations the American duties on foreign hams, bacon, animals, products, etc., will be the measure of the duties on these commodities when of American origin in German custom houses, says the Chicago Tribune (rep.).

These American duties are much higher than those in the origins! German tariff bill. The Dingley law duty on bacon and hams is five cents a pound, on cattle it is 27½ per cent. ad valorem and on butter it is six cents a pound. These duties are so effective that foreign imports are practically nil. If the German protectionists copy these American duties, which do their work so thoroughly, it must be taken as a compliment. The Germans cannot be blamed for following where the Americans have led the way. Nor can Americans who have always claimed the right to make their own tariffs and have paid no attention to the remonstrances of foreign producers deny to Germans the right to make their tariffs to please themselves.

The enforcement of the American tariff against American products will pur an end to the consumption of these products in Germany, with the exception of raw cotton and a few other articles. Therefore, if the trade with Germany now threatened with extinction is looked on at Washington as worth saving, there ought to be an effort to secure treaty stipulations to protect it. Otherwise the Dingley law as administered by Germans will make short work of it. It is well known that there are senators who detest reciprocity treaties, but it will be necessary to have some of these agreements for the protection of American interests in Europe against this reverse use of the Dingley law.

UP TO THE PRESIDENT.

The Cuban Situation Calls for Immediate Action on the Part of Mr. Roosevelt.

President Roosevelt owes it to himself and to the country to manifest his determination upon fair play and humane dealing toward Cuba by exerting his utmost influence in behalf of a sufficient reduction of tariff duties on Cuban products to avert the disasters now threatening that island, says the St. Louis Republic.

The high protectionists in the Fifty-seventh congress have made this action imperative on the president's part. Either he must now accept their distinct and most insolent challenge to a test of strength, or he must confess that when matters come to so formidable an issue he fears to oppose the policies of that element in his party.

Mr. Roosevelt cannot yield to the protectionists without stultifying himself. He is on record as being earnestly in favor of affording relief to Cuba by a reduction of the tariff on Cuban products. If he now dodges the logic of the situation, weakening because his own policy is attacked by a powerful republican clique in congress, the American people will be bitterly disappointed in him. They have counted on Mr. Roosevelt as having the courage of his convictions. They have been confident of the unbending quality of the Roosevelt backbone.

The president has it in his power to avert the pitiful wronging of Cuba by this government. The American people will stand loyally by him if he is resolved to keep the national honor clean of the stain which will else be placed upon it by the contemplated sin against a helpless people. His influence as president will weigh heavily on the protectionist clique if he is brave enough to exert it in the open and make a bold fight on the Cuban tariff reduction issue. He can frighten the protectionists into rightful action. The solemn pledge of the United States government for just dealing with Cuba demands this action of the president. Mr. Roosevelt's own utterances have committed him to a course which makes impossible a change of attitude without stultification. The country waits to hear from the president. What is his policy to-day with regard to the keeping of our word to Cuba?

——While Senator Burrows is tearing passion to tatters because Gen. Wood has "lobbied" in behalf of tariff concessions to Cuba he and his excited colleagues have forgotten the issue. Has Wood told the truth? That's the main question. Everything else is froth. The average citizen does not waste his time in splitting hairs. It does not give him spasms to learn that some of the requirements of red tape have been disregarded. If Gen. Wood is right the country ought to know it. If he is wrong the country ought to know it. After the main question has been decided the senate may have some excuse for discussing the methods employed by Gen. Wood to make the Cuban situation known to the country.—Detroit Free Press.

FIFTY-SEVENTH CONGRESS.

Washington, Feb. 18.—Senate—After an extended debate the senate passed the bill establishing a permanent ceasus office. Other bills were passed as follows: To promote the efficiency of the revenue cutter service, the principal feature of the measure being provisions for the retirement of revenue cutter officers; authorizing the secretary of the navy to give to Harvard university certain colors, silver cup and a Nordenfeldt gun; providing for the retirement of petty officers and enlisted men of the navy; to provide for the extension of the charters of national banks; authorizing the commissioner of interal revenue to return bank checks, drafts, certificates of deposit and orders for the payment of money having imprinted stamps thereon, to the owners thereof.

House—The unexpected happened in the house Monday when the bill to repeal the war revenue taxes was passed unanimously without a word of debate.

Washington, Feb. 19.—Senate—It was agreed by the senate Tuesday that a final vote on the Philippine tariff bill and the pending amendments should be taken next Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock. The only stipulation made by the minority was that the last day's debate should be devoted to speeches not exceeding 15 minutes in duration. Senator Wellington (Md.) spoke Tuesday in opposition to the pending bill, and Senator Stewart (Nev.) in support of the measure.

House—Mr. Hill (Ct.) and Mr. Sheffeth (Col.) discussed the former's bill to redeem silver in gold. Mr. Burleson (Tex.) criticised the president for changing his position on trusts. Other speakers were Reid (dem., Ark.); Sutherlad (rep., Utah); Padgett (dem., Tenn.); Pou (dem., S. C.), and Robinson (dem., Ind.). The Indian bill itself was not touched in the speech-making.

Washington, Feb. 20.—Senate—The senate continued the consideration of the Philippine tariff bill Wednesday, the main speeches being made by Mr. Burrows (Mich.), for the bill, and Mr. Money (Miss.), against it, although Mr. Mitchell (Or.), Mr. Foraker (o.), Mr. Mallory (Fla.) and Mr. Tillman (S. C.) all took more or less part in the general debate on the subject.

House—Again the general debate on the Indian appropriation bill was devoted almost entirely to extemporaneous topics. Mr. Hamilton (rep., Mich.) enlivened the proceedings with an interesting speech on trusts. The other speakers were Mr. Little (Ark.), who discussed conditions in the Indian territory; Mr. Corliss (Mich.), who spoke on the Pacific cable; Mr. Stephens (Tex.) on statehood for Oklahoma; Mr. Sulzer (N. Y.), on the mail pay for letter carriers; Mr. Fitzgerald (N. Y.), on the education of the Indians; Mr. Jackson (Kan.), on the election of senators by the people, and Mr. Newlands (Nev.), on the bill to redeem silver dollars in gold.

Washington, Feb. 21.—Senate—With the exception of a few minutes given to routine business, the senate Thursday devoted its entire session to the Philippine question. Mr. Patterson (Col.), one of the minority members of the Philippine committee, delivered his first extended speech in the senate and was given a most attentive and considerate hearing. A bill authorizing the construction of a bridge over the Missouri river at Kansas City was passed, and the senate then, at 5:15 p. m., went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

House—The house spent the day working on the Indian appropriation bill. Forty-two of the 62 pages were disposed of. Several amendments were adopted but none of much importance. Representative Southwick (N. Y.) introduced a bill to prevent the brewing of inferior beer. It requires that hops and malt shall be the only products entering into the brewing of beer and ale, that no other products than barley, wheat and rice shall enter into the manufacture of malt.

Washington, Feb. 22.—Senate—For more than six hours Friday the senate had the Philippine tariff bill under discussion. Mr. Bate (dem., Tenn.) delivered a carefully prepared speech in opposition to the pending measure.

House—The house passed the Indian appropriation bill. No amendments of importance were attached to it Friday. The latter part of the session was devoted to the consideration of private claims bills, a number of which were passed. The house passed a resolution providing for an investigation of Mr. Nardin's relations to the Shoshone Indian school.

TRANSPORT M'CLELLAN.

Leaves New York For Philippines With 200 School Teachers Aboard.

New York, Feb. 24.—The United States army transport McClellan, which left her dock Saturday and anchored in the bay for the night, put to sea Sunday afternoon, passing by quarantine at half-past 3 o'clock on her voyage to Manila by way of Gibraltar and the Suez canal. On board the McClellan are 200 school teachers, most of whom came from the middle states and the south and west. The vessel also carries a quantity of supplies to the quartermaster's department at Manila.

Colortype Company.

Newark, N. J., Feb. 24.—The American Colortype Co. filed articles of incorporation here. The capital is $4,000,000, with $1,000 paid in. The incorporators were Algeron T. Sweney, Frederick A. Lehlbach and Jesse M. Arundel, all of Newark.

Death of Billy Emerson.

Boston, Feb. 24.—William Emerson Richmond, or as he was familiarly known, "Billy" Emerson, the famous minstrel, died at Diman's hotel on Eliot street, where he has lived for several months past. Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Hero Gets a Medal.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—Arthur Egan, the boy life-saver, who has rescued 17 people from drowning, has been decorated with a medal by the Royal Humane Society of England. He is the only American ever so honored.

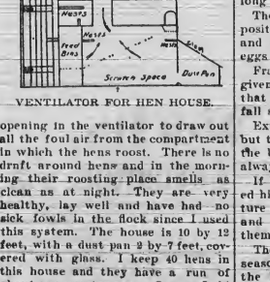
FACTS ABOUT GAPES.

Three Excellent Ways of Preventing Danger from Infection and Some Reliable Cures.



The gape worm that matures in the windpipe of the chick, causing the disease, is developed from a parasite, and like other germ diseases is easier prevented than cured; and can be prevented if the chick is not permitted to come in contact with the parasite. Now there are three ways to prevent this danger of infection. First is to hatch your chickens very early, so they will be feathered before the ground gets warm enough to incubate the gape worm microbe. The second way is, keep your chicks where it is perfectly dry all the time, as it takes moisture as well as warmth to develop the parasite. As you cannot raise chicks without warmth, says the writer in National Stockman, you must prevent moisture, or you surely will have gapes if your yards are infested. The third, and better way, is to raise your chicks each year in a new place. I suggest a rotation as follows: Begin on the east side of your orchard, next year move your coops and brooders to the west side, the third year move to the south, and the fourth year to the north side. By that time the east side will be purified, so there will not be much danger, and you can continue this rotation with perfect safety. To cure gapes in the first stages of the disease, just as soon as you can hear the first sniffle, slack a lump of lime sufficient to make a pint when powdered, mix with it a teaspoonful of carbolic acid, put the mixture in a 25-pound flour sack and shake, drop chick in sack immediately, and let remain just as long as possible without suffocating, which it will do in a short time if you do not give fresh air. Repeat once or twice until the chick sneezes up the gape worms. The chick inhaling the carbolated lime dust will loosen the worms so it can sneeze them out if you use the remedy while the chick is strong enough to stand the treatment. But if you neglect the chick until it becomes weak, and the windpipe is filled with the worms, you will have to remove them; and the best way to do it is to take a feather and strip it except about one inch of the tip; make a five per cent. solution of carbolic acid, dip tip of feather in the solution and swab the windpipe of the chicks; you will likely kill some of them, but as they would die or be stunted so they would be worthless if you do not treat them, it will, perhaps, pay you if your time is not too valuable.

HOUSE WITHOUT DRAFTS.

Its Ventilation Being Perfect the Danger from Loss by Roup is Reduced to a Minimum.

I have always had success in poultry keeping, with the exception of being troubled more or less with roup, which has done much damage to my flocks from time to time. I believe this was due to improper ventilation which I think I have now overcome. The house here illustrated is perfect in ventilation, at least I have had no trouble with roup since the hens were housed in it. The upper part in which the fowls roost is made as air-tight as possible, the walls being covered with tarred paper, so that no air can come in from below or at the sides.

The ventilator draws out air from below the hens, while at the top or peak of the room I have made an opening in the ventilator to draw out all the foul air from the compartment in which the hens roost. There is no draft around hens and in the morning their roosting place smells as clean as at night. They are very healthy, lay well and have had no sick fowls in the flock since I used this system. The house is 10 by 12 feet, with a dust pan 2 by 7 feet, covered with glass. I keep 40 hens in this house and they have a run of about one-quarter acre.—Orange Judd Farmer.

Soft Food for the Hens.

Do not forget to give the hens a feed of soft food at least once a day. From our observation we judge this admonition should be often repeated. In spite of the fact that this practice is known to save the lives of a goodly percentage of the flock every year where it is practiced, it is so much easier to feed corn than to go to the trouble of mixing up this feed every night that, on thousands of farms, the hens soon get to expecting just corn three times a day. Yet the owners should remember that it means some dead fowls in the spring when digestive systems of the fowls will have been exhausted by the constant tax of grinding grain.—Farmers' Review.

WINTER POULTRY HOUSE.

Divided Into Separate Pens, Quite an Essential Where Several Breeds Are Raised.

The accompanying cut of a hen house is submitted by Mr. F. O. Sibley, of Otsego county, N. Y., as being a good one for winter use.

The plan is to have a cloth curtain to let down on stormy days in front of the open sheds, that alternate with the closed pens. We doubt the practicability of this, as a good breeze has not much respect for a flapping cloth, and the curtain would not prove a great protection for the fowls in the open shed. Better have a tight wall to keep out the weather.

The plan of having the different pens is absolutely essential to breeders of several varieties that are to be kept separate, but the roof shown is not a good one for a chicken house.

WINTER POULTRY HOUSE.

Nearly all poultrymen agree that the best plan is to have the sloping shed roof, with the high side toward the sun. This gives a large exposure of glass to the light and heat. Mr. Sibley is right in advocating the use of lots of glass, for sunlight and sunheat are the greatest tonics and purifiers in the world.

The door shown in the end of the coop opens into a hall which extends the entire length of the building. When the building is very long there should be doors in this hall, which should be kept closed to prevent drafts.—Ohio Farmer.

FERTILITY IN EGGS.

It Can Be Aided by Giving Proper Attention to the Hens During Incubation Season.

It is most necessary that eggs should be fertile about the time they are desired for incubation, whether they are to place in an incubator or to be distributed under hens. Infertile eggs at such a time are an abomination, a delusion and a blaster of future hopes. The first essential in this direction will be to have healthy stock which had a healthy growth all through their growing stage, and the sexes should be as far from kinship as possible. It is also necessary that the parents be strong in vitality. The breeding stock can be too old or too young; too decrepit or too immature.

It is a matter of regret that no one can fully control fertility to its fullest extent, but it can be aided largely by mating and by giving proper care and attention prior and during the incubation season. Exercise is necessary to procure the greatest fertility in eggs. A balanced ration will furnish not far from the right kind of food, which is not only essential to good health, but to keep up that vigor so requisite in breeding stock of all kinds. The food should contain both animal matter and grains, and should be, provided neither more nor less in quantity than is required. We would not only have the egg fertile, but we would have that fertility strong and vigorous. It is not enough that the egg will hatch, but it should also hatch a strong and vigorous chick that will live and overcome some of the strongest drawbacks known to the system of rearing chicks. What is the good to hatch a chick and have it die when a day or two old because of lack of vitality?—Poultry Farmer.

BUZZINGS FROM BEEDOM.

The only way to keep drones any length of time is in queenless colonies.

One of the best places to keep the bees is in the orchard. There they will be free from annoyances.

Bees are naturally clean in their habits, so if they are confined too long at a time they become diseased.

The young queen will begin to deposit eggs in ten days from birth, and is credited with laying 3,000 eggs daily.

Frames of sealed honey can be given on any warm day to colonies that from any cause seem likely to fall short.

Extract honey requires less skill, but there is more profit in producing the best white comb honey, as it is always in demand.

If bees are left in thin, unprotected hives during the winter, the moisture arising from them will condense and freeze to the hive, encircling them with ice.

The life of a bee during the busy season is very brief. Often during the honey season they do not live more than six or eight weeks. They live longer when confined to the hives in winter.—Agricultural Epitomist.

How to Treat Hen Manure.

We have found it most satisfactory to crush or grind the hen manure as fine as possible and mix it with chemicals. Hen manure is strong in nitrogen and relatively weak in potash and phosphoric acid. The hard chunks may be crushed or broken up on a hard floor by striking them with a heavy shovel or maul. Then sift them through a wire sieve. A mixture of 800 pounds sifted hen manure, 200 pounds muriate of potash, 600 pounds dissolved rock, 200 pounds fine ground bone and 200 pounds nitrate of soda will make a good dressing for any crop. One ton per acre would be the limit.—Rural New Yorker.

A TOWN'S RAPID GROWTH.

Population Jumped from 600 to 40,000 as a Result of Visit from President Hayes and Party.

Mr. George Clements, of Kansas City, a well-known knight of the sample case, is responsible for the following story, says the Baltimore News:

"Talk about the rapid growth of cities, why, Neosho Falls, Kan., holds the record. I think the town is still on the map, but I won't be sure. At any rate, I remember when the population jumped in one day from 600 to 40,000, and the next day jumped back again. This was merely occasioned by a fair, and not a country fair at that, but simply a little crossroads celebration. It was just after President Hayes had been elected. He was touring the west at the time, and the citizens of Neosho Falls secured a promise from him to attend their fair. The town was fortunately on the line of a railroad, with a service of two trains a day, but when the company learned of the president's proposed visit a gang of workmen at once started to lay sidings. At least a dozen were constructed around the little frame station, together with a Y for the convenience of the engines. When the great day arrived the president was at hand, with several members of his cabinet [illegible] escort from Fort Riley. The railroad company estimated that 40,000 people visited Neosho Falls that day, and I dare say some of them are talking about it yet. The next day the visitors were all gone, for there were no hotel accommodations, and nothing to feed them with. The gang of workmen came back and tore up the sidings and the Y, and the town again resumed its normal placidity; just as though nothing had happened."

SOME COSTLY SMOKED MEATS.

Fine Hams and Bacon from Ireland That Rival the Product of Virginia.

"The costliest of all the smoked meats," said a dealer in such things, according to the Chicago Inter Ocean, "are the fine hams and bacon that come from Limerick, Ireland. The prices of these meats may vary slightly from time to time, the hams selling usually, however, at from 33 to 35 cents a pound, and the bacon at 32 or 33 cents a pound.

"These costly smoked meats are made from fine hogs that are fed and tended with scrupulousness. The curing process is a secret. The result is known in meats of such quality and flavor as to commend them most highly.

"Of course, there are fine hams produced here, also, notably those of Virginia, the finest of which bring 24 cents a pound. Included in the price of the Limerick hams and bacon is a duty of five cents a pound. If you were to add that to the price of the Virginia hams you would raise the cost of them to 29 cents, and adding further the cost of transportation from Europe would bring the Virginia hams pretty close to those of Limerick in price; so that in their original cost they are about the same.

"As to which is the better ham, that would be largely a matter of taste. The Irish ham is rich and juicy, the Virginia is of a more delicate flavor."

BEAUTIFUL CHILDREN

Made Well and Strong by Pe-ru-na.

ALICE SCHAFER

Mrs. Shafer, 436 Pope Ave., St. Louis, Mo., writes:

"In the early part of last year I wrote to you for advice for my daughter Alice, four years of age.

"She has been a puny, sickly, ailing child since her birth. She had convulsions and catarrhal fevers. I was always doctoring until we commenced to use Peruna. She grew strong and well. Peruna is a wonderful tonic; the best medicine I have ever used."—Mrs. Schafer.

Mrs. C. E. Long, the mother of little Mina Long, writes from Atwood, Colo., as follows:

"We can never thank you enough for the change you have made in our little one's health. Before she began taking your Peruna she suffered everything in the way of cough, colds and croup, but now she has taken not quite a bottle of Peruna, and is well and strong as she has ever been in her life. She has not had the croup once since she began taking Peruna, and when she has a little cold a few doses of Peruna fixes her out all right. We can never praise it enough."—Mrs. C. E. Long.

Mrs. G. W. Heard, of Howth, Texas, writes to Dr. Hartman in regard to her baby girl, Ruth:

"My little girl had some derangement of the bowels. She was a mere skeleton and we did not think she would ever get well. After giving her less than one bottle of Peruna she was sound and well. Now she has a good appetite and is a picture of health."

Mrs. Heard also writes in regard to her son, Carl:

"My son's ears had been affected since he was a babe only a few months old. The last year I thought he had almost lost his hearing and had a local physician treating him for about six weeks. Finally I began giving him your remedy, and after he had taken two bottles he was entirely cured. I cannot praise Peruna enough."—Mrs. G. W. Heard.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, O.

A Doctor's Little Daughter Cured of Grip by Pe-ru-na.

Dr. R. Robbins, Physician and Surgeon of Muskogee, Indian Ter., writes:

"I have been a practicing physician for a good many years and was always slow to take hold of patent medicines, but this winter my little girl and myself were taken with the grip. I was so bad I was not able to sit up. I sent for a doctor, but he did me no good.

"Finally I sent and got a bottle of Peruna and commenced to take it. I took two bottles and my cough was gone and my lungs loosened up and my head became clear. My little girl took the same way.

"It looked as though she would die, she was so sick. I gave her medicine, but it seemed to do her little good, so I sent and got one more bottle of Peruna and commenced to give it to her. It was only a short time until she was getting along all right, so I give your medicine, Peruna, the praise for what it did for me and my dear little daughter."—Dr. R. Robbins.

It is not always the best legislature that passes the most laws.

The President's disposition of the Schley case pleases few, but none more than the naval clique behind him.

The Owen county Democratic Committee will call a primary for the near future to nominate a candidate for circuit clerk.

Congressman Wheeler will not be assigned a membership on any of the Prince Henry reception committees while the Prince is touring this country.

The expulsion of Tillman and McLaurin, of South Carolina and a public reprimand of Spooner, of Wisconsin, would be a proper action on the part of the United States Senate.

The races for county and district nominations are beginning to take shape, and several of the counties in this part of the State will hold primary elections this summer some time.

It is thought the fight for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district this year, will be the same triangular fight as that of two years ago, with the votes pretty equally divided.

And Gov. Taft is of the opinion that it would have been better if the United States had never taken possession of the Philippines, but does not see any way to let go now. That is the size of it, exactly.

The farmers have been given very little opportunity this winter to do up odd jobs to have them out of the way when spring comes, and when the weather opens they will be up to their eyes in work.

All the fire insurance companies doing business in this country have agreed on an increase of 25 per cent, in insurance rates, claiming that they are unable to make any money on the present basis.

Upon one proposition the members of the General Assembly seem to be a unit, viz: on being wined and dined at the expense of cities which are accused of having an ax to grind. They accept every invitation extended.

It is suggested to the farmers that it will be well to test the corn they expect to use as seed this spring, as it is claimed by many that the germ in the grains did not mature last year, owing to the long drought.

Congress has passed a bill providing for the payment of horses taken from Confederate soldiers contrary to the terms of the surrender of Lee and Johnson's armies. The amount appropriated for the purpose is $50,000.

The Lexington Leader bewails the fact that only $1 has been received in response to its appeal for contributions to the McKinley Memorial Fund. The Leader had better luck in raising money to defend Powers and Howard.—Midway Clipper.

Judging from the appearance of last week's Crittenden Press, Ollie James is solid with the newspaper fraternity in his section of the State, and will have an easy race for the Democratic nomination for Congress, so far as they are concerned.

Frankfort people are returning to their normal condition, since the Capitol removal question has received what is considered a death blow. It will be a long time before Frankfort sees the Capitol taken from her—not in the time of any of her present inhabitants.

Each member of the General Assembly went to Frankfort, at the beginning of the year, loaded for record making, and the result is so many bills have been dumped into the hopper that the mill is completely choked, and there is no hope of any considerable number of the proposed bills becoming laws.

There has been very little weather, this winter, suitable for stripping tobacco, consequently many of the farmers are not done that branch of work, which is usually disposed of the year. If there should come an advance in prices and suitable weather for stripping there would be lively times among the tobacco growers.

JUDGE THOS. H. PAYNTER

Candidate for Re-Election as Court of Appeals Judge This Year.

He Has Made an Enviable Record on the Bench and will Likely Have No Opposition.

Justice Paynter will again be a candidate before the people of the Sixth Appellate District for election to the bench, and the indications this early are that he will have no opposition for the Democratic nomination, which he will seek, and which, in his district, is equivalent to election. The election will be held in November next. The counties of the district are Boone, Campbell, Kenton, Grant, Harrison, Pendleton, Bracken, Robertson, Nicholas, Mason, Lewis, Greenup, Carter and Rowan.

HAS A GOOD RECORD.

Judge Paynter was elected to the Appellate Bench in the election of November, 1894, having won his party's nomination in the summer of that year over the late Gov. William Goebel. He took his seat at the opening of the January, 1895, term of Court, thus becoming one of the first Judges of the reorganized Court. Coming to the bench from the halls of Congress, where he had served with great credit as a member of the Judiciary Committee, and being spoken of by one of his associates on that committee as "a man possessing judicial temper to the highest degree," he soon came to be recognized by the members of the Kentucky bar as the possessor of an unusually bright legal mind. Members of the bar have said of him that in his opinions he has shown great research and an accurate knowledge of legal principles and their application. He has written oppinions in some of the most important cases, deciding intricate questions of law, which have come before the Court since the adoption of the present Constitution of the State. Some few of them have been strong dissenting opinions which the Court later adopted as its own.

A NOTABLE OPINION.

A notable instance of this was his dissenting opinion in the "bank tax cases," which came before the Court of Appeals in 1895. He delivered a masterly argument in favor of sustaining the taxes assessed on certain banks in accordance with the provisions of the present Constitution. Two years later the same question came before the Court again, and this time it reversed its former ruling, Judge Paynter delivering the majority opinion in practically the same language as that of his previous dissent. The case went before the United States Courts, and that Court for the district of Kentucky adopted Judge Paynter's view of the law.

Judge Paynter is but fifty years of age. He was born in Lewis county, this State, on December 9th, 1851. He received his education at Centre College and was admitted to the practice of law in 1873. He was elected to Congress from the Ninth Congressional District in 1899, and twice re-elected, serving six years.

In reversing a judgment of the Warren Circuit Court in the appealed case of the Warren Deposit Bank against J. E. Younglove the Court of Appeals holds that the position of the names signed to a note does not constitute their relation to the debt, and that if there is nothing to indicate the relation of the makers of a note at the time of its discounting by the bank, the note is a joint obligation.

The bill for the repeal of the war revenue tax was passed by the House by a unanimous vote. The Democrats took the Republicans by surprise. By a strict Republican party vote the House had agreed to cut off all opportunity for offering amendments on the floor and limiting the debate to two days. After a stormy debate over the rules Mr. Richardson, Democrat, asked unanimous consent that the bill be put immediately upon its passage. There was no objections and the final vote passing the bill followed speedily.

Having gone to the end of the rope in the direction he started for an official sanction of his conduct at Santiago, and having failed, the thing for Admiral Schley to do is to get elected President, and then as an injured Admiral appeal to himself as President of the United States and reopen his unfortunate controversy, and render unto Ceaser that which is Ceaser's.

It is hoped that the tobacco growers of this county will take an interest in the growers meeting which will be held in Burlington, next Saturday, at 10 a. m., and turn out in force. If, by organizing, anything in their interest can be accomplished, they surely ought to form a compact for that purpose. The growers have the matter of prices in their hands if a plan by which they can act in concert is presented. The tobacco producing district is not so large, nor the growers so numerous in this country, that the entire territory can not be covered by an organization that will put the tobacco trusts out of business. The only two things necessary to make the move now in progress a success, is a willingness on the part of the producers to cooperate, and a determination and industry on the part of those at the head of the move. All should pull together for mutual benefit, and your presence at the meeting next Saturday is needed.

Admiral Schley's conduct at Santiago has, through the legislature, the endorsement of Kentucky, but those to whom he has appealed for endorsement have gone against him in every instance. The Admiral ought to buy a blue grass farm and move to Kentucky.

The Boers have been winning more victories over the English. In fact about the only battles of consequence heard from in South Africa are those won by the Boers.

Don't criticise our prices until you have investigated. We wish a trial.
ESKEW'S, Walton, Ky.

Rev. George O. Barnes, has again changed front. His latest is the full acceptance of John Alexander Dowie,' of Chicago, as "Elijah the Restorer,' the messenger of the convenant," whom God has "endowed with power from on high," and authorized to proclaim the "acceptable year of the Lord." In a letter to the Interior Journal, he defends his course and claims to have scriptural sanction for it, referring the reader to 2 Kings, 1:8 and Matthew, 3:4, Malachi, chapters 4 and 5; Matt. 11:14 and 16:14 and 17:11 Mark 9:11. Luke 1:17 and 9:8-19, John 1:21.

An example of the benefit to be derived from feeding a mixture of grains instead of only corn to fattening cattle came up a short time ago in the Union Stock Yards, Chicago. A Kansas shipper came in with 135 steers of his own feeding. He stated that previous to this year he had been in the habit of handing out daily to each steer on full feed twenty-eight pounds of corn. This season he substituted 8 pounds of cottonseed meal and five pounds of brand for an equal amount of the corn and succeeded in getting as much gain in 87 days as in former seasons he had obtained in from 120 to 150 days.

The most important bill yet introduced is the Revenue bill, introduced in the lower house Tuesday. It is of most vital importance to all the taxpayers in the State, and its provisions seem to reach every branch of our State progress. In the first place it raises the tax rate from 47½ cents to 50 cents. It places high tax on almost every industry. It taxes the life insurance policy of the insurance companies, and it raises the saloon license to twice which it now is. The bill is quite a big one, and will, when understood by all whose interests are touched by it, bring many here to fight its passage.—Argus.

"If there is anything wrong among the officials of the Hopkinsville asylum, or at the Frankfort prison," says the Paducah News-Democrat, "the Democrats of the legislature ought to be brave and dutiful enough to eradicate it. The Hopkinsville charges are backed by leading Democrats and supported by numerous grand jury indictments against the accused officials, and certainly merit serious attention. The allegations with regard to the Frankfort prison officials so far are only fathered by Republican malevolents. But in either case there should be a fair and square investigation. The Democratic party cannot be truly served by covering up official scandals."

The above is well said, and the investigations should not be made behind closed doors, because such proceedings always savors of an attempt to whitewash.

Something That Will Do You Good.

We know of no way in which we can be of more service to our readers than to tell them of something that will be of real good to them. For this reason we want to acquaint them with what we consider one of the very best remedies on the market for coughs, colds, and that alarming complaint, croup. We refer to Chamberlaim's Cough Remedy. We have used it with such good results in our family so long that it has become a household necessity. By its prompt use we haven't any doubt but that it has time and again prevented croup. The testimony is given upon our own experience, and we suggest that our readers, especially those who have small children, always keep it in their homes as a safeguard against croup.—Camden (S. C.) From the first application I began to get well, and was cured and have worked steadily all the year.—R. Wheeler, Norwood, N. Y. For sale by all Druggists.

Ex-Sheriffs Roberts and Beall visited Big Bone, one day last week. As soon as their presence in the neighborhood was known, the price of land advanced 50 per cent, the owners thinking that they had come down to purchase real estate on the prospects of a traction road going that way at an early date. Great was the disappointment when it was learned that their mission was only the collection of colored delinquent tax.

One of the leading social events of the season in the Bellevue neighborhood, was the coon, hickey, Quaker party at the hospitable home of Col. John M. Moody's, a few nights since. Mirth was at high tide for several hours, and many were the surprises when the masks were removed. An elegant lunch was served at the proper hour. The Colonel, ably assisted by his children, fully sustaind his reputation as a prince among entertainers.

Mr. and Mrs. D. E. Lawell entertained Mr. Lawell's father and mother, last Saturday, it being the fiftith anniversary of their wedding. Mr. Lawell will be 74 years old in June, and is a native of Harrison county. Mrs. Lawell (nee Willett) was 70 years old last December, and was born in Bourbon county. Mr. and Mrs. Lawell came to the good county of Boone many years ago, and settled in the East Bend neighborhood, where by industry and economy they accumulated a good share of earthly goods. They are both well preserved, especially the husband. Daniel is their only child.

NOTICE, TOBACCO GROWERS!

Tobacco growers of Boone County, Kentucky, are requested to meet at Burlington, Kentucky, Saturday, March 1st, 1902, at 10 o'clock a. m., to organize against the encroachments of the tobacco trust, and to appoint seven delegates to attend a convention to be held at Carrollton, Kentucky, Tuesday, March 4th, 1902, to incorporate into an association protective of the interests of the tobacco growers. Every tobacco grower is interested in this matter as it will mean an advance in prices and a protection of their interests which cannot be obtained in any other manner. Henry. Owen, Carroll, Trimble, Gallatin and Oldham counties, Ky., and Switzerland county, Indiana, have formed organications, and Gallatin county members have been delegated to come to Boone county and help put it in line. It is to your interest to attend.

The Carrollton Democrat says: "At a railroad meeting held Tuesday morning at the office of M. I. Barker, the contract for making the survey for the Carrollton and Ohio Valley Traction Company, to begin at Snyder's in Trimble county, extending to Covington, was let to E. F. Layman, civil engineer, of Cincinnati. Mr. Layman will begin work Monday with about ten assistants. The work is to be completed in two months. This, by no means, insures the road, and it should not be so taken by the people. It simply means that our people are doing their part of the work, and that if the move fails it will be no fault of theirs. We do not know as yet that we can secure the capital to build the road, and will not know until the survey is completed and estimate made of the possible amount of traffic and travel over the road. This must be done, and the right-of-way secured, even before the matter can be broached to capitalists. With this behind us, it will take a strong pull, a long pull and all of us pulling together to win out. Perhaps it is well just here to give warning to those over whose lands the proposed road will run, not to give the right-of-way to any one except the Carrollton and Ohio Valley Traction Co., or parties representing same. An effort is being made by others to secure a right-of-way, and, if secured, it will be used for speculative purposes, and, in all probability, destroy what little prospect there is for securing the road."

The following is the list of claims finally allowed against the Boone County Sheep Fund, which will pay 36¼cts. on each dollar of the claims allowed:

Personal Mentions.

Mrs. James Delph is very ill.

"Bunk" Black, of Big Bone, was in town, Saturday.

Mrs. Judge Cason has been quite sick for several days.

Henry Feltman, jr., of Covington, was in town last Saturday.

Miss Effie Clore, who has been very ill for several weeks, is improving.

Circuit Clerk J. W. Duncan has been complaining considerably for several days.

E. L. Riley, of Bullittsville, will be a citizen of Dayton, Ohio, in a few days.

C. C. Hughes, who is in the Revenue service at Millidale, spent Sunday at home here.

Mrs. Kennedy, of Boone county, is visiting her daughter, Mrs. O. M. Huey.—Carrollton News.

D. I. Tanner, who has been teaching at Hebron, this winter, orders his paper changed to Florence.

H. J. Casey, of Bullittsville, was over, Saturday morning in his nice cutter—almost a flying machine.

Geo. Ossman and wife, of Beaver, were guests of county clerk Adams and wife last Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Carpenter and son, Claud, who have been considerably indisposed for several days, are very much improved.

Dr. Rouse carries, as a gentle reminder of the late severe weather, a frozen finger. It was frozen to the first joint.

Judge Lassing adjourned his court at Williamstown, Friday. He began a three weeks' term at Owenton, Monday.

Atty. Elijah Green, of Covington, spent a couple of days last week delving into the records over at the Courthouse.

Samuel Pettit from down on Gunpowder, called Saturday morning and enrolled his name as one of the RECORDER family.

W. F. Grant, who lives out on Gunpowder, near the church, fell on the ice, one day last week, and hurt his left wrist badly.

Roy Clutterbuck and wife were visiting Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher Clore, of the Bullittsville neighborhood, Saturday night and Sunday.

Mrs. Wm. Gaines and daughter, Beulah, will leave the first of the week for a visit to relatives in Petersburg.—Carrollton Democrat.

Last week we neglected to mention the call of Mrs. John Garrison and J. W. Conner, of Union. They are both enthusiastic railroad people.

Gordon McKim came out from the city the latter part of last week, to recuperate for a few days, having been somewhat indisposed for several days.

H. W. Ryle, wife and son, of Erlanger, accompanied by Mrs. Maud Williams, of Peru, Ind., were guests at Mrs. Annabelle Kirkpatrick's, Sunday.

Edgar Cropper, president; Malchus Souther, secretary and Legrand Gaines, of the Executive Board, were transacting business here Monday for the Farmers Insurauce Co.

J. Frank Cason, of Idlewild neighborhood, was in yesterday and ordered bills for a sale on the afternoon of March 7. See ad in another column. He will move to Ludlow.

Toney Beutler entertained a few of his friends at cards, with oyster soup as a stimulant, one evening last week. It took a gallon to have the desired effect on one of the guests.

Arlie Adams came out from the city Saturday afternoon, and remained until Sunday afternoon. The saw mill at which he works had to suspend operation on account of the ice in the river.

Our hustling friend, Harvey Tanner, of the Pt. Pleasant neighborhood, was in town Monday morning. Harvey allows no grass to grow under his brogans, and is accumulating a competency for rainy days.

W. H. Clayton, the Hebron agent for cook ranges, has placed 5 Resor Ranges in this town, recently. He will soon be so that he can talk nothing but range—in fact can now discourse on that subject a little.

Mr. and Mrs. Milton Beemon, of Gunpowder, called on the RECORDER, one day last week. Mrs. Beemon has not recovered, entirely, from injuries received in the accident she had with her horse and buggy on the Jas. K. Sebree hill, last summer.

Uncle Edward Gaines, of the breezy heights of Ashby Fork, called on us one day last week. He was glad to see us recently for a northern explorer, and proceeded to lecture us because the temperature of our sanctum was about 90. We were glad to see our friend wintering in such fine condition.

S. B. Scott, who has resided at Qurcus Grove, Indiana, for three or four years, made this office a brief call, one day last week, in company with his brother, Wilber. Mr. Scott was well pleased with the people and his surroundings in Indiana, but came back to Kentucky to take charge of the farm of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Jane Sutton, near McVille.

After three years of faithful and successful labor on his field, Rev. David Blyth has accepted a call to Seattle, and has gone, greatly to the regret of his people here and at Cle Elum. Before going the people presented Mr. Blyth with a handsome silver water set and Mrs. Blyth with a beautiful loving cup, and the people of Cle Elum gave them a purse with $25. At the latter place a new church building has been recently erected, and at Roslyn the new church is almost completed. —Roslyn, Washington, item in Herald and Presbytery.

Schley and Santiago

BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.

The Intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, who was aboard the U. S. Brooklyn during the entire five months of the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the Author during the fight.

The Most Sensational Book of the Day.

The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet, TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear-Admiral Schley.

"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct."
—W. S. SCHLEY.

An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrograde Movement," the "Loop," the "Coaling Problem," and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said:—"Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed just as much courage to go about taking photographs as it did to work the guns."

THE NEW YORK HERALD says:—"Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deductions that several naval officers need a Court of inquiry in re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

No subject has ever been before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the full exposition of the Story of Santiago. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitness saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Outfit and books now ready. Send seven 2-cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY.

Price $1.50, $1.75, $2.25, $2.75, according to style of binding desired.

PRESIDENT'S FINDING.

The Verdict of the Schley Court of Inquiry Sustained.

If Adm. Schley Erred During the Blockade the Offenses Were Condoned By His Being Retained as Second in Command.

Washington, Feb. 20.—President Roosevelt Wednesday made public his statement on the appeal of Adm. Schley and the answer thereto from the navy department. The president says:

"I have examined both with the utmost care, as the proceedings appeal to the secretary of the navy. I have read through all the testimony taken before the court and the statements of the counsel for Adms. Sampson and Schley; have examined all the official reports of every kind in reference to the Santiago naval campaign, copies of the log books and signal books, and the testimony before the court of claims, and have also personally had before me the four surviving captains of the five ships, aside from those of the two admirals, which were actively engaged at Santiago.

"It appears that the court of inquiry was unanimous in its findings of facts and unanimous in its expressions of opinions on most of its findings of fact. No appeal is made to me from the verdict of the court on these points where it was unanimous. I have, however, gone carefully over the evidence on these points: also, I am satisfied that on the whole the court did substantial justice. It should have specifically condemned the failure to enforce an efficient night blockade at Santiago, while Adm. Schley was in command. On the other hand, I feel that there is a reasonable doubt whether he did not move his squadron with sufficient expedition from port to port.

The court is a unit in condemning Adm. Schley's action on the point where it seems to me he most gravely erred; his 'retrograde movement,' when he abandoned the blockade, and his disobedience of orders, and misstatement of facts in relation thereto. It should be remembered, however, that the majority of these actions which the court censures occurred five weeks or more before the fight itself, and it certainly seems that if Adm. Schley's actions were censurable he should not have been left a second in command under Adm. Sampson. The offenses were in effect condoned when he was not called to account for them. Adm. Sampson after the fight in an official letter to the department alluded for the first time to Adm. Schley's 'reprehensible conduct' six weeks previously. If Adm. Schley was guilty of reprehensible conduct of a kind which called for such notice from Adm. Sampson, then Adm. Sampson ought not to have left him as senior officer of the blockading squadron on the 31 of July, when he (Sampson) steamed away on his proper errand of communication with Gen. Shafter.

"We can, therefore, for our present purposes, dismiss consideration of so much of the appeal as relates to anything except the battle. As regards this, the point raised in the appeal is between Adm. Sampson and Adm. Schley as to which was in command, and as to which was entitled to the credit, if either of them was really entitled to any unusual and preeminent credit, by any special exhibition of genius, skill and courage."

In regard to the question as to who was in command at the battle of Santiago, President Roosevelt says:

"It is in effect an appeal from the action of President McKinley three years ago when he sent in the recommendations for promotion for the various officers connected with the Santiago squadron basing these recommendations upon his estimate of the credit to which the officers were respectively entitled. What I have to decide, therefore, is whether or not President McKinley did injustice in the matter. This necessarily involves a comparison of the actions of the different commanders engaged. The exhaustive official reports of the action leaves little to be brought out as new. • • •

"In short, the question as to which of the two men, Adm. Sampson or Adm. Schley, was at the time in command is of merely nominal character. Technically Sampson commanded the fleet and Schley, as usual, the western division. The actual fact, the important fact, is that after the battle was joined not a helm was shifted, not a gun was fired, not a pound of steam was put on in the engine room aboard any ship actively engaged in obedience to the order of either Sampson or Schley, save on their own two vessels. It was a captain's fight.

"Therefore, the credit to which one of the two is entitled rests on matters apart from the claim of nominal command over the squadron; for so far as the actual fight was concerned neither one nor the other in fact exercises any command. Sampson was hardly more than technically in the fight. His real claim for credit rests upon his work as commander-in-chief; upon the excellence of the blockade; upon the preparedness of the squadron; upon the arrangement of the ships, head-on, in a semi-circle around the harbor; and the standing orders in accordance with which they instantly moved to the attack of the Spaniards when the latter appeared. For all these things the credit is his.

Adm. Schley is rightfully entitled, as is Capt. Cook, to the credit of what the Brooklyn did in the fight. On the whole she did well; but I agree with the unanimous finding of the three admirals who composed the court of inquiry as to 'the loop.' It seriously marred the Brooklyn's otherwise excellent record, being, in fact, the one grave mistake made by the American ship that day. • • • But, after the loop had once been taken Adm. Schley handled the Brooklyn manfully and well. She and the Oregon were thenceforth the headmost of the American vessels, though the Iowa certainly, and seemingly the Texas also did as much in hammering to a standstill the Viscaya, Oquendo and Teresa; while the Indiana did all her eastward position and crippled machinery permitted. In the chase of the Colon the Brooklyn and Oregon shared the credit between them.

"Under circumstances it seems to me that the recommendations of President McKinley were eminently proper and that so far as Adms. Sampson and Schley were concerned it would have been unjust for him to have made other recommendations. • • •

"It was just to Adm. Sampson that he should receive a greater advance in numbers than Adm. Schley—there was nothing done in the battle that warranted any unusual reward for either. In short, as regards Adms. Sampson and Schley, I find that President McKinley did substantial justice and that there would be no warrant for reversing his action.

"Both Adm. Sampson and Adm. Schley are now on the retired list. In concluding their report the members of the court of inquiry, Adms. Dewey, Benham and Ramsey, united in stating that they recommend that no further action be had in the matter. With this recommendation I most heartily concur. There is no excuse whatever from either side for any further agitation of this unhappy controversy. To keep it alive would merely do damage to the navy and to the country.

"THEODORE ROOSEVELT."

THE SHOCK KILLED HIM.

Prominent Grain Dealer, Financially Involved, Died of Heart Disease.

Lincoln, Ill., Feb. 20.—Paul Smith, a prominent citizen and grain dealer, doing business at several points in this county, became financially involved to the extent of $100,000, and late Wednesday evening by a shock caused by his financial embarrassment, died from heart failure. Nash, Wright & Co., grain dealers of Chicago, took judgment against Mr. Smith and also filed mortgages in favor of the Lincoln national bank. When notified Wednesday evening by the sheriff of the judgment Mr. Smith went home and, before a physician could come to his aid, he expired. Mr. Smith's liabilities are $100,000; assets, $50,000.

SIR A. T. GOSHORN DEAD.

The Prominent Cincinnatian Succumbed to Apoplexy and Paralysis.

Cincinnati, Feb. 20.—Sir A. T. Goshorn died Wednesday at his Clifton home, aged 69 years. He had been failing ever since an apoplectic and paralytic stroke, eight years ago, took a turn for the worse two days ago. He had several sinking spells during the past year, but rallied when his death was thought to be imminent.

Goshorn was knighted by Queen Victoria for services as president of the commission in charge of the centennial exposition at Philadelphia in 1876. He also received decorations from several other foreign nations.

THE PRESIDENT ATTENDED.

Annual Banquet of the Department of the Potomac, G. A. R.

Washington, Feb. 20.—The annual banquet of the department of the Potomac, Grand Army of the Republic, was given at the New Willard hotel Wednesday night. President Roosevelt, Secretary Wilson and Gen. Torrence, the commander-in-chief of the grand army, were among the guests. The president reached the banquet hall shortly before 10 o'clock and was given a hearty reception. Later in the evening he made an address. The principal address of the evening was made by Gen. Eli Torrence.

MAN BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Jarring of a Train Caused a Box of Dynamite to Explode.

Elizabethton, Tenn., Feb. 20.—The jar of a passing train on a narrow gauge road leading to the mines caused the explosion of a box of dynamite sitting near the track in a gorge at Pardee Point Wednesday afternoon. One man, John Courley, was blown to atoms, three section hands wounded, one fatally, and the engine badly damaged. The train crew escaped unhurt.

Death of Gen. Thos. F. Tooen.

Raleigh, N. C., Feb. 20.—Gen. Thos. F. Tooen, state superintendent of public instruction, died here. He had been ill for nearly three months, but was thought to be recovering and the end was very sudden. Gen. Tooen rose from a private to brigadier general in the confederate army.

AT NATIONAL CAPITOL.

Arrangements Made for the Reception of Prince Henry.

Next Thursday, During the McKinley Memorial Exercises, the Prince Will Set By the Side of President Roosevelt.

Washington, Feb. 21.—After conferences between state department officials and members of the senate and house of representatives arrangements have been completed for the reception of Prince Henry when he comes to the capital next Monday afternoon. The prince will be accompanied by Ambassador Von Holleben or Count Quadt and the members of his staff. The party will arrive at the eastern main entrance about 4 o'clock and will enter the building by the rotunda. Here a committee of members of the house will be in waiting to receive him, as the visit to the senate will have to be made later owing to the taking of the vote on the Philippine bill at 4 o'clock. Representatives Grosvenor and Hitt and one democratic member will constitute the committee. The prince will he escorted first to Speaker Henderson's private office, where greetings will he exchanged and the speaker will then invite the prince and his party to occupy the speaker's reserved seats in the gallery. This will give the prince an opportunity to observe the conduct of affairs in the house. After looking down upon the business of the house, Prince Henry will return to the main floor and later will occupy the ways and means committee room for a time in order that members of the house may be presented to him in person. It is understood that this part of the programme carries out a wish expressed by Emperor William that his brother should see not only the legislative branch in session, but also should meet in a personal way the members of this branch of the government.

At the conclusion of the presentations of members to Prince Henry the committee will escort the prince and his party through the corridor to the rotunda, where a committee of senators will meet them and give the visitor the courtesies of the senate.

On the following Thursday when Prince Henry attends the McKinley memorial exercises in the house of representatives he will occupy a seat immediately along side of President Roosevelt, who, with his cabinet, will be in the area to the left of the speaker and in front of the republican side of the chamber. On entering the chamber the prince will be announced as "Prince Henry of Prussia, admiral of the German navy."

THE PRINCE IN OHIO.

Gov. Nash Will Not Escort the German Admiral Through the State.

Columbus, O., Feb. 21.—Gov. Nash and his staff will not escort Prince Henry through Ohio. In fact, there is no little feeling of irritation concerning the coming of Prince Henry. The governor had evidently planned to ride on the prince's special train during its passage through the boundaries of the Buckeye state, and had so notified the imperial German consul at Cincinnati, Mr. Karl Pollier. Now the governor receives a diplomatic refusal to the request, and there is no telling just how the delicate and embarrassing situation is to be relieved. Thursday morning Gov. Nash received a letter from Mr. Pollier in which the latter says that it could not he arranged that the governor travel with his royal highness through Ohio. The prince will stop at Columbus March 1 at 4:40 p. m. for 10 minutes, and a short oration would he agreeable.

Gov. Nash said Thursday after reading the Pollier letter, that whatever official greeting to Prince Henry there would be on the part of the state, would take place here.

RUSSIA AND CHINA.

The United States Government Sends Them a Note of Warning.

Peking, Feb. 21.—A sensation was caused in diplomatic circles here Thursday when it became known that the United States, through Secretary of State John Hay, had sent a note to the Russian and Chinese governments following closely alongs the lines of the Anglo-Japanese treaty of January 30. The note is a distinct warning to both China and Russia that the United States will not permit the integrity of the empire to he molested in favor of one nation to the detriment of another. The note practically indorses the English treaty with Japan.

Wealthy Farmer Murdered.

St. Joseph, Mo., Feb. 21.—John Reemer, a wealthy farmer and stock man, was murdered and his body thrown on the Burlington railway track twelve miles south of this city Thursday. It was found frightfully mangled after a train passed along.

A $120,000 Fire at Richmond, Va.

Richmond, Va., Feb. 21.—The large dry goods store of Cordes & Mosby, on Broad street, with the entire stock, was destroyed by fire Thursday night. The origin of the fire is not definitely known. The loss is estimated at $120,000, fully covered by insurance.

Superintendent of the Capitol.

Washington, Feb. 21.—The president has appointed Elliott Woods superintendent of the capitol and its grounds. Mr. Woods was assistant under the late Edward Clark, former architect of the capitol.

A WESTERN CANADA FARMER.

Seven Years Ago He Had But $24; Now He Has Seventy Head of Cattle.

This Is What a Couple of Eastern Farmers Learned When on a Recent Trip to Canada—Splendid Words About Saskatoon, Boathern and Eagne District Where They Will Locate.

Messrs. J. E. Blum and J. Grumper, of Mauchester, Washtenaw Co., Michigan, paid a visit to Alberta last summer and saw there a Mr. Shantz, one of the good old Pennsylvania stock, who had come recently—some seven years ago—from Ontario, with $24 in his pocket. He has certainly prospered as he now owns over 70 head of cattle, has a good log house framed over, also a good barn and in all respects looks a thrifty and well-to-do farmer. He had some good crops of oats and barley. After spending some days in Calgary and Edmonton they returned to Regina, Assiniboia, and, looked around the country North to Lumsden and Balgonie where the crops appeared very promising and heavy, continuing up the Regina and Long Lake Road they came to Saskatoon on the crossing of the South Saskatchewan River. Of this district they say:—

"The country here pleased us better than any we have seen. We drove out eighteen miles in northwesterly direction through the Smith settlement. This is a wonderful district, the growth was splendid, all kinds of grains and roots were perfection. The older settlers had good buildings of all kinds and looked very prosperous, in fact we came to the conclusion that we had found what we were looking for, a good country. While the nature of the soil changes and is in some parts light, in others stony, and again heavy, generally speaking it leaves nothing to be desired. Hay and water are also in abundance and wood can be found along the river slopes and islands. We have decided to locate there and shall certainly advise our friends to do likewise. We also trust that this report may have the effect of drawing the attention of land seekers to this district, and can honestly advise all such to locate there. They will find a good thing. As farmers ourselves, from a good district in Michigan, we have come to the conclusion that properly farmed Western Canada will grow almost anything." HELD IN CONTEMPT.

Senators Tillman and McLaurin Fight on the Senate Floor.

It Is Likely It Will Be 30 Days Before the Two Senators Will Be Allowed to Address the Senate or Vote.

Washington, Feb. 24.—Washington's birthday was signalized in the United States senate by a fist fight. The day set apart by the nation to afford the American people opportunity to pay fitting tribute to the memory of the first president was the occasion of one of the most sensational scenes ever enacted in the senate chamber.

Senator Tillman, in the course of a speech on the Philippine tariff bill, made a serious reflection upon the honor of his colleague, Senator McLaurin. He accused McLaurin of receiving patronage for a vote. McLaurin pronounced the statement false and received a blow on the head, and a rough-and-tumble fight followed. Mr. Tillman received a bad punch on the nose, which brought blood. Assistant Sergeant-at-Arms Layton separated the combatants and himself received several blows. With the assistance of two senators the belligerent members of the senate were forced into their seats. When order was restored both apologized, but the senate holds them in contempt.

The topic of chief interest in senatorial circles Sunday, and in fact every where in official Washington, was the fight in the senate Saturday between Senators Tillman and McLaurin, of South Carolina. There have been a number of conferences among senators as to what should be done to preserve the dignity of the senate and to manifest its sentiment with reference to the two senators who violated its traditions. While no plan of procedure has been agreed upon, it is learned that there will be very deliberate action, and it is said to be more than likely that it will be not less than 30 days before the two senators are restored to their full power as senators, this deliberation on their case being in the nature of a punishment since they will not be allowed to address the senate or vote until no longer in contempt of the senate.

Senator Burrows is chairman of the committee on privileges and elections and Sunday night he said that in advance of any meeting of the committee he could not say what would be done, but he added that the matter is of such serious import that it must receive careful consideration. It will be a day or two before the committee meets to take up the resolution referred to it by the senate. It is understood the conferences among senators has shown the existence of a considerable sentiment that the apologies made by the senators are not deemed sufficient, and that the committee will require other and more ample apologies to be submitted to it in writing, with the assurance that such apologies will be made to the senate before a report will be made to the effect that the senators have sufficiently purged themselves of the contempt of which the senate has adjudged them guilty.

THE PRISONERS RELEASED.

Miss Ellen M. Stone and Mme. Tsilka and Baby Are Free.

Constantinople, Feb. 24.—Miss Ellen M. Stone, the American missionary, who with Mme. Tsilka was captured by brigands in the district of Salonika September 3 last, has been released and arrived at Strumitza, Macedonia, at 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Nobody was at Strumitza to meet Miss Stone, as the brigands had given no indication where they proposed to release the prisoners. Mme. Tsilka and her baby were also released at the same time. They are all well. Miss Stone immediately made herself known to the authorities at Strumitza. The first news of Miss Stone's release was contained in a telegram received by Mr. Dickinson, the American consul general at Constantinople from the American vice consul at Salonika. The telegram gives no details of the release.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

American Club in Manila Celebrated It With a Reception and Banquet.

Manila, Feb. 24.—The American club here celebrated Washington's birthday with a reception and banquet. Acting Civil Gov. Wright, Gen. Chaffee and Col. Charles A. Woodruff, head of the subsistence department at Manila, made speeches in which it was advocated that all Americans work together for the future good of the Philippine islands. Twelve hundred Americans attended the reception.

McGovern and Sullivan.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 24.—Terry McGovern and Dave Sullivan, principals in Saturday night's fight in which McGovern won in the 15th round, both left Sunday for New York.

To Rival Them All.

Chicago, Feb. 24.—A new union station, which, with adequate terminal facilities, will cost the great sum of $10,000,000 to $16,000,000, is proposed for Chicago by the Pennsylvania management. The building will rival, if not excel, any in the United States.

Antitrust Law Valid.

Macon, Ga., Feb. 24.—Judge Nottingham, of the Macon court, in the suit of the Jones Grocery Co. vs. the National Biscuit Co., decided the antitrust law of Georgia to be constitutional.

PARK AVENUE HOTEL FIRE.

The Nineteenth Victim Died Sunday—The Ruins of the Armory.

New York, Feb. 22.—Fire broke out early Saturday morning in the armory of the 71st regiment, N. Y. N. G., spread to the Park Avenue hotel and it is estimated at least 19 lives were lost, while the damage is roughly estimated at over $1,000,000. One woman, a guest of the hotel, jumped from the fifth story and is believed to be fatally injured. Four bodies had been taken out up to 3:30 Saturday morning.

The Park Avenue hotel will, it is believed, be a total loss. The 71st regiment armory, a magnificent granite structure and one of the finest in the city, was destroyed.

New York, Feb. 24.—Sophia Beach, 61 years of age, a guest of the Park Avenue hotel, who was burned about the face and body Saturday morning, died in Bellevue hospital Sunday. This makes the 19th victim. All the other fire victims in the different hospitals will probably recover.

Rev. Wm. Boardman, of Norwalk, Ct., who is suffering from burns about the face, hands and body, improved somewhat Sunday. The body of the unidentified woman at the morgue was recognized as that of his wife, Julia.

The ruins of the 71st regiment armory and the scorched upper stories of the Park Avenue hotel were gazed at Sunday by thousands. A single fire engine sent a stream of water on one spot of the armory ruins where were stored 50,000 rounds of cartridges and a small quantity of powder. The other ammunition in the armory was all exploded while the fire burned.

So great was the crowd seeking admittance to the hotel that police guards were placed at the entrances. District Attorney Jerome arrived at the hotel in the morning, accompanied by half a dozen of his county detectives and Fire Chief Croker. They examined the burned portion of the hotel and talked with Mr. Reed, the proprietor. The elevator shaft was examined and in the basement was found one hand fire extinguisher empty. It was the only one the chief found in the hotel. One of the assistants told the visitors there was no way in which the fire could get to the elevator shaft without some one deliberately placing it there.

CORTEZ CAPTURED.

The Second in Command to Gen. Malvar Is Now a Prisoner.

Manila, Feb. 24.—A force of native constabulary at Santa Cruz, province of Laguna, Luzon, has captured Cortez, second in command to the insurgent general, Malvar, and turned him over to the military authorities. Cortez was in fancied security in a suburb of Santa Cruz, known as Alipit, and was raising funds for the insurrection. A friendly native informed Inspector Sorensen of this fact and the capture of Cortez followed.

Few insurgents remain in the provinces of Batangas and Laguna. Gen. J. Franklin Bell has accomplished his intended purpose of ridding this district of insurgents, though for the present the civil commission consider it inadvisable to declare the provinces in question to be pacified.

Large numbers of insurgents who have been driven from Batangas and Laguna have joined the Ladrones in the neighboring province of Cavite, where the native constabulary are hounding them from place to place. Gen. Trias, the present governor of Cavite province, who formerly bitterly opposed the Americans in that district, has given proof of his true friendliness and is using every effort to run down and capture the Ladrones.

KILLED BY THE BOXERS.

C. A. Anderson Files a $30,000 Claim For the Death of His Sister.

Whiting, Ia., Feb. 24.—Chas. A. Anderson has filed a claim with the state department at Washington for $30,000 damages for the death of his sister, Hilda S. Anderson, who was killed by the Boxers in Mongolia province, in China, in 1900. Two of Mr. Anderson's sisters were killed in China during the late uprising against foreigners, but only one was a subject of the United States, the other sister being a citizen of Sweden. Hilda S. Anderson was naturalized at Rockford, Ill., in 1897, and went to China as a missionary for the Christian Alliance.

Convention Between Russia and Corea.

Yokohama, Feb. 24.—It is reported here from Seoul that a convention has been concluded between Russia and Corea under the terms of which Corea agrees not to grant any state or individual the island of Ko-Je, the shore opposite, or any part of the coast from that point to Chemulpo.

Third Largest Telescope.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 24.—Dr. John Peate, the aged manufacturer of telescopes, has given to the American university at Harriman, Tenn., the third largest telescope in the United States. The instrument will be exceeded in size only by the Lick telescope and the Yerkes observatory instrument.

Capt. Henry Acquitted.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 24.—Capt. J. V. Henry, former secretary-treasurer of the United States Railway Mail Clerks' Mutual Benefit association, charged with embezzling $3,500 of the association's funds, was found not guilty.

Ex-Mayor Stokley.

New York, Feb. 24.—Ex-Mayor Wm. S. Stokley, of Philadelphia, died Saturday night in that city of paralysis, with which he was stricken several weeks ago. Mr. Stokley was born in 1823. He was three times mayor.

THE PRINCE'S ARRIVAL

He Received a Hearty Welcome as the Nation's Guest Sunday.

On His Visit to Adm. Evans He Was Received By the Squadron With All the Honors Due to His Rank.

New York, Feb. 24.—Prince Henry of Prussia, representative of his brother, the emperor of Germany, at the launching of the latter's American-built yacht, was cordially welcomed as a guest of the nation. The land batteries that guard the outer harbor sounded the first greeting in a ponderous salute of 21 guns, the rifles of a special naval squadron assembled in his honor re-echoed the sentiment, there were verbal greetings from the representatives of President Roosevelt, the army, the navy and the city of New York, and a great crowd lined the way into the city to see and cheer the sailor prince of Germany.

Rr. Adm. Robley D. Evans, commander of the special squadron and honorary aide to the prince, left the flagship Illinois in the naval tug Nina. With him were Capt. G. A. Converse, his chief of staff; Flag Lieut. Frederick Chapin, Ensign Frank T. Evans, aide, and Capt. Rebeur-Paschwitz, naval attache at the Washington embassy of the German government. They were all in full dress uniform. The Nina met the Kron Prinz beyond Fort Wadsworth and, swinging around on the starboard side of the liner, steamed up the bay. Prince Henry, attired in the uniform of an admiral of the German navy and surrounded by his naval and military staff in brilliant uniform, stood on the bridge of the liner. As the naval tug drew nearer to the steamship Prince Henry and Adm. Evans caught sight of each other and exchanged informal salutes.

As the first gun sounded the prince advanced to the end of the bridge of the Kron Prinz Wilhelm and stood at attention. As he passed the big American flag floating over the fortifications he touched his cap in salute and the members of his suite did likewise. The flag at the jackstaff of the Kron Prinz was dipped and the German naval band accompanying the prince played "The Star Spangled Banner." The guns of Fort Wadsworth were not silent before those across the narrows at Fort Hamilton boomed out their salute. When that ceremony was over the Kron Prinz was stopped and the Nina hauled around to her port side and Adm. Evans and his staff boarded her. The passengers were gathered on the main deck and there was a hearty cheer as the admiral came up the gangway.

Adm. Evans was escorted forward at once and in the quarters of Capt. A. Richter, master of the Kron Prinz, he and the prince met. The prince came forward and, taking the hand of the naval officer, shook it warmly.

"I am very glad to see you, sir," said the admiral.

"Everybody in the United States is waiting to welcome you. It is my pleasure, sir, to formally greet you in their behalf."

"I thank you, sir, and through you the people of your country," responded the prince. "I am very glad to be here and on this splendid day. The emperor directed me to convey his compliments to you, admiral, and I do so with very great pleasure."

Adm. Evans expressed gratification at the thoughtfulness of the emperor. He presented the members of his staff and the prince gave each a hearty handshake and a cordial word.

The last greeting in the run up the river was from the imperial yacht Hohenzollern, which is to be the home of the prince while in New York. She wore a full dress of flags and her white paint with its trimming of gold shone in the brilliant sun.

Prince Henry disembarked, walking down the decorated gangway from the Kron Prinz Wilhelm into the elaborately decorated pier. He then passed through an ornamental gangway and arch to the gang plank of the Hohenzollern, which had been decorated in the German colors and was covered half its length. The prince was met at the bottom of the gang plank by Adm. Von Baudissen, commander of the Hohenzollern, and his officers. Meanwhile the band from the Kron Prinz Wilhelm was playing the German national air.

Taking the precedence due to his rank, Prince Henry walked up the gang plank, followed by the officers of the Hohenzollern. The first of his callers to arrive after he had boarded the Hohenzollern was Gen. Brooke, U. S. A., accompanied by two aides. Adm. Barker and his aide, Capt. West, representing the United States navy, followed, and then came the German ambassador at Washington and his brilliantly attired suite of military and naval attaches and secretaries, and the military attache of the Germany embassy at Mexico, Lieut. Bartels. Following the German ambassador came the special representation of the president of the United States.

Capt. Natban Sargent then called on the prince as the special representative of Adm. Dewey. The captain said that he had been sent by the admiral especially to express to the prince the admiral's regret at not being able to greet him personally, and to pay his respects. The list of callers was ended with the mayor's party, which included himself and his private secretary. The German consul general at New York and his suite formed a part of the German ambassador's party. About an hour was spent by the prince in receiving his callers and in making an admiral's inspection of the troops and crew of the Hohenzollern.

Then followed a lunch. The prince invited to this luncheon those of the Americans among his callers who represented the navy; and besides there were at the board the members of the prince's suite and of the German embassy at Washington. At Prince Henry's right sat the highest representative of the emperor in this country, Ambassador Von Holleben, and on his left Adm. Evans. Next to the ambassador on the prince's right sat Capt. Converse, of the Illinois, and the other Americans present at the luncheon were Lieut. Chapin and Ensign Evans, son of Adm. Evans.

The prince boarded the tug Nina at 3:30 to repay his calls. He was accompanied by one aide and Adm. Evans and Ensigns Evans and Chapin. He visited the navy yard first, called on Adm. Barker and then Governor's island, where he called on Gen. Brooke. From Governor's island the tug proceeded to the battleship Illinois, where he called on Adm. Evans and inspected the ship. He was received by the squadron with the honors due to his rank.

The four ships of Adm. Evans' squadron were prettily illuminated Sunday night. The battleship Illinois, at the head of the fleet, had her name in electric lights across the bridge in letters two feet high. Along either side of the ship, at a height equal to the top of the pilot house, she displayed in lights the words: "Welcome, Prince Henry." The showing made by the Cincinnati was the best in the squadron, excelling that of the flagship.

New York, Feb. 24.—The prince and his party reached Jersey City at 12:10 a. m. and walked to the train through a roped enclosure guarded by 80 policemen under Chief of Police Murphy, of Jersey City. The train consisted of eight cars, the last one being the Columbia, devoted to the use of the prince and two immediate attendants. Assistant General Passenger Agent G. W. Boyd was in charge of the train. In addition to the police guard on the platform there were present Capt. Titus, of the New York detective bureau, and C. N. Wilkie, of the secret service. The train left the station at 1 a. m., the prince appearing on the rear platform of his car and bowing his acknowledgment of the cheers of those in the station.

Young Roosevelt's Condition.

Washington, Feb. 24.—The condition of young Theodore Roosevelt, jr., continues to improve and he is progressing steadily toward complete restoration to health.

Polo is probably the oldest of athletic sports. It has been traced to 600 B. C.

STATE NEWS PICK-UPS.

IN THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY.

The House Hereafter Will Hold Two Sessions Daily.

Frankfort, Feb. 18.—Senate—Bills introduced: To amend section 1309, Kentucky Statutes, by providing a fine for persons who carry a knife less than 15 inches in length or a pistol less than 22 inches or less than three pounds in weight; to prevent frauds in procuring persons to take stock, policies or membership in investment, insurance or stock companies; increasing the size of Kentucky court of appeals reports from 750 to 900 pages. The Cox bill to prohibit stock of all kinds from running at large on public highways was defeated—yeas 11, nays 20.

House—The Wright bill, providing that state banks that paid excess taxes under the Hewitt law shall be given credit on their state tax bills for the amount of the excess, provided their local taxes have been paid, was passed unanimously. The house considered in the committee of the whole and then passed without opposition the Pogue bill amending the common school law.

Frankfort, Feb. 19.—Senate—Bills introduced: Exempting the library of a minister of the Gospel from execution or attachment; allowing soldiers of state guard $1 per day while in state encampment; prohibiting the hiring of quail until November 15, 1905; act creating a school text book commission of one member from each railroad district from each city, first and second classes, and the superintendent of public instruction. The Allan bill, authorizing the governor to employ attorneys to prosecute the Kentucky war claim against the government was reconsidered by the senate, and adopted. The claims amount to nearly $1,000,000. The house amendment to the Carroll official court stenographer's bill was concurred in by the senate, and the bill will now go to the governor for his approval.

House—The house adopted the Newcomb bill giving the county of Jefferson six circuit judges. The Naylor bill to aid in the establishing and building of levees for the public benefit was passed. It allows county judges to declare levies and provides for public work thereon.

Frankfort, Feb. 20.—Senate—Bills passed: Providing for electing railroad commissioners by vote of the state at large; authorizing county fiscal courts to contract with hospitals or establish hospitals for the sick poor; to give the various counties the right to sue in the name of the county for taxes due said county. Bills introduced: To regulate the manner of fixing the franchise value of telephone, street railway and similar corporations in cities of first and second class; to repeal parts of the lynch law.

House—Bills passed: Senate bill which gives the sinking fund trustees, instead of the judges of the court of appeals, the right to elect the custodian of public buildings; increasing the salary of the governor's secretary to $1,800 per year and allowing him a stenographer to be paid $900 per year; providing that the name of Jacob Warrick shall be placed on the soldiers' monument in Frankfort cemetery. The bill changing Latonia from the sixth to the fifth class of cities was advanced to its second reading.

Frankfort, Feb. 21—Senate—The bill to increase pay of penitentiary guards from $60 to $75 per month came up as a special order, and was defeated by a vote of 10 to 21. The bill to prevent stock from running at large on macadamized or gravel roads was passed. The local option fight came up again on the motion of Senator Park, to suspend the rules and allow the committee to report. The motion was lost. Senator Ferris moved to allow the committee on religion and morals to report the local option bill, but it was lost. The Weller bill, to allow life insurance companies organized in Kentucky more latitude, was passed.

House—Thursday morning Mr. F. B. Brown endeavored to call up his embalming bill, but there was objection. The bills making a standard half bushel measure, making the birthday of Gen. Robert E. Lee a legal holiday, permitting seining in streams on the boundary of the state, and providing for the purchase of book type-writers for county clerks were among the measures advanced. The substitute for the Kiair bill, regulating telephone rates, providing that the matter of regulation shall be in the hands of the railroad commissioners, was favorably reported and ordered printed.

Frankfort, Feb. 22.—Two-thirds of the members of the legislature left on a special train Friday afternoon to be the guests of the Louisville board of trade at a banquet Friday night in honor of Washington's birthday. The remaining members left by special train Saturday morning to attend the tobacco fair at Maysville. Despite the fact that only 20 days remain of the session and that enough business is now before the assembly to occupy about twice that length of time, the members of the house continue to offer new bills, which have no hope of reaching a final vote. Twenty bills were introduced Friday.

Died in Arizona.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 20.—Martin Shannon, aged 47, manager of the Stoll & Hamilton distilleries, died Wednesday in Phoenix, Ariz., of consumption.

Ticket Speculator Arrested.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 22.—A peculiar case arose here over the arrest of L. F. Burke, who claimed Philadelphia as his home, on a charge of speculating in theater tickets without a license. He was arrested at the instigation of Manager Scott.

Change of Venue.

Vanceburg, Ky., Feb. 20.—Willis Scott, the mail carrier, died Tuesday night from strychnine poisoning, taken with suicidal intent. He was arrested last Saturday charged with forgery, but was released on bond.

THE STATE Y. M. C. A. MEETING.

Friday Afternoon Was Devoted to Department Conferences.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 21.—The 21st annual state convention of the Young Men's Christian association began at the Broadway Methodist church Thursday night. There are about 300 delegates in attendance and it is expected that much work will be done. The executive committee's report Thursday night shows great progress. Mr. L. Wilber Mosser, of Chicago, delivered an address Thursday night on "A World-Wide Movement." Permanent organization took place Friday morning.

Paducah, Ky., Feb. 22.—Friday afternoon's session of the Y. M. C. A. was devoted to the department conferences, reports being made from 16 departments, showing them all to be in a fluorishing condition. Friday evening a big banquet was given the visitors at the First Christian church. The principal address was that of Robert Wiedensal, of Chicago, secretary of the international committee. A railroad session was held subsequently, the reports showing the vast progress made in the railroad department. Mr. J. C. Welling, vice president of the Illinois Central, who was to have made the principal address, was unable to be present. Mr. F. C. Nunemacher, of Louisville, was elected president of the convention; Messrs. J. White Potter, of Bowling Green, and B. H. Scott, of Paducah, vice presidents, and P. G. Dix, of Henderson, secretary.

LEXINGTON HORSE SALES.

Three Racers Were Disposed of at Good Prices.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 20.—At the third day of the Woodward & Shanklin sales, Susie J (2:10½), roan mare, 5 years old, by Jay Hawker, dam Millionaire by Norwood, was sold to J. Malcomb Forbes, of Boston, for $8,025. Also Fair Promise, b. h., 7, pacer, (2:12¾), by Baron Wilkes, dam The Duchess by Strathmore, to W. H. Hukill, of Paris, Ky., for $700. Malise C, br. f. (trial, 2:17), by Clay King, dam Paronella by Passeville, to H. M. Bostworth, of Lexington, for $1,025.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 21.—Eighty-four head of horses were sold at Woodward & Shanklin's sale Thursday, averaging $125. The only two horses sold Thursday over $500 were: Lady Bright, b. m., 5, by Nanboth, dam Susan B., A. J. Hook, Stamping Ground, $560. Stray Kittie, b. f., 3, by Oretorio, dam Maud H., J. R. Morgan, Cincinnati, $500.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 22.—Friday closed Woodard & Shanklin's five day sale. All horses Friday sold for less than $300. Sixty were sold averaging $150. During the sale 410 horses were sold for $99,865, averaging $237.

LEE TURNER SURRENDERS.

The Proprietor of the "Quarter House" in the Hands of Officers.

Knoxville, Tenn., Feb. 21.—Lee Turner, proprietor of the "Quarter House" near Middlesboro, which was burned last week, gave himself up to Marshal J. M. Mosley, at Lafollette, and was brought to this city by Mosley and Sheriff Hughes of Claiborne county. W. A. Owens, of Tazewell, and Jerry Jarnagin, of Middlesboro, met them here and at once negotiations were begun with Gov. Beckham, of Kentucky, contending that Turner is a citizen of Tennessee, has committed no offense and should not be taken back to Kentucky, where, it is claimed, his life would be in danger. He disclaims any part in or knowledge of plans for the assault on the officers Wednesday of last week.

A SUICIDE CLUB.

Members Agree to End Their Lives When Rejected By Girls.

Campton, Ky., Feb. 22.—A Suicide club has been organized at the Tar Bridge schoolhouse, five miles from this place, with W. P. Pelfry as president. Ten young men have signed the pledge, which is as follows: "We do most solemnly agree to use every effort to secure a wife; but, in the event we are rejected when we propose to a girl, we will commit suicide by jumping over a cliff."

A band of this kind existed in the Tar Ridge several years ago, but it was not known until John Cutler was found swinging from a tree and a copy of the by-laws of the organization was found in his pocket.

Death at the Age of 93.

Beaver Dam, Ky., Feb. 21.—Mrs. Sherrod, mother-in-law of Dr. J. S. Smith, of McHenry, died, aged 93 years. She was the oldest person in the county.

Hazel Gets Seventen Years.

Bardstown, Ky., Feb. 22.—At his trial here Elijah Hazel was given a term of 17 years in the penitentiary for murder. Hazel, while an inmate at the county poor farm, shot and killed the superintendent, William Hill, last fall.

Held Without Bail.

Greenup, Ky., Feb. 23.—Bill Green, colored, was held without bail. The examining trial showed that the victim of his alleged criminal assault, Mary Spalding, colored, is less than 10 years old.

COWPEAS.

A field of cowpeas has been very happily designated "the poor man's bank," for in common with all its leguminous congeners, the field pea, clovers, alfalfa, and a score of others this crop increases the fertility of the soil upon which its grows. This fact has long been accepted by farmers and students of agriculture, but until recent discoveries in Germany and America it was believed that the chief function of these plants was to tap the subsoil reservoirs of nitrogen, bringing this valuable fertilizer to the surface by means of their long roots for the use and benefit of succeeding crops.

But within the last decade scientific workers have discovered that minute micro organisms, or bacteria which live within the tissues of the roots of leguminous plants, take up free nitrogen from the gases in the soil, just as the higher plants and animals utilize the oxygen of the air. This nitrogen enters into combination to form nitric acid, which unites with the mineral elements of the soil to form nitrates, a kind of plant food exceedingly valuable to the growing crop. Nitrogen, when in combination with other elements, is an indispensable form of plant and animal food, but the free element can not be utilized, uncombined, by any of the higher organisms. Small amounts of nitrous acid are formed in the air by lightning discharges, and are in part absorbed by the soil and in part carried by rivers and drainage waters into the sea. Free nitrogen exists only in the air and in the gases of the soil, but as ammonia, nitrous and nitric acid, nitrites and nitrates, it is present in varying quantities in the soil, the unbroken rocks, and the waters of continents and oceans.

The most available purchasable nitrogen is obtained from nitrate of soda or from some form of animal wastes, such as freshly ground bone, dried blood, guano, tankage, and fish scrap, and from cotton-seed meal and other like by-products of the oil mills. These fertilizers are all expensive, so much so that they can be profitably employed by the farmer only in intensive farming with specialized crops. The gain in yield with low-priced crops, such as corn, cotton, tobacco, cowpeas, and the grasses, using high-grade and costly fertilizers, is not commensurate with the additional expense. But every farmer, rich and poor, has over three thousand tons of atmospheric nitrogen resting on every acre of his farm, a certain quantity of which can be transformed into available plant food every time that he grows a crop of cowpeas, red clover, or alfalfa.

There are a great many acres of farming land in the South in need of renovation. The red uplands and yellow-clay soils were undoubtedly less fertile originally than the alluvial and black prairie soils, and the methods of cultivation which formerly prevailed have still further diminished their productiveness. In the days when every plantation numbered its acres by the thousand, and labor was cheap, the planter could afford to clear off the native forest growth and bring fresh fields into cultivation whenever the yields of cotton and tobacco fell below what was considered a profitable figure. The old field, stripped in a few years of its accumulated store of fertility, was abandoned and allowed to grow up to weeds and underbrush. The forest again spread across it, and gradually in the slow course of half a lifetime, the natural enrichment of its surface soil by the growth of the woodland grasses made it ready for another cultivation.

But with the breaking up of the large estates and the abrupt change in the labor conditions this method of farming became no longer profitable or even possible. A planter with fewer acres could no longer afford to await nature's slow process of rejuvenating the soil. A new system of farming was necessary The land must not be allowed to "go back." It must be kept up to the highest state of productiveness by a rotation of crops, a judicious use of commercial fertilizers, the growth of nitrogen-fixing leguminous crops, and good and thorough cultivation. To maintain the fertility of any soil the amount of humus or decaying organic matter in it must be maintained. Take two soils of as nearly as possible the same physical and geological formation, but the one rich in humus and the other lacking it, and fertilize them with equal quantities of commercial manures; the one which has the most organic matter in its composition will yield the larger crop. The soil on that field will stand drought better, will wash less under torrential rains, and be more friable and of better tilth. The average soils of the South need more humus. It can be best supplied by sowing more grass, more permanent pasture lands, more leguminous crops. In a word, plant cowpeas.

There is no forage plant better adapted to the needs and conditions of Southern agriculture than this rank, free growing annual. It will thrive luxuriantly upon the rich, swampy, cane lands of Louisiana. On the driest and most sterile worn-out uplands it serves the admirable purpose of supplying a larger quantity and better quality of forage than any other bean or clover. And whenever a crop of cowpeas has been taken off a field the surface soil is left richer by a good many pounds of that most costly of all plant foods, nitrogen. The roots of the cowpea enter deeply into the soil, opening and loosening it far down for the benefit of the roots of the succeeding crops of corn, cotton, and tobacco. It has been found by experiment that the fertilizing value of the roots and stubble of the cowpea are very considerable, but not as great as that of the hay removed from the field. The best and most economical use of this forage crop is, then, to cut for hay, feed to stock, and return the stable manure to the soil. Plowing the whole crop under is less remunerative, because there is much needless waste of the muscle-making and fat-forming constituents of the plant which would bring more profit if turned into beef, pork, wool, cheese, or butter.

As regards the disposal of the crop, there is a wide variation in practice. The feeding value of vines and peas much exceeds their fertilizing value. But as between the practice of turning the vines under green in autumn and that of allowing them to lie on the ground during the winter, the latter is undoubtedly sometimes to be preferred though theoretically wrong. Theoretically, to plow the vines under in autumn will be to save all the available nitrogen and convert the whole plant into humus. Practically, the turning under of so large an amount of watery green herbage is sometimes highly injurious, causing a too rapid decay and consequent "burning" or souring of the soil. The upper soil layers, freshly stirred and mellowed in autumn, lose more by leaching and washing than do those of an unplowed field covered by its winter mulch of decaying herbage, though in both cases there is a decided loss of fertility over what would result by following the peas with a crop of rye, winter wheat, the turf-forming winter oats, winter vetch, or crimson clover. The yields of forage are better on rich soils than on poor ones, but the beneficial effects upon the succeeding crop due to the growth of the cowpea are not so marked in the former case as in the latter.

Had To Conquer or Die.

"I was just about gone," writes Mrs. Rosa Richardson, of Laurel Springs, N. C., "I had Consumption so bad that the best doctors said I could not live more than a month, but I began to use Dr. King's New Discovery and was wholly cured by seven bottles and am now stout and well." It's an unrivaled life-saver in Consumption. Pneumonia, La-Grippe and Bronchitis; infallible for Coughs Colds, Asthma, Hay Fever, Croup or Whooping Cough. Guaranteed bottles 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at W. F. McKim's, Burlington, Union Drug Store, Union, J. G. Oelsner's, Florence, H. L. Eskew's Walton, O. N. Grant's, Bellevue.

In Indiana they have a law that the man who secures the nomination for any office must within ten days thereafter file with the County Court Clerk an itemized statement of the money expended, it is as follows:

"Any candidate for any county, township, city or municipal office voted for at any convention or primary shall, within ten days after such primary or convention at which such candidate has been voted for, file in the office of the County or City Clerk, as the case may be, his itemized, verified statement of the moneys expended by him for the purpose of such candidacy. Any person who is such candidate and fails to file such itemized verified statement shall be fined not more than $500 nor less than $50 and disfranchised and rendered incapable of holding any office of trust or profit for any determined period."

What a calamity to Owen county office seekers this would prove to be if the present Kentucky Legislature were to enact such a law. It is a wonder that among the category of bills offered that such a bill has not shown up. It would take a smooth figurer for an Owen County candidate to bring his itemized statement within the limit.—Owen News-Herald.

The calamity that would result from such a law in Kentucky would not be to the candidates but that element known and designated as political "leg-pullers or grafters." If the law could accomplish that for which it would be intended it would not only be a blessing to the candidates, but to society in general. The use of money in elections is one of the most corrupting practices with which the people have to contend, and the laws that have been promulgated in Kentucky for the purpose of preventing it have, so far, been dismal failures and are destined to be until vigorously supported by public sentiment, which, in the last few years, appears to have a tendency in an opposite direction.

Mr. Alvin Major, of the Alton Station community, reports the loss of a very fine brood mare, valued at $150, from eating smutty fodder; also a very fine steer, presumably from the same cause. Some time ago, one of our prominent cattle raisers gave it out as his opinion that if stock had access to plenty of water and salt no more losses would occur from this "disease." We would like for some of our enterprising farmers and stock-raisers to give a report of their experience in this line.—Anderson News.

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman, of Burlington, Iowa., "I was weak and pale, without any appetite and all run down. As I was about to give up, I got a bottle of Electric Bitters and, after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life." Weak, sickly, run down people always gain new life, strength and vigor from their use. Try them. Satisfaction guaranteed by W. F. McKim, Burlington, Union Drug Store, Union, J. G. Oelsner, Florence, H. L. Eskew, Walton, O. N. Grant, Bellevue.

LOCAL NEWS.

How to Cure the Grip.

Remain quietly at home and take Chamberlain's Cough Remedy as directed and a quick recovery is sure to follow. That remedy counteracts any tendency of the grip to result in pneumonia, which is really the only serious danger. Among the tens of thousands who have used it for the grip, not one case has ever been reported that did not recover. For sale by all druggists.

W. M. Rogers, the popular agent of the Boone County Insurance Company came into this office late Monday afternoon, very much distressed over the loss of a new $10 gold certificate, which he said he had put in his pocket book along with a V in the insurance office, and that he and the entire official force of the company had made a close search of the aforesaid pocket book and office, and it could be found nowhere therein. Being so positive that he put the two bills in the pocket book, we asked him to let us see the book. "Certainly," said he, "but I tell you it is not in there." Having manipulated the pocket book, in a very old way, a little, several false pockets were discovered, and in one of these the two bills had been snugly tucked away. When he left the office Mr. Rogers was feeling much better than when he came.

William B. Watts, died at the home of his niece, Mrs. Nannie R. Baldwin, in Nicholasville, Tuesday afternoon after an illness of two weeks from pneumonia. The news of his serious illness came as a great surprise to the many friends of Mr. Watts in Nicholasville, as only a few days before he was on the streets. There was not a more familiar figure in our town than "Uncle Billy"—by which name everyone greeted him, and especially the children who had grown to be very fond of him. William Benjamin Watts was born in Boone county, Ky., seventy-eight years ago and had been making his home in Nicholasville with his sister, Mrs. Jno. S. Bronaugh, for the past five years, until her death, when he took up his residence with Mrs. Baldwin. Mrs. Jas. F. Barkley, Mr. N. L. Bronaugh and Mrs. N. R. Baldwin, nieces and nephew of the deceased, were among the nearest relatives, having no brothers or sisters living. Dr. Talmage Draws a Sermon from the Familiar Illustration from the Barnyard—Simple Teachings of Christ.

(Copyright, 1902, by Louis Klopsch, N. Y.)

A familiar illustration from the barnyard is employed in this discourse by Dr. Talmage to show the comfort and protection the Heaven affords to all trusting souls. The text is Matthew 23:37: "Even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings and ye would not."

Jerusalem was in sight as Christ came to the crest of Mount Olivet, a height of 700 feet. The splendors of the religious capital of the whole earth irradiated the landscape. There is the temple. Yonder is the king's palace. Spread out before his eyes are the pomp, the wealth, the wickedness and the coming destruction of Jerusalem, and he bursts into tears at the thought of the obduracy of a place that he would gladly have saved and apostrophizes, saying: "O, Jerusalem, Jerusalem, how often would I have gathered my children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!"

Why did Christ select hens and chickens as a simile? Next to the appositeness of the comparison, I think it was to help all public teachers in the matter of illustration to get down off their stilts and use comparisons that all can understand. The plainest bird on earth is the barnyard fowl. Its only adornments are the red comb in its headdress and the wattles under the throat. It has no grandeur of genealogy. All we know is that its ancestors came from India, some of them from a height of 4,000 feet on both sides of the Himalayas. It has no pretension of nest like the eagle's eyrie. It has no luster of plumage like the goldfinch. Possessing anatomy that allows flight yet about the last thing it wants to do is to fly, and in retreat uses foot almost as much as wing. Musicians have written out in musical scale the song of lark and robin redbreast and nightingale, and yet the hen of my text hath nothing that could be taken for a song, but only the cluck and cackle. Yet Christ in the text uttered while looking upon doomed Jerusalem declares that what he wished for that city was like what the hen does for her chickens.

Christ was thus simple in His teachings, and yet how hard it is for us who are Sunday school instructors and editors and preachers and reformers and those who would gain the ears of audiences to attain that Heavenly and Divine art of simplicity! We have to run a course of literary disorders as children a course of physical disorders. We come out of school and college loaded down with Greek mythologies and out of the theological seminary weighed down with what the learned fathers said, and we fly with wings of eagles and flamingoes and albatrosses, and it takes a good while before we can come down to Christ's similitudes, the candle under the bushel, the salt that has lost its savor, the net thrown into the sea, the spittle on the eyes of the blind man and the hen and chickens.

There is not much poetry about this winged creature of God mentioned in my text, but she is more practical and more motherly and more suggestive of good things than many that fly higher and wear brighter colors. She is not a prima donna of the skies nor a strut of beauty in the aisle of the forest. She does not cut a circle under the sun like the Rocky mountain eagle, but stays at home to look after family affairs. She does not swoop like the condor of the cordilleras to transport a rabbit from the valley to the top of the crags, but just scratches for a living.

I am in warm sympathy with the unpretentious and old fashioned hen because, like most of us, she has to scratch for a living. She knows at the start what most people of good sense are slow to learn—that the gaining of a livelihood implies work and that successes do not lie on the surface, but are to be upturned by positive and continuous effort. The reason that society and the church and the world are so full of failures, so full of loafers, so full of deadbeats is because the people are not wise enough to take the lesson which any hen would teach them that if they would find for themselves and for those dependent upon them anything worth having they must scratch for it.

One day in the country we saw sudden consternation in the behavior of old Dominick. Why the hen should be so disturbed we could not understand. We looked about to see if a neighbor's dog were invading the farm. We looked up to see if a stormcloud were hovering. We could see nothing on the ground that could terrorize, and we could see nothing in the air to ruffle the feathers of the hen, but the loud, wild, affrighted cluck which brought all her brood at full run under her feathers made us look again around and above us, when we saw that high up and far away there was a rapacious bird wheeling round and round and down and down, and, not seeing us as we stood in the shadow, it came nearer and lower until we saw its beak was curved from base to tip and it had two flames of fire for eyes and it was a hawk. But all the chickens were under old Dominick's wings, and either the bird of prey caught a glimpse of us or, not able to find the brood huddled under her wing, darted back into the clouds. So Christ calls with great earnestness to all the young. Why, what is the matter? It is bright sunlight, and there can be no danger. Health is theirs. A good home is theirs. Plenty of food is theirs. Prospect of long life is theirs. But Christ continues to call, calls with more emphasis and urges haste and says not a second ought to be lost. Oh, do tell us what is the matter. Ah, now I see; there are hawks of temptation in the air, there are vultures wheeling for their prey, there are beaks of death ready to plunge, there are claws of allurement ready to clutch. Now I see the peril. Now I understand the urgency. Now I see the only safety. Would that Christ might this day take our sons and daughters into his shelter "as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wing."

The fact is that the most of them will never mind the shelter unless while they are chickens. It is a simple matter of inexorable statistics that most of those who do not come to Christ in youth never come at all. What chance is there for the young without divine protection? There are the grogshops, there are the gambling hells, there are the infidelities and immoralities of spiritualism, there are the bad books, there are the impurities, there are the business rascalities, and so numerous are these assailants that it is a wonder that honesty and virtue are not lost arts. The birds of prey, diurnal and nocturnal, of the natural world are ever on the alert. They are the assassins of the sky; they have varieties of taste. The eagle prefers the flesh of the living animal; the vulture prefers the carcass; the falcon kills with one stroke, while other styles of beak give prolongation of torture.

But we all need the protecting wing. If you had known when you entered upon manhood or womanhood what was ahead of you, would you have dared to undertake life? How much you have been through! With most life has been a disappointment. They tell me so. They have not attained that which they expected to attain. They have not had the physical and mental vigor they expected or they have met with rebuffs which they did not anticipate. You are not at 40 or 50 or 60 or 70 or 80 years of age where you thought you would be. I do not know anyone except myself to whom life has been a happy surprise. I never expected anything, and so when anything came in the shape of human favor or comfortable position or widening field of work it was to me a surprise. I was told in the theological seminary by some of my fellow-students that I never would get anybody to hear me preach unless I changed my style, so that when I found that some people did come to hear me it was a happy surprise. But most people, according to their own statement, have found life a disappointment. Indeed, we all need shelter from its tempests.

The wings of my text suggest warmth, and that is what most folks want. The fact is that this is a cold world whether you take it literally or figuratively. We have a big fireplace called the sun, and it has a very hot fire, and the stokers keep the coals well stirred up, but much of the year we cannot get near enough to this fireplace to get warmed. The world's extremities are cold all the time. For get not that it is colder at the south pole than at the north pole and that the arctic is not so destructive as the antarctic. Once in awhile the arctic will let explorers come back, but the antarctic hardly ever. When at the south pole a ship sails in, the door of ice is almost sure to be shut against its return. So life to many millions of people at the south and many millions of people at the north is a prolonged shiver. But when I say that this is a cold world I chiefly mean figuratively, if you want to know what is the meaning of the ordinary term of receiving the "cold shoulder," get out of money and try to borrow. The conversation may have been almost tropical for luxuriance of thought and speech, but suggest your necessities and see the thermometer drop to 50 degrees below zero, and in that which fell a moment before had been a warm room. Take what is an unpopular position on some public question and see your friends fly as chaff before a windmill. As far as myself is concerned, I have no word of complaint, but I look off day by day and see communities freezing out men and women of whom the world is not worthy. Now it takes after one and now after another. It becomes popular to depreciate and defame and execrate and lie about some people. This is the best world I ever got into, but it is the meanest world that some people ever got into. The worst thing that ever happened to them was their cradle, and the best thing that will ever happen to them will be their grave.

What people want is warmth. Many years ago a man was floating down on the ice of the Merrimac, and great efforts were made to rescue him. Twice he got hold of a plank thrown to him and twice he slipped away from it, because that end of the plank was covered with ice, and he cried out: "For God's sake, give me the wooden end of the plank this time!" and, this done, he was hauled to shore. The trouble is that in our efforts to save the soul there is too much coldness and icy formality, and so the imperilled one slips off and floats down. Give it the other end of the plank; warmth of sympathy, warmth of kindly association, warmth of genial surroundings. The world declines to give it and in many cases has no power to give it, and here is where Christ comes in, and as on a cold day, the rain beating and the atmosphere full of sleet, the hen clucks her chickens under her wings and the warmth of her own breast puts warmth into the wet feathers and the chilled feet of the infant group of the barnyard, so Christ says to those sick and frosted and disgusted and frozen of the world: "Come in out of the March winds of the world's criticism, come in out of the sleet of the world's assault, come in out of a world that does not understand you and does not want to understand you. I will comfort and I will soothe, and I will be your warmth 'as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wing.'" Oh, the warm heart of God is ready for all those to whom the world has given the cold shoulder.

But notice that some one must take the storm for the chickens. Ah, the hen takes the storm. I have watched her under the pelting rain. I have seen her in the pinching frosts. Almost frozen to death or almost strangled in the waters, and what a fight she makes for the young under wing if a dog or a hawk or a man come too near. And so the brooding Christ takes the storm for us. What flood of anguish and tears that did not flash upon His holy soul, what beak of torture did not pierce His vitals? What barking Cerberus of hell was not let out upon Him from the kennels? Yes, the hen takes the storm for the chickens, and Christ takes the storm for us. Once the tempest rose so suddenly the hen could not get with her young back from the new ground to the barn, and there she is under the fence half dead. And now the rain turns to snow, and it is an awful night, and in the morning the whiteness about the gills and the beak down in the mud show that the mother is dead, and the young ones come out and cannot understand why the mother does not scratch for them something to eat, and they walk over her wings and call with their tiny voices, but there is no answering cluck. She took the storm for others and perished. Poor thing! Self-sacrificing even unto death! And does it not make you think of Him who endured all for us? So the wings under which we come for spiritual safety are blood spattered wings, are night-shadowed wings, are tempest-torn wings. In the Isle of Wight I saw the grave of Princess Elizabeth, who died while a prisoner at Carisbrook castle, her finger on an open Bible and pointing to the words: "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Oh, come under the wings.

My text has its strongest application for people who were born in the country, wherever you may now live, and that is the majority of you. You cannot hear my text without having all the rustic scenes of the old farmhouse come back to you. Good old days they were. You knew nothing much of the world, for you had not seen the world. By law of association you cannot recall the brooding hen and her chickens without seeing also the barn and the haymow and the wagon shed and the house and the room where you played and the fireside with the big backlog before which you sat and the neighbors and the burial and the wedding and the deep snowbanks and hear the village bell that called you to worship and seeing the horses which, after pulling you to church, stood around the old clapboarded meeting house and those who sat at either end of the church pew and, indeed, all the scenes of your first 14 years, and you think of what you were then and of what you are now, and all these thoughts are aroused by the sight of the old henroop. Some of you had better go back and start again. In thought return to that place and hear the cluck and see the outspread feathers and come under the wing and make the Lord your portion and shelter and warmth, preparing for everything that may come and so avoid being classed among those described by the closing words of my text, "as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not." Ah, that throws the responsibility upon us. "Ye would not." Alas for the "would nots!" If the wandering broods of the farm heed not their mother's call and risk the hawk and dare the freshet and expose themselves to the frost and storm, surely their calamities are not the mother's fault. "Ye would not!" God would, but how many would not?

When a good man asked a young woman who had abandoned her home and who was deploring her wretchedness why she did not return, the reply was: "I dare not go home. My father is so provoked he would not receive me home." "Then," said the Christian man, "I will test this." And so he wrote to the father, and the reply came back, and in a letter marked outside "Immediate" and inside saying: "Let her come at once; all is forgiven." So God's invitation for you is marked "Immediate" on the outside, and inside is written: "He will abundantly pardon." Oh, ye wanderers from God and happiness and home and Heaven, come under the sheltering wing. A vessel in the Bristol channel was nearing the rocks called the Steep Holmes. Under the tempest the vessel was unmanageable, and the only hope was that the tide would change before she struck the rocks and went down, and so the captain stood on the deck, watch in hand. Captain and crew and passengers were pallid with terror. Taking another look at his watch and another look at the sea, he shouted: "Thank God, we are saved! The tide has turned! One minute more and we would have struck the rocks!" Some of you have been a long while drifting in the tempest of sin and sorrow and have been making for the breakers. Those God, the tide has turned! Do you not feel the lift of the billow? The grace of God that bringeth salvation has appeared to your soul, and, in the words of Boaz to Ruth, I commend you to "the Lord God of Israel, under whose wings thou hast come to trust."

This Is Very True.

Indolence is a sluggish stream, yet it eventually undermines the last virtue a man has.

NOTES OF THE MODES.

New Materials and Designs for Spring Gowns—Pretty Fabrics Now in Vogue.

For early spring costumes, where a newer and more elaborate decoration than silk stitching is desired, will be used some very handsome braid ornaments, the variety of designs of which will make it possible to please all tastes. There will be displayed elaborate set pieces ready to apply to the skirt, while revers, girdles, collars and other conceits will be arranged for the jacket and waist. Both silk and mohair combinations will appear, and hercules and soutache braids will be in use. These braid decorations are usually selected to match the color of the material, though black produces a rich result on navy, swallow, or sapphire blue, brown, dark green or red gowns, says the New York Post.

For the taffetas, crepes de chine and other soft beautiful fabrics that are so much used for dressy winter gowns the princesse effect is first in favor. These dresses are long and sweeping. Some of them have a princesse back formed of side plaitings running from the top to the hem of the skirt, the plaits flaring gradually from the knees down. The fronts finish at the waist line with a bolero effect, and all sorts of fancy bands and embroideries are used to decorate them; fan plaitings of the same, joined by lace insertions, being frequently introduced on the slashed portions of the skirt.

The wine-colored or amethyst satin opera cloak with facings and monk's hood of white velvet is one among the many elegant evening wraps. The edges all around are trimmed with white fox and the arched collar is also of fur. Again are seen capes of costly lace over a white or colored satin lining, the trimming consisting of plaited chiffon, coquille draperies and frills and bands of marabout feathers. Roman red cloth forms still other French wraps, the accessories composed of white cloth narrowly edged with sea otter and overlaid with Persian embroideries.

A very pretty evening gown recently noted had a bodice made of point d'esprit, trimmed with very fine gold gimp put on in stripes, the whole revelled with lace so that one saw only a delicate glitter of gold. The upper part was arranged to simulate a little bolero, and was bordered all around with tiny roses in raised silk, wrought in embroidered relief work. The skirt was deftly shirred to the hips, the fullness disposed in plaits which were allowed to fall loose.

FOR THE HOUSEHOLD.

Odd Bits of Information Pertaining to Various Matters in the Domestic Department.

For tying back sleeping-room curtains of soft white material a silken cord and tassel is preferable to ribbon, unless one possesses the knack of being able to arrange ribbon effectively.

Those whose worldly possessions include a table service of gold may reenforce their costly treasures by low baskets of gold wire to serve as bonbon holders. The cost of these little additions is in keeping with the service, which they are supposed to supplement, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

White lead, which is easily procured at any shop where they make a specialty of art paints, has the reputation of making the most durable as well as the simplest sort of cement with which to mend china.

Cocoanut shells, which may easily be procured, make an excellent fire in an open grate. They are easily handled, possess the added advantage of being cleaner than either coal or wood and give out considerable heat.

In some households the white counterpanes are occasionally replaced by one of cretonne or the old-time glazed chintz which has this season been restored to favor for drapery purposes. The bolster rolls to match are the correct accompaniment, the pillow sham having been banished with the pillows which are kept out of sight in the day.

The linen closet is considered imperative in every well-regulated household, and the woman who has had an opportunity to plan or make suggestions with regard to the building of the house over which she presides is sure to have some special convenient nook set apart for the linen cupboard. One housewife has improved on the majority of her sisters and designed a cabinet that is movable like a wardrobe, being mounted on castors. It is fitted up in the most convenient manner imaginable, being divided into compartments of various sizes for the household linen supply, including special nooks for doilies, tea cloths, napkins and dusters. The front of each compartment is operated like the flap of a desk and when opened serves as a resting place for the articles as they are drawn from the recess.

Farina Dumplings.

Put half a cupful each of water and milk and a level teaspoonful of salt into a saucepan over the fire, and when boiling stir in gradually a fourth of a cupful of farina. Cook until thick, stirring constantly, then add a lump of butter size of a hickory nut and a saltspoonful each of pepper and ginger; cool slightly, add the well-beaten yolks of two eggs, and let the mixture, which may be made some time cold. Drop from the side of a teaspoon into the boiling broth, boil five minutes, then serve. These dumplings are delicious in soup.—Boston Budget.

STATE ITEMS OF INTEREST.

KENTUCKY LEGISLATURE.

"Blind Tiger" Bill Passed and Goes to Gov. Beckham.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 26.—With only a little more than two weeks of the legislative session remaining, new bills are being offered to the already overcrowded branches. Sixteen were offered in the lower house and five in the senate Tuesday. The bill offered by Adams, to allow sixth-class cities to adopt the ten-year plan for street improvements, was adopted by a vote of 59 to 3, in the house. The senate, by unanimous vote, adopted the Byron anti-trust bill. It is a copy of the Texas law, which has been upheld by the United States supreme court. The Byron bill, providing for advertising in newspapers all sales of property of the value of $100 or over under judgment of court, was adopted. The Allen bill, authorizing the consolidation of local with foreign railroad corporations, the foreign corporation to become a local corporation, was adopted unanimously.

Frankfort, Feb. 27.—Senate—The Cox bill appropriating $100,000 for the St. Louis world's fair came up as a special order. The Porter amendment striking out the appropriations but authorizing the counties, cities and individuals to subscribe a sum sufficient to make an exhibit, was defeated and the Richardson amendment to cut the appropriation down to $50,000 met the same fate. The b... then passed by a vote of 22 to 13. Other measures passed: To regulate the selection of juries so as to do away, as near as possible, with the professional jurors who hang about the courthouse; to allow appeals to court of appeals in cases involving construction of a statute; requiring state and county attorneys to personally conduct the examination of witnesses in felony cases before the grand jury.

House—The Wills bill providing for state uniforming in school books, was called from the committee and read the first time and put on the calendar. The Denton bill, declaring certain creeks to be public ditches in order that they may be used for drainage purposes, was passed. The bill appropriating $10,000 to the Kentucky Children's Home society, was passed. The senate bill providing that the jailer's salary in second class cities shall not be less than $1,500 nor more than $2,500 and deputy not less than $900 nor more than $1,200, passed—51 to 28.

Frankfort, Feb. 28.—The lower house adopted the Farris senate "blind tiger" bill. The bill, which goes to the governor for his approval, makes it unlawful for any person to sell, lend, give, procure for or furnish to another in a local option district any liquor or to have in his possession any liquor, and any person so offending shall be fined not less than $50 nor more than $100 and imprisoned not less than 50 days. The Kirk bill increasing the amount in which an appeal can be taken to the court of appeals from $200 to $300 was amended by allowing the present statutes to stand. A provision that appeals can be taken in amounts less than $200 if construction of a statute is involved was adopted by the senate. The house Thursday afternoon increased the per capita allowance of the state school of reform from $75 to $100, but killed a bill appropriating $150,000 for that institution.

Frankfort, March 1.—Senate—Bills passed Friday: Providing for appointment of school trustees where vacancies occur; providing that a man's homestead shall be exempt if it is purchased with the money of a homestead sold by the same man; to punish persons who gather in crowds "for the purpose of drinking and horse swapping" near a church; appropriating $15,000 for a dormitory at the state colored normal school, and changing the name of that institution to the colored normal and industrial school.

House—Bills passed: To prevent the docking of horses and fixing a penalty of fine of from $100 to $500, and imprisonment in the county jail from 20 to 90 days. The measure provides against the shipment of horses out of the state for the purpose and afterward bringing them back; to authorize real estate title insurance companies to invest 33 1-3 per cent. instead of 20 per cent., as under the present law, of their minimum capital stock in books, maps and other instruments; to amend the law regulating real estate title to insurance companies by providing that in counties of less than 75,000 population such companies shall have $25,000 capital; not less than $50,000 in counties of more than 75,000 population and not less than $150,000 in counties of 100,000 population or over.

Lucien Lyne's Offer.

Lexington, Ky., March 1.—Lucien Lyne, the young jockey of this city, whose services are in demand, and who it was reported had signed to ride for Joe Pugh, of Covington, has not signed with any stable. He has offers from four prominent turfmen, but will not decide for a month.

Despite Parents' Protests.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 27.—Chester W. Galtskill, a telegraph operator, and Miss Jennie Cooley, aged 19 years, eloped to Cincinnati and were married. The parents of the bride object because of her age.

Painfully Burned.

Bowling Green, Ky., Feb. 27.—Jos. Schneider, ar., was painfully burned while trying to save a desk and private papers from a fire at an outbouse at his home in this city. The building was used by him as an office at his distillery.

Fell Over a Cliff.

Mayking, Ky., March 1.—Charles Williams, aged 31, a well-known hunter of the Cumberland mountains, fell over a 50-foot cliff near Elkhorn creek Friday, and was instantly killed. His neck was broken.

EIGHT SHOT IN A FIGHT.

The Gang That Fought a Pitched Battle Near Campton Arrested.

Campton, Ky., Feb. 27.—At Vortex, three miles from here, a desperate battle took place between John Faulkner, of that neighborhood, and his followers, and Clay Napier, who figured conspicuously in the French and Eversole feud several years ago, and his followers.

Campton, Ky., March 1.—Sheriff T. F. Stamper and posse Friday arrested the gang that fought a pitched battle in the yard of Mrs. J. G. Taulbee, at Vortex, at Ben Harris' distillery, seven miles from the place where the battle occurred. Six of the gang and two of the posse were wounded. Stamper and his men followed the trail of blood to the distillery, where they found Green Baker, Tom Owsley, Wesley Peyton, John Strickland, Theodore Montgomery, Sid Gillespie, Walter Reinhart, David Blair, Adam Staggs, Buck Wooten, William Newmyer, Ben Puckett, Arkill Rodgers and Jeff Townsend dressing the wounds of their leaders, Clay Napier and John Faulkner.

They were surprised by the sheriff and his men, who rushed at them with drawn weapons, but the gang at once fired upon the officers and wounded two of the posse slightly. The sheriff and posse returned fire, wounding Buck Wooten, Noah Ratcliffe, William Newmyer, Henry Burnette, Arkill Rodgers and Jeff Townsend. It is thought that Wooten and Townsend will die. Nathan Greer, an innocent bystander, was wounded in the arm. The prisoners were brought here and lodged in jail. Wooten, Townsend, Napier and Faulkner, who could not be moved, were left in custody of a strong guard. Napier and his followers and Faulkner and his followers made friends soon after the battle in Mrs. Taulbee's yard. A crowd is gathering on the street in front of the jail, carrying Winchester rifles, and mob violence is feared. One hundred well-armed men are guarding the jail.

ADVERTISED BY THE SHERIFF.

Lincoln's Home Offered For Sale to Satisfy Claim By the State.

Hodgenville, Ky., Feb. 28.—The old Lincoln homestead, the birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, has been advertised by the sheriff of this county to be sold at public auction to the highest bidder to satisfy a tax debt due the state against the property, amounting to a small sum. The homestead belongs to eastern capitalists, who purchased it years ago for the purpose of converting it into a public park.

The farm has several times received consideration at the hands of congress looking to the establishment of a home for old soldiers and widows of veterans of the civil war, and quite recently a project was started for the building of a home for old and diabled ex-slaves.

THE INSURANCE LAW.

The Committee Eliminated All the Objectionable Features.

Frankfort, Ky., March 1.—The revenue and taxation committee of the lower house of the general assembly struck out from the revenue bill the features objectionable to life insurance companies, of taxing in the hands of the companies all life insurance policies written in Kentucky, and instead increased the amount of license tax collected from them doing business in the state from two per cent. of the amount of gross premiums to three per cent. The committee reduced the tax to be levied on coal mined in Kentucky by non-resident corporations from 10 cents per ton to 2½ cents per ton.

GOV. BECKHAM'S MESSAGE.

He Asks the Legislature to Pass the School Book Bill.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 27.—The feature of Wednesday's session of the Kentucky general assembly was a communication from Gov. Beckham to the members demanding that the democratic majority carry out the party pledge in the two last state platforms to enact a law providing for a uniform system of text books, to be used in the common schools of the commonwealth, and to regulate the price thereof.

Trotting Mare Nellie Jay Sold.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 28.—George R. Wooden, of Boston, Thursday purchased at a private price from W. L. Spears the 3-year-old roan trotting mare Nellie Jay, by Jay Hawker, dam Paranola, and a full sister to Country Jay, also a black colt by Red Chute, dam Paranola, and a bay filly by Betterton, dam Milady.

Negotiating For Hanwell.

Lexington, Ky., Feb. 28.—Since the success of Halma and The Commoner, sons of Hanover are in great demand for sires. Eastern parties are now negotiating for Hanwell, a son of Hanover, and it is said a price of $20,000 has been put on him.

Sentenced to Fifteen Years.

Newport, Ky., Feb. 28.—Martin Dehnert was sentenced to 15 years in the Kentucky penitentiary Thursday for killing John Braun, near Newport, two years ago. On a former trial he was given 21 years.

HILL SOUNDS TOCSIN.

Leading New York Democrat Outlines Party Policy on Issues.

Monroe Doctrine, Revenue Reform, Regulation of Trusts, Reciprocity and Hard Money Are All to Be Favored.

A great meeting of democrats, including leaders from 38 states, was held at the Manhattan club, New York, on the evening of February 22. There were a number of speeches by prominent members of the party, all being in favor of the overthrow of trust rule. The principal speaker was ex-Senator David B. Hill, who said:

"I speak to-night in favor of the maintenance of the old landmarks of the democratic party.

"In that path there lie safety, honor, self-respect, success. Temporary expedients and shifting issues may answer for ephemeral parties born in a day and perishing in a night, but a political organization which has existed for a century must necessarily have had for its guidance something inherently substantial—some permanent governmental policies which have been engrafted on its history and interwoven with its activities and traditions.

"We trace our political lineage back to Jefferson, who founded the democratic party.

"Opposition to the precepts and practices of imperialism was thus one of the cardinal principles of our party faith at the very inception of the government.

"Jefferson organized the forces of democracy with which to antagonize the excesses of federalism—the twin sister and protege of imperialism.

Federalism meant then what imperialism largely means to day—governmental policies practically unrestrained by constitutional restriction—a strong government, not because safely entrenched in the affections of the people, but strong because of its immense standing armies, its possession of power and its ostentatious display, its munificent expenditure of moneys, its vast opportunities for official favoritism and its general tendencies toward plutocracy.

"Democracy means the maintenance of popular rights—imperialism means exclusive privileges to the few. Democracy favors the preservation o fthe personal liberty of the citizen; imperialism exits the nation and belittles the individual. Imperialism makes what its apologists call a 'splendid' government; democracy makes a happy and liberty loving people.

"We should stand where our forefathers stood before us, in favor of the preservation of our constitutional government—a government based upon a written constitution, with its powers well limited and accurately defined—not an indin rubber instrument that will stretch and bend and turn according to every whim and freak and project of those temporarily or accidentally in possession of the government—but a chart that will safely guide us in storm and tempest as well as in sunshine and calm, in war as well as in peace; times of peril as well as in times of security.

"We should adhere to the policy involved in Jefferson's acquisitions—the responsible and natural acquirement of territory adjacent to our own, either largely unsettled or peopled with inhabitants capacitated for ultimate citizenship and the enjoyment of all the privileges of our free institutions.

No Place for Dependent Colonies.

"The recent mistakes of our opponents in that regard, perhaps, cannot now be adequately corrected, but manifest duty requires us to resist, as the permanent policy of our government, the establishment of colonial possessions, governed only by the discretion of congress and outside the pale of the guarantees of the constitution. Wherever the American flag of right floats, it should be as the emblem of a free government and the aegis of constitutional liberty.

There is no place in the American union for a permanent system of dependent colonies.

"The fundamental rights of habeas corpus, trial by jury, freedom of the press, freedom of speech, religious liberty, speedy in public trials, protection of life, liberty and property without governmental interference except under due process of law, and all of the other guaranties of the constitution intended for the protection of all who owe allegiance to this republic should not depend upon the whim or will of congress, but be considered as a favor to be granted or withheld at its pleasure, but should accompany our jurisdiction wherever it is proposed to be permanently maintained. This is democratic doctrine bequeathed to us from our fathers and we should cherish it as a priceless heritage.

No Tariff Walls for Trade.

"Neither should tariff walls nor customs duties obstruct the path of American trade from one portion of this government to another. Our opponents may invoke constitutional quibbles to justify tariff discriminations between different parts of our own possessions, but such unnatural barriers to commerce not only render our government incongruous, but are antagonistic to our own business interests. The spirit, even if not the letter, of our constitution contemplates uniform tariff laws throughout the strength and breadth of our possessions; but, aside from all the technical questions, a wise public policy imperatively requires such uniformity.

"The 'encouragement of commerce' was declared by Jefferson in his inaugural address as president to be a portion of 'the creed of our political faith,' and remains so to-day.

"Appropriate to this subject let me suggest that no political party can afford to refuse to accede to the widespread sentiment of the people in favor of relief to Cuba from the unjust and onerous restrictions imposed upon her by the short-sighted policy of our opponents now in control of the government.

"The spectacle is at present presented of Cuba relieved from Spanish political oppression only to be enslaved by the United States in commercial bondage. Justice demands that these impositions shall cease. Nothing but selfish interests stand in the way of tariff reform for Cuba. It being feared that tariff reduction there may be followed by a popular demand for tariff reduction everywhere.

"The pampered recipients of governmental favoritism are holding Cuba by the throat for self-protection against the attacks of the people upon the tariff citadel in other directions. They are deaf to the appeals of humanity; the cries of distress do not move them; considerations of national honor and fair dealing do not influence them.

"Selfishness and greed are at the bottom of the refusal of congree to relieve an overburdened people from grievous wrongs inflicted under the name of governmental taxation, which is as unnecessary as it is cruel and unjust.

"It is seriously charged in some quarters that the present attitude of republican leaders in congress in declining to consider the necessities of Cuba at this time is attributed to a desire to force another insurrection in that island, occasioned by the poverty and necessities of the people, in the hope and to the end of compelling its annexation to the United States in the very near future.

"It may be well doubted, however, whether this is the controlling motive behind their inaction and indifference. Probably a better explanation is to be found in the complete domination of the serious consequences and actions by the gigantic, if not corrupt, combination or protected interests which has dictated and controlled much of the tariff legislation of the United States in the recent past. There is a limit to the patience of the people, and it may be safely predicted here to-night that a continued refusal to give relief to the suffering people of Cuba who only ask that their commerce may be relieved from its unjust burdens, will be followed by a reaction against the party in power so sweeping and complete that a majority pledged to relief will be elected the coming fall and will control the next house of representatives.

Revenue Reform a Leading Issue.

"The democratic party should again press to the front the issue of revenue reform. The signs of the times indicate the wisdom of such a course. It is not a new issue, but is an old one—which has grown better by age.

"It is an issue upon which every democrat in this broad land can stand, without regard to past differences or 'previous condition of servitude' to any other issue, good, bad or indifferent. It is not a dead issue, but a living issue; it is not a passing issue, but an ever present issue; it is not a questionable issue.

"It has stood the test of age, because it is right. It has been obscured at times by the temporary prominence of other issues, but it has never ceased to be the party's faith.

"Revenue reform has many synonyms. It may be defined as that policy which forbids the use of the taxing power of the government for the accomplishment of private purposes. That is its true meaning in a nutshell. It is equivalent to the shibboleth of 'tariff for revenue only,' which has been emblazoned on our party banners so many times in our history. It signifies the sound governmental theory of 'public taxation for public purposes.' It is founded upon the principle that it is not the true province of government to tax one man for the benefit of another's private business.

"There is absolute unanimity on the question of the republican attitude in democratic ranks. There is, however, some division in the republican party on this question. It began several years ago, when Mr. Blaine, who had previously been the uncompromising champion of protection, with keen foresight saw that the doctrine was being carried to extremes, and that it could not much longer resist the glowing public sentiment in favor of a change, suggested that it might be well to inaugurate a policy of reciprocal trade through commercial treaties negotiated between this country and some other countries assenting thereto.

Reciprocity a Democratic Policy.

"The policy of reciprocity is and has always been a democratic policy. There has never been a time in the history of the country when the democracy has not been desirous of establishing reciprocal trade, either through treaties or otherwise, between this and other countries.

"There was really nothing new in Mr. Blaine's suggestion in itself; it startled the country simply because it came from an unexpected source. It was an indorsement of the democratic position from an hitherto hostile quarter.

"But if Mr. Blaine's tribute years ago to the wisdom of the democratic party was a surprise, much more so were the words of President McKinley expressed in his address at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo that fall. Such unqualified, considerably would have attracted more attention and comment but for his untimely and tragic death which followed so soon afterward. He there said:

"The period of exclusiveness is past. The expansion of our trade and commerce is the pressing problem. Commercial wars are unprofitable. A policy of peace and friendly trade relations will prevent reprisals. Reciprocity treaties are in harmony with the spirit of the times; measures of retaliation are not. If perchance some of our tariffs are no longer needed for revenue, or to encourage and protect our industries at home, they should likewise be employed to extend and promote our market abroad."

"These words, coming from one whose political life had been spent in advocating an opposite policy, but whose partisan views must have been modified when confronted with responsibility in the great office of president, and the conduct of affairs, are most significant and instructive. The republican party has been comparatively silent upon these most important utterances.

"It is impossible for our opponents satisfactorily to answer these inquiries, and they do not venture to do so. Their leaders in congress have repeatedly and defiantly declared that there will be no tariff legislation at this session.

"In view of this anomalous situation and of these considerations, it becomes the part of wisdom for the democracy to press to the front this great issue of revenue reform, not to the exclusion of other issues, but prominently and in conjunction therewith.

"It is not necessary to put all our eggs in one basket. There are other issues worthy of consideration which should not be ignored and upon which our position is impregnable.

"We believe in a relect construction of the federal constitution as essential for the public welfare.

Democratic Policy Tersely Expressed.

"We favor an amendment to the constitution providing for the election of United States senators by the people of the several states rather than by state legislators. We should continue to advocate that amendment. It is a reform in the right direction and it ought to prevail.

"Opposition to dangerous corporations of capital should continue to be the democratic position. The best and truest interests of the country require that such combinations should be prohibited. Reasonable and desirable cooperation of large concerned interests may be permitted, but the scope and methods thereof should be wisely regulated.

"The people should control the corporations, and not the corporations the people.

"The Monroe doctrine, first enunciated by a democratic president, should remain the settled policy of the republic.

"The democratic party favors the maintenance of the public credit at all times.

"We are opposed to repudiation in any form or under any pretense.

"We believe in hard money—the money of the constitution—and are unalterably opposed to irredeemable paper currency.

"If any further enunciation of democratic policy upon the financial question is regarded necessary, in view of existing monetary conditions, then it is suggested that a simple declaration in favor of the general principles of international bimetallism furnishes a common ground upon which all can stand; for, surely, there could be no objection to a change mutually agreed upon between the leading nations of the world.

"The criticism is frequently made that we are only a party of opposition and without affirmative issues. It is true that we are not in power, and we do not need to be reminded of it. But the criticism that we are without affirmative issues is not just, as a little reflection will disclose.

"I submit that a tariff for revenue is just as much of an affirmative issue as is a protective tariff. The interpretation of the federal constitution is just as much of an affirmative issue as is a loose construction. The policy of electing United States senators by the people is more of an affirmative issue than mere opposition or indifference to it.

"The advocacy of a free constitutional government for all our possessions, over which our flag of right floats is just as much of an affirmative issue as is the advocacy of imperialism, and a hundred times more in accord with the genius of our institutions.

"The democratic doctrine of home rule for states is certainly just as much of an affirmative issue as the republican opposition to that doctrine.

"The prohibition, restriction or regulation of dangerous corporate combinations of capital presents just as much of an affirmative issue as the championship of such combinations."

SHAKESPEAREAN COLLECTION.

Marsden J. Perry, of Providence, R. I., Buys Many Rare Volumes and Relics in England.

A Yankee collector of rare Shakespearean volumes and relics has purchased the famous Halliwell-Phillips collection of Birmingham and many rare libraries in England and Scotland at fabulous prices, to be transferred to the United States. The purchaser, Marsden J. Perry, of Providence, R. I., has now assembled the finest collection of Shakespearean works in America, probably in the world, with the possible exception of that in the British museum. His collection is at present housed in a historic old colonial mansion in Providence, originally the Joseph Brown estate.

Mr. Perry intends to install the collection permanently in the even more famous Brown-Gammel mansion, the finest colonial mansion in America, which he has just purchased. The Perry collection contains 20,000 volumes. As much as $1,000 has been paid for a single volume. The Halliwell-Philips collection alone was purchased for $25,000, while fully as much more was spent in purchases at the sale of the Augustin Daly collection. Many of the purchases were made in the face of the keenest opposition, against famous authors and actors, including Sir Henry Irving, Hall Caine, and others.

FOR A SUMMER COLONY.

Multi-Millionaires Purchase a Great Part of City Island for Exclusive Resort.

The syndicate of multi-millionaires which has worked secretly and swiftly in purchasing a great part of City Island intends to transform the island into one of the finest of all New York's fashionable suburban colonies. It will be a Tuxedo rather than a Coney Island. Some time ago great blocks of land in City Island were purchased by a syndicate in which William C. Whitney, August Belmot, and other multi-millionnires are interested, and it has just been announced that they had bought High Island, which is just north of their main property. They paid D. C. Curtis, of Mount Vernon, $60,000 for it. It is proposed to connect the islands by a bridge.

The improvements probably will be made by the Realty company of New York, which has been incorporated with a capital of $1,000,000. Not only will the erection of fine mansions be commenced at once, but it is understood that a handsome club house will be built on High Island for the use of the sojourners at this new resort. An immense pier is to be constructed for the landing of yachts, which, it is expected, will convey the residents to and from their business in the city in the summer months.

Alien Population of London.

London shelters, according to the census returns, 130,000 foreigners. Of these Russia contributes 38,000; Germany, 27,000; France, 11,000, and Italy, 10,000. There is one curious thing about this alien population. Nearly 7,000 males have no occupation, while 1,200 are said to be living on their means. The natural inference is that the other 5,800 are living on other people. Of 63 lawyers in London who are citizens of other countries, 29 hail from America.

Savings Banks Deposits.

Savings bank deposits in this country are now the largest in the world, reaching $2,310,660,000. These deposits have doubled in about 15 years. Germany has the next largest, $1,900,000,000; Austria-Hungary, $1,201,240,000; France, $854,220,000, and the United Kingdom $829,020,000.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

RELY ON PE-RU-NA TO FIGHT CATARRH WHEREVER LOCATED IN THE SYSTEM.

In every country of the civilized world the Sisters of Charity are known. Not only do they minister to the spiritual and intellectual needs of the charges committed to their care, but they also minister to their bodily needs.

THE SISTERS GOOD WORK.

With so many children to take care of and to protect from climate and disease, these wise and prudent sisters have found Peruna a never-failing safeguard.

Four Interesting Letters From Catholic Institutions.

A letter recently received by Dr. Hartman from the Ursuline Sisters of Cleveland, Ohio, reads as follows:

"We have lately given Peruna a trial, for though the medicine was not new to us, we had not tried it sufficiently to testify to its worth as we are now ready to do.

"We find Peruna an excellent tonic and a valuable remedy for catarrhal affections of the throat. We have recommended it to our friends and have good reports from them as to its merits." Yours respectfully,
URSULINE SISTERS.

Dr. Hartman receives many letters from Catholic Sisters all over the United States. A recommend recently received from a Catholic institution in the Southwest reads as follows:

A Prominent Mother Superior Says:

"I can testify from experience to the efficiency of Peruna as one of the very best medicines, and it gives me pleasure to add my praise to that of thousnnds who have used it. For years I suffered with catarrh of the stomach, all remedies proving valueless for relief. Last spring I went to Colorado, hoping to be benefited by a change of climate and while there a friend advised me to try Peruna. After using two bottles I found myself very much improved. The remains of my old disease being now so slight, I consider myself cured, yet for a while I intend to continue the use of Peruna. I am now treating another patient with your medicine, she has been sick with malaria and troubled with leucorrhea. I have not a doubt that a cure will be speedily effected."

"Some years ago a friend of our institution recommended to us Dr. Hartman's Peruna as an excellent remedy for the influenza of which we then had several cases which threatened to be of a serious character.

"We began to use it and experienced such wonderful results that since then Peruna has become our favorite medicine for influenza, catarrh, cold, cough and bronchitis."

Another recomsend from a Catholic Institution of one of the Central States written by the Sister Superior reads as follows:

"A number of years ago our attention was called to Dr. Hartman's Peruna, and since then we have used it with wonderful results for grip, coughs, colds and catarrhal diseases of the head and stomach.

"For grip and winter catarrh especially it has been of great service to the inmates of this institution."

These are samples of letters received by Dr. Hartman from the various orders of Catholic Sisters throughout the United States.

The names and addresses to these letters have been withheld from respect to the Sisters but will be furnished upon request.

One-half of the diseases which afflict mankind are due to some catarrhal derangement of the mucous membrane lining some organ or passage of the body. Peruna cures these by going immediately upon the congested mucous membrane, restoring it to its normal state, would consequently cure all these diseases. Catarrh is catarrh wherever located, whether it be in the head, throat, lungs, stomach, kidneys, or pelvic organs. A remedy that will cure it in one location will cure it in all locations.

Peruna is such a remedy. The Sisters of Charity know this. When catarrhal diseases make their appearance they are not disconcerted, but know exactly what remedy to use. These wise and prudent Sisters have found Peruna a never-failing safeguard. They realize that when a disease is of catarrhal nature, Peruna is the remedy. Dyspepsia and female weakness are considered by many to be entirely different diseases—that dyspepsia is catarrh of the stomach and female weakness is due to catarrh of the pelvic organs the Sisters are fully aware, consequently Peruna is their remedy in both these very common and annoying diseases.

If you do not receive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case, and he will be pleased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

Address Dr. Hartman, President of The Hartman Sanitarium, Columbus, Ohio.

SISTERS OF CHARITY

All Over United States Use Pe-ru-na for Catarrh.

From Catholic Institution in Central Ohio comes the following recommend from the Sister Superior.

No Alternative.

"You admit that you are a tramp, do you?" said the eminent counsel to the witness.

"Yes, sir."

"Tell this jury, sir, why you lead such a worse than useless life."

"The explanation is simple. I am too proud to work and too honest to become a lawyer."—Detroit Free Press.

Maternal Love.

Mrs. Mulligan—And so you have no mother now?

Motherless Boy—No, mum.

"Well, me boy, whenever you feel the want for a good thrashing come to me and I'll be a mother to you."—Tit-Bits.

No Immediateness.

He—Do you believe in love in a cottage?

She—No, indeed, I don't.

"How about love in a palace?"

"Oh, George, this is so sudden!"

"Well, it won't be sudden if you get to wait till I can earn the palace."—Smart Set.

Kept on Talking.

Hook—What has become of that office boy of yours who used to take everything he could lay his hands on?

Nye—He's in the Municipal hospital took smallpox.—Philadelphia Record.

ALL is quiet along the Potomac!

No new capital for Kentucky for some time to come.

PRINCE HENRY crossed Kentucky without encountering Charley Wheeler.

IT now looks like the local option bill will come to a vote in the Senate, where it is likely to be defeated.

A MEETING of sportsmen will be held at Frankfort on March 6 to form an association for the protection of fish, game and song birds.

THE Ohio Valley Traction Co. has begun the survey of a route for a traction road from Carrollton to Covington, an evidence that the company means business.

IF the legislature passes the bill providing that the county clerk shall furnish the assessor with a list of mortgages on record in his office, a considerable amount of property will be added to the tax list.

IT is not believed the President probably will abandon his visit to the Charleston Exposition because of the slighting message of Lieut. Gov. Tillman, of South Carolina, and to which no attention has been paid.

INSURANCE against assassination is one of the new ideas Prince Henry has brought to American shores. He carries a policy of $900,000 against assassination, and is said to be the only man in the world so insured.

NOT many more days of the legislative session remain, and very few bills have been passed, consequently many of the pet measures that were introduced at the beginning of the session will never see daylight, and numerous records will go unmade

SEVENTEEN suits have been filed at Paris against the fifteen companies which failed to pay the $50,000 insurance in aggregate due on policies written on the courthouse burned October 19, 1901. Four months have elapsed since the fire, and only $2,000 of the insurance has been paid.

IN no other county in the world is the cigar so popular as in Germany, so much so that it is impossible to raise enough tobacco in the Empire to supply the domestic demand. Last year Germany imported nearly $23,000,000 worth of tobacco, a little more than a third of it comes from the United States.

THE United States numbers less than five per cent of the world's inhabitants, yet it produce 78 per cent of the cotton, 75 per cent of the corn, 30 per cent of the wheat, 26 per cent of the oats, 26 per cent of the hay, 38 per cent of the meat, 27 per cent of the eggs, 12 per cent of the wool, and so on. Of the worlds total agricultural products it raise nearly, if not quite, 50 per cent.

SHEEP have been dying in Harrison county from what seemed a mysterious disease, but which was really caused by their eating cedar tips. The sheep browsed on the branches and trees, whose boughs were bent down by the heavy sleet. On examination it was found that the sheep's intestines were pierced by the cedar needles and drawn into knots and lumps.

THE following pledge is being signed in Bath county, but the few names attached thereto at last accounts, indicate that it will never amount to much:

"I promise to vote for no man who uses or permits his friends to use money, whisky or any unfair means, to secure his election, and to meet at the court house at any time Squire James Colliver shall call a convention for Pure Politics."

JUDGING from the decided inclination of the legislature to tax foreign capital invested in this State, there is a dispositon to discourage outsiders from investing their money in the development of Kentucky's resources. Kentucky needs to encourage the investment of foreign capital within her boundaries. Kentucky has the natural attractions for outside capital, but there are other fields in which it will be invested if it is made a special object of taxation here.

SOME day peace officers will learn it is not the thing to do to allow men who they have under arrest to go alone into the house to change clothes. The Sheriff of Crittenden county was thus obliging to a prisoner a few days since, and now the man is a fugitive from justice and charged with crimes of a most henious character.

FRANKFORT ought to be getting use to the agitation of the capital removal question. It began as far back as 1853, as shown by the following taken from an old time publication in this State:

"The Louisville Courier and the Lexington Statesman are engaged in urging the removal of the Capital from Frankfort. Cause there is a 'clique' in Frankfort. Now if our contemporaries will prove that there is a 'clique' at Frankfort and then enter into bond guaranteeing that there will be no 'clique' at Louisville or Lexington, or whatever point may be selected for the Capital, the people, without division will assent to the removal. For ourselves we would as soon be ruled by a Frankfort 'clique' as a Lexington 'clique.'"

THE General Assembly passed the bill donating, annually, to the State fair to be held at Louisville, the sum of $15,000 to be given in premiums on livestock. This contribution may be the part of wisdom, but when the increase of the rate of taxation to meet this with other appropriations presents itself to the taxpayers of the State for payment, they will remonstrate against it most emphatically. Taking up a line of new appropriations at a time when the funds in the State treasury are not sufficient to meet the ordinary expenses, is certainly not a good policy. If such obligations could be incurred without increasing the burden of the taxpayers, there would be no objections on their part, but such is not the case.

Judge J. M. Lassing has been urged by a large number of his warm friends and admirers to become a candidate for Judge of the Court of Appeals from this Appellate district to succeed Judge Paynter this fall. While the Judge feels very kindly towards all of those who have so kindly coupled his name with this position he declines to enter the race. He is at present perfectly satisfied with his position as Judge of the 15th., Judicial district and like many more of us is for Judge Paynter to succeed himself as Judge of the Court of Appeals. Judge Lassing is quite a young man yet and will be quite a young man eight years hence and there is no reason why he might not one day in no far distant future be Chief Justice Lassing.—Williamstown Courier.

THE Ferris Blind Tiger bill which has been passed by both Houses of the General Assembly, provides that it shall be unlawful for any person to sell, lend, give, procure for or furnish to another any spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or to have in his possession spirituous, vinous or malt liquors for the purpose of selling them in any territory where said act is in force, and any person so offending shall be fined not less than fifty nor more than one hundred dollars and imprisoned not less than ten nor more than fifty days. The possession of a United States special tax stamp (commonly called United States license) for carrying on the business of a retail dealer in spirituous, vinous or malt liquors, or the having of such tax stamp or license stuck up at the place of business in such territory shall be prima facie evidence of guilt under the law.

IN Santa Maria county California, a local sugar company offered prizes to the producers in that section who would grow the largest tonnage of sugar beets during the season of 1901. The result of this contest is interesting, for after the committee had inspected the books of the contestants, it was found that in the first contest for the largest tonnage on 25 acres, a Portugese farmer won first prize, $600. He raised 569 tons of beets, averaging 22.76 tons per acre. The next five prizes were all won by Chinamen, one growing 451 tons of beets on 25 acres; another grew 351 tons on 15 acres, and another 203 tons on 10 acres. The prizes won by the Chinamen aggregated $1,450. The Chinamen were successful in capturing five of the six prizes offered, because they rented the best land in the valley, and being naturally good agriculturists, had an advantage over the white farmers.

[New York Sun.]

The unfortunate affair in the Senate chamber on Saturday led one of the statesmen present to speak of the somewhat similar encounter, half a century ago, between Thomas H. Benton, of Missouri, and Henry S. Foote, of Mississippi. This incident occurred almost at the close of Benton's thirty years' service in the Senate. Neither participant had been especially distinguished for serenity of temper or moderation of language under provocation. For example:

In the Twenty-second Congress, during a debate on Gen. Jackson's veto of the bill rechartering the Bank of the United States, Mr. Benton accused Henry Clay of using indecorous language about the President. This interesting colloquy ensued:

"Mr. Clay—There are some peculiar reasons why I should not go to that Senator for my views of decorum, in regard to my bearing toward the Chief Magistrate, and why he is not a fit instructor. I never had any personal encounter with the President of the United States. [Benton had been involved in a street fight with Gen. Jackson in Nashville in 1813.] I never complained of any outrages on my person committed by him. [Jackson had struck Benton with a horsewhip.] I never published any bulletins respecting his private brawls.... I never declared my apprehension and belief that if he were elected we should be obliged to legislate with pistols and dirks by our side.

"Mr. Benton—It is true, sir, that I had an affray with Gen. Jackson, and that I did complain of his conduct. We fought, sir, and we fought, I hope, like men. When the explosion was over there remained no ill-will on either side.....There is no adjourned question of veracity between me and Gen. Jackson. If there had been, a gulf would have separated us, as deep as hell.

"Mr. Clay—Gen. Jackson made a certain charge [of bargain] against me, and he referred to witnesses to prove it. I denied the truth of the charge. He called upon his witnesses to prove it. I leave it to the country whether that witness sustained the truth of the President's allegation. The witness [Mr. Buchanan] is now on his passage to St. Petersburg, with a commission in his pocket. [Mr. Clay reverted to the dirk-and-pistol remark attributed to Mr. Benton.] Can you look me in the face and say you never used that language?

"Mr. Benton—I look, sir, and repeat that it is an atrocious calumny; and I will pin it to him who repeats it here.

"Mr. Clay—Then I declare before the Senate that you said to me the very words.

"Mr. Benton—False! False! False!

"Mr. Clay—I fling back the charge of atrocious calumny upon the Senator from Missouri.

Senators interposed between the two infuriated statesmen, and the chair finally secured order in the chamber. The subsequent proceedings were these:

"Mr. Benton—I apologize to the Senate for the manner in which I have spoken; but not to the Senator from Kentucky.

"Mr. Clay—To the Senate I also offer an apology. To the Senator from Missouri none."

As for Mr. Foote, the fire-eater with whom Mr. Benton came into physical collision on the floor of the Senate about twenty years after the foregoing incident, his habits of speech were more than Tillmanic. A single instance will suffice. The Mississippi statesman had been accusing Senator Hale, of New Hampshire, of being "as guilty as if he had committed highway robbery," in promoting a certain bill which Foote conceived was an attack on the institution of slavery. Turning to Senator Hale he said:

"Mr. Foote—I invite him to visit Mississippi; and I will tell him before hand, in all honesty, that he could not go ten miles into the interior before he would grace one of the tallest trees of the forest with a rope around his neck, with the approbation of every honest and patriotic citizen and that, if necessary, I should myself assist in the operation."

If anybody thinks that the scene of Saturday, so exceptional nowadays, indicates a deterioration of manners, then let them turn to the earlier records of what has become the most dignified and courteous legislative body in the world.

THE lower branch of Congress has passed the bill providing for the election of Senators by popular vote. But the upper branch, will put it to sleep so far as the present session is concerned.

GOVERNOR Beckham has announced that he will listen to nothing about pardons except from persons who have knowledge of the cases in which pardons are sought, or who are otherwise qualified to give genuine information of value. Influence counts for nothing. Petitions are of no value. Now if he will serve notice that the names of all petitioners shall be published in the local papers where they are procured before being presented to him, the virture of "publicity" will put an end to that branch of interference with the executive of the verdicts of juries and sentences of the courts.—Somerset Journal.

The above policy strictly adhered to by the Executive will reduce the number of petitioners greatly in every instance. One among the first petitions presented to Gov. Beckham, seeking a pardon, was signed by many people in this county not at all familiar with the facts in the case, which belonged to another county.

THE World's Fair to be held in St. Louis in 1903, is another institution that has entered upon a dead-head campaign of the country papers. Just why these great fairs think that the country press is under obligations to carry their advertising without compensation is beyond comprehension. They get millions of dollars appropriated by Congress and State legislatures to assist the enterprise and then endeavor to dead-beat their advertising in the country press. Such matter is consigned to the waste basket at this office. If these enterprises desire advertising in this paper they will have to pay for the space they use just as other advertisers do.

In order to fill your precriptions we have reduced the price so that you can find no excuse for patronizing the physician that prescribes. Eskew, Walton, Ky.

Monday was a busy day with the Boone County Insurance Company.

The water courses were washed out last week, the first time for months.

Work was to begin on the Covington and Erlanger Electric road, Monday.

Thos. Willis and Elmo Gaines will have a public sale of a lot of livestock on the 18th inst.

Quick & Beall, of Hebron, repaired the floor in the County Clerk's office, one day last week.

The thawout was hard on the turnpikes, and made travel over them very burdensome to teams drawing loads.

Dr. Clore, of Bullittsville, member of the county board of health, was called to Verona, Monday to look after a case of small pox in that town.

Montgomery Williamson, down on Lick creek, has captured a large rabbit like no rabbit ever seen in that locality. It is a beautiful animal.

This office has printed an unusually large number of sale bills in the last few months, which indicates a considerable exodus from the county.

Chas. Garnett, the silver-tongued, will be the orator at John N. Poston's sale on the 20th inst. Charlie is one of the best auctioneers in the county.

The wind last Friday evening broke a telephone wire near O. P. Tanner's, and several teams that came along were tangled in it. No injury resulted.

Our friend, W. O. Hensley, placed on our table, Monday, another specimen of Lincoln county gold. The specimen was found on top of the ground, and assays $8 to the ton. Mr. H. brought the specimen from Lincoln when he returned from a recent visit there.

The ground hog got in four weeks of uninterrupted winter, and those who heretofore were skeptical as to him being authority on weather will no longer make light of his predictions. If he will permit good weather from now on he will be unanimously conceded six weeks of winter.

The recent cold spell has demonstrated fully that the wise farmer is the one who in the fall fills his barns with abundance of feed. Those who were so prepared fared reasonably well, while the high price of feed made it necessary for those not so fortunate to dispose of the greater portion of their stock.

The conveyance of Mr. A. G. Winston, of Hebron, to a Mr. Hall, of Chicago, Ill., of his 200 acres of land near Hebron, was lodged for record in the County Clerk's office, one day last week. On the land sold is the palatial residence now occupied by Mr. Winston. The consideration set out in the deed is $35,000. This is the largest land deal that has been made in this part of the county for at least the last generation.

A meeting to consider the Organizing of a Grange will be held at Burlington on Friday, 2 o'clock p. m., of March the 7th, 1902. All farmers and their families are urgently solicited to make a small donation of their time to the consideration of this very important matter of Organization and Co-operation. Come yourself and invite your neighbors. Organizing Officer F. P. Wolcott and others will address the meeting. A large audience is desired. Ladies and young people especially invited.

Rev. O. M. Huey, who has been the popular preacher here for several years preached the last sermon he will preach here as pastor the third Sunday. It was a beautiful and effective discourse, Acts 21-32 was selected as his basis text. Bro. Huey is an earnest courageous man. His success, like that of the great Baptist preacher, Johnston Myers, of Chicago, is due largely to the personal interest which he manifests in the people.—Esterdy Item in Carrollton Democrat.

Danger of Colds and La Grippe.

The great danger from colds and la grippe is their resulting in pneumonia. If reasonable care is used, however, and Chamberlain's Cough Remedy taken, all danger will be avoided. Among the tens of thousands who have used this remedy for these disease, we have yet to learn of a single case having resulted in pneumonia, which shows conclusively that it is a certain preventive of that dangerous malady. It will cure a cold in an attack of la grippe in less time than any other treatment. It is pleasant and safe to take. For sale by all druggist.

One of the biggest crops of tobacco grown by a tenant in Grant county this year was raised by William C. Ware on the farm of R. P. Conrad. The crop weighed out nearly 18,000 pounds and was sold for a round price of $7.00 per hundred.—Such an exodus of Grant county people for other States as is going to be this spring has not been seen in a generation. The local editor is acquainted with at least fifty families who are preparing to pitch their tents in other climes before the first buds of spring turn green; besides a goodly number of young men that we know are preparing to depart for more favorable fields of commerce.—Williamstown Courier.

James Campbell, who for more than thirty years was the confidential man for Fred Burckhardt, the oil magnate, died in Cincinnati, last Wednesday, at Christ Hospital, where he was operated on a few days before. He leaves a widow and four grown children, Mrs. Charles Dickson, of New York; Robert C. and Morgan Campbell, his two sons, and Miss Lottie Campbell. His two surviving brothers are B. W. Campbell, of the firm of Perkins, Campbell & Co., and Milton Campbell, of the Fire Department. Mr. Campbell was a member of the Masonic Order and was at one time Master of Lodge in Covington. He was 62 years old. Mr. Campbell was a son of the late Morgan Campbell, of Burlington, and when the war of the States broke out joined the Confederate company raised by Capt. Aston Maderis, but afterwards separated from the company and became an officer on the staff of General Buckner. He was a man of courteous manners and was highly esteemed for his many good and noble qualities.

A large produce and stock barn belonging to ex-county Assessor R. A. Brady, down on Middle Creek, was completely demolished by the wind, last Friday evening. In the barn were two wagons loaded with tobacco which escaped with slight damage.

Mr. Brady heard the storm coming and started to turn his sheep in the barn. He had just entered the building from the side that was struck by the wind, and before he realized the strength of the storm, the barn was lifted from over him and his horses and reduced to a mass of kindling wood, large sections of the roof being left in the tops of some of the tall trees that stood near.

Fortunately for Mr. Brady he did not have time to go around the barn to turn the sheep in, or he would have been caught in the wreck.

Two powerful currents of wind seemed to meet at the barn, and lifted it and turned it over endwise. Trees on opposite sides of the barn were blown down in opposite directions. The destruction of the barn, which was a good, roomy structure, entails a loss of several hundred dollars.

The storm did but little damage after leaving Mr. Brady's until it reached J. D. Cloud's farm, where it tore a ten ton rick of hay to pieces, and scattered it over a considerable area, after which it played havoc with a field of fodder, carrying much of it clear out of the field.

John Uri Lloyd,

Author of "Stringtown on the Pike," reviews "Bogus Hollow."

The American Druggist and Pharmaceutical Record publishes the following from the pen of John Uri Lloyd.

It is evident that if the atmosphere of current events is to be retained for the historian of the future, it must be largely of contributions by local authors, who record that which comes to them as a part of their lives. The present is soon to be the past; a picture of the past is what men call history, hence the man who writes conscientiously of things he knows is making history-prints for the future historians.

From hundreds of localities their local pictures of life and character are being artistically produced, to be prized now by friends and students, to be utilized in a time to come by searchers after facts concerning the deeds and life methods of those who are no longer here.

Such is this book, "Bogus Hollow." It pictures Rising Sun, Ind., as the author knows the place. It shows the points of interest, natural and artificial, the people, the habits of the people. There is fun and pathos, but not much of either. It is richly illustrated by half-tone views, which add a charm and value not attainable by less exact methods. The frontis piece presents a view of Rising Sun from the opposing Kentucky hills, and this reviewer may be pardoned for saying they are to him of particular interest because the Stringtown Knob-lands lie just in their rear. And the book is of general interest to us of the mortar and pestle by reason of the fact that Mr. Buchanan is a pharmacist, who takes this method to both recreate and serve his people.

"Bogus Hollow" will be sought in a time to come by men who desire such life touches and natural views of the present as are found in this interesting little volume."

County Attorney D. E. Castleman came very near destroying the sight of one of his eyes yesterday morning. He was splitting kindling to start a fire in his office, when a piece of the wood flew up and struck him in the eye, cutting the ball and a place in the flesh below the eye. He suffered intensely from the wound for a time.

Personal Mentions.

Jeff Eddins is attending court in Rising Sun, this week.

H. C. Botts, of the Mutual Life of New York, was in town Monday.

Mr. Jackson, of Scott county, has moved to his new home near Burlington.

Geo. Blyth has discovered a ghost in the vicinity of his new home. He saw one last Saturday night.

Mr. Hall, of Chicago, purchaser of Mr. Winston's Hebron farm, was in town a few hours, last Sunday.

Uncle Frank Smith, of Union, was the guest of his sister, Mrs. Mary Carpenter, Sunday and Monday.

Judge J. A. Donaldson, of Carrollton, and Hon. R. B. Brown, of Warsaw, attended court here Monday.

Dr. Sam Adams, of Walton, was the guest of his brotner, County Clerk B. W. Adams, Monday and Monday night.

James A. Duncan returned Friday from a visit of several day's with his daughter, Mrs. V. W. Gaines, at Rising Sun, Ind.

Senator Tolin came home Saturday evening and remained until Monday afternoon, when he returned to his post of duty at Frankfort.

H. G. Blanton, the popular liveryman, of Erlanger, was in town Friday afternoon. They do say Hal always drives when he has a customer who wants to come to Burlington.

Howard Smith, son of A. W. Smith, of Verona, received a painful and serious injury, a few days since, in St. Louis, Mo., type foundry, where he was at work. He got burnt about the eyes with some molten metal.

L. H. Tanner, one of the good citizens of the Gunpowder neighborhood, was in town Friday afternoon, seeking a confab with one of the local tobacco merchants. Doubtless he had a crop of the weed to dispose of if a satisfactory price was named.

Tobacco Growers Meeting.

At a meeting of the tobacco growers held at the court house, last Saturday morning, N. S. Walton, waschosen chairman and W. L. Riddell, secretary. Mr. Walton made a well timed speech advocating the forganization of the tobacco growers for their own protection. At the conclusion of Mr. Walton's remarks, Robert Wood, county attorney of Gallatin county, made a brief talk in which he presented to the meeting the several different plans proposed for the organization. Mr. Wood's remarks were given the very best attention. He urged upon the meeting the necessity of the growers taking some steps looking to their protection. Mr. Wood concluded his remarks by stating that a growers' meeting would be held at Beaver in the afternoon, and suggested that this meeting appoint three or four of the delegates to the Carrollton convention, and that the Beaver meeting appoint the remainder. This suggestion met with favor, and the chair was directed to appoint three of the seven delegates which it did as follows: John D. McNeely, Ezekiel Aylor and R. Lee Huey.

A collection amounting to $3 was then taken to assist in paying the expenses of the delegates to the Carrollton convention.

The meeting then adjourned to meet again at 2 o'clock p. m., on the first Monday in April to hear reports from the delegates and to learn the progress the move was making.

The meeting held at Beaver in the afternoon, was a larger and more enthusiastic meeting than that held at Burlington in the morning. The following delegates were chosen to attend the convention at Carrollton, Edward Moore, Fielding Dickey, J. O. Griffith and Joseph Cleek.

County Attorney Wood, Sheriff Conley and Wm. Moore, of Gallatin county, were present, and took part in the meeting. They went to Beaver to take part in the meeting there that afternoon.

The attendance was not large, but all present were in hearty sympathy with the proposed move.

J. L. Riley and O. P. Conner, two large buyers of this county, took part in the meeting, and are anxious to see the object in view made a success.

M. T. Graves, of Bullittsville, occupied a front seat, and is anxious to see the good work pushed to success.

The meeting was not as large as it should have been, but Boone county people have a fashion of attending to all of their kind of business on county court day, and it is hard to get them to depart from the old custom.

Railroad Meeting.

The meeting in the interest of the Ohio Valley Traction company held at the court house last Monday was largely attended, and considerable interest was manifested. The meeting was called to order by County Attorney D. E. Castleman, and Hon. N. S. Walton was elected chairman and W. L. Riddell, secretary.

After a neat speech the chairman introduced Col. A. S. Berry, who spoke at length on the benefits to be derived from the territory contiguous to a traction road from Carrollton to Covington. Col. Berry is dreadfully in earnest in the matter, and has studied the question closely, and presents his facts and figures in his usually forcible manner. Col. Berry was particular to have the people understand he was not saying that the road was sure of construction. The speech was a clear, concise presentation of a business proposition. Hons. J. A. Donaldson, of Carrollton, and R. B. Brown, of Warsaw, each addressed the meeting, urging the people of the county to lend assistance to put the road on paper for the purpose of interesting capital.

The following committee was appointed to solicit right-of-way and money to assist in having the route engineered: J. W. Conner, W. F. Grimsley, B. S. Allphin, J. C. Hughes, N. S. Bristow, R. Lee Huey, John M. Lassing, J. W. Berkshire, O. S. Watts, J. N. Pearson, J. J. Rucker and M. J. Crouch.

On motion of J. W. Berkshire, of Petersburg, the organization was made the permanent organization for the county, and the meeting adjourned to meet upon call of the chairman.

Col. Berry was well pleased with the meeting and the interest manifested, and, by the way the Colonel was given quite a nice reception by the crowd, which filled the court house.

A man by the name of Orville Williams, came to Verona, Saturday afternoon and mixed generally with our people. He took lodging at Mrs. Allen's, a widow, and being indisposed, he called Dr. McCormick, who pronounced his disease smallpox. Dr. Clore, of Bullittsville, one of the county's health officers, was telephoned for and came up Monday, and quarantined the patient and premises, and placed two guards in charge with strict quarantine orders. There is considerable excitement here.

Sheriff James W. Conley arrested Charles Dunnivan at Steele's Creek Wednesday morning on his shanty boat on a bench warrant from Boone county, charging Dunnivan with firing a pistol on the public highway. Dunnivan had been escaping the vigilance of the officers, but Sheriff Connelly, who lets none escape, went up Tuesday evening, spent the night at John Swbank's and caught his bird early next morning before he "flew de coop." Dunnivan was turned over to Deputy Sheriff B. B. Hume, of Boone county, who released him on bond.—Warsaw Independent.

Mr. Gooch and Mr. Gilbert were the only members of the Kentucky delegation who voted for the anti-oleomargarine bill in Congress.

"The country," said Mr. Gooch, "can't do too much for the farmer, for unless the farmer is prosperous, there can be no real prosperity. When the farmer has good crops, times are good, and the laboring man is benefitted thereby. I know our farmers will be benefited by the passage of the anti-oleomargarine bill, and therefore I voted for it. It is seldom that the man who follows the plow appeals to Congress for legislation, and when he does come knocking at the door he should be heard, and if his request is reasonable, it should be granted. Therefore I am for protecting the cow, and all legislation that benefits the tiller of the soil."—Washington Post.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. Schley and Santiago
BY GEORGE EDWARD GRAHAM.

The Intrepid Associated Press war correspondent, who was aboard the U. S. S. Brooklyn during the entire five months of the campaign. Illustrated with photographs taken by the Author during the fight.

The Most Sensational Book of the Day.

The true story of the famous cruise of the Flying Squadron under Commodore Winfield Scott Schley, including the blockade and destruction of the Spanish fleet, TOLD FOR THE FIRST TIME.

Contains an autograph endorsement and personal account of the battle by Rear-Admiral Schley.

"The facts of the story of the movements and operations of the Flying Squadron as the author tells them in this book are correct." —W. S. SCHLEY.

An interesting narrative of facts. Explains the so-called "Retrograde Movement;" the "Loop;" the "Coaling Problem;" and settles conclusively every adverse ruling of the Court of Inquiry.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT, when Governor of New York, said: "Mr. Graham's story is the best account I have heard or read of the naval fighting during the war. It needed as much courage to go about taking photographs as it did to work the guns."

THE NEW YORK HERALD says: "Mr. Graham, in the telling of facts, leaves the reader free to make the deduction that several naval officers need a Court of Inquiry to re-establish their reputations, if they can be re-established."

No subject has ever been before the public that has interested everybody as the manner in which Admiral Schley has been treated, and the American people demand the story as presented above. This book tells everything just as it occurred and as the eyewitnesses saw it. Book is selling like wildfire. Liberal commissions. Outfit and books now ready. Send seven 2-cent stamps for canvassing outfit. ACT QUICK. Now is the time to MAKE MONEY.

Price $1.50, $1.75, $2.25, $2.75, according to style of binding desired.

SHIPWRECKED SAILORS.

Rescued After Being Lashed to the Deck House For Three Days.

Palm Beach, Fla., March 3.—A party of shipwrecked sailors were landed at Palm Beach Sunday afternoon from the steamer El Cid, Capt. Baker, which picked them up Saturday morning about 200 miles east of Savannah. They were: Capt. A. Brown, First Mate Sherman Martin and a crew of eight, of the schooner B. R. Woodside, bound from Fernandino to St. John, P. R., with a cargo of lumber. Last Wednesday a heavy gale from the northeast sprang up. The schooner was blown out of her course and labored in the heavy seas until a leak set in and becoming water logged. The officers and the crew finally lashed themselves to the after deck house and remained there with many seas breaking over them for three days, when their signals were seen by the El Cid. The schooner was going to pieces when the men were taken off. One has a broken leg, but the others already have recovered from their terrible experience.

IN THE BACK WATERS.

Capt. Chas. A. Allen and His Brother Drowned at Montgomery.

Montgomery, Ala., March 3.—Capt. Charles A. Allen and his brother, Thomas Allen, of this city, were drowned in the back waters of the Alabama river Sunday afternoon. The young men were driving along a high embankment with back water about 50 feet deep on each side. A heavy breaker from the three-mile wide river dashed against the embankment and frightened their horse, which reared up and fell backward on the buggy, pushing it and its occupants into the deep water. Both were drowned. Capt. Allen was one of the best known men in the state. He was formerly chief clerk in the adjutant general's office and was state ordnance officer for a number of years. At the time of his death he was captain of the Montgomery Blues, one of the oldest military organizations in the United States. Both bodies were recovered.

FLOOD FOLLOWS FIRE.

Many Houses in Paterson, N. J., and Vicinity Are Inundated.

Paterson, N. J., March 3.—This city, so recently swept by fire, is now overwhelmed by flood. Three weeks ago the greater part of its business section was burned out, and now the quarter occupied by the honses of the poorer class is inundated. Hundreds of families have been made homeless by the overflow of the Passaic river and the country for miles around the city is under water.

So far but one death has been reported. The great peril now is that the Spruce street race way may overflow, in which event a great loss of property in the manufacturing districts is sure to ensue. The race way supplies water power for most of the mills along the water front.

THE NORTH CAROLINA STORM.

It Is Reported That Seven Persons Lost Their Lives.

Asheville, N. C., March 3.—Telegraph and telephone communication was restored Sunday for the first time since Thursday with the towns along the Southern railway, which were cut off by the recent heavy rains. Several depots at stations on the French Broad river were carried away and the track washed out.

Five lives are reported to have been lost in Marshall during the storm and reports from the section of Western North Carolina say that two other persons are known to have perished in the flood. The damage to property is estimated at from $50,000 to $75,000.

CHICKAMAUGA PARK.

A Cavalry Regiment Will Be Ordered There In May or June.

Chattanooga, Tenn., March 3.—Adjt. Gen. Corbin, in an interview here Sunday, stated that a cavalry regiment from Cuba will be ordered to Chickamauga park in May or June to remain through the summer. Gen. Corbin says that a large body of soldiers will be sent here this fall for instructions, inaugurating the camp of instruction at Chickamauga park.

Robert Emmett's Birthday.

New York, March 3.—Under the auspices of the Clan-Na-Gael, the 124th anniversary of the birth of Robert Emmett was celebrated Sunday night at the Academy of Music. A large crowd was in attendance. Senator Benjamin R. Tillman, of South Carolina, delivered the oration.

The Hague, March 3.—Queen Wilhelmina has asked the premier, Dr. Kuyper, to announce publicly that the rumors regarding the alleged unsatisfactory state of her health are absolutely unfounded.

BOERS' HEAVY LOSS.

Six Hundred Killed and Captured and Many Cattle Taken.

Among the Prisoners Are Gen. De Wet's Son and His Secretary, Commandants Meyer and Truther—Field Cornets Taken.

London, March 1.—Following the precedent of Lord Roberts, who announced Gen. Cronje's surrender at Pardeeburg on the anniversary of the battle of Majuba Hill (February 27, 1881,), Lord Kitchener apparently selected the same anniversary to achieve a big success, by a combined movement lasting two days, against the Boer forces within the Harrismith and Van Renan line of blockhouses. The Boer losses aggregate 600 men killed or captured and 2,000 horses and 28,000 head of cattle fell into the hands of the British troops.

The news was so welcome to the British that it was read out in the house of commons by the war secretary, Mr. Broderick, from a dispatch of Lord Kitchener as follows:

"Harrismith, Feb. 28.—Yesterday the combined operations of the columns terminated in driving the Boers against the Harrismith and Van Reenen blockhouse lines. The river Wilge was held by the Leicester regiment and Elliott's mounted infantry from Harrismith, while the columns formed on the Frankfort and Botha's Pass blockhouse line and advanced south, holding the entire country between the Wilge and the Natal frontier. On the first night a severe attempt to break through was made at a point between Remington's and Byng's columns and the New Zealanders behaved with great gallantry.

The fighting was a close quarters fight and the Boers, as usual, drove a large herd of cattle in front of them. Mani Botha, the Boer leader, was killed and 35 dead Boers were found on the ground. Over 100 horses were killed and 6,000 head of cattle were left in our hands. Other small attempts to break out were made and in two cases succeeded. On the last day 450 Boers, with rifles and horses, were captured. All the columns have not yet reported and the operations have been very wide, but over 600 Boers have been either killed or are prisoners in our hands; also 2,000 horses, 28,000 head of cattle, 200 wagons, 60,000 sheep, 600 rifles and 50,000 rounds of ammunition. The prisoners include Gen. DeWet's son and his secretary; Commandants Meyer and Truther, and several field cornets. These satisfactory results are very appropriate on the anniversary of Majuba."

The war secretary, Mr. Broderick, replying to a question in the house of commons, said no details with the exception of the list of casualties, had been received of the recent capture of a British convoy of empty wagons near Klerksdorp. No men had been reported killed, but there were about 100 wounded.

THE TUNNEL DISASTER.

Engineer John M. Wisker Indicted For Manslaughter.

New York, March 1.—The grand jury concluded its investigation into the New York Central railway tunnel disaster of January 8, and found an indictment for manslaughter against John M. Wisker, the engineer of the White Plains local, which ran into the Norwalk local in the tunnel. A bench warrant was issued for Wisker's arrest. The grand jury dismissed the complaint charging that the tunnel as operated by the New York Central Railroad Co. constituted a public nuisance.

A STRANGE MALADY.

An Epidemic Prevails in Mattoon, Ill., Similar to "Pink Eye."

Mattoon, Ill., March 1.—This city is puzzled by an epidemic which, for want of a better name, occulists have called "pink eye," a disease commonly attributed to horses. Several weeks ago it originated in the public schools and has spread until there is now over 300 cases. The symptoms of the disease are the same as common sore eyes, only intensified. The ailment, though annoying, is not dangerous.

Man and Wife Charged With Murder.

Norman, Okla., March 1.—John A. Dean and his wife, Mary Dean, were arrested here charged with killing Henry Dean, February 21, by administering poison. Henry Dean was a wealthy farmer and had made a will leaving most of his property to Mary Dean, his niece.

Worst Flood in Its History.

Watkins, N. Y., March 1.—Montour Falls is suffering from the worst flood in its history, more than half of the village being under water. Bridges are gone and buildings washed from their foundations. Hundreds of families have been driven into the upper stories.

Streets Charged With Electricity.

Chicago, March 1.—Two streets charged with electricity from underground wires created a panic on the west side during the early hours of Friday morning and five horses were killed, several others receiving serious shocks.

Double Tragedy.

Leavenworth, Kan., March 1.—Frank Burlanek, a saloonkeeper, Friday shot Daisy Carpenter and then shot himself through the heart. The woman will die. Burlanek has a wife and three children at Creie, Neb.

RECORD STAMP YEAR.

The Present One Will Be Memorable for the Many New Issues in Several Nations.

The year 1902 will be a memorable one to philatelists, and will beat all previous records. They have already started with the new Edward VII. stamps. A few months will see the new Spanish postal issue, which will be printed after the coronation of Alfonso XIII., in May. America is printing fresh stamps in honor of Mr. Roosevelt, and Germany announces an important new stamp for the coming spring. Switzerland is planning a stamp. Russia will celebrate the second centenary of the building of St. Petersburg by a fresh issue. Finally it is hoped by all ardent philatelists that a limited number of new stamps will be printed this year in honor of the coronation, says the London News. A collector protests against the statement that the philatelists "hope for" a limited number of stamps printed in honor of the coronation. Special and unnecessary issues are, he says, detested by the serious collector, a fact which raises our opinion of the fraternity considerably. He says: "It is one of the charms of specializing in the stamps of Great Britain that this country has been kept singularly free from limited issues, which are supposed to possess a fictitious value"

Names of Congresses.

A congress is officially known by its number; the present is the Fifty-seventh. It is becoming a common practice to designate them as the "first Crisp," the "third Reed," or the "second Henderson," which would be the every-day designation of this one. Occassionally a congress is nicknamed for some distinguishing accomplishment, or for some fault alleged against it by the opposition, as the "billion dollar congress" of 12 years ago. The practice of nicknaming a legislative body has many examples in English parliamentary history. The list includes the "Lack-Learning" parliament, the "Long," which became the "Rump," and was followed by "Barebones'" parliament among others.

Mrs. L. A. Harris, a Prominent Member of a Chicago Woman's Political Club, tells how Ovarian Troubles may be Cured without a Surgical Operation. She says:

"Doctors have a perfect craze for operations. The minute there is any trouble, nothing but an operation will do them; one hundred dollars and costs, and included in the costs are pain, and agony, and often death.

"I suffered for eight years with ovarian troubles; spent hundreds of dollars for relief, until two doctors agreed that an operation was my only chance of life. My sister had been using Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for her troubles, and been cured, and she strongly urged me to let the doctors go and try the Compound. I did so as a last resort; used it faithfully with the Sanative Wash for five months, and was rejoiced to find that my troubles were over and my health restored. If women would only try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound first, fewer surgical operations would occur."—MRS. L. A. HARRIS, 278 East 31st St., Chicago, Ill.

THE PRINCE'S TOUR.

His Receptions in the Southern Cities Were Hospitable and Demonstrative.

ROYAL VISITOR APPRECIATED IT.

He Was Escorted to the Top of Lookout Mountain Where He Viewed the Famous Battlefield.

The Prince and Party Were Warmly Greeted at Chattanooga, Nashville, Louisville, Indianapolis and Stations Along Route.

Washington, Feb. 25.—Prince Henry arrived in Washington at 10:20 Monday morning. He was met by Secretaries Hay and Long and Count Quadt and two other attaches of the German embassy. Ten minutes later he left for the white house.

He had scarcely crossed the threshold before the president, who was waiting for him, stepped forward and grasped him by the hand. The greetings that passed were of the most cordial nature. After the president and prince had talked together for a few moments the president conducted the royal visitor into the red room, where Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Alice were waiting. The prince expressed himself as delighted at the honor of meeting the ladies, and was particularly complimentary to Miss Alice.

Promptly at 11:30 o'clock the prince, accompanied by Adm. Evans, drove up to the door of the embassy. He was received by Ambassador Von Holleben, who made a low obeisance and kissed his hand. Meanwhile the band on the street played "America."

At 11:47 the president's arrival was heralded by loud cheering and vigorous waving of handkerchiefs. In the same carriage rode Col. Bingham. He was met by Ambassador Von Holleben and at once ushered into the presence of the prince. He remained exactly ten minutes.

Washington, Feb. 25.—The dinner given to Prince Henry by President Roosevelt at the white house Monday night closed the honors bestowed on the royal visitor by official Washington Monday. The affair was on an elaborate scale and brought together a most distinguished company. It was an assemblage such as has rarely if ever before gathered in the white house.

At 10:40 the party dispersed, the prince leaving directly for the railroad station, where his special train awaited him.

New York, Feb. 26.—The all-important event in the itinerary of Prince Henry of Prussia Tuesday was the launching of the schooner yacht Meteor, built at Shooters' Island for the prince's brother, the German emperor.
